The following are the present appointments for holding the Summer Circuits:—North Wales and Chester (before the Lord Chief Justice)—Monday, July 19, Ruthin; Tuesday, July 20, Mold; Wednesday, July 21, Chester; Thursday, July 22, Beaumaris; Friday, July 23, Carnarvon; Saturday, July 24, Dolgelly. Norfolk (Lord Justice Erle and the Lord Chief Baron)—Monday, July 19, Thetford; Tuesday, July 20, Bury St. Edmunds; Wednesday, July 21, Huntingdon, July 22; Cambridge, July 23; Norwich, Aug. 2; Ipswich, Aug. 3; Chelmsford, Aug. 4. Oxford (Baron Bramwell and Mr. Justice Willes)—Monday, July 12; Worcester, July 13; Stafford, July 20; Shrewsbury, July 21; Hereford, July 22; Monmouth, July 23; Oxford, July 24; Aylesbury, July 26. Northern: (Mr. Baron Bramwell and Mr. Justice Montague Smith)—Lancaster, July 19; Liverpool, July 20; Manchester, July 21; Appleby, July 24; Lancaster, July 26; Manchester, July 29; Liverpool, August 12; Lancaster, August 13; Appleby, August 14; Durham, August 16; Newcastle, August 17; Carlisle, August 19; Durham, August 20; Croydon, July 31. Midland (Mr. Justice Wightman and Mr. Justice Crompton)—Monday, July 12, Warwick; July 13, Leicester; July 14, Nottingham; July 15, Derby; July 20, Leeds, Aug. 3. South Wales and Chester, (Mr. Justice Shee)—Hereford, July 19; Brecon, July 20; Cardiff, July 21; Swansea, July 22; Carmarthen, July 17; Brecon, July 28; Presteign, Aug. 3; Chester, Aug. 7. Western (Mr. Justice Byles and Mr. Justice Keating)—Salisbury, July 19; Dorchester, July 20; Exeter, July 26; Bodmin, Aug. 2; Bristol, Aug. 4.

A meeting of the Manchester Shakspeare Commemoration Club, Aug. 7, was held, on Monday, at the Town Hall, Mr. C. M. Bennett, Esq.) in the chair. Dr. J. Watts, the hon. secretary, read the report of the committee, which stated, amongst other things, the gratifying fact that the total amount at the disposal of the committee, after the payment of all claims, was £1,000. It was also stated that the committee had, in the royal portrait, for the foundation of Shakspeare scholarships to promote the study of the English language and literature, and to encourage the study of the language and literature of the Shakspeare scholarship, of the value of about £40 per annum, tenable for three years, and open to competition to all students who have attended the evening classes. It has been a student of Owens College, he shall pass one year of the scholarship there, and that any accumulations arising from the non-award or the vacation of scholarships shall be applied in providing additional scholarships for students attending the evening classes, the amount and duties being left to the discretion of the college trustees. Substantially the same conditions had been adopted for the grammar school, with this variation—that there are to be at the school two scholarships of £20 each for two years, one of which will fall vacant each year. They will be open to the competition of boys under seventeen years of age who have been at the school for one year. Mr. G. Richardson, Mr. Alderman Heywood, and Mr. Thomas Bazley, representing by the trustees of Owens College and the Grammar School. Mr. R. J. Strem occupied the vacation, which was passed.

THE FOREIGN PICTURE-GALLERY OF THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

THERE are three picture-galleries in the Dublin Exhibition, one being occupied by the works of ancient masters, one by those of the modern British school, and one by those of foreign artists. A general view of the collection last mentioned, ranging all round the central hall, is shown in the illustration we give this week. There is a novelty of interest in this department of the Exhibition which must render it highly attractive as well as instructive. It is not so long since the Continental critics were in the habit of sneering in the Edinburgh, and it was almost with a feeling of surprise that people here became aware, through the medium of the International Exhibitions at Paris and London, of the wealth of talent growing existing in France, Germany, and Belgium. The Dublin Exhibition of 1853 was the first to set the example of inviting the contributions of foreign artists; but the collection which the managers of that Exhibition were able to bring together was quite insignificant when compared with the number of pictures which the energetic gentlemen who undertook the management of this department on the present occasion have succeeded in obtaining from all parts of Europe.

The subject of our French picture is small, but makes up in quality what it wants in numbers. There is a splendid dog by Ross Bonheur, a large white animal, with a few brown portions about it, in a large staple driven into the wall. The portrait, by M. Jannet, of the shepherd Dumicine, the Abbé Lacombien, clad in the white robes of his order, is a very good example of French portrait-painting. It is quite another style, but just as effective, is the figure of a monk, by Henrietta Browne. The "Ecce Homo," by Dubufe, is a large picture, full of feeling, and handled with much delicacy and power. The gem of the French collection, however, is a delightful little painting by Edouard Frère. It represents a group of French schoolboys, dressed in military uniform, and fully equipped with miniature implements of warfare, rushing tumultuously through a village street, while an old veteran, leaning on his staff, looks on and thinks of days when he, too, was young. The exhibition contains upwards of fifty Spanish pictures, by a considerable number of which, chosen from the National Museum of Madrid. Three of these possess considerable merit—"Jesus Christ in the Catholic Doctrine by Testament," by Eduardo Rosales, a lifesized picture painted with singular power; and "Ancient Hall of the Cortes of the Kingdom of Valencia," by Pedro Gonsalvo; and "The Last Moments of Don Alvaro de Luna on the Bridge of San Angelo," by Lorenzo Valles. The German school of painting is largely and very worthily represented. There is a considerable display from Saxony, of which four of the most interesting works have been contributed by the Queen of the Royal Gallery of Art and Industry, Dresden. The Belgian pictures, by the vigorous treatment, is the picture by Leon Cogniet, representing the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa calming the quarrel between the Princes and the Papal Legates at the Diet of Roncaglia, in the year Christian, 1157. The other contributions of the King of Saxony are a "Landscape in Spring, with Bridal Procession," by L. A. Richter; and "Children with Barrow of Hay," by Oswald Achenbach. The latter picture is a charming and natural picture of a group of children. The Exhibition contains a number of Belgian pictures, but the majority of these do not call for a detailed description. There is a very fine Bonnat's "Martyrdom of St. Denis," and a fine picture praying, purchased by the Prince of Wales; two fine Lake scenes—and a Lake Leman by Frederick Bossenbach, and Lake Wallenstadt, Switzerland—by Rothsen, and several other landscapes, remarkable for their truth to nature. The Italian contributions are few in number, and do not possess any striking merit. Of the eighteen Norwegian pictures, that by Tidemand arrest the attention of the visitor by their vigour, simplicity, and truthfulness. One, entitled "The Emigration," represents a gathering of Norwegian sectaries for worship; the other, "Norwegian Peasants Bidding Farewell," represents an aged matron displaying her wedding ornaments to her grandchildren. The art-department is under the direction of Mr. Henry Doyle, who has discharged a difficult duty also to the satisfaction of exhibitors and the public.

Sir Edward Kerrison, Bart., M.P., president of the Royal Agricultural Society of England for the current year, has succeeded to view-chairman of the council of the Royal Agricultural Benevolent Institution, of which Lord Somerville is president.

In our notice last week of the entertainments at the Crystal Palace Aquarium, the new Indian Indian, called "Sadi," as we here, and not here," was spoken of as the joint invention of Professor Pepper and Mr. Bidder, Q.C. It is due to Mr. Bidder, Q.C., to state that with Mr. Pepper the merit of this invention.

In the recent illustrated account our Illustration of the Roman Catholic Church of St. John of Jerusalem, in Ormond-street, it was stated that the cemetery attached to the church was the property of Sir Francis Boyer, Bart., M.P." We have since been informed that both the church and the cemetery are the property of Lady Boyer, as the son of Sir Sidmouth and learned Baronet, who also personally superintended the architecture and decoration of the church, and contributed the whole of the funds which has little expense, a good deal of gilding, on a white ground; the yellow glow which produces a most beautiful effect in the stained glass windows.

DREADFUL ACCIDENT ON THE SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY, AND LOSS OF TEN LIVES.

THE two fatal accidents, one at Redmal and the other near Bricket, on the lines of the South-Eastern Railway company, which followed last week, on the Friday, by one still more disastrous, on the South-Eastern lines. The train which was timed to leave Folkestone at 2 p.m. on the arrival of passengers from Boulogne, who quitted Paris that morning at seven o'clock, consisted, as usual, with about 110 passengers, and had proceeded nearly thirty miles on its journey, when at a place called Shakspeare, the accident occurred which we have now to lament. It appears that the train was moving at a rapid rate, when, station, or half way between that and Shakspeare, there is a bridge, the situation of which is shown in our Engraving, that crosses a road on Saturday morning. The railroad at each end of the bridge runs for a considerable distance in a straight line, and the train had only a few feet above the land on each side. The bridge itself, which is constructed in the usual manner, is supported by six arches, and crosses a river, which, when swollen by the rains of winter, flows in a considerable stream, but at the time of the accident was nearly quite ditch, overgrown with weeds. The fall from the bridge to this ditch is about 15 ft., but the water is not more than 18 inches deep. Between three and four o'clock in the afternoon several ploughmen were employed in laying down new metals on the left-hand side of the bridge on the way to London, and in the direction of its sunset Folkestone. The train was still incomplete, and two lengths, or about 60 ft., of iron rail remained to be laid down on the side of the road on which some of the train was advancing. They saw it hasten onward to destruction. The engine and tender passed ahead speed, and in four seconds more they saw nine or ten out of the fourteen carriages, of which inclusive of the break-vans the train was composed, disappear in the utmost peril, but too late to be of any use to others. They had been extinguished in the first terrific crash. Those who were on the spot describe the scene as one of appalling confusion. At the end of the bridge next to Staplehurst the engine and tender lay partly turned on their sides, the carriages behind the tender stood upon the break van, and a few paces back, suspended at it were from the top of the bridge, were two of the carriages. These were the two first-class carriages. At the other end of the bridge stood upon the road, and the remaining carriages, with the break-van at the rear of the train, and which were altogether uninjured. A little in front of them were two second-class carriages, with one end resting on the bridge and the other in the ditch, in just the same position as the first-class carriage already mentioned. Between these two carriages and all across the ditch, huddled and crushed and forced into one another, lay the five or six first-class carriages which formed the centre of the train. Through their broken sides and shattered windows were to be seen protruding human legs, and arms, and heads, and from every one of them was to be heard the piteous cry of human suffering. In more than one carriage a wife lay dead, or on the point of death, beside her unconscious or helpless husband. Some who survived, and might have recovered from the injuries inflicted on them by the shock, were smothered in the liquid mud in which they were imbedded. One young lady, on being rescued from a position in which suffocation seemed imminent, was found to have been fearfully mangled, and had blood issuing profusely from her nose and ears. The faces of other passengers were so blackened and swollen and battered as to retain scarcely any traces of the human countenance. Some, on the other hand, escaped with barely a scratch; but there were few indeed in that heap of rain who did not bring away with them some token of the tremendous ordeal through which they had passed. The work of extrication proceeded at first but slowly, but by six o'clock it was fairly accomplished. Those passengers who were uninjured, or whose injuries were not so serious as to prevent their travelling, were at once dispatched to London. Some seventeen or eighteen others, whose sufferings rendered it dangerous that they should make so lengthened a journey, were most kindly received and carefully attended to at the residence of Sir H. Hoare and other houses in Staplehurst and its vicinity. Ten persons have lost their lives owing to this terrible disaster. Nearly all of them were dragged out of the ditch quite dead, two or three of them being in a dying state and surviving a few brief minutes only. Seven of the ten were ladies, the majority of whom were wives, and comparatively young wives, too. One of the ladies was the wife of a Liverpool merchant, named Baynes; she was on her way home from Paris, and has left six children to mourn her untimely loss. Another was the wife of Mr. F. Bodenham, solicitor, of Hereford, who, with her husband, was returning from her wedding tour. A third was the wife of Mr. George Whitby, who was anxiously waiting her return to him by that tidal train. A fourth is a Mrs. Condliff, of the Queen's Hotel, Liverpool, whose husband lies severely injured at Staplehurst. A fifth was Mrs. Faithfull, returning home, with her husband, after ten years' absence in India. He was lately one of the Judges at Bombay. The two remaining ladies are Miss Caroline White, late of Brighton, and Miss Emma Beaumont, of Paris. Hypolyte Mercier, a French cook in the service of Admiral Freemantle, at Portsmouth, was also killed. The names of Mr. Hompson and Mr. Dunn complete this sad list. Mr. Charles Dickens was a passenger in the train, but escaped injury.

THE FATAL ACCIDENT AT BEDNAL, ON THE SHREWSBURY AND CHESTER RAILWAY.—FROM A SKETCH BY ONE OF THE PASSENGERS.—SEE PAGE 591.

With regard to the cause of all this suffering and loss of life, it seems beyond all question attributable to the fact that a portion of the rail along which the trains run was not in its place, and that, as a consequence, although the engine, tender, and break-vans, as it were, jumped the gap and ran for some way along the iron gearing which lies parallel to the rails, the carriages which followed were thrown out of their course and upset. Upon the charge of not having the whole length of rail duly laid down when the accident occurred, Henry Benge, the foreman of the platelayers, is now in custody. Some evidence was taken at the inquest on Monday. It appeared that Benge attributes his failure in this duty to the circumstance that he by some mistake took the statement in his time-book of the later hour at which the tidal-train was expected to start on Saturday as having reference to the afternoon on which the accident occurred. The arrival of the train at Headcorn was telegraphed in the ordinary way to Staplehurst, but the platelayers midway between the two stations were not within reach of telegraphic communication. Whether their foreman is solely to blame, or whether others must share with him a great responsibility, it is at present impossible to say. The company, at all events, seem desirous that the affair should be thoroughly investigated.

SCENE OF THE FATAL ACCIDENT AT STAPLEHURST, ON THE SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.—FROM A SKETCH TAKEN NEXT DAY.

THE FOREIGN PICTURE GALLERY OF THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—SEE PAGE 571.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

Everybody in Parliament seems to be in a hurry. Ministers push on their work, and, having gobbled up the Estimates much in the way that a hungry fowl snatches up grains of corn, they have set themselves resolutely to push on the heavier weight of business; while members of all classes seem unconsciously to be influenced by a sense of the necessity for speed, for they all talk faster than usual, and do not make their speeches so long as usual. In such a state of things, special incidents are rare, and, if they turn up, are soon swept away by the waves of common-place matter which come tumbling rapidly on. Curiously enough, although there is this simulation of speed in the conduct of business, there have yet been instances of obstruction which have been successful. For instance, in the last sitting evening of last week the very last Estimate was being discussed in Committee of Supply by a number of members not smaller than has dealt with the voting away of millions of public money this year, when a patriotic individual was found who thought it proper to move to count the Committee—a very unusual proceeding—and, the total being deficient, the Speaker was sent for. In the mean while the whippers-in were making superhuman efforts to bring in just three members, which would have been sufficient; but, unless vigorous physical force had been applied to them, it would have been impossible to have got within the house any of that little phalanx which was to be observed laughing through the glass panels of the door when the operation of counting out was being performed. Then, again, last Tuesday, there was an odd morning sitting, which had been appointed late the night before, and was not advertised in the usual way, at which Mr. Childers and six other members only assisted, in which several Government bills were advanced a stage, and against which Mr. Henley earnestly protested as almost a breach of faith in the conduct of the House. This caused the evening sitting to be postponed to six o'clock, and it was whispered that an attempt would be made to count out at once on the Speaker resuming the chair, the object being to prevent Mr. Berkeley bringing on his motion with regard to the ballot; and the rumour went that the design was favoured by the friends of that system of voting, who thought the motion ill-timed. The scheme was defeated by the Irish members, who mustered to enable a discussion to be had on the Belfast riots, which was absurdly quiet for an Irish debate, it absolutely dragged along for hours, and, being supplemented by as dreary a discussion on harbours of refuge, pressed Mr. Berkeley out, at half-past twelve. The object of the threatened count was thus attained; but the circumstance of its having been projected shows that some members, at least, are not in such a hurry to end the Session as has been supposed.

The week has, however, been signalised by probably, if not certainly, the two last party struggles of the Session and the Parliament—if such mild and distant skirmishing as characterised the debates on the Roman Catholic Oath Bill and the Tests Abolition Oxford Bill can be so designated. The dressing of the Parliamentary arena was much as usual, for there was a very good House on Monday for the Oath Bill, although there was not such a crowd of supernumeraries as are ordinarily brought together on similar occasions. The stage being Committee, the contest turned on a neutralising amendment of Sir Hugh Cairns, who rather tossed it on the table than dandled it proudly and lovingly before the spectators, when immediately behind him rose one of his own friends, Mr. Ward Hunt, who sent out a strong jet of Liberalism, on this point at least, out of the very centre of the Tory main; and this with such a good will, that Mr. Disraeli thought it necessary at once to interpose and turn it off with a prompt hand. There are many things that Mr. Disraeli does well; but in nothing is he so successful as in making a dull speech. In this instance there is no doubt that anyone who read the address he made in this debate would think that it was able, well arranged, subtle in reasoning—it was awfully trimming—and elaborately composed; but those are just the causes why on those who heard it it no effect was produced beyond that of tedium. It wanted the element which is always the vis vivida of Mr. Disraeli's telling speeches—that of antagonism—besides which, somehow, one fancied that the last scene of the gout drama was being played out, and that the languor of the convalescent was sought to be maintained. Perhaps, too, the effort to avoid the suggestion of any affinity with the case of the Archbishop of Granada was overdone in the preparation of the speech. All through, the fire of the debate was carried on with blank cartridge; Sir George Grey was almost slow in his delivery; Mr. Whiteside spoke with his voice only, and not with his arms and legs, as when he is in what he thinks is being earnest, and chiefly occupied himself in pelting Mr. Horsman with paper pellets containing little extracts of opinion which were inconsistent with that gentleman's latest demonstrations on this question; while Mr. Horsman, who had not come prepared with a speech at all, armed himself with a large volume of "Hansard," and returned extracts for extracts. The high-pressure system prevalent in the dispatch of business was illustrated here by the fact that this debate, which in ordinary times would have been spun out by minor members all night, was choked off at a little after seven; the respective forces being in line then, whereas if they had been allowed to disperse on leave for an hour or two, they could not by possibility have been rallied again.

The Tests Abolition Oxford Bill was to have produced, or ought to have produced, one of the great "Conservative Wednesdays," which were invented a Session or two ago; but though the proceedings were such as to give the day something of that character, it was only in outline, and not in a set picture. Indeed, things looked very discouraging to Mr. Göschen when he began to move the second reading; for, with difficulty, forty members were found who, metaphorically speaking, lifted the Speaker into the chair, and as soon as that operation was performed, at least thirty-two went away again to the Committees whence they had been summoned. It was a trial for a young member, but Mr. Göschen was equal to it, and he went on with his skilfully-constructed speech, arguing, illustrating, and putting his case in a logically-irresistible manner, while his demeanour was so judiciously earnest, that, by one of those insensible influences which sometimes appear to be at work in the house, it became known to the outsiders that a first-rate speech was being delivered; and so members came rapidly dropping in, and, before the first half hour was over, he had just such an audience as he would probably have chosen to appreciate his address. Even his peroration, although it was couched in language which might be called declamatory, was nicely adjusted to the subject, while the warmth of delivery was exactly adequate to the words, and was most skilfully kept within those bounds which practised speakers in the House of Commons are accustomed to observe, and thus to adapt themselves to the genius of that assembly. The rest of the debate was mild enough. Lord Robert Cecil was utterly uncharacteristic, and, as it must be supposed that he was unaware of the domestic bereavement which was taking place at the very time he was speaking, it would seem as if, unconsciously, he was oppressed with a sense of the calamity which was falling at that moment on his house. There was electioneering in the speeches of Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Gathorne Hardy. The former, with painful severity and even more painful bating of breath and humility of manner, put forth all his powers as a casuist to prove why, just before a general election, he could not support a measure for which he had voted last year; while the latter went in, with all the noise and volubility of the hustings, for a whole, entire, and uncompromising defence of the existing state of things in the University, and launched out opinions which he, of course, believes most gratifying to the major part of a constituency before which he will certainly come, notwithstanding his nolo episcopari declarations in that regard to the electors of Leominster. The majority of sixteen in favour of the second reading of the bill is significant of its fate this year—that is, palpable and inevitable collapse.

The Emperor of Austria has conferred the dignity of Councillor upon Count de Crivelli, his Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at the Spanish Court.

An order of the Austrian Minister of Finance, published in the Vienna Gazette, removes the prohibition which has hitherto been laid on the exportation of arms and munitions of war destined for Italy, Switzerland, the seacoast, the Danubian Principalities, Servia, and Bosnia.

The new Brazilian Ministry is composed as follows:—Marquis Olinda, Interior and President of Council; M. Nambuco de Araujo, Justice; M. Silva Ferraz, War; M. Diaz de Carvalho, Finance; M. Octaviano, Foreign Affairs; M. Saraiva, Marine; M. Paulo Souza, Agriculture.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Monday.

The House reassembled for the first time after the Whitsuntide recess.

The Railway Debentures Registration Bill was read a second time.

AMERICAN BELLIGERENT RIGHTS.

The Earl of Derby called attention to two documents—one addressed by Earl Russell to heads of departments, withdrawing belligerent rights from the Confederates of the Southern States of America, and the other a proclamation by the President of the United States declaring the ports of the Union, with certain exceptions, to be open to commerce, and denouncing the penalties of piracy against persons trading with the excepted ports.

Earl Russell said when his letter was written the war in America was practically ended, and only two Confederate vessels remained afloat, one of which was about to surrender to the authorities at Havannah. Having first ascertained from Mr. Adams that the United States had determined upon abandoning their belligerent rights, he at once brought the question before the Cabinet. The war had now entirely ceased, and the maritime Powers of Europe had expressed concurrence in the decision of the British Government. With regard to the proclamation of President Johnson, it was certainly a curious document, and that portion of it which denounced as piracy the attempt to trade with ports not blockaded was somewhat startling. Sir Frederick Bruce had immediately sought an explanation, but could get none, and his opinion was that the threat was merely meant to be suspended in terrorem.

The Earl of Derby suggested that the Government would do well to make some protest against such an illegal threat.

THE UNION CHARGEABILITY BILL.

Lord Granville, having presented several petitions in favour of the principle of a union rating, moved the second reading of the Union Chargeability Bill. He described what had been the course of legislation on the relief of the poor from the date of passing the new Poor-Law Act, to prove that its tendency had always been to shorten the period of residence that gives a legal settlement, and to equalise the rating. He then noticed the chief objections made to the measure. It was alleged there ought to be further inquiry; but they had been inquiring into this subject for more than thirty years. They had done more: they had legislated on the recommendations founded on those inquiries. It was now time to act more decidedly in the same direction. He admitted the formation of the present union was not perfect; but it would not be expedient to delay the bill till the unions could be readjusted. Another objection to the measure was that less economy could be exercised in the management of large areas than in that of parishes. Experience, he believed, had shown the reverse to be the case. He urged the House to pass the bill, which would do away with the want of uniformity in the present system of poor law administration, by which one class of poor was relieved from one fund, a second class from another. The measure would complete the principle of the measure of 1834, according to the recommendation of the best authorities, among whom were Sir J. Graham and Sir G. C. Lewis. He could see no ground or reason for referring the bill to a Select Committee, and he believed the motion was irregular in itself. The reference to a Committee could not be proposed till the bill had been read a second time. In the next place, their Lordships could not receive any alterations of the bill originating in that house. The reason for referring a bill to a Committee generally was that its details were numerous and intricate. This was a measure of few clauses, and with no intricacy of detail. He hoped, therefore, the House would reject the motion and pass the bill, which he believed would ultimately prove beneficial to the interests of the owners of land.

Lord Brougham briefly supported the bill, the principle of which was approved by the authors of the reform of the poor law he had himself advocated more than thirty years ago. The bill now proposed would complete what was left imperfect in that great measure.

The Duke of Rutland moved that the bill be referred to a Select Committee. He did so because he believed the measure would operate very unjustly in some localities. He read a number of letters and documents to prove this position, and contended that on such a question the House ought to proceed with great caution. He argued, further, that the bill would create mischievous distinctions between town and country, and destroy the present community of feeling between employers and the employed.

Lord Spencer spoke in favour of the bill, and answered some of the objections made by the Duke of Rutland. He thought the measure was required. It might be necessary to make some readjustment of the present unions, but he would not for that reason endanger the passing of the bill, which, he believed, would prove beneficial to the labouring classes and to the country at large.

Lord St. Maur addressed the House on the influence of the law of settlement and the law of removal in restricting the field of employment for the labouring class. The bill, by removing these restrictions, would improve the position of the labourer.

Lord Carnarvon would vote for the second reading, though he thought it would have been better had some preliminary measure been introduced, re-adjusting the present unions. It appeared to him that, on this question, both parties had over-rated the results of the measure. They would not be so formidable as the opponents of the bill predicted; on the other hand, the supporters of the bill anticipated too many advantages from it.

Earl Grey approved the bill, the principle of which was sound. Too much of the vicious administration of the old system survived the change introduced by the Act of 1834, and it was necessary to remove it. He should vote for the second reading.

Lord Redesdale doubted the policy of increasing the area of rating. Nor was a large area conducive to the good administration of the poor law. It had been a failure in London because the officials had no knowledge of the poor they relieved. This was not the case in the country, where the law could be well administered.

The House then divided on the question that the bill be referred to a Select Committee. The numbers were—Contents, 24; Non-contents, 86: Majority against the motion, 62.

The bill was then read a second time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Monday.

The report of the Committee of Supply was brought up and agreed to.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer obtained leave to bring in a bill to consolidate the offices of Comptroller of the Exchequer and Chairman of the Commissioners for Auditing the Public Accounts.

The report of the Constabulary Force (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill was considered, with the proposed amendments.

Mr. Villiers moved the second reading of the Poor-Law Board Continuance Bill. A long discussion followed, but eventually the bill was read a second time by 74 votes to 67.

The order for the second reading of the Writs, Registration, &c. (Scotland), Bill was discharged.

The following bills were read a second time:—The War Department Tramway (Devon) Bill, the Ecclesiastical Commission (Superannuation) Bill, the Colonial Laws Validity Bill, the Colonial Marriages Validity Bill, the Penalties Law Amendment Bill, and the National Gallery (Dublin) Bill.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:—The Defence Act (1860) Amendment Bill, the Procurators (Scotland) Bill, and the Pilotage Order Confirmation (No. 2) Bill.

The Lunatic Asylum Act (1863) Bill passed through Committee.

Some amendments in the Ireland Revenue Bill and the Prisons Bill were considered and agreed to.

The House went into Committee on the Record of Titles (Ireland) Bill, and was occupied for some time in the discussion of the various clauses.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC OATH BILL.

The House went into Committee on this bill.

Sir H. Cairns moved an amendment to insert into the proposed oath, on Clause 1, a sentence making the member swear that he will do nothing to subvert the Established Church or the Protestant religion and Government. He supported the amendment as being a bulwark of the Church.

Mr. Hunt opposed it. He did not believe the Church wanted any such bulwark. Every member ought to be left free to vote as he pleased on any subject.

Mr. Disraeli delivered his promised declaration on the bill. He sought to soothe Roman Catholics and Protestants alike. He deprecated all attacks on Roman Catholics, and lectured Roman Catholics, in return, on the want of wisdom shown by them in assailing the Irish Church. After all, he was for inserting the words proposed by Sir H. Cairns.

Sir G. Grey declined to follow Mr. Disraeli through all the topics of his speech. The bill was good and wise in principle, and therefore he supported it. He ventured, however, to remind the Opposition that no attack upon the Irish Church had ever come from Roman Catholic members of the house.

Mr. Whiteside supported the amendment, as did Mr. Henley.

After a few words from Mr. Horsman and Mr. Newdegate, the amendment was negatived by 166 votes to 147.

The bill passed through Committee, and was ordered to be reported.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Tuesday.

An address was agreed to congratulating her Majesty and the Prince and Princess of Wales on the birth of the young Prince.

A bill prohibiting railway companies from locking both doors of passenger-carriages was read a first time.

The Partnership Amendment Bill, the Land Debentures (Ireland) Bill, the Local Government Supplemental (No. 4) Bill, the Militia Ballots Suspension Bill, and the Militia Pay Bill were read a second time.

The Sewage Utilisation Bill was read a third time and passed. The following private bills were also read a third time and passed:—Bromley Gas; Enniskillen, Bundoran, and Sligo Railway; Furness and Lancaster and Carlisle Union Railway, Oldham Borough Improvement, Sirhowy Railway, South-Eastern Railway (New Title), Stapenhill and Burton-upon-Trent Bridge, Wigtownshire-roads, and Worcester, Dean Forest, and Monmouth Railway.

A conversation took place on the deplorable situation of the English captives in Abyssinia, Earl Russell pointing out the difficulty of reaching the petty tyrant who has so long defied the Government of this country.

In Committee on the Public-house Closing Act (1864) Amendment Bill, Earl De Grey moved to strike out the fifth clause, with the view of transferring the power for granting occasional licenses from the magistrates to the commissioners of police.—The Marquis of Clanricarde intimated that, if the clause were struck out, he should move its restoration on the report. The magistrates, and not the police, were the constituted authorities to decide such matters. The clause was struck out and the bill passed through Committee.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Tuesday.

Leave was given to Sir R. Peel to bring in a bill for transferring the Ulster Canal to the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland.

The following bills went through Committee:—The Navy and Marines Wills Bill, the Navy and Marines Property of Deceased Bill, the Naval and Marine Pay and Pension Bill, the Colonial Laws Validity Bill, and the Colonial Marriages Validity Bill.

The Prisons Bill was read a third time and passed.

Mr. Layard, in reply to a question, said the United States Government had declined to make any compensation to the widow of Mr. Gray—one of the officers of a British merchant ship—who was shot by one of the lieutenants of a Federal cruiser near the Cape of Good Hope some time ago.

The Greenwich Hospital Bill was further considered in Committee and passed through that stage, a clause being added by Mr. Childers, in accordance with a suggestion made by Sir John Hay on a former occasion, providing that the honorary office of governor, to be filled by a distinguished naval officer, should be continued. Subsequently the bill was ordered to be reported, with amendments, to the House.

Sir W. Fraser moved an address to the Queen praying her to appoint a commission to inquire into the operation of the Act 18th and 19th Vict., cap. 120, so far as the same relates to the paving, lighting, and cleansing of the metropolis. The hon. member complained that the streets of London, in these respects, were disgraceful. With the view of finding a remedy, he suggested that it would be well to appoint a Royal Commission, composed of scientific men, to inquire into and report upon the subject.—Sir G. Grey admitted that the present system was not a very satisfactory one, but what was wanted was better and more efficient superintendence. In his opinion, the real remedy lay in the transfer of power from the local vestries to the central body, the Metropolitan Board of Works.—Sir W. Fraser having expressed himself content with the admissions of the Home Secretary, the motion was withdrawn.

Mr. Reilly moved a resolution to the effect that the evidence taken by the Commissioners appointed to inquire into the Belfast riots contained statements so seriously impugning the official conduct of certain magistrates that equity to the magistrates accused, and a due regard to the vindication of the impartiality of the administration of justice, required that a full inquiry into the truth of these charges should be instituted by the authorities intrusted with the supervision of the magistracy of Ireland. A long discussion took place on the motion, and at its close the House divided, and the motion was negatived by 132 to 39.

Harbours of Refuge.—Sir F. Smith moved—"That, in the opinion of this House, her Majesty's Ministers should now adopt measures for the construction of some of the harbours of refuge on the coast of Great Britain and Ireland recommended by a Committee of this House in 1857 and by a Royal Commission in 1859." The hon. and gallant gentleman urged that the sum of £1,340,000 was all that was required to save thousands of human lives and millions of property, and that this expenditure might be extended over ten years.—Mr. Blake seconded the motion, which was supported by Mr. Grant-Duff.—Mr. Gibson, in opposing the motion, stated that the shipowners of the kingdom were indisposed to contribute towards the construction of those harbours, and that the Royal Commissioners had exceeded their duty in making recommendations in reference to the financial part of the question. He warned the House how it consented to vote large sums of money upon such an indefinite proposition as that which the hon. member had brought forward. He also denied that even if the harbours were made they would have the effect of saving life and property in the proportion spoken of. To save life from shipwreck the best means, in his opinion, was to establish life-boats and good rocket apparatus in positions where casualties most frequently occurred, and to assist voluntary efforts in improving the entrances to existing harbours, and this was being done to a considerable extent under the Harbours Act, by advances of public money at a low rate of interest. The motion was supported by Mr. Kendall, Mr. Liddell, and Sir J. Hay, and, after a brief reply from Sir F. Smith, was negatived, on a division, by 111 to 99.

Mr. H. Berkeley postponed his annual Ballot motion, alleging that at that late hour of the night (twenty minutes past twelve o'clock) it would be inexpedient to bring on so great a question.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Wednesday.

Lord Bury appeared at the bar, and brought up her Majesty's gracious reply to the address of the House on the birth of a Prince. Her Majesty's reply thanked the House sincerely for its loyal and affectionate address on the birth of her Majesty's grandson; and the Queen received with gratification the renewed assurances of the House of Commons of loyal affection to herself and family.

The Arrest for Debt Abolition (Ireland) Bill and the Pheasants (Ireland) Bill were read a second time.

The Penalties Law Amendment Bill passed through Committee.

The Lords' amendments in the Married Women's Property (Ireland) Bill were considered and agreed to.

The Pier and Harbour Orders Confirmation Bill, the Colonial Laws Validity Bill, the Colonial Marriages Validity Bill, and the Lunatic Asylum Act (1853), &c., Amendment Bill were read a third time and passed; as also were the following private bills:—Assam Company Bill; Kilrush and Kilkee Railway, and Poulnasherry Reclamation Bill; Sidmouth and Budleigh Salterton Railway Bill; and Sidmouth Railway and Harbour Bill.

The report of the resolution in reference to the funds required for fortifications and works was brought up and received, and leave was given to bring in a bill founded thereon.

Mr. M. Gibson introduced a bill to transfer from the Admiralty to the Board of Trade powers and duties relative to certain harbours, which was read a first time.

THE TESTS ABOLITION (OXFORD) BILL.

Mr. Goschen moved the second reading of the Tests Abolition (Oxford) Bill, which, he explained, was identical with the measure of last year, which had been defeated by a majority of two only. It was not the object of the bill to admit Dissenters to the governing body of the University, although it might lead to that result eventually, but to enable degrees to be conferred without reference to religious tests.

The motion was seconded by Mr. G. Duff.

Lord R. Cecil moved as an amendment that the bill be read a second time that day six months. He observed that the changes proposed would injure the University and degrade it to the level of those German institutions where there was metaphysical learning in abundance but an absolute dearth of religious belief. He could not agree to separate education from religious principles, although he had no objection to allowing Dissenters to obtain the degree of Master of Arts. To admit them to the governing body of the University, however, was a proposal to which he would never give his assent.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said he could have no hesitation as to the course which he ought to adopt on the present occasion, because he stood upon a different ground from that which he occupied last year when the subject was before the House; for the promoters of the bill openly avowed their desire to separate education from religion, and that was a principle to which he was resolutely opposed.

Several other hon. members having addressed the House, a division took place, when the numbers were—For the amendment, 190; against it, 206: majority for the second reading, 16. The bill was then read a second time.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Thursday.

The following bills were read a second time, viz.:—Dockyards Extension Bill, Local Government Supplemental (No. 4) Bill, Drainage and Improvement of Lands Acts (Ireland) Amendment Bill, Drainage and Improvement of Lands (Ireland) (Provisional Order Confirmation) (No. 2) Bill, and the Land Debentures Bill.

The following bills were passed through Committee—viz., Partnership Amendment Bill, Militia Ballots Suspension Bill, and Militia Pay Bill.

The Commons' Amendments to the Lords' Amendments in the Common Law Courts (Fees) Bill were agreed to.

The Local Government Supplemental (No. 3) Bill was read a third time and passed.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Thursday.

On the motion of Mr. Waldron, a new writ was ordered to issue for the election of a representative for the borough of Liskeard, in the room of Mr. B. Osborne, who has accepted the stewardship of her Majesty's manor of Hempholme.

On the motion of Mr. Brand, a new writ was ordered to issue for the election of a member for the city of Coventry, in the room of Sir Joseph Paxton, deceased.

Sir C. Wood, in reply to Mr. J. W. Smith, said he should make his annual financial statement for India on either Thursday next or Monday week; and, in reply to Mr. A. Mills, he added that it was not intended to raise a loan for the service of India.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply to Mr. White, said that it was desirable to reconsider the mileage duties on all locomotives, with a view to their revision or reduction, but he was not then prepared to give any pledge to bring forward a measure on the subject.

Mr. Gibson, in reply to a question of Colonel Greville, said that, some years ago, a circular was sent to the various railway companies requesting them to take special care that the doors of passenger-carriages should not be kept locked; and, from the answers he had received, he concluded that all of them concurred in the necessity of one door being always unlocked. In the recent accident at Keynsham, on the Great Western Railway, both doors to some of the carriages were locked; but it appeared that that was the result of oversight on the part of the officials whose duty it was to attend to the matter. The bars across the windows in second and third class carriages were placed there by the direction of the Board of Trade to prevent accident from passengers thrusting out their heads when approaching tunnels. Those bars, though useful in that respect, were not so strong but that in the event of accident they might be easily removed.

Mr. Layard, in reply to Mr. Baines, said there was no truth whatever in the rumour that the Anglo-Austrian Commission at Vienna, engaged in negotiating an international treaty, had turned out a failure. On the contrary, the Commission had been greatly strengthened by the addition of new members on the part of the Austrian Government. They would shortly reassemble for two months, and reassemble in September, with every prospect, he believed, of a favourable result to their labours.

The Sugar Duties and Drawbacks Bill, the object of which was to give effect to the arrangement between England, France, Belgium, and Holland, passed through Committee.

MALT DUTY BILL.

On the order for going into Committee on this bill,

Mr. CLIVE entered into the question of the malt duty, urging its repeal on behalf of the agriculturists of the country.

Sir F. LEVESON opposed the repeal of the malt duty on the ground of the advantage it would offer in the feeling of entire. He was quite ready to go into Committee on the bill, for, although he should oppose it, he would not stop in the right direction.

Mr. HUME, on the part of the labouring classes, strongly advocated the repeal of the malt duty.

Mr. LABOUCHERE quoted the EXCHEQUER and that duty millions a year were expected by the people of England to be repealed, and the trade could not have come in such a deplorable position as had been represented. He had on a former occasion pledged himself to place the question of the malt tax in an equivalent to a repeal of a portion of the income tax, but the advocates of the repeal of the malt tax did not think fit to accept the offer made to them.

Mr. BASS expressed some objections to the manner in which the malt tax was levied. He was personally connected with a brewery which for the last year had paid £1600 more in duties than he believed the Chancellor of the Exchequer was about to repeal.

Mr. H. GREPPELL, who advocated the repeal of the malt duty, urged that the Government would win by remitting the income and other taxes, which in bad years pressed heavily on the poorer classes.

After some remarks from Mr. Henley and Mr. Mollins, the House went into Committee.

After some discussion, the bill passed through Committee, its duration having been limited to three years, and the operation of the duty to be dealt with under the Act of 53 Geo. and under per bushel.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE EXCHEQUER AND PUBLIC AUDIT BILL.

The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, in moving the second reading of this Bill, said the object of it was to simplify the two offices and to do a great a retiring allowance to Lord Monteagle, the present Comptroller, who was about to resign his post.

Lord R. MONTAGU considered the bill of much too important a character, and therefore too serious a proposition for the House to go hurry at the last page of a moribund Parliament, when the great majority of the members had gone home to canvass their respective constituencies. He moved, as an amendment, that the bill be read a second time that day month.

Sir G. SYKES protested against the amendment, and said he was glad to see the chairman of the Audit Board and those of the counterparts of the Exchequer were called upon to give their aid of the Government in order to be urged his valuable services.

After a debate thereupon arose.

Ultimately Lord R. Montagu withdrew his amendment, and the bill was read a second time.

The House having gone into Committee upon Sir Fitzroy Kelly's bill to amend the law of evidence, Clause 1, authorising the plaintiff and defendant to be examined as witnesses in cases of breaches of promise of marriage, gave rise to considerable discussion. Upon a division, the clause was rejected by a majority of 81 to 72. Clause 2, authorising the examination of the wife or husband as witnesses in cases of divorce, also called up considerable opposition. The result was that the clause was withdrawn, and the bill reported.

Kelly then intimated his intention of withdrawing the bill, and the House, after a few words, at once occupied with the consideration of the other bills upon the paper, many of which were advanced a stage.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

GLADIATEUR has got safely through the Channel voyage and won the Grand Prix race in a canter, over as severe a course as ever horse was swung, we are told, to cavalry exercise on it. The Frenchmen were in ecstacies, as well they might be, and feted the horse and his owner Count de Lagrange, the engineer of Hardack (who owns half Regulus) are said to be dreadfully annoyed at his keeping his counsel so close about the son's Oaks chance, and, as they say, he has sold him, but removed his horses in consequence.

Influenza in the Ascot stables was a drawback to Ascot, but still the fields were large and the weather beautiful. The Vase day was by no means a bad one, however, in comparison with previous years; Darragh forced the running in the Triennial, but was caught at the last by Who was a Baby? who won cleverly from the Royal Stand, and beaten by a neck, Broomsleve, who only received 7 lb. from the five-year-old Rosicrucian (a mare by Stockwell a pile of money, and pulled up lame), had no chance in the Queen's Stand Plate, in which Wild Agnes was sixth. There were some very good-looking two-year-olds in the Bienvenue Stakes, in which Macdonald showed a great deal of temper, the bright-priced Chilla, half brother to Lady Audley, and by the big unfurnished Janitor was easily. Eltham gave the Blenkiron ado another lift by the way in which he beat Rosicrucian at 11 lb. for the after a dead heat, for the Vase; and Breadalbane, who received 7 lb. from Oliver, was a shade of about £1000 when he beat the first for his master in a canter. He stripped quite a different horse to what he was on the Derby day, and Mr. Chaplin's two representatives in the came down from the stand to meet him. A Maiden Plate, in which twenty-three ran, disposed of the maidenhead of Mr. Merry's Bonnie Lass, one of the Sheffield Stables; and Planet could not give 8 lb. in the Stakes to Tomato, who was an admirable handicap by half a length.

John Scott turned his southern lot loose on the Wednesday morning with Farewell and Celerima, the former of whom beat Zambesi and three others very easily. Union Jack, the favourite for the Hunt Cup, was only third, and Mr. Robinson is said to have handed a very large stake with Gratitude, who was fourth. Mr. Cookson's for a great amount before his race at 25 to 1 for the Derby, made a close winning finish in the Biennial Stakes, in which he was 1 out of the thirty-seven entries came to the post for the cup. Oppressor proved the favourite running, with Vedette, Gratitude, Peel, and Fille de l'Air well together, and Zephyr last. These positions were very little changed at the end, save for Some positions were very little changed at the end, save for Some-thing, who was unaccountably pocketed, and Ely went on with the lead. Fille de l'Air was beaten at the distance, and Fordham, running his horse with great judgment, made Ely's game show, twenty yards from home, and then, making his final effort, got up and finished level with him. Zephyr was a bad third. Some thought the Yorkshire had run won, and in the next stride he had his head in front. Ely has been and a half after the race, and Oppressor and Mr. Castance made steady running with Ely from the post, and increased the pace at the distance. Ely, when he had steadied his horse, set him going again the instant General Peel challenged at the corner of the hill, and, with Fordham's head bended, he fully four lengths. The General's heart died like a stone when he was called on, and he sadly disappointed his friends. Ely won when he was called on, and he sadly disappointed his friends. It is an unsparing sweep to four on his freely after the dead heat. It is an unprecedented circumstance that the vase and the cup should have produced dead heats the same year. Mr. Chaplin (who had two boats for the cup, between Bowton and Cammine in 1852, and Buckstone and Wild Tom Wuffler in 1860.

If people who read the account of the sale of the Grand Duke and Duchess of Cambridge's Piccadilly Rooms concluded that the articles of shortborn money in the land, they must have been equally surprised when they read the sum realised by the sale of Mr. Merry's Trust of the twenty-seven Greville mares (one of them twenty-four years old) only made 81 gs. but the remainder realised the large sum of 4094 gs. each. Seventeen of them had foals at their foot. Mr. Blenkiron bought five, and the Marquis of Aylesbury was bracketed for at 1500 gs. for Cantine, with the Marquis of Hastings for Contadina, the dam of his lordship's King Hal. Colonel Maude bought Lady Blanche, Catawba, and Doralice, at an outlay of 360 gs. 600 gs., and 1600 gs. respectively, for her Majesty, and (including the Banquet, which Mr. Jackson gathered) four mares averaged 1000 gs. Her Majesty's twenty-five yearlings averaged 343 gs., being 6½ gs. more than last year. Mr. Chaplin (who had Lord Lyon and the lucod mare Rarcliffe) followed the Queen Mary blood, and gave 1650 gs. for the Newminster Bunny colt. The St. Albans colt from Qui Vive's dam brought 600 gs. to Mr. Pardoe's nod, and sister to Chattanooga 600 gs. to Mr. "Henry's," and at the same price the Marquis of Hastings secured a St. Albans half brother to The Duke. Counting the Orlando twin filies (200 gs.) as one, there were eighteen Greville lots, which averaged 381 gs., solely owing to the St. Albans colt from King Hal's dam (1000 gs.), and sister to Scrapegrace by Newminster, both of which were bought by the Marquis of Hastings. St. Albans and Newminster were quite the sires of the day; and the Merry lot (the former averaged 820 gs., although 700 gs. the latter. Thirteen of the Stanton yearlings averaged 107 gs. at Tattersalls the next day; and Tomahawk, the property of Mr. Merry, the Derby winner, fetched 1240 at Vickrage, a long drop from his 3000 gs. at Grimston in '60, when he was sent to the Emperor Napoleon. He is a fine horse, and is in his present form. A great gathering is expected at Mr. Blenkiron's this day (Saturday), when the Derby winner will be there.

Newcastle has been almost driven beside itself with joy at the victory of Mr. Cookson's colt over the cracks of the north of Trent. The latter rowed in the Robert Jewitt, so called after its maker, and "Bob" in the Adelaide, both of the Tyne, Coquet, and Wear, the Coquet being the favourite, was no small point, considering the state of water and wind. Cooper forced the pace, and Chambers kept Coquet as under command. The Adelaide was beaten in one time was led by nearly two lengths. Two hundred yards from the winning point they were level, and Chambers shouted to Cooper for the finish with a last effort, gained a lead of a few feet; but Chambers stayed his hand, and Coquet won by a length. The Robert Jewitt was very rough, and the time, 7 min., not good in consequence.

Newcastle Races, which commenced on Tuesday, fell six wickets to spare. They scored 312 in their first innings, to which Humphrey (78), H. H. Stephenson (69), and J. Smart (55) were the leading contributors. G. Wells (85), John Lillywhite (46), and G. Payne (76, not out) did well for Sussex, who had a majority of 100 runs on the first. Lord Lyon was the order of the day in the North v. South, and the latter had 40 to the good when they began their second innings. It was there that Humphrey made the great force, and G. Bennett was run out for 100 after Tarcwat, Grundy, and four other Darwen had made 50 each. Humphrey (78) and Wells (85) were again to the front, and when stumps were drawn, from James Lillywhite. The South eventually won by 4 wickets.

PARIS RACES.—JUNE 10.

Prix du Mont-Valerien.—Mille. Duchesnois, 1. Gulmafaz, 2.
Prix de la Ville de Paris.—Mille. Vera Cruz, 1. Ivan, 2.
Prix de la Ville de Paris.—Nimo de L'Isolée, 1. Frisart, 2. Lyndhurst, 3.
Prix de Deauville.—Mille. Duchesnois, 1. Ivan, 2.
Prix de L'Ile.—Verisgaden, 1. Le Boscaud, 2.
Ivan, 3.

Prix d'Emmenville.—Gulmafaz, 1. Picolo, 2. Mille. de Rassy, 3.
Prix de Longchamps.—Mille. Vera Cruz, 1. Picolo, 2.
Prix de Neuilly.—Clermont, 1. Tancrede, 2. Prince, 3.
Prix de l'Empereur.—Mille. Duchesnois, 1. Le Fournalet, 2.
Prix du Conseil Général.—Mille. Duchesnois, 1. Nemrod, 2. Allegretto, 3.

ASCOT RACES.—TUESDAY.

Trial Stakes.—Heir-at-Law, 1. Lord Clifden, 2. Prince of Wales, 3.
Eleventh Ascot Triennial Stakes.—Ely, 1. Darragh, 2. Privateer, 3.
Queen's Stand Plate.—Breadalbane, 1. Oliver, 2. Lyttleton, 3.
Eighth Ascot Biennial Stakes.—Scarlet, 1. Russie, 2. Chilsa, 3.
Gold Vase.—Rosicrucian, 1. Broomsleve, 2. Who was a Baby? 3.
Prince of Wales's Stakes.—Breadalbane, 1. Oliver, 2. Guinevere, 3.
Maiden Plate.—Bonnie Lass, 1. Tomato, 2. Planet, 3.
Ascot Stakes.—Tomato, 1. Dead heat between Ambleer and Bally Elmond for second place.

WEDNESDAY.

Hunt Cup Stakes.—Gardevisure, 1. Zambesi, 2. Fluorette, 3.
Coronation Stakes.—Siberia, 1. Delaire, 2. The Princess of Wales, 3.
Ascot Biennial Stakes.—Celerima, 1. Farewell, 2. Zambesi, 3.
Seventh Ascot Biennial Stakes.—Farewell, 1. Gardevisure, 2. King Charming, 3.
Alexandra Plate.—Lord Lyon, 1. Lemberg, 2. Lyttleton, 3. Lord Don, 4.
Visitors' Plate.—Threadbare, 1. Lady Hylda, 2. Amber, 3.
Corporation Cup.—Regalbuto, 1. Lemberg, 2. Mr. Ten, 3. Panama, 4.
Ascot Derby Stakes.—Celerima, 1. Lancetto, 2. King Charming, 3. Doubtful, 4.

St. James's Palace Stakes.—Lancetto walked over.
Maiden Plate.—Rosicrucian, 1. Lord Lyon, 2. Westcreser, 3.
New Stakes.—Chilsa, 1. Young Shamrock, 2. Wizard, 3.

ASCOT CUP.

Ely	..	..	1
General Peel	..	..	0 2
Zephyr	..	..	0 3

Fille de l'Air, Trial Stakes.—Mount Prudden, 1. Wild Agnes, 2. Lucifer, 3.
Second New Stakes.—Breadalbane, 1. Eltham, 1. Sharnish, 2. La Perture, 3.
Sweepstakes of 50 sovs.—Province beat Pirate.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M.P., has consented to take the chair at the anniversary festival of the Printers' Pension, Almshouse, and Orphan Asylum, to be held on the 28th inst.

The governors of Westminster Hospital have unanimously elected Mr. Frederick Gye, treasurer of Covent Garden Theatre, to the office, in the room of the late Duke of Northumberland.

The Queen has given £100 to the Hospital for Consumption every evening, on and after Monday next, from half-past seven till half-past ten; admission expenses.

The Royal Botanic Society held its second summer fête in their gardens, in the Regent's Park, yesterday. The weather was unusually attractive, and the bands of the Royal Horse Guards (Blue) and the 2nd Life Guards performed.

A return has been issued showing that the sum required for the purchase of the land and buildings between the National Gallery and Trafalgar-square, for the enlargement of the former, would be £150,000, which sum £50,000 will require to be voted in the year 1866-7.

On Monday the Lord Chancellor presided in his chair at the annual meeting of the department of jurisprudence and amendment of the laws, at the rooms of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science. The annual dinner of the department is fixed for Saturday next, at the Freemasons' Tavern.

The anniversary festival of the National Orphan Home was held on Saturday last, at Ham, under the presidency of Colonel Du Cane. The Duchess of Cambridge presided, and a company of about 150 in number sat down to dinner. The Duchess of Cambridge, in proposing the first toast, referred to the outline of the society's operations. Subscriptions and donations to the amount of £1000 were announced.

Monday being Trinity Monday, the Elder Brethren of the Trinity Corporation, with their friends, assembled at the corporation house on Tower-hill, to be St. Olave's Church, Hart-street, where Divine service was performed. The Rev. Dr. Hawtrey, Provost of Eton, preached the annual general court was held, when Viscount Palmerston was re-elected master of the corporation, and Commander Hamilton, R.N., deputy-master.

The gardens of the Horticultural Society, at South Kensington, were thronged, last Saturday, on the occasion of the society's second fête of the season. The weather was carried out, with great success, for the use of "Our Tea." Rogers's bands, headed by Mme Coppet, played in the school-room, Parkins's rent, Old Pye-street, Westminster—the Earl of Shaftesbury presiding. The Marquis of Westminster was also present. Money prizes, varying from 5s. to 5s., and certificates of merit, were awarded to the successful competitors. The number of children present was about twelve months, the total amount of money being £4 16s. This anniversary, was the Working Men's Club and Reading-room in Drury-street, which has 800 members, has done much good in a poor and sometimes disorderly quarter of the town. The committee are in more pecuniary support.

A brilliant conversazione was given by the Society of Arts, on Wednesday evening, at the South Kensington Museum. All the courts and galleries were thrown open, and the bands of the Coldstream Guards and Royal Artillery played an excellent selection of music, the last-named performers blending stringed instruments with the more martial brass. They also sang some four-part songs with admirable effect. The visitors numbered about 3000.

The Langham Hotel, a building of vast size, erected in Langham-place, was opened to a widely-extended list of friends of the directors on Wednesday evening. Her Highness the Princess Mary Adelaide, the Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, visited the hotel in the morning, and in the afternoon the Prince and Princess of Wales, with the Princess Louise, inspected to the public on Monday. We intend to give an Engraving of Langham Hotel in an early Number.

The twenty-sixth anniversary festival of King's College Hospital was held on the 13th, at Willis's Rooms. His Grace the Duke of Newcastle presided. A special feature in this hospital is that ten beds are yearly endowed by the munificence of individuals, and the Duke of Newcastle, Lord Fermoy, and the president of Poor Brethren, Sir Charles Eastlake, and Mr. Patrick Colquhoun, Mr. Duff, M.P., and Colonel Sykes, M.P. The institution having been incorporated by Act of Parliament, on the morning of the meeting the governors received advice and medicine connected to 30,405. During the year 146 women received advice and medicine at the Dispensary Ward, and the number of midwifery cases attended at the patients' own homes amounted to 714. The receipts for the year amounted to £6556, and the expenses to £6504. Subscriptions to the amount of about £4000 were announced at the table.

The jubilee festival of the Royal Caledonian Asylum was celebrated at the Freemasons' Tavern on Monday night—Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe presiding. The company included many distinguished Scottish families, including his Grace the Duke of Buccleuch, Sir George Clerk, Bart., Baron Pipon, Mr. Cunningham Grahame, Sir Charles Edmonstone, Mr. Patrick Colquhoun, Mr. Duff, M.P., and Colonel Sykes, M.P. The institution having been incorporated by Act of Parliament, on the morning of the meeting the governors received advice and medicine connected to 30,405. During the year 146 women received advice and medicine at the Dispensary Ward, and the number of midwifery cases attended at the patients' own homes amounted to 714. The receipts for the year amounted to £6556, and the expenses to £6504. Subscriptions to the amount of about £4000 were announced at the table.

The jubilee festival of the Royal Caledonian Asylum was celebrated at the Freemasons' Tavern on Monday night—Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe presiding. The company included many distinguished Scottish families, including his Grace the Duke of Buccleuch, Sir George Clerk, Bart., Baron Pipon, Mr. Cunningham Grahame, Sir Charles Edmonstone, Mr. Patrick Colquhoun, Mr. Duff, M.P., and Colonel Sykes, M.P. The institution having been incorporated by Act of Parliament, on the morning of the meeting the governors received advice and medicine connected to 30,405. During the year 146 women received advice and medicine at the Dispensary Ward, and the number of midwifery cases attended at the patients' own homes amounted to 714. The receipts for the year amounted to £6556, and the expenses to £6504. Subscriptions to the amount of about £4000 were announced at the table.

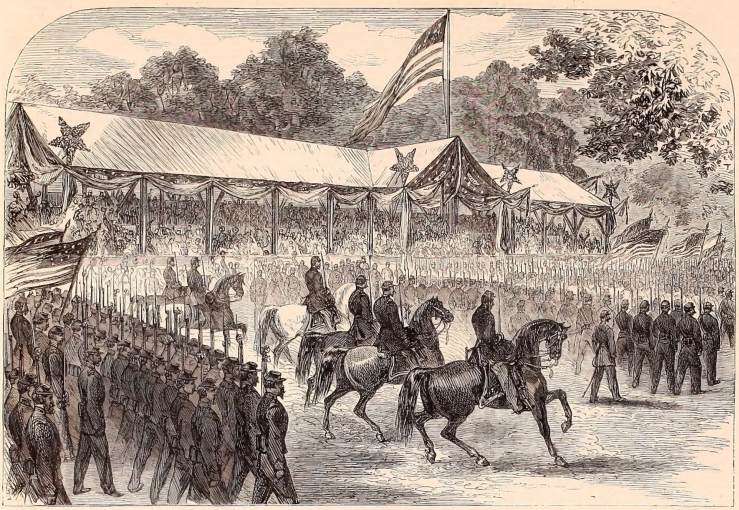
The jubilee festival of the Royal Caledonian Asylum was celebrated at the Freemasons' Tavern on Monday night—Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe presiding. The company included many distinguished Scottish families, including his Grace the Duke of Buccleuch, Sir George Clerk, Bart., Baron Pipon, Mr. Cunningham Grahame, Sir Charles Edmonstone, Mr. Patrick Colquhoun, Mr. Duff, M.P., and Colonel Sykes, M.P. The institution having been incorporated by Act of Parliament, on the morning of the meeting the governors received advice and medicine connected to 30,405. During the year 146 women received advice and medicine at the Dispensary Ward, and the number of midwifery cases attended at the patients' own homes amounted to 714. The receipts for the year amounted to £6556, and the expenses to £6504. Subscriptions to the amount of about £4000 were announced at the table.

The Lancet publishes a curious correspondence which has taken place between Mr. Hodgkin and Captain Duncan, one of the Liberal members for Westminster. Dr. Hodgkin, in a letter to Captain Duncan, stated that a petition against the Contagious Diseases Act had been published as were at variance with the facts. In reply to a question for information, Captain Duncan replied that he was asked if I am aware of the report in general circulation among members of Parliament that Dr. Hodgkin has left the country, and that you favour or uphold the heresy of homeopathy. If the report in question be founded in error, I shall thank you to let me know, in order that I may be accurately informed as I have the power. But if, on the other hand, I receive no such assurance, I shall consider myself at liberty to make use of it for your committee." Captain Grosvenor replied, "Whenever I am ill, which, by the blessing of Providence, is very seldom, I shall call in the ablest physician and assistance to the doctor of my regiment, who is, to the best of my belief, a very orthodox practitioner." Dr. Hodgkin replied that he had left London for a letter of the 20th ult. is equivocal that I boy you will withdraw my name from your committee."

The foundation-stone of a new building for an increased and more efficient accommodation for the Ragged School Union, in Field-lane, was laid, on Tuesday, by the Earl of Shaftesbury. The site of the new building is in Vine-street, Clerkenwell, and will accommodate 1000 children. In addition to Shaftesbury, giving the history of the ragged schools from their institution as Sunday schools, in which many persons which have elapsed 160 children were taught, and the number in 1865 was 5000; while the number attended in the day-schools, of whom 3079 have been placed in situations; 3950 have been murdered in the Ragged Church; 1000 in the refuge and other classes; 2030 in the tailoring and shoemaking classes; 812 girls in the night-school; 1100 girls in the sewing classes; 1000 girls in the sewing classes; about 5700 garments have been made by the children for the Clothing Society; 1800 prizes have been given; the remaining 15 dormitories were twelve months; 3000 deputies in the penny bank; and 111,892 men, boys, and women have received relief from the Field-lane refuge, and been provided with situations or work. In the evening the society's annual meeting was held in Exeter Hall, Lord Shaftesbury presiding. In Westminster, at which the Earl of Shaftesbury presided. The report was presented, at which the Earl of Shaftesbury presided. The meeting was addressed by the Hon. Arthur Kinnaird, M.P., Mr. Locke, M.P., Mr. Hadfield, M.P., Mr. Hodgson Sessions, and others; and resolutions were unanimously adopted in favour of the objects of the institution.

The births of 1956 children—1008 boys and 948 girls—were registered in London during the week ending last Saturday. The average number in the seven years 1858-64, the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 1,956. The births registered in London during the week were 139. The average number for the twenty-third week—viz., the week including the 1st of July—in the seven years 1858-64 was 1,956. The increase of population, is 1174. The deaths show an increase on those of the two previous weeks. Of these 1,956 deaths were enumerated in the 1,956 1187, Diarrhœa increases, but by slow degrees; the cases returned as fatal in this last three weeks have been 74, 83, and 87. In Birmingham, 24 in London, was fatally wounded on the head by the spur of a game-cock. A young man of about 20 years of age died from having been kicked in the groin by a dog about nine years previously. Seven fatal carriage accidents were registered.

The Registrar-General's return of births and deaths in the United Kingdom last week were 2,000 births and 1,187 deaths. The births in London were 1,956, or 1,000 persons living. In Liverpool the births were 341, the deaths 241; in Manchester 186, deaths 127; in Salford—births 34, deaths 18; in Birmingham—births 241, deaths 94; in Leeds—births 104, deaths 64; in Bradford—births 104, deaths 64; in Hull—births 96, deaths 45; in Edinburgh—births 143, deaths 93; in Glasgow—births 397, deaths 193; and in Dublin—births 214, deaths 155. The rate of mortality last week was 22 per 1000 in London, 28 in Edinburgh, and 35 in Dublin; 37 in Liverpool, 34 in Leeds, 31 in Bradford, 31 in Birmingham, 24 in Leeds, 21 in Bristol, 29 in Hull, and 31 in Glasgow.



The Prince of Wales entertained at a banquet by the Fishmongers' Company, last Saturday night. Mr. James Spicer, the Prime Warden of the Company, presided, and the guests included Cambridge, the Duchess of Sutherland, Lord Brougham, Lord Elgin, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and other distinguished persons were present. Princess, in reply to the toast "The Health of the Prince and Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," said—"I thank you most heartily for the honour of my visit, and—" My Lords, Ladies, and Gentlemen—I thank you very much for the honour which you have done me in drinking my health and that of the Royal family. I have always been treated with the greatest kindness by the other members of the Royal family; and you may feel assured that I am at being here to-night, and that I will do my utmost to promote the interests of their ancient corporation. I have not forgotten that, soon after I came of age, the Fishmongers' Company did me the honour to make me a member of their body. I was then a boy, and I remember that I was one of the youngest members of the Fishmongers' Company, in 1863. And I am proud to think that I have been admitted to the freedom of the City of London and the Livery of the Company. I have also received admission to the halls of this hall. [The room is decorated with the portraits of the Royal Family, from that of George IV.] And, though this is a joyous occasion, I cannot forbear alluding to the loss which we have all sustained in the death of the late Prince Consort, and by the Corporation of London, which I have also received Lord Mayor of London and which I was present at the time it took place, when I received the intelligence. I need not recall to your memory how anxious he was to promote every thing connected with the City of London, and I am not to mention his name on this occasion. In conclusion, I must not forget to thank you, Mr. Chairman, for the kind manner in which you alluded to a member of the Royal family, and to the speedy recovery of the Princess. I cannot omit anything better for my wife than to drink the health of the chairman and the worthy Prime Warden, my father." Among the other speakers were Lord Brougham, the Duke of Buccleuch, Lord Elgin, Lord Stanley, Baron Rothschild, Mr. Goschen, Mr. Alderman Lawrence, Chief Justice Erle, and the Attorney-General.

The Lord Mayor's decision in the case of Dickinson was given on Tuesday by Vice-Chancellor Wood. The corporation of Kingston on Thames propose to construct a new system of sewage. They have, with all the powers of the place will flow into the river. The Attorney-General applied for an injunction on behalf of Mr. Dickinson, who is the owner of property on the river, and who therefore has a right to prevent the river being polluted. Vice-Chancellor Wood, however, refused to grant the injunction, as he was not satisfied that the nuisance complained of would exist. If, however, it should be found that the nuisance complained of would exist, he would grant an injunction in the proceedings.

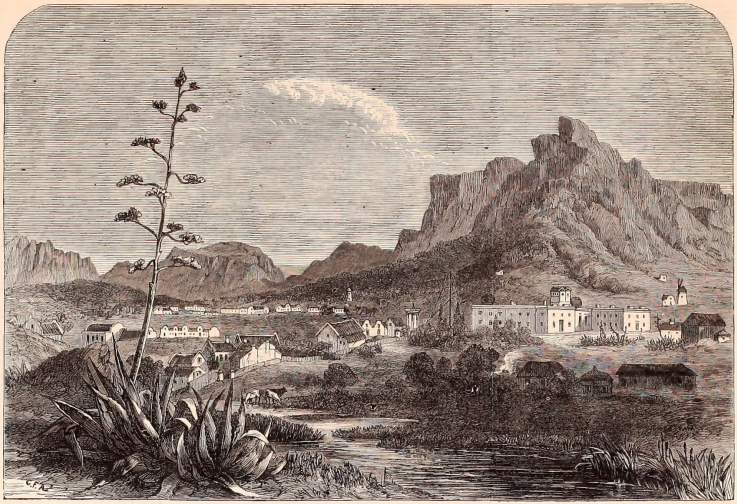
At the Middlesex Sessions, on Wednesday week, June Judge was convicted, for the second time, of stealing a gold watch. For twenty years past she has been the wife of a respectable man, who has carried on a business which he has now preferred against her. Mr. Payne has put an end to her career for some years to come by sentencing her to seven years' penal servitude.

In the same court, James Henry Wilson was found guilty of defrauding the Bank of England to a very large amount. The prisoner and another man had obtained from the postmaster at Nether Stowey a book of money-order forms, on pretence that it was an inspector of the Post Office. Some of these orders were filled up and more than £600 obtained. The prisoner was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude.

A collecting clerk in the employment of Messrs. Brown, Janson, and Co., bankers, of Aldersgate-street, while on his round on the 19th ult., had his pocket-case, with bills and cheques of the value of £9000. Nothing was heard of them until Monday, when one of the bankers received a letter from a person in Westminster Bank. The man who presented it said he had received it from a man who had found it in the street. The individual was taken into custody, and in the bill-case and the rest of the property was found in his house. He said he had taken from a waterman.

GRAND REVIEW OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC BEFORE PRESIDENT JOHNSON AT WASHINGTON.—SEE PAGE 590.

THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY, CAPETOWN.



pen Illustration (from a sketch by Mr. G. F. Angas) conveys a good dea of the picturesque site of the Observatory, situated, not far rom Capetown, at the foot of the Devil's Hill, where Sir John Herschel carried on his important astronomical observations in the outhern hemisphere. It is a building of rather an imposing appearnce, especially when viewed from a distance. The stream meanderng along the valley below is the Liesbeck River, and in the distance is seen the famous Constantia Mountain, on the slope of which are the three farms or vineyards which produce the Constantia wine so greatly esteemed in all parts of the world. The usual style of architecture of the Dutch farmhouses may be seen in this view, the contrast of the white stone walls with the thatched roofs, together with the quaint gables, rendering them very picturesque objects in a South African landscape. There is a movable ball on the flagstaff, to be dropped precisely at noonday, so as to indicate the correct time for the information of passing sailors.

THE TOWN OF CLARENCE, FERNANDO PO.

THE island of Fernando Po, off the West African coast, in the Bight of Biafra, formerly belonged to Portugal, and afterwards to Spain, but has, since 1827, been held by the British Government as a station for the naval squadron employed in the suppression of the negro slave trade. Its scenery is highly picturesque, a ridge of mountains traversing the length of the island, and terminating in a magnificent cone, 1100 ft. in height, named Clarence Peak, which is conspicuous in our Illustration, with its summit partly enveloped in clouds. The town of Clarence, situated at the foot of this mountain, upon a ledge of rock overlooking a cove or creek in Maidstone Bay, at the north-eastern extremity of the island, consists but of two or three hundred wooden houses, inhabited by the English officials and traders, and by a thousand liberated negroes from Sierra Leone, the natives of Fernando Po being a different race from those of the African continent. We are indebted to Major Leveson, late Colonial Secretary at Lagos, for the sketch we have engraved.

WALTON HOUSE, THE RESIDENCE OF THE LATE MR. WATERTON: FUNERAL PROCESSION OF BOATS ON THE LAKE.—SEE PAGE 582.

THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY, CAPE TOWN.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

THE TOWN OF CLARENCE, FERNANDO PO, WEST AFRICA.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, June 12.—The supply of home-grown wheat here to-day was limited, and the demand for both red and white parcels ruled steady, at last week's quotations. Fine foreign wheats realised very full prices, with a fair demand. Low and damp qualities commanded very little attention. Floating cargoes of grain were a dull inquiry. The barley trade was somewhat heavy, on former terms. Malt, the supply of which was seasonably good, was steady, at late rates. There was a good demand for oats, at 6d. per quarter more money. Both beans and peas were quite as dear as last week, with a fair inquiry. The transactions in flour were unimportant. Prices, however, were supported.

June 14.—Most kinds of produce met a slow inquiry to-day. Compared with Monday, however, no change took place in prices.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 39s. to 43s.; ditto, white, 41s. to 48s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 37s. to 43s.; rye, 26s. to 28s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 25s.; distilling ditto, 26s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 30s. to 33s.; malt, 47s. to 62s.; oats, 16s. to 24s.; beans 35s. to 42s.; peas, 34s. to 40s. per quarter; town-made flour, 33s. to 40s.; country marks, 26s. to 29s. per 280 lb.

Seeds.—Agricultural seeds are very dull, and almost nominal in value. Linseed, rapeseed, and cakes, rule about stationary.

Linseed, English, sowing, 68s. to 70s.; Calcutta, 54s. to 55s.; hempseed, 44s. to 46s. per quarter; tares, 5s. 0d. to 10s. 0d. per bushel; white mustard seed, 10s. 0d. to 12s. 0d.; brown ditto, 10s. to 11s. per bushel; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; red clover seed, 65s. to 90s.; white ditto, 62s. to 75s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5½d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 41s. 5d.; barley, 28s. 8d.; oats, 23s. 6d.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 51,704; barley, 2751; oats, 1983 quarters.

Tea.—There has been an active inquiry for Indian qualities, at an improvement in the quotations of from 3d. to 5d. per lb. Otherwise, the market is steady, at full prices.

Sugar.—We have very little change to notice in the value of raw qualities. The demand, however, may be considered steady. The stock consists of 88,954 tons, against 76,314 tons last year. Refined goods are a slow inquiry, but not cheaper.

Coffee.—The market is quiet, at last week's currency. Stock, 10,135 tons, against 8691 tons in 1864.

Rice.—Only a limited business is doing in this article, at late rates. Stock 31,460 tons, against 38,219 tons last year.

Provisions.—There is a fair average business doing in most kinds of butter, at late currencies. Bacon is steady at very full prices. Waterford, on board, 70s. per cwt. Lard is quite as dear as last week; but hams and most other provisions command very little attention.

Tallow.—The market is steady, at 40s. 6d. per cwt. for P.Y.C., on the spot. Stock, 81,290 casks, against 44,183 ditto last year. Rough fat, 2s. 0½d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is selling at £33 5s.; Rape, £42 to £45; and fine palm, £36 0s. to £36 15s. French turpentine, 50s. per cwt.

Spirits.—All kinds of rum move off slowly, at about last week's prices. Brandy and grain spirits are steady.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 10s. to £5 10s.; clover, £5 10s. to £6 10s.; and straw, £1 6s. to £1 10s. per load. New meadow hay, £3 to £4 per load.

Coals.—Haswell, 17s. 6d.; Hetton, 17s. 6d.; Hough Hall, 16s. 9d.; Kelloe, 16s.; Holywell, 16s. 6d.; and Tanfield Moor, 13s. 6d. per ton.

Hops.—The plantation accounts are favourable, and the demand for all kinds of hops is heavy, at late rates—viz., from 100s. to 200s. per cwt.

Wool.—The public sales of colonial wool are still in progress. By private contract very little is doing in any kind of wool, on former terms.

Potatoes.—The supplies continue large, and the demand is heavy, at from 40s. to 110s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, June 15).—The supply of beasts in to-day's market was moderate. Good and prime breeds changed hands freely, at full quotations. Otherwise, the beef trade was inactive, at late rates. The top price was 5s. per 8 lb. We were fairly supplied with sheep, which were in fair request, at Monday's currency. The best Downs and half-breds sold at 6s. 4d. per 8 lb. Lambs moved off freely, at full prices—viz., from 6s. 4d. to 7s. 8d. per 8 lb. A few very superior lambs realised 8s. per 8 lb. Calves—the supply of which was very large—were dull, and 2d. per 8 lb. lower. In pigs and milch cows very little was doing, on former terms.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 3s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 4d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 8d.; prime Scots, &c., 4s. 10d. to 5s. 0d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 4d.; prime coarse-woolled ditto, 5s. 6d. to 5s. 10d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 0d. to 6s. 4d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; prime small ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; large hogs, 3s. 8d. to 4s. 4d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; lambs, 6s. 4d. to 7s. 8d.; suckling calves, 18s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 26s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1050; cows, 130; sheep and lambs, 13,860; calves, 1100; pigs, 420. Foreign: Beasts, 590; sheep and lambs, 4500; calves, 994.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—The supplies of meat are moderate, and the demand is inactive. Prices, however, rule steady.

ROBERT HERBERT.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

THE Government brokers have purchased several parcels of stock on account of the sinking fund. Money is very abundant and low in price, and the imports of the precious metals have been on a full average scale; nevertheless, all Home Securities have been very inactive, at prices about equal to those current in the previous week. Indian Stocks, &c., have changed hands slowly, and the dealings in the Unfunded Debt have been trifling.

The return of the Bank of England is very favourable. The stock of bullion has been increased to the extent of £185,051; the reserve of notes and coin shows an augmentation of £619,653; whilst the note circulation exhibits a decrease of £441,388. These alterations induced the bank directors, on Thursday, to lower their minimum rate of discount to 3 per cent, being a reduction of one half per cent as compared with last week.

The demand for accommodation, both at the Bank of England and in Lombard-street, has continued moderate. In the open market the best bills are now done as under:—

Thirty days' bills	3	per cent.
Sixty days' bills	3	,,
Three months' bills	3¼	,,
Four months' bills	3½	,,
Six months' bills	3½ to 4½	,,

In the Stock Exchange short loans are freely offered at 3 to 3½ per cent.

On the Continent very little change has taken place in the price of money. The rates in the leading cities are as follow:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	3	3
Vienna	5	5½
Berlin	4	3½
Frankfort	4	3
Amsterdam	3	2½
Turin	5	4½ 5
Brussels	3	3
Madrid	8	9
Hamburg	—	2½
St. Petersburg	5½	6½

Most of the Continental exchanges are favourable, and the demand for gold for export purposes is by no means active. The principal shipments are £180,000 to Alexandria and the Brazils.

On Monday, Consols, for Money, were done at 90½ ¾; Ditto, for Account, 90½ ⅝; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89½ ⅝; Exchequer Bills, par to 3s. prem; India Five per Cents, 104⅛; Ditto Bonds, 16s. to 21s. prem.; Bank Stock was 242 to 211; India Stock, 216 to 218; Rupee Paper, 101 to 102, and 100 to 109. The dealings on Tuesday were very moderate:—Consols, for Transfer, marked 90½ ¾; Ditto, for Time, 90½ ⅝; Bank Stock, 242 to 241; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89½ ⅝; India Five per Cents, 104 to ½; Rupee Paper 101 to 102, and 108 to 109; India Bonds, 16s. to 21s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 3s. prem. On Wednesday, Consols, for Money, left off at 90½ ¾; Ditto, for Account, 90½ ⅝; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89⅝ ¾; Bank Stock, 242 to 244; India Five per Cents, 104 to ½; Rupee Paper, 100 to 102, and 107 to 109; India Bonds, 16s. to 21s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 1s. to 4s. prem. On Thursday the market was firmer, owing to the reduction in the rate of discount:—Consols, for Money, were 90¾ ⅞; for Account, 90⅞ ¾; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89⅞ ⅞; Exchequer Bills, 4s. prem. India Five per Cents, 104⅛ ⅝; and India Bonds, 17s. to 21s. prem.

The market for Foreign Securities has been very inactive. In most instances the tendency of prices has been unfavourable, yet very few changes of importance have taken place. The leading fluctuations have been in Greek, Mexican, Spanish, and Turkish Securities. Turkish Scrip has sold at 1⅝ to 1⅞ dis.; Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have realised 81½; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 94¼; Greek, 21¼; Italian Old Five per Cents, 68; Mexican Three per Cents, 24⅝; Ditto, 1864, 23⅞; Montevideau, 65; Moorish, 96⅞; New Granada, 11½ ex div.; Portuguese Three per Cents, 49⅛; Russian Old Five per Cents, 91⅞; Ditto, 1862, 91½; Ditto, 1864, 94; Sardinian Five per Cents, 74½ ex div.; Spanish Three per Cents, 49½; Ditto, Passive, 30⅞; Ditto, Certificates, 15½; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 82½; Ditto, 1858, 73; Ditto, 1862, 73⅞; Ditto, 1863, 72½; Ditto, 1865, 46½; Belgian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 98½; Dutch Two-and-a-Half per Cents, 64; and French Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 91f.

Joint-stock Bank Shares have been in only moderate request. Prices, however, improved:—Agra and Masterman's have sold at 112½; Alliance, 27½; Anglo-Austrian, 7; Anglo-Egyptian, 12½; Anglo-Italian, 11; Bank of British Columbia, 16; Bank of Queensland, 21; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 25; Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China, 48⅞; Consolidated, 10½; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 19½; Imperial, 29; Imperial Ottoman, 16⅞; London and Brazilian, 45½; London and County, 76; London Joint-stock, 50½; London and South African, 17⅞; London and Westminster, 97½; Midland, 17½; Scinde, Punjaub, and Delhi, 6½; Oriental, 51; Union of Australia, 54½; and Union of London, 51½.

Colonial Government Securities have been dealt in to a moderate extent:—Canada Six per Cents have marked 95; Ditto Five per Cents, 82⅞; New South Wales Five per Cents, 95; Queensland Six per Cents, 105½; and Victoria Six per Cents, 109⅞.

The Miscellaneous Market has ruled quiet. Berlin Waterworks, 16⅞; Bombay Gas, 5⅞; Ceylon Company, 11½; Commercial Union Insurance, 8¼; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 9⅞; Crystal Palace, Preference, 115; East India Irrigation and Canal, 6⅞; Ebbw Vale, 8; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 3; Electric Telegraph, 120; English and Australian Copper, 1½; General Credit, 6; Hudson's Bay, 15⅞; International Financial, 6⅞; London General Omnibus, 3½; Madras Irrigation and Canal, 10; Natal Land, 4; National Discount, 15⅞; North British Australasian, 47; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 78; Ditto, New, 55; Société Financière d'Egypte, 8; Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance, 7⅞; Trust and Loan Company of Upper Canada, 4⅞; and Warrant Finance, 7.

The demand for American Securities has been steady, at full prices. United States 5.20 Bonds have realised 68 to 69½; and Erie Shares, 49½ to 50½.

English Railway Shares have been steady in price; but most foreign Shares have met a heavy market. Annexed are Thursday's official closing quotations:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Caledonian, 134½; Great Eastern, 48½; Great Northern 131; Great Western, 73; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 121⅞; London and Blackwall, 90; London, Chatham, and Dover, Metropolitan Extension, 26½; London and North-Western, 124½; London and South-Western, 100; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 64½; Metropolitan, 145; Ditto, New, 8⅞; Metropolitan District, 102½; Midland, 135⅞; North British, 54; North-Eastern—Berwick, 113½; Ditto, Leeds, 71½; Ditto, York, 104⅞; Ditto, Stockton and Darlington, 37½; North Staffordshire, 79; South-Eastern, 86.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 101; East Indian, 104⅞; Great Indian Peninsula, 105; Great Southern of India, 102½; Madras Five per Cent, 104; Scinde, 102.

Foreign.—Antwerp and Rotterdam, 9⅞; Central Argentine, 3½; Dutch Rhenish, 21; Ottoman, 9⅞; South Austrian, 19⅞; Turin and Savona, 10.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending June 14 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

A decrease of circulation of	£441,388
An increase of public deposits of	848,017
A decrease of other deposits of	421,702
A decrease of securities of	195,893
An increase of bullion of	185,051
An increase of rest of	7,231
An increase of reserve of	619,653

The total circulation is £21,191,106. Public deposits amount to £8,802,108; private ditto to £12,935,391; and securities to £30,093,662. The stock of bullion is £16,045,669; and the reserve of notes and coin, £9,966,274.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

TUESDAY, JUNE 13.

BANKRUPTS.

L. G. DROZ, Mount-street, watchmaker.—A. CELLIER, Blackheath, organist.—G. GREEN, Limehouse, engineer.—J. H. GAMBLE, Adelphi, commission agent.—G. H. ROUSE, Kentish Town, clerk in the War Office.—E. R. GODLEY, Cranley.—W. WARD, Eastbourne, builder.—H. W. JOHNSON, Tottenham, clerk in the Inland Revenue Office.—H. STIMPSON, Winfarthing and Wacton, tailor.—R. G. MONRO, Shenley, farmer.—W. P. GREEN, Thaxted, coachmaker.—J. B. WATTERS, Maidstone, homœopathist.—W. OKE, Hythe.—E. T. SEALE, Morley, clerk in holy orders.—S. SHAW, Old Kent-road, hearth-rug manufacturer.—W. H. BELL, Forest-hill, auctioneer.—F. FLAVELL, Braunston, victualler.—T. H. SARTAIN, Guildford, clothier.—J. W. HOUNSLOW, Burslem, hatter.—R. LANGFORD, Birmingham, cabinetmaker.—J. WEBB, Birmingham, boot manufacturer.—G. TAYLOR, Birmingham, car proprietor.—W. ABBOTT, Bristol, builder.—W. JARMAN, Chudleigh, draper.—T. W. HARTNOLL, Exeter, attorney.—R. STEVENS, Truro, builder.—A. WILSON, Huddersfield, doctor of medicine.—R. ALLEN, Scarborough, builder.—W. H. BILLING, Plymouth, ship-chandler.—E. PARRY, Llangollen, farmer.—J. YOUNG, Liverpool, maltster.—J. MEARS, Stockton-on-Tees, auctioneer.—R. T. FOTHERGILL, Newcastle-on-Tyne, lamp-black manufacturer.—E. CROWTHER, Mossley, publican.—J. BALL, Morthmeols, provision-shop keeper.—R. L. GRANT, Exeter, builder.—J. RYLEY, Ardwick, blacksmith.—G. MOREY, Emsworth, publican.—W. BARKER, Landport, seaman.—T. THOMAS, Ystradfellte, farmer.—G. ABBOTT, Newport Pagnell, shoemaker.—J. MILES, Leicester, bricklayer.—H. CAVELL, Walmer, painter.—T. NETTLETON, Saddleworth, grease manufacturer.—E. BULLOCK, Newport, fishmonger.—H. BATH, Abergavenny, butcher.—H. FLOREY, Aston, shoemaker.—R. HALES, Maidstone, furniture-broker.—E. EDGE, Tipton, pork butcher.—W. BOYCE, East Dereham, printer.—J. CARRUTHERS, Nottingham, draper.—J. JEFFREY, Calverley, cloth manufacturer.—J. MURGATROYD, Calverley, cloth manufacturer.—T. COE, Cardiff, photographic artist.—J. BONE, Shoreham, cooper.—E. HATHAWAY, West Derby, joiner.—R. W. ROBERTS, Aberffaw, draper.

FRIDAY, JUNE 9.

BANKRUPTS.

J. SINGER, Queen-street, Cheapside, tailor.—J. J. and J. C. MAKER, Cottage-row, Bermondsey, ironfounders.—C. FISHER, Henley-on-Thames, builder.—W. H. SPRINGER, Kensington-place, Notting-hill, carpenter.—H. ALEXANDER, Kender-street, New Cross-road, seedsman and florist.—A. J. SMITH, Hereford-road, Bayswater, tailor.—H. KING, Orchard-place, Kingsland-road, clerk.—R. ABBOTT, Change-alley, City, wine merchant.—H. KELSON, Southampton, tailor.—J. and J. F. HAINES, Jubilee-street, Mile-End, corkcutters.—G. S. MACKENNAL, New-road, Hammersmith.—J. CHERRY, Gillingham-street, Pimlico, cook.—J. SCOTT, Winslow, corndealer.—F. CLEMENT, Clapham, butcher.—R. HANCOCK, Plumstead-common, carman.—W. PAGE, Lonsdale-place, Notting-hill West, carpenter.—C. WARNER, Vauxhall-walk, ginger-beer manufacturer.—R. B. BOND, Gray's-inn-road.—W. THOMAS, Stafford, earthenware manufacturer.—A. F. EAVES, Birmingham, clockmaker.—C. CHINERY, Nottingham, licensed victualler.—H. PARRY, Holyhead, joiner.—J. T. BURGESS, Swindon, journalist.—H. HEINEMANN, Liverpool, merchant.—J. MESSER, Liverpool, draper.—J. SIMPSON, Oldham, butcher.—G. FORD, Buckland, surveyor.—T. W. CAMERON, Portsmouth, licensed victualler.—A. ILIFFE, Ashton-under-Lyne.—J. EDDY, Penrith, nail manufacturer.—W. JONES, jun., Ribbesford, Worcester.—J. B. HIGH, Ellingham, wheelwright.—G. EATON, Guestling, blacksmith.—H. T. FREEMAN, Clee St. Margaret, miller.—D. HAILS, Newcastle-on-Tyne.—W. GREEN, Grafton, Gloucester, carpenter.—S. KENNINGTON, Litchurch, hairdresser.—W. JACKSON, Sunderland, commission agent.—H. CASHEN, Liverpool.—D. WILLIAMS, Aberystwith, cabinetmaker.—W. EVANS, Aberystwith, miller.—W. G. EVANS, Everton, stationer.—W. GIBSON, Long Bennington, boot and shoe maker.—R. WILSON, Birmingham, machinist.—J. NEWBOLD, Birmingham, coach body maker.—H. HAYWARD, Bath, tinsmith.—J. CRUTE, Plymouth, greengrocer.—R. LUSCOMBE, Plymouth, butcher.—E. GREEN, Northampton, butcher.—N. and J. CAWTHORNE, Osmondcroft, brick manufacturers.—J. HANSON, Bromsgrove, shoemaker.—E. H. WILLIAMS, Silsoe, artist.—G. WAITE, Folkestone, shoemaker.—T. FORD, Bolton, Lancaster, wastedealer.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

J. R. SERVICE, Saltcoats, wright.—J. FULTON, Glasgow, provision merchant.—W. LAMB, Edinburgh, slater.—J. BURROW, Glasgow, silkspinner.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET. Mr. SOTHERN in BROTHER SAM. MONDAY, JUNE 19, and Every Evening, at Seven, the popular Operetta of THE MILLER'S DAUGHTER—Miss Louise Keeley. After which, at Eight precisely, BROTHER SAM—Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Miss Snowdon, and Miss Nelly Moore. Concluding with Planché's revived GREEN-EYED MONSTER—Mr. Chippendale, Mr. Howe, Mr. W. Farren, Mr. Compton, and Miss Louise Keeley.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—Last Twelve Nights of the celebrated Tragedienne Miss Bateman.—THE IRISH TIGER; at Eight, GERALDINE—Miss Bateman, supported by Messrs. Bateman, Jordan, Swinburne, Miss Clara Denvil; concluding with THE STEEPLECHASE—Messrs. J. L. Toole and P. Bedford. Commence at Seven.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL. PRIZE LISTS and CONDITIONS may be had on application to the Secretary, Agricultural Hall Company (Limited), Islington, London, N. By order, S. SIDNEY, Sec.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—ENTRIES CLOSE 24th JUNE.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—LAST DAY for ENTRIES, Saturday, 24th JUNE.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION IS NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 53, PALL-MALL (near St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. JAMES FAHEY, Sec.

HYDE PARK in 1864, by HENRY BARRAUD, Esq., containing 220 Portraits of the Frequenters of Rotten-row, NOW ON VIEW, at 230, Regent-street (opposite Hanover-street). Admission 1s. Open from Ten till Six.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, in their NEW ENTERTAINMENT, with a few Musical Memoranda by Mr. John Parry, Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight. Wednesday and Saturday at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., and 5s.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY.—EVERY EVENING at Eight o'Clock (except Saturday); Saturday Afternoon at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED and (over 500 representations) MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY.—EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Box-office open Eleven to Five.

MR. BENEDICT'S ANNUAL CONCERT, JUNE 21, under the immediate patronage of H.R.H. the Prince of WALES and H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, to commence at half-past One precisely. The full programme is now ready. All the Balcony Stalls being disposed of, early application for a few additional Sofa Stalls (One Guinea each) is respectfully solicited. Reserved Seats, 10s. 6d.; Area, 5s.; Gallery, 3s.—No. 2, Manchester-square, W.

MISS EMMA BUSBY'S MORNING CONCERT, WILLIS'S ROOMS, SATURDAY, JUNE 17. Tickets, Half a Guinea; Family Tickets (to admit Three), a Guinea, at the Musicsellers', and at 9, Howley-place, W.

MR. W. H. HOLMES'S PUPILS PIANOFORTE PERFORMANCES and choice VOCAL MUSIC, at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, SATURDAY, JULY 8, at Three o'Clock. Tickets and Particulars of Mr. W. H. Holmes, 36, Beaumont-street, Marylebone.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—THIS DAY, SATURDAY, Grand OPERA CONCERT and Fashionable Promenade. Mdme. Harriers Wippern, Miss Laura Harris, Mdlle Grossi, and Mdlle. Sinico; Signor Gardoni, Signor Zacchi, Signor Fcalese, and Signor Junca. Solo Pianoforte—Mdme. Arabella Goddard.
Admission, Five Shillings, or by Guinea Season Tickets free.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Now Visit the Palace. More beautiful than ever.
Monday to Thursday—One Shilling.
Friday—Great Handel Festival Rehearsal. Admission by payment at doors, Ten Shillings and Sixpence; or by Tickets on Sale up to Wednesday only, at the Palace, 2, Exeter Hall, and usual agents, 7s. 6d.; or by New Guinea Season Tickets on payment of Half a Crown.
Saturday—Great Rose Show of the Season. Guinea Season Tickets free; payment at doors, Five Shillings; or by Tickets purchased beforehand, Half a Crown.

CRYSTAL PALACE. — HANDEL FESTIVAL.
MONDAY, JUNE 26 .. .. .. MESSIAH.
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28 .. .. .. SELECTION.
FRIDAY, JUNE 30 .. .. .. ISRAEL.
The Orchestra (double the diameter of the dome of St. Paul's), entirely roofed over, and acoustically improved, will contain nearly FOUR THOUSAND PERFORMERS. The Performers, carefully selected from the Orchestras, Musical Institutions, and Cathedral Choirs throughout the country, and from various parts of the Continent, comprise all the principal Professors and Amateurs. It is confidently expected that this Festival will be by far the most complete and magnificent display ever witnessed.
The entire Musical Arrangements are under the direction of the Sacred Harmonic Society.
Conductor—Mr. COSTA.
PRINCIPAL VOCALISTS.—Mdlle. Adelina Patti, Mdme. Rudersdorff, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdme. Parepa, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Cummings, Mr. Weiss, Herr Schmid, and Mr. Santley.
Organist—Mr. BROWNSMITH.
Stall Tickets (in sets for the three days) for numbered stalls, 3 guineas and 2½ guineas; stalls for single day, 25s. and 1 guinea; reserved tickets (in sets for the three days) numbered, in rows and blocks, 28s. 6d.; reserved single day ticket, ditto, 10s. 6d.; admission tickets, if bought before each day, 5s.; by payment at the Palace on the day, 7s. 6d.
GRAND FULL REHEARSAL, Solos and Choruses, FRIDAY, JUNE 23, at the Crystal Palace, at One o'Clock. Admission, half a guinea, or by tickets bought two days previous, 7s. 6d.; reserved seats, 5s.
For the extraordinary facilities for One and Three Days' Excursions, including admission to the Grand Full Rehearsal, at very low rates; also for Return Tickets extending over Three Days of the Festival, see special bills issued by nearly every railway company.
Tickets at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, London, S.E.; or at No. 2, Exeter Hall, London, W.C. Cheques and post-office orders payable to George Grove.
Full details of the Festival and Block-plan of Reserved Seats, and Carte de Visite Photograph of Orchestra of Four Thousand Performers, may be had by application personally or by letter inclosing two stamps, at the Crystal Palace, or at Exeter Hall.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.—FRIDAY NEXT. The GREAT FULL REHEARSAL at the CRYSTAL PALACE, on Friday next, JUNE 23, at One o'Clock.
This Rehearsal will, as regards Solos and Choruses, present an epitome of the days of the Festival.
Excursions will be run by the following companies:—London, Brighton, and South Coast; South-Western, South-Eastern; London, Chatham, and Dover; Great Western, London and North-Western, Great Northern, Midland, Great Eastern; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire; North-Eastern (Northern Division). See Time-bills of each company.
Reserved Stalls, 5s., at Crystal Palace, and at No. 2, Exeter Hall. Apply at once.
Seven-shilling-and-sixpenny Admission Tickets as above and at Agents up to Wednesday only. After that day the price will be 10s. 6d.

WEDNESDAY NEXT.—LAST DAY for 7s. 6d. HANDEL FESTIVAL REHEARSAL Admission Tickets.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—GREAT ATTRACTION.—THE GREAT ROSE SHOW OF THE SEASON.—SPECIAL DISPLAY of GREAT FOUNTAINS, and Military Bands and Promenade NEXT SATURDAY.
Season Tickets, free; Payment at Doors, 5s. Half a Crown Admission Tickets on Sale till Friday Afternoon.

MASTER WILLIE PAPE begs to announce his TWO HUNDRED and FIFTH PIANOFORTE RECITAL since his arrival in England in February, 1863; and his Third Annual Pianoforte Recital at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, FRIDAY EVENING, JUNE 23, at Eight o'Clock.

LAST MONDAY POPULAR CONCERT of the SEASON, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The DIRECTOR'S BENEFIT, and Last Concert of the Season, on MONDAY EVENING, JULY 3. The programme will include selections from the popular works of all the great masters. Pianoforte, Mdme. Arabella Goddard and Mr. Charles Hallé; Violin, Herr Joachim (his last appearance in London this season) and Herr Strauss; Second Violin, Herr L. Ries; Viola, Mr. H. Webb; Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Vocalists, Miss Banks and Mr. Sims Reeves. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets and Programmes at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s, 201, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s, 48, Cheapside; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

MUSICAL UNION.—Mdme. SCHUMANN'S LAST PERFORMANCE, Half-past Three, TUESDAY, JUNE 20. Quartet, No. 8, C minor, Beethoven; Piano Solos, Handel, Chopin, and Schumann; Barcarole and Scherzo, Violin and Piano, Spohr; Grand Trio, E minor, Mendelssohn. Joachim, Piatti, Ries, and Webb. Tickets, Half a Guinea each, to be had at the usual places. Members can pay for visitors at St. James's Hall. J. ELLA, Director, 18, Hanover-square.

MR. DEACON'S THIRD and LAST MATINEE of CLASSICAL MUSIC for the Season will take place on THURSDAY, JUNE 22, at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, to commence at Three o'Clock. Programme:—Quartet, op. 81 (two movements), Mendelssohn—Aria, "Il Sogno," violoncello obbligato, Mercadante—Sonata in C minor, op. 13 ("Patetica"), pianoforte, Beethoven—Aria, "Sombre Forets" ("Guillaume Tell"), Rossini—Sonata in A, op. 47 (dedicated to Kreutzer), violin and pianoforte, Beethoven. Pianoforte solos—R. Schumann, Mendelssohn, and Handel. Swedish melodies. Sestet in E flat, op. 30, Onslow. Executants—MM. Sainton, Pollitzer, H. Webb, Pezze, Severn, and Deacon. Vocalists—Mdlle. Enequist and Signor Delle-Sedie. Tickets, reserved and numbered, to admit three, One Guinea; Single Ticket, Half a Guinea; to be had of Messrs. Ollivier and Co., 19, Old Bond-street; the principal Musicsellers; at the rooms; and of Mr. Deacon, 10, Wimpole-street, Cavendish-square.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY. MATTHEWS BROS. and BECKETT'S C. C. C. CHRISTY'S MINSTRELS, Every Evening at Eight, Saturday Afternoons at Three. New Songs, new Acts, &c. Tickets at Austin's office, St. James's Hall. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., and 5s.
Secretary, T. W. MATTHEWS.

LANGHAM HOTEL, PORTLAND PLACE. This commodious Hotel, "the largest in London," is now open. It is situated on the most open and healthy site in the West-End, with all modern improvements, Suites of Apartments; Salle à Manger, 100 ft. by 40 ft.; Elegant Ladies' Room; a spacious Sitting and Writing Room for Gentlemen, &c. Within a short drive of all the railway termini. For terms to secure accommodation, address, the Manager, C. SCHUMANN.

THE SALISBURY HOTEL, Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, will open on JUNE 21. This is the most centrally situated and the quietest Hotel in London. It is fitted up with all the modern requirements, including a Ladies' Coffee Room, Baths on every floor, &c.
THOMAS HIGGS, Manager.

LOWESTOFT.—The ROYAL HOTEL is OPEN for the season. Families intending to visit Lowestoft should communicate with the proprietor at least a week in advance, so as to secure accommodation and avoid disappointment. Lowestoft is a favourite watering-place—famous for its salubrious air, its fine sea beach, and noble pier. A tariff of prices forwarded post-free. The choicest wines, a first-rate cuisine, a large billiard-room, baths, and all modern appliances. Horses, carriages, &c. Lowestoft is easy of access from London and all the home and midland counties.—See Railway Guides.

FOUR POUNDS TEN SHILLINGS PER CENT DEBENTURE STOCK.—The GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY are now ISSUING this Stock. Applications to be made to J. B. OWEN, Secretary.
Bishopsgate Terminus, June 13, 1865.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate Rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET," &c.
THIRD EDITION, at all Libraries, in 3 vols.,
ONLY A CLOD.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "ROLAND, THE PAINTER,"
This day, in 2 vols., at all Libraries,
WHO WAS TO BLAME?
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

ANECDOTICAL MEMOIRS OF THE EMPEROR.
This day, in 1 vol., at all Libraries,
NAPOLEON III. AND HIS COURT.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

NEW NOVEL BY STEPHEN MARTEGRES.
This day, in 2 vols., at all Libraries
CHARLOTTE TRALE.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

This day, in 3 vols., at all Libraries,
CRUEL FORTUNE.
By the Author of "Milly Moss," "Queens of Song," &c.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

CHEAP EDITION, Frontispiece and Vignette Titlepage, Price 6s.,
THE BADDINGTON PEERAGE.
By GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK. Price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.—London: LONGMAN and Co.

NEW CATALOGUES.

1.
ATLASES, MAPS, and GLOBES.—STANFORD'S New Catalogue of Atlases, Maps, and Globes, suitable either for the Library or for Educational purposes. Free on application; or per post for one stamp.

2.
STANFORD'S TOURISTS' CATALOGUE, containing a list, irrespective of publisher, of all the Books and Maps likely to prove of service to the British and Continental Traveller, may be had on application; or post-free for one stamp.

3.
ORDNANCE SURVEY.—STANFORD'S Catalogue of the Maps, Plans, and other Publications of the Ordnance Survey of Great Britain and Ireland, published under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., F.R.S. Price 6d.; per post, 7d.

4.
GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.—STANFORD'S Catalogue of the Geological Maps, Sections, and Memoirs of the Geological Survey of Great Britain and Ireland, under the superintendence of Sir Roderick I. Murchison, K.C.B., Director-General of the Geological Surveys of the United Kingdom. Free on application; or per post for one stamp.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 6, Charing-cross, S.W. Agent by Appointment for the sale of the Ordnance Maps, Geological Survey Maps, and Admiralty Charts.

TO INVENTORS.—The GENERAL PATENT COMPANY (Limited), 71, Fleet-street, London, obtains Patents for Inventions at moderate charges. Intending Patentees should procure the Company's "Handbook," issued gratis.
R. MARSDEN LATHAM, Sec.

THE TURNER PICTURES in the NATIONAL GALLERY PHOTOGRAPHED by THURSTON THOMPSON, mounted on fine cardboard, size of photo 14 in. by 10 in. The above on view, and catalogues to be had, at 22, Soho-square.—A. MARION, SON, and CO.

PICTURE FRAMES for "HAPPINESS," given with this Paper. Handsome gilt frame, glass and back, 1s. 6d.; maple and gilt, 3s.; ornamented, gold oval frame, 4s.—At GEO. REES, 57, Drury-lane; and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

BINDING the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—The Half-yearly Volumes bound in the appropriate Covers, with gilt edges, at 5s. each, if sent carriage-free with P. O. order, to LEIGHTON, SON, and HODGE, 13, Shoe-lane, London. The only binders authorised by the Proprietors.

120 SHEETS OF NOTE-PAPER for 6d.; 120 thick ditto for 1s.; 120 sheets ditto, black-bordered, for 1s.; 250 useful Envelopes for 9d.; 1000 extra large ditto for 4s. 6d.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

MONOGRAM, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES cut at half price, and remain the property of the customer. No charge for plain stamping; coloured stamping reduced to 1s. per 100. Writing-paper and Envelopes supplied to the public at wholesale prices.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, W.

BIRTHDAY PRESENTS,
WEDDING PRESENTS,
CHRISTENING PRESENTS.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PURSES, pocket-books, cigar-cases, card-cases, wallets, opera-glasses, scent-bottles (double and single); pencil-cases; fans, note-cases, &c., the largest Stock in London. N.B. Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon prepayment.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-st.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

500 DRESSING-CASES and DRESSING-BAGS, of the best manufacture, and fitted in the most complete manner for ladies or gentlemen. DESPATCH-BOXES, INKSTANDS, ENVELOPE-CASES, BOOK-SLIDES, RETICULES, PURSES, BLOTTING-BOOKS, &c. The public supplied at TRADE PRICES.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-st., London.

2S. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

CROQUET (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Prices 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 35s., 40s., and upwards, including Book of Rules. Warranted of seasoned woods, and sent carriage-paid to any railway station upon prepayment.—Parkins and Gotto, 25, Oxford-street, W.

CROQUET, THE FAVOURITE SET, Full Size, for 30s., including Book of Rules, in strong box. Sent carriage-paid to any railway station in England, upon receipt of P. O. order.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

LAWN GAMES at PARKINS and GOTTO'S consisting of Croquet (all sizes and prices); Bowls, 31s. 6d.; Jack's Alive, 14s.; Volunteer Handicap, 25s.; Ringolette, 16s. 6d.; Ring the Ball, 8s. 6d.; Aunt Sally, 12s. 6d.; Troco or Lawn Billiards, 14s.; Rondelle, 21s.; and many others. Orders over 20s. sent carriage-paid to any railway station in England.—Parkins and Gotto, 27 and 28, Oxford-street, W.

A FACT.—An Elegant POCKET DIAL, with gold appendages, warranted to denote correct time, in handsome gilt case, One Shilling; by post, 14 stamps.
PAUL RANSOM, 91, Brunswick-street, Haggerstone, London, N.E.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Six. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GOOD-EYE AT THE DOOR. By S. GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps each. This beautiful Song, one of the leading favourites of the season, may be had in the Keys of C, D, E flat, and E, for Soprano or Tenor. Also, as a Vocal Duet.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S FARFAIT AMOUR. Recovery for Piano. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales. This admired Romance has already run through fourteen editions. Sent for 24 stamps. DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR Sent for 18 stamps. This is an elegant and effective Valedictory Song, and may be had in the Keys of C and E flat.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

FRANZ ABT'S LA JOYEUSE GALOP, post free 18 stamps. This Galop is dansante in the highest degree. The melodies are striking, while its brilliant and captivating measure, renders it one of the most effective and delightful instruments of dance music.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

LA MURSKA VALSE. This elegant and fascinating Valse, composed and dedicated to Mdlle. Ilma de Murska, is now being played at the Promenade Concerts at Covent Garden. Sent post free, illustrated with a Portrait of the fair Prima Donna, for 24 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW MUSIC.

SUNG BEFORE THE PRINCE OF WALES and GOD SAVE THE QUEEN will be sung by a full choir at Mr. Stanley Hickman's Concerts, April 25, at the Queen's Concert Rooms, Hanover-square, Programmes at Robert Cocks and Co.'s.

MDME. LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON'S NEAPOLITAN SONGS.—"The Latest Song" (E. to E. flat). "The only Three I Love" (F. Act.). "Up Town" (F. Act). Sung nightly for Concerts and "Among the Birds" (C. to E. flat). Sung nightly for Concerts and "Among the Birds" (C. to E. flat). for Pianists.

NEW FANTASIA MUSIC, at Half-price.—Nearer to Thee, Sweet Dreams, Fairy Bells, Home, Sweet Home, Last Rose of Summer, Sing Me to Sleep, Ah, Non Giunge, Ah, Vieni Diletta (by W. Kuhe), Ah, La ci darem (transcribed by W. S. Rockstro), Ah, Ti Vedi Ballerina (by W. S. Rockstro), Home Sweet Home (by Brinley Richards), Mendelssohn's Sweet Dreams, Rimembranza, Spring Daily Exercises, new edition (by F. Weist Hill), Schumann's Romance in F sharp, Mozart's Music for Children, 2 vols.

SONGS of the SEASON all at half-price in Songs :—Old Time Memories, Ever of Thee, Ever Thine, Ever Mine, Ever Thine, Ever Mine, Kindness, Sweet Spring Time, Ah, Non Giunge, The Lily and the Rose (W. T. Wrighton), 24 ed. The Lake, The Lute (Miss M. Lindsay), 3rd ed. Bright Days are Here (W. T. Wrighton), 3rd ed. Child of the Regiment, Songs that are Parted (F. Enriquez), 3d ed. The Bells are Ringing, Sailor's Grave.

London: ROBERT COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street, Music Publishers to the Queen, Royal Academy of Music, and Royal College of Music.

THE MESSAGE, as Sung by Sims Reeves, composed by MICHAEL WATSON, and also sung at the Ballad Concerts given by the Author, and played at his concert on Tuesday afternoon, April 19, at the Royal Albert Hall. Price 4s. net.—NOVELLO, EWER and CO.

TO LOVERS OF MUSIC.—The choicest Stock of Musical Boxes in London, by Sandfox, at 41 per cent. Sandfoxes, 99, per type.—A. T. W. NELSON'S, 281, Strand (three doors west of Temple Bar).

MUSICAL-BOX DEPÔTS, 22, Lodgate-hill, and 56, Cheapside.—Nicole's largest Musical Boxes, 4 airs, 30 guinea; Small-tune, 16; 6d. to the inch. Catalogues gratis and post-free on application.—WALES and CO., as above.

THE NEW DERBY RACE-GLASS, price 10s., with sling-case complete. Will show distinctly the horses and jockeys at the distance of a mile. Can be used on the longest and last game a new model ever offered to the public. Sent carriage-free to any part of the kingdom. Post-office orders payable to H. C. HUGHES, Optician, 63, Strand, corner of Northumberland-street.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—OPERA HOUSE GLASSES, in every variety of form and mounting, suitable for the present and coming day and opera seasons, are now on view at CALLAGHAN'S, No. 235, New Bond-street, W., opposite the Grosvenor-gallery, and for the celebrated opera hat Field Glasses used by Variétistes, Venice.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE, with Condenser, Live Box, Slides, and Book. Complete, 21s. Sent C.O.D. Only 5 Guineas returned. Catalogue sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

COUNTRY WALKS and SEASIDE RAMBLES.

STAPLETON'S VASCULUM APPARATUS (price 5s.) shows things "in heaven above, or in the earth beneath, or in the water under the earth." Illustrated Prospectus, on application.—Stapleton, 111, Strand, W.C.

THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person without a knowledge of drawing or painting, to colour photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance. Price 10s. 6d. each. Sold by all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c. Wholesale, and for Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

GARDEN VASES, FOUNTAINS, &c., of all kinds.—Chimney-pots, Garden and of superior workmanship and design, at moderate prices. Quick-sweet Wort, Chicken, E.W. Illustrated Price-list sent by return.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, busts, &c., in Parian, statuary, Sèvres, Bronze, &c., at Minister, Harrie, Spar, &c.—T. TENNANT, 149, Strand, W.C.

THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE GALLERIES, Goodall-street, Hanover-square, W., and 62, Oxford-street, W., and 62, Argyll-street, W., and 62, Regent-street, W., and CO. have the honour to direct attention to the following—viz., Bedsteads, Bedding, Chairs, Couches, Tables, Cabinets, &c., of every pattern and description in stock. The above-named Galleries are now in prime within the reach of all who desire to furnish economically and well. Estimates and Designs for Furnishing Complete Houses or Single Apartments. BURLINGTON FURNITURE GALLERIES, Goodall-street, W.; and 62, Oxford-street, Regent-street, W., and 62, Argyll-street, W. Upholsterers, &c., to the Queen at the Commercial Equitable Co-operative.

PALMER and SON'S UPHOLSTERY and CARPET FURNITURE SHOW-ROOMS, 31, 32, and 34, Bernard-street, W.C. Attention is requested to these spacious Showrooms, which are among the largest in London.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 25 and 26, Berners-street, Oxford-street, exhibit the greatest novelty, new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all requirements. Illustrated Catalogues sent free on application.

FURNISH your HOUSE with the best CARPETS.—CHEAPSIDE HOUSE is the old-established and largest CARPET WAREHOUSE in London, where good and moderate accumulation the largest stock, and can therefore supply any quantity at the lowest possible prices. Patterns sent free to any part of the country. Observe the address, CHEAPSIDE HOUSE, 73, 74, 75, 76, and 77, Cheapside, E.C.

THE BEST SHOW of IRON BEDSTEADS and BEDDING in LONDON, at CHEAPSIDE HOUSE, 73, 74, 75, 76, and 77, Cheapside, E.C. Bedsteads and Children's Cots, with appropriate Bedding and Bed-hangings. Portable Folding Bedsteads from 18s. Patent Iron Bedsteads, fitted with dovetail joints and patent castings, from 30s. Handsome Brass and Iron Bedsteads, in great variety, from 45s. and Brass Bedsteads, on great variety, from 45s. Illustrated Catalogues sent free post free.

CHEAPSIDE HOUSE, 73, 74, 75, 76, and 77, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Periman-yard, London.

WENHAM LAKE ICE for Town or Country. Refrigerators, Ice-cream Machines, Refrigerators, Freezing Powders, and everything connected with freezing, of the most reliable character. Illustrated Price-lists. Order direct from THE WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 195, STRAND, W.C.

ORIGINAL AND SUPERIOR ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES, SAUCES, PICKLES, &c., pure and good, as supplied by JOHN MORGAN and SONS for more than a Hundred years.—39, Soho-square (corner of Sutton-street), London.

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that their New Stock of SUMMER DRESSES is now ready, with every Novelty suitable for the season, and Patterns of all will be forwarded post-free to any part of the country.

FANCY DRESS DEPARTMENT. Bayadere Wool Grenadines ... 9s. 6d. the Full Dress. Satin Cloths ... ... 10s. 6d. the Full Dress. Checked Silks, Grenadines ... ... 10s. 6d. ,, Check Fancy Serges ... ... 10s. 6d. ,, Black Cashmeres ... ... 10s. 6d. ,, Last Season's best French Printed Muslins ... ... 5s. ,, Cuirassine and Zouaves ... ... 7s. 11½d. Patterns sent post-free. Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

READY-MADE DRESS DEPARTMENT. French Lawn Dresses, with Jackets to match, 21s. 6d. Another Giant Alpaca, 45in. wide, 21s. 6d. A large variety of elegantly-trimmed White and Buff Muslin Dresses, 21s. 6d. to 63s. Patterns sent post-free. Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

MANTLE and SHAWL DEPARTMENT. A large choice in Paris Designs in Lyons Glacé and Wove Grain Jackets and Mantles, commencing at 1 guinea. Opera Mantles, of the newest shapes, in Lyons Velvet. An immense stock of Spanish, French, and Yak Lace Shawls, Square Shawls, and Veils. Patterns free. KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

FAMILY MOURNING, MADE UP and Trimmed in the most correct and approved taste, may be obtained ready for instant wear, at the most reasonable prices, at PETER ROBINSON'S Court and General Mourning Warehouse, Goods sent for inspection to all parts of England, and Patterns of every kind of Mourning Fabrics forwarded by post. 52 to 62, Regent-street. The largest and best Warehouse in the Kingdom. Peter Robinson's Establishment for Coloured Goods is 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.

MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING. New Shapes and Novel Materials in Jackets. PETER ROBINSON'S Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 52 to 62, Regent-street. N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

UNTRIMMED

WIDE-GROUND BLACK GRENADINES are BARGAINS. Fifty Pieces, Patterns and Jackets to match, at the Mourning Establishment, 243, Regent-street, corner of Sheffield-street. Patterns free.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free. Good useful Black Silks, from 3s. to 6s. the Dress. Superior and Extra Rich Black Silks, from 6s. 6d. to 21s. the Dress. All Patterns sent free. KING and CO., Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 243, Regent-street, corner of Sheffield-street. N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—Paris Fashions.—New Shapes and good Novelties in Bonnets, Hats, and Millinery. Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 52 to 62, Regent-street. N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.

MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING. New Shapes and Novel Materials in Jackets. PETER ROBINSON'S Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 52 to 62, Regent-street. N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

UNTRIMMED

WIDE-GROUND BLACK GRENADINES are BARGAINS. Fifty Pieces, Patterns and Jackets to match, at the Mourning Establishment, 243, Regent-street, corner of Sheffield-street. Patterns free.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free. Good useful Black Silks, from 3s. to 6s. the Dress. Superior and Extra Rich Black Silks, from 6s. 6d. to 21s. the Dress. All Patterns sent free. KING and CO., Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 243, Regent-street, corner of Sheffield-street. N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—Paris Fashions.—New Shapes and good Novelties in Bonnets, Hats, and Millinery. Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 52 to 62, Regent-street. N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PATTERNS IN BLACK SILKS.

MESSRS. JAY, having long adopted the custom of sending Patterns of their Black Silks to any part of the kingdom, beg to state their patterns and the general Mourning Fabrics are now ready, and will be forwarded post-free on application. Messrs. JAY, in making this announcement, would suggest that if customers, desiring a definite price, would depend on a selection by Messrs. JAY, a considerable saving would be the guarantee against disappointment in the wear or colour of the Silk purchased.

THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, 251, and 253, Regent-street, W.

TAFFETA D'ITALIE.—Messrs. JAY have imported this New Material for Black Dresses, which is to be much worn this season. Messrs. JAY have had it made in a variety of qualities, and will forward Patterns on application. Taffeta d'Italie will stand unrivalled among new fabrics.

THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, 251, and 253, Regent-street, W.

A FRESCO COSTUMES in NEUTRAL TINTS.—Messrs. JAY beg to exhibit an immense of some of the Newest Fabrics in Fresco Costumes, in neutral tints, and will be pleased to send Patterns to any address. A very elegant and not to be seen elsewhere. THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Nos. 247, 249, 251, and 253, Regent-street, JAY'S.

MESSRS. JAY begin to invite special attention to their Stock of Mourning Millinery. Their London Warehouses consist of every article requisite for First and Family Mourning, and they are now showing a very elegant variety of materials from the plain cut by the yard, according to the widest and deepest Crape. Messrs. JAY'S Crape, Jet, and Trimmings are fresh, and customers are invited to view. THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSES, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

INDIA SHAWLS.—Large Consignments, direct from Manufacturers, enable us to offer unprecedented selection of CASHMERE SHAWLS, just received direct from India, in Square, Long, and Wide Shapes, at moderate prices, suitable for wedding presents.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, Limited, SCOTT ADIE'S, Regent-street, Removed to the Corner of Vigo-street only.

SANSFLECTUM CRINOLINES. "Wear admirably well."—Court Journal. ADELEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA or WAVED UPPERS, 10s. 6d. "The front fails to crush."—Morning Post. ADELEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

THOMSON'S PRIZE MEDAL. Illustrations post-free. ADELEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

THE "ARIEL" MANTLE, SHAWL and SWISS MANTILLA.—Three elegant Novelties for the present season, in Black and Coloured Silks. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street. India, China, French, Fancy, Novelties, and Fancy Shawls, from 1 guinea to 200 guineas.

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at Mrs. JAMES SPENCE'S, 25, Baker-st., Bond-st. Mulliner and Dress-maker. Wedding orders, credits and mourning orders punctually executed in France, Credit, 24, Old Broad-street, E.C.

REAL INDIAN TUSSORES and RUNCHUNDAH CORAHS just received, a perfectly new Stock of the above, which are recommended as the fashionable Dress for Morning and Seaside Costume.

Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

JUST IMPORTED. A new Collection of FRENCH SILKS, comprising every shade in Checks, Stripes, and Checks, of the most brilliant character, and suitable for every degree of wear. Prices from 2½ to 4 guineas the Full Dress.

Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR YOUNG LADIES. Coloured Grenadines, Tarlatans, and Striped Silks, in perfectly new Colours, made expressly for the season. Prices from 1½ guinea the Dress.

Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

LYONS LEVANTINE. A perfectly new Twilled Silk, made expressly to our order by the eminent Lyons Manufacturers Corneau, in most brilliant tonings, 22 to 24, the Full Dress, 14 yards, 23in. wide, or any Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS FOULARDS are specially adapted for the present season, the very best and most fashionable article for the present season for ladies' morning dress, including black and coloured grounds.

Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CHÊNE SILKS. Now making, 20 Pieces of this French Design, 22in. wide, at 2½ the Full Dress, 14 yards, 23in. wide, or any length cut. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR SUMMER. New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known Black Gros Grain, 2½ the Full Dress, 14 yards, 23in. wide. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR CHECKED RICH GROS GRAIN GRENADINES, adapted for Dances, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 2½ the Full Dress, 14 yards, 23in. wide. Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 3½ to 5 guineas. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALL THE CHOICE DESIGNS IN NEW ORGANDIE MUSLINS, Spotted, Striped, and Satin Trellised, 9d., 10d., 1s., 1s. 6d., to 5s. the extra Full Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PALES SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS. Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new. An endless variety of Patterns and Colours. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, at Reduced Prices, all the New Patterns in PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES, for Ladies' Morning Dresses and Children's Dresses. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE ARABIAN GLACÉS, Checked, Striped, and Satin Trellised, 9d. A most useful and fashionable fabric either for Walking or Morning Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A Choice Assortment of the NEW PRINTED ARABIAN GLACÉS, in every variety of style, either in white or coloured grounds, 9d. the extra Full Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

GINGHAMS and COLOURED LAWNS, for Ladies' Morning Dresses, Yachting Costumes, Seaside Dresses, in cloth, linen, in plain colours, checks or stripes. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A CAREFULLY SELECTED VARIETY OF CHEAP SUMMER DRESSES. A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth, 42in. wide, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 6d. per yard. Also, in Cloth, 54in. wide, 3s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

READY-MADE DRESSES, in Pink and White Muslin Alpaca, Striped Muslin, Checked and White and Coloured Grenadines, Muslins, &c. Also, a Choice Selection of Black Silk Dresses, in the Newest Styles of Fashion. Prices from 2s. to 3 guineas. Complete Sets of Underclothing, Chemises, Petticoats, 3½ 4 guineas. PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

WHITE MUSLIN ROBES. 500 Pretty Good Quality Dresses, Trimmed Flounces, Cross-over Sashes, 5s. 6d. to 7s. 9d. the Full Dress. Some very rich Robes, Embroidered Flounces, 10s. 6d. to 21 guineas. PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

AN UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND for the MARVELLOUSLY LIGHT SILKS now in course of preparation. PETER ROBINSON is now in a position to offer for the present season, 1887, a Silk of the most marvellous lightness, at a remarkably low price with a view to obtain a clearance before the close of the season. The Illustrations of Dresses made in this material are now ready, and will be sent post-free on application. PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

A LARGE NUMBER of SILK MANTLES and JACKETS, of every variety of very richest qualities have been purchased in Paris and are now being offered at very reduced prices. PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

SEVERAL THOUSANDS TO SELECT FROM. LACE SHAWLS and MANTLES, from 10s. 6d. to 50 guineas. The Illustrations of these will be sent post-free on application. PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

THIS SEASON'S FASHIONS IN DRESS. LADIES and the PUBLIC visiting London are respectfully invited to inspect the NEW and ELEGANT FABRICS now being shown at all the LATEST NOVELTIES IN DRESS, at British and Irish Manufactures. ALL THE LATEST FANCIES and MANTLES for the Season. Cashmere Velvet, Cashmere Velveteen, in all the latest Designs, Plain and Printed A LPACA LUSTRES, 8s. 11d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 14s. 6d., 16s. 6d., 18s. 6d., 21s., and 25s. A choice assortment of Embroidered and Lace-trimmed ALL-WOOL DELAINES, from 10s. 6d. to 2 guineas, with jacket complete, for Morning and Evening Wear. A large assortment of ALL-WOOL DELAINES, from 9d. 11d. to 2s. 6d. (much under the regular prices.) Ribbons, Gloves, Hosiery, Flannels, Haberdashery, FAMILY AND COMPLIMENTARY MOURNING. Drapery, Millinery, and Dressmaking supplied with the greatest dispatch. Close on 3 acres of Show-room. JAMES SPENCE and CO., Nos. 266, 267, 268, 269, and 270, Oxford-street, Shirt Makers, Drapers, &c., 17 and 18, St. Paul's-churchyard.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! Patterns post-free. RICH CHENE SILKS, wide width, 21 6s. 6d. the Dress of 12 yards, worth 30s. Wide-width STRIPED SILKS, New Colours, 21 6s. 6d. the Dress of 12 yards, worth 30s. The New Colours in FANCY CHECK SILKS, at 21 10s. 6d. the Dress of 12 yards, worth 30s. Patterns post-free. Good wide-width BLACK SILKS, at 2s. 6d. and 3s. 11d. Also, GROS GRAINS and BROCADES of the best manufactures, at 3s. 11d. per yard, worth 5s. 6d. JAMES SPENCE and CO., Silkmercers, &c., 17 and 18, St. Paul's-churchyard, London. Corner to Entrance of Post-Office.

MOURNING.—Untearable Black Barèges, Grenadines, &c., 12½ 6d. Full Dress. The new Crape Tarlatan, Bareges, Muslins, &c. Patterns free. 58, Ful Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

A S FINE as HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., 6d., post-free, Invisible HAIR-NETS, in any colour; the new Fine Silk Hair-nets, 3d. and 6d.; Chenille Nets, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

SUMMER WEAR.—GAZE DE CHAMBERY, 5½d. per yard, 24in. wide. Patterns free. Also, Fine Silk Muslins, 8d. per yard. These beautiful Fabrics are now in great demand for Dinner Dresses, and are selling at BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street. Patterns free.

LACES, &c.—2000 (Embroidered in Wool Work) PIECES INDIAN TUSSORE MUSLINS, 6d. each, worth 10s. 6d. Patterns free. This is the cheapest lot we have had for years.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

FOR WEDDING, Evening, or Walking Wear, the new GRENADINE MUSLINS, in white and colours, all exclusive designs, 1s. 6d. per yard, worth 2s. 6d. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

CHILLING GLOVES.—We are now selling "a pair of the Jouvin Alpine Kid Gloves, all set at 10s. per pair, and guaranteed perfect for ten clear stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

READY-MADE MUSLIN DRESSES, with Jackets complete, Skirts only, from 6s. 6d. to 2 guineas. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! Patterns Free. Rich Corded Silks, all the New Colours, 2½ the Full Dress. Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks, 2½ the Dress. 5s. 6d. to 10s. Full Dress. BLACK Rich, bright, wide, and durable Glacé, Gros Grains, 2½ 3s. 11d. to 5s. 6d. the Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

2000 PIECES INDIAN TUSSORES and MUSLINS, from 10d. the Dress. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

LYONS FOULARDS, best quality, all at 3½ 6d. the extra Full Dress. Patterns free. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

MUSLIN, LACE, and LENO CURTAINS. Patterns free. Also, Muslins, Lace, and Lenos by the yard.—ATKINSON and CO., Nos. 188, 190, 192, 194, 196, 198, and 200, Tottenham-court-road.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requiring no cutabobbing, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture. Patterns free.—ATKINSON and CO., Nos. 188, 190, 192, 194, 196, 198, and 200, Tottenham-court-road, and the new premises.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting well guaranteed, 40s., made to measure. Patterns and self-measure post-free. CAPTAIN and WATERS, 56, Regent-street, London, S.W.

CROQUET SEASON.—The Registered CROQUET GOWN and Short Costume, protects from Indiscretions. To be had only of Messrs. SWAN and HEDGES, Manufacturers, Wholesale, and Juvenile Tailors, the Lilliputian Warehouse, 182, Regent-street, W.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to the Queen, the Royal Family, and the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand, and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange, E.C.

NOTICE.—Professor BROWNE respectfully invites ladies and gentlemen to an inspection of his Stock of Hand-made Boots, Shoes, Soles, and Uppers, in every style of design, suited to the present fashion, at his well-known Establishment, 19, Southampton-row, Russell-square, W.C. Fit guaranteed. "For self-measurement see" Punch. Hair brushed by machinery.

RIMMEL'S TOILET VINEGAR will be found a boon to ladies during the present hot weather, and a novelty perfume. 1s., 2s. 6d., 5s.—E. RIMMEL, Perfumer, 96, Strand; 128, Regent-street; and 24, Cornhill.

FOR ASCOT RACES and FETES—PARASOLS and SUNSHADES.—H. and J. SANGSTER have a large and choice assortment of Parasols and Sunshades, elegantly mounted and trimmed with lace, in the newest and most elegant designs.—140, Regent-street; and 94, Fleet-street.

N.B. Parasols re-covered for Presents and Fêtes in great variety at 140, Regent-street.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED PATENT CANDLES, 1s. per lb. Sold by all Grocers. Illustrations of the Patent Candle-machinery, and other instructive views for promoting a practical growth of the human mind, sent free by post on application to NAPOLEON PRICE, Sole Proprietor, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., Pi. St., W., and 66, Wigmore-st., W.

THE RACES AND FETES.—LADIES should have a Bottle of ROWLANDS' KALYDOR both reading and refreshing to the face and skin; allays all heat and irritation arising from the sun, dust, or exercise; eradicates tan, freckles, pimples, and discolorations, and renders the skin soft, fair, and blooming. Ask for ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, and beware of pernicious imitations under the terms of "Kalydor."

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss CLARE, the Ladies' Hair Specialist, begs to inform you that she has returned from Paris with the latest novelties in hair and beautifying art of guiding-tye Fringes, Bandeaux, Coronets, Plaits, Chignons, and Switches for the Toilette, standing unrivalled. Address, 30a Tabard, Bishopsgate-street, London.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY. MESSRS. GABRIEL, SURGEON DENTISTS, 56, Ludgate-hill, E.C., and 64, Regent-street, W., have introduced a system of Painless Dentistry, which is perfectly successful in the adaptation of artificial teeth, rendering mastication, articulation, and appearance perfect and natural. Consultation Free. For Extracting, Stopping, Cleaning, Regulating, and all other Operations, they guarantee the most skilful treatment. Sheffield: 4, Bank-parade, Leeds: 18, St. Nicholas-st., Bristol: Corner of Park-street and Queen's-road.

DR. DE JONGH'S (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium) LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is the purest, most efficacious, and most palatable that the world has ever produced. It is prescribed by the Faculty and analysts as the most perfect, uniform, and most efficacious remedy for CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, COUGHS, COLDS, INFLUENZA, ASTHMA, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, CHILDREN, and INFANTS. Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is inexpensive superior to every other variety.

SOLE CONSIGNEE, ANSAR, HARFORD and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS. DR. EGAN'S ANATOMICAL SUPPORTERS, for dorsal weakness, &c., of superior construction. Directions for self-measurement and prices sent free. 168, Old Kent-road.—Egan, 168, Old Kent-road.

NEW MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY (B.M. Grenadier Guards). The Waltz of the season, by the Composer of the celebrated "Grenadier Waltz." Price 4s., nett or free. Military Band, 2s.; Brass Band, 2s. 6d.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 3s.; CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music from the Grand Opera just produced with Mr. Mitchell's Italian Opera Company, Drury Lane, and which will be produced with Chappell and Co. 50, New Bond-street, where the following are now ready:—

The Opera complete for the Voice and Pianoforte ..... 20s.
All the Vocal Music with French words. ..... 10s.
The Overture for Pianoforte, Solo, 3s.; Duet ..... 4s.
Grand Indian March. ..... 4s.
Grand Selection. ..... 4s.
Bouquet de Mélodies. By Cramer ..... 4s.
Quadrilles. By Godfrey ..... 4s.
Waltzes. By Godfrey ..... 4s.
Favourite Airs in 3 Books. By W. H. Cullotti. Each 4s.
Duets ..... each 5s.
Pianoforte Duets. Brinley Richards ..... each 4s.
Pianoforte Solos. Brinley Richards ..... 3s.
Fantasia for Harmonium. By Goodban ..... 3s.
Grand Duet, Harmonium and Pianoforte. E. Bagge ..... 4s.
The Italian and English versions are in the press, together with Fantasias for Pianoforte by Kuhe, and a Selection for Flute and Violin, by Clinton.
CHAPPELL and Co. 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. The favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's Opera arranged for the Pianoforte, in 3 Books, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s. each; Duets, each 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ. On the favourite melodies from Meyerbeer's last Grand Opera, arranged for Pianoforte by D. GODFREY (B.M. Grenadier Guards). Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE. On favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's Opera. By CHARLES COOTE. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITE, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each. No. 1. The Grenadier Waltz. | No. 4. The Prince of Wales' Waltz.
No. 2. The Guards' Waltz. | No. 5. The Coldstream Waltz.
No. 3. The Orpheus Galop. | No. 6. The Meyerbeelte Waltz.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS.

The Lost Star	Walker	2s. 6d.
The Gondolier's Bride	Brinley Richards	2s. 6d.
The Gondolier Waltz	C. Harrold	3s. 6d.
Her Tackards	H. Helsby	2s. 6d.
Annie's Welcome	L. Hebby	2s. 6d.
Annie I wander	L. Hebby	2s. 6d.
I will not wander	Schumann	2s. 6d.
My last rovals	Walter Maynard	2s. 6d.
Part with forgiveness	Hawes	2s. 6d.
The Fairy Queen	Brinley Richards	2s. 6d.
Carolina (for two voices)	Gounod	2s. 6d.
In Youth's Season	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Sweet Remembrance	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Our Native Home	Archer	2s. 6d.
Only thee	Linter	2s. 6d.
The Life Clock	J. Barnett	2s. 6d.
A life of love with thee	J. Barnett	2s. 6d.
The Lover's Lot	J. Barnett	2s. 6d.
The Maid and the Scamp	J. Barnett	2s. 6d.
La Chant d'Hyménée	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Le Soir	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Le Rendezvous	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Souvenir	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Les Champs	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Written not Spring	Hervé Thomas	2s. 6d.
Sweet Spring	Hervé Thomas	2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, including the favourite airs from "Faust," "Martha," "Stabat Mater," "Lucrezia Borgia," "Il Trovatore," "Don Giovanni," "Le Nozze di Figaro," "Guillaume Tell," "Norma," "Sonnambula," "Lucia," "Rigoletto," "Crown Diamonds," "Bohemian Girl," "Satanella," "Puritani," "Lurline," "Daughter of the Regiment," &c. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. The favourite song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S BROOKLET. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S GRAZIELLA. Romance Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE WALTZ.
LA BELLE HÉLÈNE QUADRILLES. STRAUSS. 3s.
LA BELLE HÉLÈNE POLKA. STRAUSS. 3s.
LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, 8s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.
KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's national Grenadier Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS, published this day.
FAIRIES' DANCE. Solo for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARIE. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
LA REINE DES ROSES. Mazurka. 3s.
LA BELLE ESPAGNOLE, for Voice and Pianoforte, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. FAVARGER'S NEW PIECE.
DON GIOVANNI. Fantasia on Airs from Mozart's Grand Opera, for the Pianoforte. By EDM. FAVARGER. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

J. F. BARNETT'S PASTORAL SCENE. A characteristic Piece for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.
THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A Selection of Pieces by the most celebrated Composers, by the same ecclesiastical, congregational, and modern, as are especially adapted for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains three books, in oblong form, printed on extra large music paper, and arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready. Price 2s. 6d. each. The first volume, containing Nos. 1 to 6, price 15s. The Vol. II. is in the press. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WINTER AND SPRING. New Song. Written by F. CROWLY; Music by Herold Thomas. Compass, D to F. "Just Published." Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, W.

Just published, ready at all the Musicsellers, Illustrated Title,

GOD BLESS THE FIRE BRIGADE, Musical Anniversary for 1865, Words and Music respectfully by the HEROES.
A real stirring melody, with a capital chorus.
Free from the Author for eighteen stamps, 1, Bridge-st. The trade supplied by B. D'ALCORN, 12, Saddlers-ghyll.

HAYDN'S MOST SUCCESSFUL NEW SONG.
FAIR AND FALSE.
2s. 6d. Post-free for sixteen stamps.
EWER and Co.'s Musical Library, 87, Regent-street, London.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS FOLKA. 3s. Ready. So, sir, the universally popular tune "Dog, Dog," here we are again." The most successful ever published. Played everywhere. Post-free for twenty stamps. Also, Marriott's Set of Dances for band of ten parts, as played at the United Academy.
London: ADDISON and PARKY, 17, Hanover-square.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—Now ready, the complete Opera, with French Words, 20s.; also, the following FAVOURITE ARRANGEMENTS, published by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CALLCOTT'S AFRICAINE.—Meyerbeer's last great Opera. The favourite Airs, in three books, each arranged for Pianoforte, by W. HUTCHINS CALLCOTT. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE, on favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's last Grand Opera, as first Duke at Her Majesty's State Ball, May 17. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ, on Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s. Illustrated.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CRAMER'S AFRICAINE BOUQUET DE MÉLODIES, on Meyerbeer's Opera. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S AFRICAINE. Grande Marche Brillante, from Meyerbeer's New Opera, arranged for Pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S NEW SONG.
"I'LL COME," Evening time (the old metre). Composed expressly for Madame Sainton-Dolby, and sung by her with great success, with remarkable success, at Mdme. Sainton-Dolby's concert, May 15.
Price 2s. 6d.
I send you here
For heart and voice would fail me,
To sing the words I'll come.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. By CLARIBEL. Sung by Mdme. Sainton-Dolby. Published this day by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

KUHE'S NEW Fantasia on favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's Opera "L'Etoile du Nord." Price 4s. Published this day, price 4s. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ARDITI'S LORELEIGO. New Scherzo, with Variations on the favourite Air, "The Ice," &c., also for the Pianoforte, 3s. This charming polka sustained popularity in Germany during the season of 1864. Sung by Mdlle. Louis Heritz at the Antient Concerts, and rapturously encored.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. By HUMMEL. The new song at the Antient Concerts, with unprecedented success, by Mdme. Sainton-Dolby.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. By HUMMEL. This new and highly successful Song, arranged for the Pianoforte, by W. H. CALLCOTT.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE. Old Scotch Ballad, with Variations for the Pianoforte. By CHARLES HALLE. "Why, gude gray Mither, why sae pale and wan?"
To bid farewell to the bonnie Isle, where he must roam."
Price 3s. 6d. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

New Edition of
MAHON'S SONG by CLARIBEL. This pathetic and charming Song is in future to be published exclusively by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW SONG.
THE MESSAGE. Poetry by R. Value Ariette, 3s. Also, with Italian words, "La Messagère a d'Amore." 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BEETHOVEN'S "FIDELIO." 8s. Complete vocal score in German and English. 8s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense favour. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions at half the published price, post-free for twenty-four stamps. Catalogues gratis and post-free.
CRAMER, BEALE, and WOOD, 201, Regent-street, W.

STATE BALL. Buckingham Palace.—Played by command, by Coote and Tinney's Band—
COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE ..... 4s.
STRAUS'S MENUETTE VALSE ..... 3s.
COOTE'S NEW LANCERS ..... 4s.
TINNEY'S GRAND MILITARY GALOP ..... 3s.
COOTE'S NEW LANCERS ..... 4s.
COOTE'S DUKE'S GALOP ..... 4s.
HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ALWAYS ENCORED.
COOTE'S NEW and POPULAR V-TECHNIC QUADRILLE, price 4s., on the popular Songs sung by Mesdms. J. L. Toole and Stephens.
HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF DANCES FOR BAND.
COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Beautiful accompaniments to violins and flutes.
HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.
COOTE'S NEW and POPULAR GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF
OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! The Popular Song sung by Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, and by J. L. TOOLE'S NEW BURLESQUE, "Babil and Bijou."—HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE WERPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter. Sung by J. L. Toole. Illustrated.
HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A FIRST-RATE SENTIMENT.
PADDLE YER OWN CANOE. Price 2s. 6d. This is one of Gilbert's best songs.
HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.
Ion Simpson's Courtship ..... 2s.
Paddle yer own Canoe ..... 2s.
A Nautical Dream ..... 2s.
HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE, price 3s., encore chorus of laughter.
HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S SONGS.
Her newest Song, Rosalie, 2s. Post-free at half price.
THE LISTENING MAIDEN. Sung by Mdme. Sainton-Dolby.
WHEN SHADOWS LENGTHEN. Words by Jean Ingelow.
CORSA LOSE. Song by Miss Catherine.
Price 2s. each. HOWARD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SONGS FROM SHAKSPEARE, Set to Music by ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN.
O Mistress Mine. Sung by Mr. Sudlow ..... 2s. 6d.
Come away, Death. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves ..... 2s. 6d.
The Willow Song and Ballad. Sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington ..... 2s. 6d.
METZLER and Co., 39, 40, 41, and 99, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

MDME. OURY'S NEW PIECES. Lucy. Fantasia ..... 4s.
Mathilde Valse de Salon ..... 4s.
METZLER and Co., 39, 40, 41, and 99, Great Marlborough-street, W.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S
TRANSCRIPTIONS
The Arch Song Waltz ..... 4s.
The Listening Zither. Miss Gabriel's popular Song. 3s.
METZLER and Co., 39, 40, 41, and 99, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SWING SONG. By CH. FONTAINE. Second Edition of this very popular Pianoforte Piece. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 39, 40, 41, and 99, Great Marlborough-street, W.

PLAYED AT THE STATE BALL.
LARA QUADRILLE. By COOTE. Played at Prince Edward's and Co. Footmen's 21-stones' Ball.
METZLER and Co., 39, 40, 41, and 99, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE VALSE OF THE SEASON.
LARA VALSE. By COOTE. Piano Solo or Duet, 4s. each. Key to bad for Orchestra.
METZLER and Co., 39, 40, 41, and 99, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SINGING BIRD'S VALSE. J. P. CLARKE. Played by all the Regimental Bands. With a beautiful and novel Illustration. Price 4s. post-free.
METZLER and Co., 39, 40, 41, and 99, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Cottage Pianoforte that Mdlle. Marie Wieck ever consented to play) is a very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and the touch and tone of a Grand Pianoforte. Price 35 guineas. Packed, free of charge, for home or any part of the kingdom, and for shipment. Pianofortes, with check action and all the latest improvements, from 16 guineas.
Prize, 50 guineas, exercised, and 45 guineas, and 25 guineas. A great variety may be seen at CHAPPELL and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTE.—To commence performing the Model will be built with the latest improvements, and fitted with the best action (the full and perfectly satisfactory instrument), at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as that now in universal use, therefore especially adapted to the country where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many if not to most persons. Compass, from C to F in alt. Height, about 4 feet; every respect like a Grand. Price of 25 guineas, price 35 guineas in walnut, 45 guineas.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the latest improvements, for SALE or HIRE, on the most liberal and fixed terms, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTES in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and the touch and tone of a Grand Pianoforte, especially adapted for the country, and for those who require a first-rate pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or second-hand.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM ORGAN, HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 50 guineas, in handsome walnut case, with two rows of keys and fine tone of Pianoforte. Descriptive Lists forwarded on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with two rows of keys, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments have been in great request for a full year, and are pronounced by all to be the best for the money.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly reduced prices.—CHAPPELL, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 73 stops, 4 rows of keys and pedals, with the knee-swell, and all the latest improvements, price 120 guineas, may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

HARMONIUMS
BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The 6-guinea Harmonium, in oak case, one stop. The 10-guinea do. with two stops, in handsome oak case, has a powerful tone suitable for close-singing, &c. Harmoniums for churches and chapels, with the full pedal organ stops. Any of the above may be had with the knee-swell attachment, which gives a great and distinct melody as if played by another performer. Lists and logue upon application to 21, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES
BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The Minuture, prize 7 guineas; the Cottage 8-octave Pianette, price 25 guineas, in the original walnut case; the model Cottage Piano, price 35 guineas, &c. Catalogues upon application.
21, Holles-street, W.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by JOSEPH LACHENAL, Full compass, with all the latest improvements, from 3 guineas to 20 guineas. Lists free. Instruction book, free for stamps.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE FRERES. The largest assortment of these wonderful and delightful instruments. Nicole Freres, wishing to obtain the slightest reverse, 13a, to 96, Rue du Temple, Paris, and 19, Regent-street, London.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPÔT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments in REPOUSSÉ Steel, from 3 guineas to 100 guineas. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and post-free. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and post-free.
WOOD and CRAW, 33, New Bond-street.

JAQUES'S PRIZE MEDAL CROQUET, the best and cheapest game out of doors, for the drawing-room, lawn, or croquet ground. Price 21s. Illustrated prospectus gratis. Croquet: Observe the name—JAQUES—on each box, mallet, and ball. Sold everywhere.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the RECONNOITRER GLASS, 10s. 10d., nett free.—The Reconnoitrer Glass is of the same power as the Opera Glass, but of greater length, and is admirably adapted for Reviews, &c. The Duke of Cambridge: "The reconnoitrer is very good." Earl of Carnarvon: "I am pleased with it, and very wonderful powerful for so very small a glass." Lord Cardigan: "Remarkably good." Sir Hope Grant: "Very good indeed." Sir Fenwick Williams: "Very good." Sir Colin Campbell: "Very good indeed." Sir Hugh Rose: "Very good." Sir Henry Storks: "Very good indeed." Major Stanley, of Weetwood Hall: "Very good indeed." Major Hall, Bengal Staff Corps: "Very good indeed." Captain Boyle, Bengal Staff Corps: "I have found it effective at the 1000 yards' range." F. H. Fawkes, Esq., of Farnley: "I find it a very powerful glass indeed, and a perfect reconnoitring glass, having to mount power for the eye with no reference to the size of the glass." Lieut.-Col. Hall, Bengal Staff Corps: "I have found it remarkably good, powerful, and wonderfully portable." Lieut.-Col. Will: "I will not start without such an indispensable companion." The Rev. Mr. Hall: "I find it very good indeed." Lieut.-Col. Hall: "I have been in all India, and I have never seen a glass I like so well." Also for registered trade marks, "Salem," "Reconnoitrer," and "Opera Glass." Sold by all Opticians. Wholesale and for exportation by MILLER, 65, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Edinburgh, and Liverpool. Supplies of any kind, any where.

M. F. DENT, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Watch and Clock Maker to the Queen and to the principal Courts of Europe.
M. F. Dent, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, London.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, and 14, Cornhill, London, Goldsmiths to the Queen. First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power in excellent going order, being second, recommended for accuracy and durability.
Silver ..... £4 4s. | Gold ..... £8 8s.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, second dial, and seconds ..... £6 6s.
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and second ..... £8 8s.
Ditto, jewelled in eight holes, and second ..... £10 10s.
Minor Exercise, in Hunting Cases, 5s. 6d. extra.
GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled ..... £11 11s.
Ditto, with richly-engraved cases ..... £12 12s.
Ditto, with engine-turned cases, jewelled in four holes ..... £14 14s.
GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, seconds, and engraved ..... £12 12s.
Ditto, jewelled in four holes, and second ..... £14 14s.
Ditto, jewelled in eight holes, and second ..... £16 16s.
Lists of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.
MONTHLY FAMILY TICKETS are now issued by the SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY Directors and London Bridge, or Reading to Boulogne, Calais, Dover, Folkestone, Ramsgate, Margate, Deal, Canterbury, and Tunbridge Wells.
For form, &c., see programme and time-books.

SATURDAY to MONDAY at the SEASIDE, &c.—SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.
Cheap Saturday to Monday Return Tickets are now issued from Victoria—every day at 10 a.m., and from London Bridge, by certain trains, to Ramsgate, Margate, Hastings, St. Leonards, Tunbridge Wells, Deal, Dover, Folkestone, and Boulogne.
For time of trains, fares, &c., see programmes and time-books.

SUNDAY and MONDAY EXCURSIONS, SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.
CHEAP EXCURSIONS every SUNDAY and MONDAY, from Victoria and London Bridge, to Reading, Hastings, Margate, Ramsgate, Deal, Dover, Folkestone, Boulogne, Canterbury, Tunbridge Wells, and Shorncliffe at 8.30 a.m., or 9 a.m. Third class.
On SUNDAYS to Canterbury, Hastings and St. Leonards, at 10 a.m.
On MONDAYS only to Whitstable Harbour and Herne Bay at 8.30 a.m.
To Whitstable and Herne Bay ..... Third class. Second class.
To Canterbury ..... 3s. 6d. 5s. 6d.
CHEAP FARES also to Gravesend, Strood, Chatham, and Rochester—Chatham under Twelve half price. Tickets available for the day only and by specified trains.
C. W. CHADWICK, Secretary and Manager.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W.—Supported by Voluntary Contributions. Patients admitted by Governors only. Governors' Letter and Contributor SUPPORT IS RESPECTFULLY SOLICITED. Bankers, Messrs. COUTTS and Co.
PHILIP HARDY, Sec. pro. HENRY BODKIN, Sec.

CANCER HOSPITAL, London. Offices, 167, Piccadilly. Already relieved 1,000 patients.
To those benevolent persons who kindly desire to become benefactors to this Hospital, a large tote of legacy of £10,000 is offered.
Lives and benefits into the Cancer Hospital, London, situate at 167, Piccadilly, W., and 167, Fulham-road, Brompton, S.W. Governors, £10 10s. per annum, or £100 at one payment, constitutes a governor for life, and entitles him to recommend patients, according to the rules and regulations of the Institution. Bankers, Messrs. Coutts and Co., 59, Strand.
By order, W. J. COCKERELL, Secretary.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND, established by Royal Charter, and Incorporated by Act of the General Assembly of New Zealand.
CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVE FUND, £100,000.
Auckland ..... Napier ..... Wellington ..... Queenstown
Dunedin ..... Nelson ..... Wanganui ..... Queenstown
Christchurch ..... Picton ..... Hokitika ..... Blenheim
Invercargill ..... Taranaki ..... Timaru ..... Oamaru
Russell ..... Gisborne ..... Dunstan Creek ..... Waikouaiti
Onehunga ..... Akaroa ..... Kaiapoi ..... Waimate
Coromandel ..... Lyttelton ..... Greymouth ..... Westport
Kaipara ..... Riverton ..... Manchester ..... Westerton
Mangonui ..... Kaikoura ..... Waikouaiti ..... Wellington
This Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places, not exceeding £100, at sight, free of charge, and undertakes the collection of Bills, Notes, and Coupons, on the most favourable terms.
The London Office receives deposits at interest for fixed periods, on terms which may be learned on application.
THOMAS BRUCE, Manager.
No. 50, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND ST. GEORGE'S LIFE ASSURANCE ASSOCIATION, 1857, corner Royal Exchange, 17, Threadneedle-street, London, E.C.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 will be paid to the Representatives of a Gentleman accidentally killed by a gunshot of from 21 to 25 per annum in the Railway Passenger Assurance Company. Apply at the Railway Passengers' Assurance Company's Offices, 64, Cornhill, London.

LADIES' SCHOOL, 40 and 50 Guineas. Lady for Board and Education.—Lessons in Music, Singing, Drawing, Dancing, French, Italian, Materials and use of Piano, Harp, &c. Address, Miss MARIE DELY, Belvoir-road, Herne Hill, Surrey, S.E.

TO INVALIDS.—A Physician (M.A. and M.D.) residing in a healthy and conveniently situated part of the West-end of London, wishes to meet with a GENTLEMAN requiring a home, and to undertake the Treatment of his Case. Terms, £250 per annum and upwards, according to requirements. Apply to C. ELLIS, Esq., 11, Bedford-row, Holborn, W.C.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE. Established 31 years. For Family Arms and name not already Heraldically Painted, Sketched, Emblazoned, and engraved on Seals, Rings, Dies, &c. Monograms designed. Pedigrees Traced. Crests Painted, Sketched, Grant Transfer, Lincoln, W.C.—Heraldry of Nobility, Gratis.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and all PUBLIC BRASSES designed, executed, and engraved by JOSEPH MORTIMER, Heraldic Engraver, Sketching and other Cards.—No. 3, Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane.

NEW STYLE of CARRIAGE, to OPEN and SHUT, for Ladies and Gentlemen, Invalids, Clergymen, and MARNER, Carriage and Harness Manufactory, Oxford-street, Tottenham-court, Established 1851.

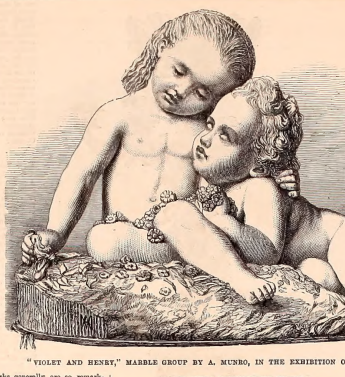
STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS for CHURCHES and DWELLINGS.
HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNE, Stained-glass Artists, executing in point of illustration, including completed Windows of the Great Exhibition, 1862, Cathedrals, Churches, Public Buildings, Mansions, &c., at 7, Pall-mall, London, Berlin, and Rome. New King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

GARDNERS' LAMPS ARE THE BEST.
GARDNER'S PATENT CARCEL LAMP, 10s. 6d. each. Gardner's Moderator Lamps, 6s. 6d. each. Gardner's Moderator Lamps, 6s. 6d. each. Gardner, Manufacturer to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross. Established 1751. Illustrated Catalogues gratis.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

ORNAMENTS for the MANTELPIECE, &c. The ROYAL PORCELAIN WORKS, Worcester, Messrs. Grainger, Manufacturers, Vases, &c., in Parian and English and foreign Marbles, Statuettes, Groups, Busts, &c., in Parian and Biscuit Porcelain, Ornamental Chimney-pieces, Tazzas, Fountains, Garden Vases, Sundials, Rustic Seats, and Ale Fonts.
ALFRED B. TAYLOR, Agent for the Trade. Established 1826.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, Gilt or Bronze, Moulded Flint Glass. A large assortment of Chandeliers, Lustres, Girandoles, Table Glass, Ormolu, Bronze, and Glass Tea Trays, Dessert Services, &c. At WILLIAM S. BURTON'S, Manufacturer, 39, Oxford-street, W.



GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, Manufactory, Watford, Herts.—LOCK-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, adapted for every description of work, from the finest cambric to the thickest cloth. Prospectus, containing testimonials and illustrated work with each machine, sent free on application. Instructions gratis. Machines lent on hire, and allowance made if purchased. Needles, thread, and every requisite always on sale. Machines for hire, with option of purchase. Second-hand machines, taken in exchange, from all makers, at their full value. Upwards of 100,000 machines sold in the United Kingdom. Every machine guaranteed. Inventors of the only perfect reversible feed motion. Manufactory, Watford, Herts. Chief London Office, 150, Regent-street, W.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT "SEWING MACHINES." Price 10s. Four machines, made by the original Inventor and Manufacturer, with the latest improvements, are now ready for delivery. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with unvarying regularity, superiority, and durability, and give no trouble. The Public are cautioned against purchasing any of the numerous spurious imitations of this machine, which are sold as "Genuine" and Improved" Machines. Oxford-street, London.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, JUNE 17, 1865.

"VIOLET AND HENRY."

MR. MUNRO in sculpture, like Mr. Sant in painting, has established a "speciality," as the French say, for child portraiture, though not at all at the expense of other branches of practice—as both artists again very conclusively prove this year. The marble group we have engraved is a favourable example of a long series of similar works from the same hand. While the figures are portraits, as the Royal Academy catalogue tells us, of the "children of Mr. and Mrs. Crompton Roberts," and while they possess sufficient individuality to enable any one, even if unacquainted with the originals, to vouch for a fair measure of resemblance, they rely, by elegance of disposition, grace of treatment, and truth to the leading characteristics of very early childhood—by their sweet expression and soft, dimpled fleshiness—they yet form a group which is fully entitled to rank as a work of ideal art. Any attempt to give more structural definition to almost infantine forms, would not only have imperilled the general fidelity to nature, but would also almost inevitably have robbed the work of its more delicate and artistic qualities. It is by confining the attention to those essential characteristics to which we have already alluded, that success in the representation of children has alone in any age been achieved. In proof of this, we need only refer to children or infants in sculptures from Praxiteles to Fiamingo and Flaxman; or in painting from Raphael to Murillo, and Albano, Rubens, and Reynolds. Even Michael Angelo in treating infantine forms avoided that anatomical display for which his works generally are so remarkable; and when in representing children he did not avoid such display, as in the genii accompanying the prophets and sibyls of the Sistine chapel, his children, like the boys of the Laocoon, look rather like diminutive men than children.

"VIOLET AND HENRY," MARBLE GROUP BY A. MUNRO, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

Returning, however, from this digression, we would add that the actions of both children in Mr. Munro's group appear to us naturally conceived and felicitously rendered, without affectation or forcing of the sentiment. The little ones, as we are led to suppose, have been wandering together on mead or meadow, and the girl, the elder of the two, has sat down with her brother to plait the daisies they have gathered—perhaps for a wreath to place on the head of her little charge. Who has not seen children so engaged? A moment the little maiden's attention is diverted towards her namesake flower, the violet, which she is in the act of gathering; but even that moment the little fellow can hardly spare her, for is he not nestling up closer than ever, and calling upon her for undivided notice by his prettiest prattle and the most persuasive of his little engaging infant ways?

"GLEANERS RETURNING HOME."

THE principal artistic qualities in this and other works by M. Laugée are simplicity and breadth. Drawing, colouring, and other essentials of a good picture are present in fair and good measure, but breadth and simplicity of effect are specially remarkable. These qualities, though among the most obviously desirable, are among the very last which painters generally attain the power of securing, and they must be prized accordingly. Nothing but great knowledge of nature and wide grasp of observation enables an artist to select those general and essential facts which not only fill and satisfy the mind, but—bearing in mind the limited nature of the painter's means—really suggest a greater range, as well as more valuable truths, than can be represented by the most laborious minuteness.

To a merit in this picture not of a technical kind, and which may be appreciated in our Engraving, we wish, however, more particularly to draw attention. The conception is as unpretending and truthful as the workmanship. M. Laugée, in common with Jules Breton, Falco, Duveger, Henriette Browne, and many other French artists, paints rustic subjects with a pure and sincere, an unforced and unaffected, sympathy which is, unfortunately, but rarely found in English pictures of the same class. There is no obtruding of sentiment or moral here; the children are not lovely, unearthly cherubs; nor is there any vulgar appeal to feelings of pity or sense of humour; and we are not offended by a self-consciousness beyond their years in these children, as we are not distracted or annoyed by a misplaced display of the artist's cleverness, penetration, or condescension in explaining his intention. But we take precisely that degree of interest in the representation which we should take in the originals of the figures and incident. Or, if in our pride we are apt to overlook and pass heedlessly by the poorest, the least, and lowliest of our fellow-creatures, the artist comes to enlist our sympathies for them in the guise of a gentle, graceful, moral teacher and modestly persuasive philanthropist. In such a spirit the picture we have engraved was undoubtedly painted; and, in looking at it, we unconsciously share the artist's interest in his humble everyday theme. We think of that child-matron, the eldest sister, who, in addition to her toil, under the hot and parching sun on the treeless landes (in the neighbourhood, probably of Bordeaux), has had charge of two younger than herself. Then as we observe the boy drawing the cart, we may, perhaps, think how true it is, and how beautiful it is in nature, that even among children the attention and care are always given to the youngest and weakest of the party. The cart that contains the little one is rude enough; but we are sure that, had it been a chariot of state, it could not have been shaped by more loving hands; and as for the principal figure of our procession, we will venture to say that prince or princess, human or fairy, could not be the object of more generous consideration and worship. Of course, she comes in triumph home from the gleaning, bringing those poppy-sheaves with her which, doubtless, with the assistance of her little brother, she has gathered in emulation of the sister, who is to her as a second mother.

"THE SISTERS." PAINTED BY C. BAXTER.

WE very honestly said, in our notice of the Exhibition of the Society of British Artists, that Mr. Baxter's contributions are not free from the artificiality of manner into which an artist almost inevitably falls who confines his pencil too exclusively to the depiction of female beauty of one particular type. To show, however, that we are, at the same time, not insensible to the real sweetness and grace, the "extreme prettiness," as we justly phrased it, of this artist's fancy female subject, we engrave this picture of "The Sisters," which favourably exemplifies the qualities which have made Mr. Baxter's long list of similar subjects so attractive and popular. Here, too, as far as this picture individually is concerned, resemblance of character is not merely admissible—it is absolutely required. "Sisters" will be like each other, though the one may be a dark and the other a fair beauty. The agreeable composition of the picture; the tasteful grouping of the figures; the fresh and pleasant colouring, which, by-the-way, is of a hue which time will improve rather than deteriorate, and the transparent tone of the cast shadow on the fair girl's face are merits too obvious to need comment.

"GLEANERS RETURNING HOME," BY D. E. LAUGÉE, IN THE EXHIBITION OF FRENCH AND FLEMISH ARTISTS

So much for the exigencies of art-criticism. To our Engraver we must leave the arduous task of suggesting those spotless, peachlike complexions that go so well with blushing roses, pink silk pelisse, and soft swansdown trimming, and which are, besides, so well set off by the black lace of the head-dresses; those ruddy, pouting lips, tempting by the profanity of a kiss; that lustrous black or rich-auburn hair, and those eyes of liquid brown or laughing blue. Of course there is the difference of character given by the poets to the opposite temperaments. The dark girl is the more proudly independent and self-satisfied of the two, and must have a fan to coquet withal; while the softer-natured, more feminine fair one reveals her dependent, clinging nature by the tendril arm she winds round her sister and the emblematical rosebud she presses to her snowy bosom.

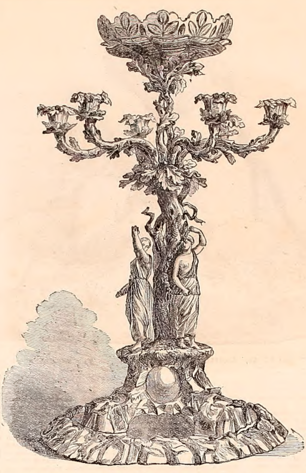
THE COMING ELECTION.

CONSIDERING that the Whitsuntide recess was made available for severe electioneering it is probable that most gentlemen candidates all over the country have by this time formed a tolerable conception of the chances and changes of the great coming event. If the chronicles of canvassing have been written truly, it would seem that things have not been particularly lively, and that the business of candidature has been conducted with a certain polite dulness, owing, no doubt, to the prevalence of a kind of Liberal-Conservatism, or Conservative-Liberalism, both amongst aspirants and electors—the conflicting elements of Radicalism and Toryism seldom, if ever, coming into contact. With his characteristic combativeness, Mr. Roebuck has managed to make himself the centre of the only picture which represents perturbation. There may be those who fancy that this honourable gentleman's eccentric style, which is nothing if not cynical, is developed chiefly in the house, where freedom of speech brings with it no consequences; but now, at least, he has proved that he can be as plucky in a popular assembly proper as anywhere.

In the very opening of his speech he threatened to have some one who interrupted him turned out, which, as the meeting was in the open air, would have been a difficult operation. The locality was Paradise-square, and certainly the scene was little to be associated with such nomenclature; for a fiercer battle of words than raged in that pleasant-named area could hardly have been, and it took Mr. Roebuck all his vocabulary of retort, sneer, and snapping personality to enable him to assert the position he laid down, that he is the type of the representation of the people of this country. In the railing-match he certainly got the best of it; and as all the opposition to his return seems likely to be spent in words, why, he may consider his afternoon in Paradise-square well spent. Naturally one looks for addresses from members of the Government at this juncture, but they ooze out but slowly. In the last week or so, only Mr. Cardwell has entered himself publicly for Oxford, and Mr. Bruce has solicited Merthyr Tydvil; but their addresses are eminently of that neutral tint which it seems to be the intention of Ministers to adopt; and, certainly, if anyone is a master of the art of not committing himself, Mr. Cardwell is the man. In a manner though as yet not pronouncedly, Lord Clarence Paget is in the field for Sandwich, in conjunction with his colleague in office, as well as in the present representation of the borough—Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen; and both are threatened with opposition. Rumour goes that in the event of a struggle Lord Clarence will be the scapegoat, and, doubtless, for reasons well understood by a constituency which is represented by members of a Government; for, in a certain sense, the Secretary to the Admiralty is emeritus, and can hope for nothing more than he has got, and has not much of anything to give away; while Mr Hugessen is a Lord of the Treasury, who is a sort of patronage conduit from boroughs into Downing-street; and, besides, is deputy-whipper-in, which is a post of significance to other persons besides recalcitrant members. By-the-by, it ought not to be forgotten that Mr. Brand has claimed the voices of the electors of Lewes, which, it need hardly be said, will be given cheerfully to such an arch patron as the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, who is the fountain-head of distribution. There is a murmur that Manchester, destitute of a Radical candidate, will seek to woo Mr. Milner Gibson back, in the hope that, like men in private life, he may forget his rejection by a former love and be smiled back to an allegiance which was once pleasant to him. If his attachment to Ashton-under-Lyne should really have replaced his former affection, why, there is Sir Charles Wood, just divorced from Halifax by mutual consent, who may not be disinclined to woo so buxom a political partner as Manchester.

Out of the huge bulk of electioneering matter, it is only possible for us to pick here and there what seem to be the best and most prominent grains, without in the least insinuating that the rest is chaff.

Lighting upon Greenwich, it may be observed that Sir Charles Bright is glancing along the constituency with electric facility; and as nothing absolute has been heard of Sir John Shelley's candidature, the eminent engineer seems to have the matter pretty much his own way. There has been a remarkable resurrection in the political world in the person of Mr. George Hudson, who appears at Whitby to contest the representation with an actual railway magnate, Mr. Thompson. Mr. Hudson utters big words about a big estate in the neighbourhood of the borough, which the Court of Chancery is about to bestow on him; but, of course, does not mean even remotely to hint that such a circumstance will influence the election. There is noticeable a curious little circumstance in regard to the prospects of the representation of Oxfordshire. It is no secret, for it was well proclaimed, that Lord Alfred Churchill, who has sat almost continuously for Woodstock since 1845, has gradually glided from Toryism into Conservatism, and thence into such downright Liberalism, that the Duke of Marlborough's fraterno-political feelings have been so wounded that he has conscientiously forbidden his brother to show himself again in the family borough. Sympathy for Lord Alfred is taking a turn which is likely to put him up for the county of Oxford, in conjunction with Sir Henry Dashwood, in the Liberal interest, and there seems a fair chance of their ousting Mr. Henley and Colonel Fane, or at least one or the other of those gentlemen. If, as is said, Mr. Henley retires, why, so much the worse for Colonel Fane. The proprietor of Blenheim may have the negative satisfaction of knowing that he has transmuted his brother from the representative of a nominee borough into a freely-chosen county member. There are some members of the present House of Commons who endear themselves to Parliamentary habitués by their very failings and absurdities; and, as it would be sad in a certain sense for us to lose Mr. Peacocke, one is glad to see that he woos Maldon again, and, it would seem, with every prospect of success. What is there peculiar in the constituency of Southampton that candidates at all its elections are so numerous and of such various hues of politics? There seems to be a notion—not ill-founded—that, by bold, rapid strokes, anyone can get in for Southampton. A perfect legion of pretendants have spread their claims over the space on blank walls, and so on, where addresses may be displayed. First comes Mr. Moffatt, who might have been supposed to have had an easy seat at Honiton, but who is ambitious of a larger constituency than the two hundred and eighty-seven of that snug little borough; then, there is Mr. Digby Seymour, who won the seat he now holds, at the last election, by the sort of coup above alluded to, and who claims the suffrages of the electors principally on the score that he is unhappy; hard on him presses Mr. Mackay, a London shipowner, who has a sort of right to address the inhabitants of a large seaport. These be Liberals, who fight each for his own hand; while the Conservatives are typified by Mr. Alderman Rose, who won Southampton, at its last election, as is supposed, principally because he was Lord Mayor of London at the time, and who may therefore be supposed to have lost his chief qualification; and by Mr. Russell Gurney, the Recorder of London, who has suddenly been inspired by political ambition, after a tolerably long life of useful and respected legal and judicial labour. Pleasant times for agents and electors at Southampton, with five candidates bustling amongst them.



The electors of Bridgewater are to be honoured with the right of re-choosing Mr. Kinglake, and to renew the assurance that their borough is marked in the House by means of its representative, although it would seem that his chief occupation there is to sit dreamily, apparently cogitating chapters of personal description for the next volumes of the "History of the Crimean War," to be published in 1898, varied by an occasional spasmodic start into speech upon a recondite political plot somewhere in the remotest spot where it was likely to have been hatched. It will be quite proper in Hull to send Mr. Clay back to the house, for he has assumed a kind of position there something akin to that which was held by the late Mr. Ellice—as it were, an arbitrator-general, a giver of sound judicial advice in moments of difficulty or disorganisation; and it is even something distinguished to be represented by the best whist-player in England. Whether the refraining from bringing forward his Sunday Liquor Closing Bill this Session is a claim on the regard or the disapprobation of the electors of Hull by Mr. Somes we cannot say; but it seems that he is to have a struggle for his seat if he is not inclined to yield it.

So Dr. Lee is up again in Buckinghamshire. This gentleman has long laboured under a delusion that he can oust Mr. Disraeli from his seat, which would necessarily be a great triumph for that dilettante Radicalism of which the learned doctor seems to be the sole exponent; but, at any rate, he will serve to put the leader of the Opposition on his mettle at the hustings, as has been his wont; and that will be a service to the public, which will be seeking eagerly, and, it is likely, too often in vain, for exciting incidents during the elections. There is, however, a more serious Liberal opposition threatened in Bucks, in the persons of the Hon. R. Carrington, son of the Lord-Lieutenant of the county, and Mr. Lush, the eminent Queen's Counsel, which may give some trouble, if nothing more, to Mr. Dupré and Mr. Harvey, the present Conservative members and future aspirants, although it is not to be supposed but that Mr. Disraeli will go scatheless. The most singular electoral feature of the moment is that one hears nothing of any movement against Mr. Whalley at Peterborough. Can he be—is he—the exponent of the feelings even of that cathedral town? It would seem that, with characteristic courage, Mr. Horsman dares a contest at Stroud, and in his address to the constituency claims a return. Why not? It is something to have a distinguished man—however he may be distinguished, if only honourably—for one's representative; and electors may be glad of a member who is able to give them racy speeches to read, and may even enable some of them to hear them spoken. Mr. Horsman is just one of those members who cannot be spared without making a special vacuum in the House.

When speaking of Ministers as candidates, we were so remiss as to have omitted the Lord Advocate, which was a very serious omission; for, if half one hears be true, at the coming election the learned Lord will earn a very remarkable distinction amongst Government members, for he will be turned out of his seat for Edinburgh. They are very "kittle cattle" to deal with, those Edinburgh electors, for it is not to be forgotten that they sent Macaulay to the right about at a critical moment for the Administration to which he belonged, while, to vindicate the literary pretensions of the modern Athens, nevertheless, they returned a bookseller and a paper manufacturer. These are just the men to take delight in spinning a Lord Advocate who has been so indiscreet as to link his electoral fortunes with those of Mr. Black, who, if he succeed in keeping himself afloat, will assuredly contribute to sinking his esteemed colleague. Can it be true that the Edinburghians are mortally hurt with the Lord Advocate because, on a late occasion, the House refused to hear him at an interesting juncture of a great debate?

The medical element has always been very small in the House of Commons, and at present, while it is stupendously and perspiringly—aspiringly we mean—represented in the Liberal ranks by Dr. Brady, it has no type in those of the Conservatives. The advent of Sir Charles Locock into the political arena at the Isle of Wight promises to remedy this deficiency; and, looking to his address, we should say that at least all high Tories will ardently wish him a good deliverance!

Glancing for a moment over the water, it may be observed that Dublin loses, if she thinks she loses, an old Tory representative in Sir Edward Grogan; and there are rumours that the solidly-virtuous political solidity of Mr. Vance may be disturbed by a Liberal invasion of both seats. A contest in the University of Dublin is imminent; but it does not threaten any disturbance of Mr. Whiteside, who also is one of those peculiar representative men which even those who do not particularly admire him would desire to keep in the house. At any rate, he possesses the negative merit of being always able to rouse that assembly out of its most sleepy moods. It is Mr. Lefroy (generally called "young Lefroy," because, though born in the year 1800, he is so airy of step and gesture, and out of compliment to a prejudice of his father, who at the age of ninety-nine, conceives himself to be able to continue an active Chief Justice for some time longer) who is likely to be sent to the wall by Dr. Ball, if any one at all. Why should Mr. Bernal Osborne quit Liskeard and seek Dungarvan, when he will thus only fill a place left vacant by Mr. Maguire? Is it that as an Irish member Mr. Osborne may better operate against the Irish Church? If so, we think the notion a mistake.

TESTIMONIAL TO SIR JOHN LIDDELL, LATE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF THE NAVAL MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

THE LATE DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF THE NAVAL MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

A LARGE number of the medical gentlemen in the naval service have subscribed for a testimonial to Sir John Liddell, the late Director-General of that department. It was lately presented to him, at his private residence, by a deputation led by Inspector-General Dr. Wilson, with an address commending Sir John Liddell for his conduct while in office. The silver candelabrum (manufactured by Messrs. Hancock, of Bond-street) is in the form of an oak-tree, with six spreading branches, the extremity of each so formed as to hold a light, and the centre supports a richly-cut dish. The base is triangular, artistically representing rocks covered with moss. On each side is left a space for inscriptions, arms, orders, or other records; and surrounding the tree are three draped female dancers holding wreaths or garlands. The whole rests upon a plateau, the border of which corresponds with the base of the centrepiece. The inscription is as follows:—"To Sir John Liddell, Knight, Bachelor of the United Kingdom, Knight Commander of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath, Knight of St. Anne of Russia, Knight of the Redeemer of Greece, late Director-General of the Medical Department of the Navy, and an honorary Physician to the Queen. In token of esteem from medical officers of Her Majesty's Fleet, 1865." The four fruit-stands are of the tazza shape, with richly-chased border.

THE FARM.

FORTY-ONE new members joined the society at the last Royal Agricultural Council meeting, and Mr. George Clive, M.P., was elected a member of council in the room of Lord Leigh, resigned, which is a very proper recognition of the Herefordshire district. Mr. Charles Sturgeon has received permission to exhibit two merino rams in their wool at Plymouth; and the agreement of 1866 with the Bury town council was duly signed, sealed, and delivered.

The Essex Agricultural Society has held the largest meeting in its annals at Brentwood. Out of 522 entries, nine were of wool and twelve of donkeys. Mr. Boby's Young Hero, who won at Newcastle, took the All-England prize as the best cart sire; and Mainstone was placed before Ace of Clubs in the All-England blood sire prize. Mr. M'Intosh won firsts in the cow, heifer-calf, and bull-calf classes with his Lady Bates, Princess 2nd, and Grand Duke of Essex 2nd; and was also, we believe, the breeder of Mr. Bray's champion bull by Third Duke of Thorndale. In the open £10 competitions for longwool and shortwool rams, Mr. Hugh Aylmer and Sir T. B. Lennard were the respective winners, and Mr. Seaton had two firsts for white and black boars.

The Veterinarian contains an account of the poisoning of some cattle by eating flock paper coloured with Scheele's green, which had been thrown into the dungheap. It also records that the Edinburgh New Veterinary College has come to an end, and that during the eight years of its existence there was an annual loss on it of £1000. An attempt is being made to remove the staff, apparatus, professors, &c., to a new college, on a joint-stock principle, in London. The twenty-first annual meeting of the Royal College was held last month. Twenty-five deaths of members were recorded during the year; but one writes to say that he is "in good health, and hopes to remain so for a long time to come." Seventy-four pupils have obtained the diploma, and the balance of funds in hand is £435 18s. 2d.

The ram sales of the season begin to cast their shadows before, and the letting of 150 of the Biscathorpe Lincolns, which made "the price of the season" in '64, is announced for Aug. 31. Mr. Strafford sells thirty of Mr. H. J. Sheldon's shorthorns at Brailes House, near Shipston-on-Stour, on July 26; and Mr. Preece thirty rams and eighty ewes from the flock of "Shrops" that day. The Hegan sale at Willis's Rooms was rather a daring conception, but still it was a complete success. Except for a select and important sale, when the biddings may be said to be national and confined to a few parties, it would not answer at all. This, however, was quite the case here; and, after intending bidders had completed their conventional journey of observation, they were only too glad to make the second journey to London instead of Dawpool, and have the fight out there.

A pleasanter reunion of lovers of shorthorns has never been known; and the crowd of mere lookers-on, who care no more for a pure shorthorn than they do for a porcupine, and sometimes break, as in the case of the Sarsden sale, into the luncheon tent, without waiting for their turn or their tickets, was well got rid of. The average has astonished the outer world; but, if the females have any luck, the prices which their bull-calves will fetch for sale or hire will pay good interest for the money. Mr. Hegan only once exhibited at the Royal, and then he sent Grand Duchess 12th into the calf class at Worcester, so that they had no show prestige on their side. The sale can, happily, not be taken as any triumph of the White over the Red Rose of herdbook chivalry. As we showed last week, by giving her pedigree, Bridecake, the dam of Prince Imperial, is a pure Booth. It is on record that Mr. Richard Booth, in '61 or '62, refused 15,000 gs. for his herd, but whether it was for thirty-five animals, or for fifty-three or fifty-four, which would have included the bulls out at hire, many of which were of a great age, we are not quite sure. In spite of the weak but oracular assertion to the contrary, the Hegan sale has again proved that good shorthorns sell as high as ever. The sadly unnatural prices which have been given for second-raters by beginners, or people who wanted a little notoriety in some way or other, have found their level, and the common stuff which has been brought to the hammer by breeders who think that they can elevate anything into a tribe, has been appraised at its legitimate value. If we needed one greater proof than another how alive the real shorthorn men are to what are good tribes, we need only point to the sale of an almost unknown herd at Beck Bank, far away in the north. There was no fashionable auctioneer to bring customers with him, but the French and English breeders knew of the Barmpton Rose tribe, and they were on the spot, either in person or by proxy, fighting hard for the eight. And so it has been, and always will be, whenever there is anything sterling to be had. Ere long we shall be in the very thick of the shows, but the secretaries of those which are held in July and early in August are quaking, by reason of the elections.

At Fleurance, Gers, during a fête to celebrate the completion of the Agen railway works, a polar bear escaped from a menagerie. It made its way into a pastrycook's, and devoured all the cakes and ices.

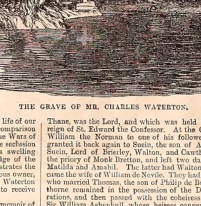
FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR. CHARLES WATERTON.

SATURDAY week was a day of memorial solemnity at Walton Park, for more than four centuries the ancestral seat of the Watertons, and latterly endeared to the present generation of lovers and students of animated nature as the abode of that most genial and enthusiastic of all field naturalists, Charles Waterton. We read of the fine old plane in it passed from the noble Saxon Thane by Swein and Ulf-Swein and the De Burghs to the Watertons, and history tells how the castellated hall was attacked by Cromwell and his troops, and how Oliver himself fired a musket ball at the heroic lady of the mansion; and thither tourists have long resorted also in many fondly preserved relics and memorials the romantic chronicles of Walton and its possessors; but there is nothing in all these fortunes and records that so moves the heart of the man "who can hang a thought upon every thorn," as the appropriation of Walton, as an "sylvan of animals," by its latest owner, Charles Waterton. The place must ever be especially dear to the lover of ornithology

> This birds,
> Securely there they build, and there
> Securely hatch their young.

Here could be seen last summer within 10 yards of each other a pair of hostrels rearing their young in a hollow tree, while above them was a nest of starlings; hard by, the green woodpecker was performing the same duty, and in a rude tower prepared to attract them, a pair of hen owls brought up their young, while the stock-doves chose an adjoining hole in the same building, into which the jackdaws had free access, and the gentlest reader how jungle in the same locality. People travelled far to see at Walton the habits and natural life of our native birds; the interest of which, however, to which may be added those recollections, communicated to the Times by a personal friend :—

> He was not only a lover of home life, reaching back and recalling the characteristics of the past, contrasted the present unmoved with a manner of life much more varied, but not so much enjoyed as his own. Rising always at three in the morning, he gave an hour, he said, "to the health and preservation of the body," and the rest of the day to occupations and pursuits of the mind. His conversation and manners had that charm which comes of ancestry, of ancient rides, and a gentleness softened by a spiritual and devout mind.
>
> In attachment to his religion he was as zealous as his great ancestor, Sir Thomas More, whose check, from the house at Chelsea, still tells the hours at Walton Hall.
>
> His unrelenting faith, and the consolations it afforded him, might, indeed, be envied by some of those who worship at other shrines.
>
> Mr. Waterton's love of the ancient and picturesque sprung from the lake carried him back to the "good old times," and furnished a subject for his last pen.
>
> To those who knew him well, there was something remarkably genial in the society of the good "old squire," and his manner of receiving and bidding adieu to friends will be long remembered by his friends.



The clock above mentioned was the house-clock of Sir Thomas More, and, with a portrait of More by Holbein, came into the Chancellor's family with Anne More, of Barnbro', paternal grandmother of the late Mr. Waterton, who was ninth in descent, in a direct line, from Sir Thomas.

On the 3rd inst. (the anniversary of Mr. Waterton's birth) his remains were laid in the same spot he loved so well. He had selected the spot, and left minute instructions for the funeral ceremony, which commenced at nine o'clock in the morning. The entrance hall had been converted into a temporary chapel, which was draped with black. Before the door, on a catafalque, rested the coffin of polished oak with brass inscription-plates. Mr. Waterton was an eminent member of the Roman Catholic Church, and therefore was interred at his burial. First, "the Office for the Dead" was said, and then requiem high mass, the Bishop of Beverley singing, Canon Walker assisting as Deacon, and Mr. Hunt as Sub-deacon. Mr. Waterton's tenantry and guests having arrived soon after ten o'clock, the coffin was borne in procession through the ancient portcullis gate, accompanied by mourners and priests, bearing tapers, and followed by Edmund Waterton, Esq., son of the deceased, and chief mourner. At the landing-stairs the body was placed on a floating bier. Thence, preceded by large, canal-like barges, rowed the Bishop and officiating priests, chanting the office, and followed by mourners and friends in attendant boats.—St. Wilfrid's, the burial-place of the deceased, is at the rear—the author of the "Wanderings" made his last voyage. The boats were all decked with black, and boats containing the friends of the family flanked the three central ones: the tenantry went by land. At the head of the lake, beneath the shade of two noble oaks, at the vista into which the chapel of St. Wilfrid invites the mourners and others took their place, the Bishop of Beverley at the head, the bier at the middle place, and the ecclesiastics accompanied with the canticle "Benedictus," during which a linnet in one of the oaks overhead joined its song to the chaunting of the clergy. And here, "buried in silence, broken only by the cry of the heron, and in a solitude almost as deep as that in which he had lived long since in the swamps of the Orenoco and the forests of the Amazon," rest the remains of Charles Waterton. Eighty-three long he age, than the number of aged persons had been invited to attend at the funeral, and had a delicate, each a loaf of bread and sixpence, distributed to them at the park gate.

A portrait and memoir of Mr. Waterton appeared in the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS some twenty years ago, and we now give a view of Walton Hall, with the funeral procession on the lake, and a separate illustration of his chosen burial-place. At the latter period he began to build a mortuary chapel at this spot.

A correspondent has supplied us with the following particulars :—

"The good and amiable old Lord of Walton, Charles Waterton, better known for his eccentricities than his ancestral descent, was the representative of one of our most ancient untitled aristocratic families, and what is more deserving of record in these days, in the mainline. His ancestor, Adelbert, the son of Norman of Northwyke, who became Lord Waterton in 1195, was of Saxon origin. The Watertons of Waterton became extinct in the male line in the fifteenth century, when their vast possessions passed away, through Cecilia, wife of Lord Welles and heiress of her brother, Sir Robert Waterton, to her four daughters and coheiresses, who married, respectively, Robert Lord Willoughby de Eresby, Sir Thomas Dymoke, Thomas Launcey, Esq., and Sir Thomas Delaune. Sir John Waterton was High Sheriff of Lincoln in 1401, and Master of the Horse to Henry V. as Agincourt. Sir Robert, his brother, whose wife was a Lady of the Garter, was Governor of Pontefract Castle while Richard II. was confined there, and has been Master of the Horse to Henry IV. Sir Hugh, another brother, held high offices of state. Charles Waterton, in whom the representation of his ancient house was vested, was descended from Richard, second son of William Waterton, Lord of Waterton, who died in 1135. In 1435, John Waterton married the heiress of Sir William Ashenhall, and became Lord of Walton and Ashenhall, in Cheshire, which Walton formed part of the honour of Pontefract, of which Ashenhall, a Saxon

THE GRAVE OF MR. CHARLES WATERTON.

Thane, was the Lord, and which was held by his son, Alexis, in the reign of Edward the Confessor. Walton was passed in war given by William the Norman to one of his followers, illbert de Lacy, who granted it as a grant of free socage to the sons of Alstric. Adam, the son of Suein, Lord of Beurley, Walton, and Cawthorne, was the founder of the priory of Monk Bretton, and his two daughters and coheiresses, Matilda and Amabil. The latter had Walton and Cawthorne, and became the wife of William de Neville. They had one daughter and heiress, who married Thomas, the son of Philip de Burgh. Walton and Cawthorne remained in the possession of the De Burghs for seven generations, and then passed with the marriage of Sir Alice de Burgh to Sir William Ashenhall, whose heiress conveyed it to John Waterton in 1435. The grandson of this twenty-seventh Lord of Walton, and sixteenth from John Waterton, who acquired that lordship, was Charles Waterton, who was born in the year of Anne's accession, and a license to crenellate in 1388. Without reference to the numerous distinguished alliances of his ancestry, it may be interesting to state that Mr. Waterton, through distinct sources, traced his descent several times over from Edward I., Queen of Germany; St. Margaret of Scotland, St. Humbert of Savoy, St. Louis of France, St. Elizabeth of Castile, and Wladislav the Great, called St. Wladimir of Russia, and, from the descent of Sir Thomas More, from Alfred the Great, he was ninth in descent from Sir Thomas More."

"A friend who belongs to the old religion took me, last week, into a church where the Virgin lately appeared in person to a Jewish gentleman, flushed down upon him from heaven in light and splendour celestial, and, of course, thoroughly converted him. My friend had me look at the picture, and, kneeling down beside me, I know, prayed with all his honest heart that the truth might shine down upon me too; but I saw no glimpse of heaven at all, I saw but a poor picture, in altar with blinking candles, a church lumg with tawdry strips of red and yellow calico, and a few old women praying before the altar. They much might have happened again if Heaven so willed it." I could not help thinking, as I looked at the picture and the altar, how much that his works are made to square with his faith, that he dines on a crust, lives as chastely as a hermit, and gives his all to the poor."

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Mr. Edwin Chadwick, C.B. gave his second lecture on the condition of the working classes on Thursday, the 8th inst., demonstrating from authentic evidence that a low physical and moral condition, and a short and unhappy existence is the lot of the poor in every place when it was carried on in healthy workshops and under ordinarily favourable circumstances. He asserted that, in consequence of the mode of life imposed upon the intellect which the greater portion of their work required, the workmen in factories who had received a little education and who obeyed the common monitary laws might lead far happier lives and attain to greater longevity than the agricultural labourers, who were in a state of comparative ignorance and misery. Mr. Chadwick also expatiated on the beneficial results effected by the introduction of machinery, which, by substituting mechanical power for human labour, was powerful in raising the physical and mental condition of the wage classes, since complex and expensive machinery necessarily required the employment of persons of a higher order of intelligence, and the protective powers even of the steam-engine itself are proved to be greatly preferable to those of the human muscle. Machinery, therefore, with this regard to the distress due to over-assiduities and other causes, Mr. Chadwick considered that even the most intolerable cases of suffering arose from the attention thus paid to the improvement of processes and the increased exertions of the workmen, and not from the mere use of machinery in manufactures.

Professor Frankland, at the Friday evening meeting on the 9th inst., gave an account of the chemical researches conducted in the laboratory of the Royal Institution by himself and his friend, Mr. F. H. Smith, "on certain new volatile organic radicles and new derivatives from organic compounds, and of others already existing in nature. After referring to late the difference in the properties of bodies, and the different views taken of the object had been the rigid investigation of the structure and relations of the elementary atoms which constitute the molecules of bodies, Professor Frankland illustrated the theory of "conjugation." All the elements, he said, may be classed under two great divisions—electro-positive and electro-negative, and the former class possess the property of tying to these the other. The combinations of the elements termed "compound radicals" are formed when one element, a member of new and old members of the acrylic acid series. Acrylic acid is formed by the oxydation of acrolein, the acid principle produced by the destructive distillation of fatty bodies. It exists in the offensive vapour given off by an imperfectly extinguished tallow candle. The properties of several of the newly discovered substances were shown, and the resemblance of their crystals exhibited on a screen by means of the electric light. The lecture was one of great interest, and especially, as it is of high interest in relation to the chemical processes carried on in the living body. Lord Wrottesley, vice-president, was in the chair.

Mr. Edwin Chadwick, C.B., gave his concluding lecture on the wage classes on Saturday, the 10th inst., on the effects of machinery, which the introduction of machinery had exercised upon their condition, he stated that higher wages had not, in general, raised their moral character, but had rather increased habits of vice and dissipation among them. The demand for skilled labour had, in fact, come before their supply, and he expressed his opinion that clerks and educated persons ought to be employed to instruct them for all of their provinces, and take up the much better paid employment in manufactures requiring attendance upon complex and delicate machinery. He then stated upon the evils resulting from the long hours during which children are employed, and upon the great benefits to be obtained from education and physical training (peculiarly directed) in connection with the half-school-time system, as means of imparting mental and physical aptitudes for productive labour. He also contended that the continuance of apprenticeship in a sixth system, now that the exhibition of labour so much prevailed, and referred to the prosperity which had resulted in America from the employment of the cotton by the few for Robert Peel. He very much commended the Factories Act, which had been passed in consequence of the evils brought to his investigations, and which, during the late cotton famine, with regard to agriculture, he stated that the tendency of improved processes was the introduction of machinery to a greater extent than in the case of a manufacture, and the labour would consequently rise in value and independence. In conclusion, he said that he entertained most favourable expectations with regard to the future of the working classes from the beneficial effects of judicious legislation, and from the increased attention and measures in regard to themselves and their dwellings, and to their moral and mental education.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

The Astronomer-Royal, Mr. G. B. Airy, F.R.S., in his annual report to the Board of Visitors of the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, gives a favourable account of the state of that establishment. Nothing is in the course of the In regard to the proposed for carrying a railway through Greenwich Park, Mr. Airy states that the observations made to the earthquake of the 15th of October, 1842, are sufficient to fear that at distances from a railway which would sufficiently destroy the comfort of residence, the vibrations caused by the attainments and the extraordinary would be totally affected. He also refers to the liberality of the Submarine Telegraph Company and the London Electric Telegraph Company in transmitting gratuitously the signals of the meteorological observations to M. Le Verrier, which appear daily in the bulletin issued from the Imperial Observatory at Paris.

M. Le Verrier forwarded to the Academy of Sciences at Paris a letter from Mr. A. Comstock, of Middletown, Connecticut, in which that gentleman states that, on the 8th of May last, at 9·24 a.m., while observing the sun, he perceived a small black spot apparently entering the solar disc at the western point across the sun's disc in the space of forty-eight minutes, reckoning from the time of its being fully projected. After the separation it appeared to resume the oval form and almost divide asunder. A more powerful glass did not make the object more luminous, but rendered it of a yellow colour and smaller.

We learn by a letter from M. Pissis, of Santiago (dated March 29), to M. Elie de Beaumont, read at a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences at Paris, that the volcano of Chillan is again in eruption, which is a rare occurrence among volcanoes, and that it has, at different times, been in the end of November last, on a new point, about 200 metres below the summit of the great cone, a little to the south of the last crater. The new cone about the end of January had already attained a height of more than fifty metres. Its form is that of a truncated cone, with a small crater, and reached the vast glacier which surrounds the massive volcano. The great cone, which had been in repose since the last eruption, in 1835, appeared to be shrunk; but M. Pissis was informed that the snow had not melted, but was overlaid by a mass of ashes, which had fallen during the eruption of January, and layers of scoriæ are frequently seen in the ravines around.

M. Georges Delvaux has presented to the Academy of Sciences at Paris some facts relating to the action of chromic acid on sulphur. When two parts of sulphur are mixed with one part acid chromate of potash, and then one part of water, a brown precipitate is formed in a few minutes. After the lapse of twenty-four hours, when the precipitate is dissolved in boiling water it is found to consist of sulphur, which dries oils and wax a light violet. When minerals of sulphuret of antimony are treated in the same manner, the sulphur is precipitated, and the antimony is found in the state of oxide, with a small proportion of that substance in arsenuits and carbonates of soda, without deoxidization, shows a similar result. Sulphuret of iron, in like solvible in benzine; and when dissolved in hydrochloric acid it assumes a green tint, the red reappearing when water is added.

M. Becquerel has recently laid before the Academy of Sciences at Paris the results of his researches on the influence on climate. He states the importance of preserving them, as being so highly conducive to national wealth and prosperity; and he considers that the forests are important as instance of sterility. In conclusion, he says that Great Britain, which has but 2 per cent of woods, has 12 per cent of land, which has only 1 per cent, are tributary to the foreigner for various kinds of wood for industrial purposes. Our should be taken that the forests which still fill up the ravines and into the same condition, in consequence of clearing more woodland than is required for agriculture. The mountains of Auvergne, which are clothed with green trees will be but a poor compensation for the annihilation of forests and woods containing sap.

We learn that M. Louvel's method of preserving corn, flour, &c., from the attacks of insects, by exposing large iron cylinders and then exhausting the air, has been tried with success on the Imperial farm. The newest, the most efficient of the kind, is subject to subsidence, and is completely decayed in the rarefied air, and during six months none have been found in the cylinders. Experiments are rendered available for the prolonged conservation of grain under most unfavourable circumstances. A new system of ventilation is proposed. The room is divided into two parts, communicating when were Marshal Vaillant, M.M. Bonnegrand, Scanzi, and Tiburzini.

Mr. G. F. Ansell (the inventor of the fire-damp indicator) has put on record, in the Chemical Gazette, he has observed, in the course of his experiments, that grass differs more closely through hollowtiber than through solid wood. In the latter case, when a piece of iron pyrites was introduced at the middle by a piece of biscuit-ware, recently annealed in, and the whole was then heated to redness in a crucible, the sulphuretted hydrogen was then allowed to pass through the indicated tube, the gas (and gas in a very marked degree) which had diffused through the indicatorer remained behind. But when the same was done in biscuit-ware containing a hollow fibre, although the other end of the cylinder was perfectly open to the atmosphere. The reason is obvious. The vapour of the liquid contained in the two forms of the gas may exist—one which will permeate indicatorber and not lateral-ware, and vice versa.

A new form of the thermo-electric battery, invented by M. Marcus, of Vienna, was exhibited by M. Pohl, the physical instrument maker in the Royal Institution, at the last evening meeting of that body, on the 9th inst. The battery consists of a number of ten pairs of small bars, formed of alloys, the ends being heated by ten small jets of gas. The effect produced was enormous, and the power of the instrument was so considerable, that it was enabled to lift 60 lb. Mr. Lodd stated that in this arrangement no corrosive liquids are employed. The bars, the heat being alternately converted into electricity. He is constructing a large battery on this principle to give the electric light, and hopes to be able to do so in a week.

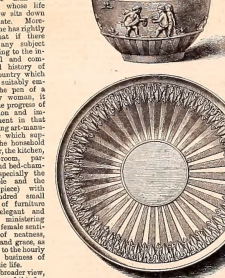
Mr. George R. Roberts, in his "Geological Notes on Scotland" in the Geological Journal, states that the Lammermuir Hills consist indeed of gravel and sand in the throat of the Great Glen, about half a mile from Inverness, and that the Moray Firth, the Bay of Nigg, and the Dingwall like a gulley turned upside down, from whence it derives its name. Mr. Roberts considers that the Moray Firth is the result of the denudation of water-borne drift from the hills which overlook the Caledonian Canal, and that the Bay of Nigg is the result of the denudation of the same material established layer of sand and gravel, and that the Dingwall bay, having that the mound was but the remaining portion of a huge sandbank, which must have at time have closed the entrance into the Strait of Moray.

The Prince Royal of Prussia has abolished one of the most vexatious feudal obligations which disgrace Prussian institutions. Hitherto Jewish subjects could not be admitted to any office under the landwehr. The Prince, who is now commanding the second corps d'armée, has now removed that disqualification.

The copy of a minute of the Committee of Council on Education relative to the schools for pauper children, which we published in our last number. The following is a list of the establishments:—At Liverpool borough gaol, with a salary of £200 a year, granted by the magistrates; at Kirkdale gaol, Lancaster, with £100 a year; at Manchester New Bailey, with £100 a year; at Preston House of Correction, with £100 a year; at Durham county gaol, with £70 a year; at Northallerton, North Riding, with £60 a year; at Wakefield, with £100 a year; Surrey House of Correction, Wandsworth, with £60 a year; Hunts county prison, Winchester, with £40 a year. At Worcester county prison, at Warwick, at Ripon, at Maidstone, at Reading, and at the county prisons of Sussex, a Roman Catholic teacher is permitted to visit the Roman Catholic children, but is not paid by his ministrations, but the priest receives no salary from the rates. The same thing is the case at Leicester gaol, but in the majority of English prisons no actual appointment has been made under the Act.

ILLUSTRATIONS FROM "THE LIFE OF WEDGWOOD."

MR. GLADSTONE, himself an amateur of choice artistic pottery and the commercial reformer who has opened the markets of Europe to the products of Staffordshire, when, in October, 1863, he laid the foundation-stone of the Wedgwood Institute at Burslem, announced that a biography of Josiah Wedgwood was about to be published. The beautiful volume we have just received from Messrs. Hurst and Blackett, and of which we are permitted to borrow some of the illustrations for our Impression of this week, is the first part of that work, so long desired and now so acceptable, mentioned by Mr. Gladstone. Its author, Miss Eliza Meteyard, was already known to a multitude of readers by her graceful and genial contributions to lighter literature, and by some thoughtful memorials of the historic associations and traditions of certain localities in "Ancient London." But the task, for many years before Mr. Gladstone took the opportunity of noticing her present task with such commendation, been quietly pursuing the studies and researches preliminary to writing this important book. It has been to her, indeed, almost the labour of a life; for while living, when a child, in that part of England, and hearing from her friends a good deal of Wedgwood, and seeing many favourite specimens of his ware, she was also led by her father, a zealous naturalist, to look for traces of the earlier practice of the potter's art in Britain, so far back as the Roman and even the Celtic age. It has been to her not less a labour of love; for she has, with a woman's predilection for the personal interest of the story, conceived something of an affectionate reverence, or hero-worship, for



CELTIC URNS.

ROMAN (CASTOR) WARE. OLD ENGLISH POSSET-POT. STAFFORDSHIRE TYG. NORMAN PITCHER.

Josiah Wedgwood, the honest and amiable man of genius whose life she now sits down to relate. Moreover, she has rightly felt that if there were any subject belonging to the industrial and commercial history of this country which might suitably employ the pen of a literary woman, it was the progress of invention and improvements in that charming art-manufacture which supplies the household interior, the kitchen, dining-room, parlour and bed-chamber (especially the tea-table and the mantelpiece) with a hundred small pieces of furniture both elegant and useful, ministering to the female sentiment of neatness, order, and grace, as well as to the hourly female business of domestic life.

The broader view, however, of this fine subject, regarding it as a part of the history of civilisation, the social and economical progress of the English people, has been explored by Miss Meteyard in a spirit of patient and careful inquiry, and sometimes of comprehensive reflection, which raises her work far above the class of the ordinary descriptions of trades and manufactures. We would refer more particularly to the first four chapters of the volume, which treat of the condition of the art of pottery as carried on by the former inhabitants of this country in successive ages, from the unbaked Celtic urn of hand-moulded clay, found buried in the funereal barrow where rest the bones of some wild chieftain of ancient Britain, or the earthenware made by Roman potters on the banks of the Medway or at Castor, in Northamptonshire, a specimen of which is also shown among our Engravings. Then come the Saxon and Norman potters, one of whose productions, a yellow pitcher decorated with heraldic green dragons in diamond-shaped compartments, figures among our Illustrations; and so on with a number of characteristic specimens, until we are fairly brought down to the Elizabethan England, where we feel more at home, finding in those goodly old-fashioned vessels, the posset-pot and the Staffordshire tygre, the familiar instruments of such a jovial carouse as Shakspeare might have glorified or shared. Miss Meteyard's account of the developments of artistic, mechanical, and chemical skill applied to various kinds of pottery in England, before the middle of the last century, when Josiah Wedgwood began his independent career, is admirably clear, and full of precise information, without any irrelevant discussions. It is perfectly accurate, so far as we are aware, and, although it does not rival the erudite special treatise of Mr. Chaffers, it is doubtless quite sufficient, with the help of the abundant illustrations in this volume, to present a tolerably complete and thorough review of the history of the English manufactures of earthenware. She leaves, for the most part, undescribed the works of the more ancient nations, and she only refers occasionally to those of modern Italy, France, Germany, and Holland, which were directly imitated by the potters of this country. We are particularly interested by her thoughtful observations upon those traces which her subject affords of the state of manners, morals, and ideas in the different ages to which the specimens noticed respectively belong. For instance, she remarks that the Romans used a number of earthen or vessels for pounding and mixing, as they preferred a well-cooked, softened, and varied food, in which broths, stews, and pulpy masses predominated; whereas the Gauls, and the Celtic nations in general, being ravenous and barbarous in their feasts, had little other domestic pottery than their vessels for holding liquids, or perhaps for seething and boiling large pieces of flesh. The Saxons, again, were accustomed to have their roast meat served upon the spit, from which each man, with his own knife,

WEDGWOOD CUP AND SAUCER (LILAC GROUND).

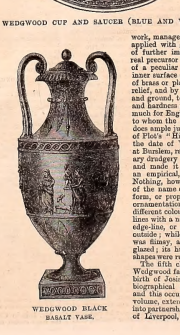
WEDGWOOD CUP AND SAUCER (BLUE AND WHITE).



potworks. The topography, the scenery, and the social life of this district, as it was some fifty or a hundred years before the time of Josiah Wedgwood, are presented to us by Miss Meteyard with a graphic power which enables us to realise most vividly that part of Old England and its people. We are next told how a couple of mysterious strangers from Germany (the brothers Elers) came to settle in a secluded house on the edge of Bradwell Wood, where they secretly practised certain valuable processes, known only to themselves, for the manufacture of the black ware called Egyptian, and of a good imitation of the red unglazed Japanese ware. A clever fellow named Samuel Astbury, by the stratagem of pretending to be an idiot, and so getting himself employed to turn the wheel in Elers' pot-

ANCIENT ETRUSCAN VASE.

WEDGWOOD VASE (WHITE AND BLUE).

WEDGWOOD BLACK BASALT VASE.

work, managed to learn their secrets, which he applied with great success, and made the basis of further improvements. This man was the real precursor of Wedgwood. By the invention of a peculiar wash of mixed pipeclay for the outer surface of his vessels, by the application of brass or plaster moulds for the ornaments in relief, and by the introduction of flint, calcined and ground, to impart more whiteness, fineness, and hardness to his wares, Samuel Astbury did much for English pottery. Other skilful men, to whom the present biography of Wedgwood does ample justice, had, between 1686, the date of Plot's "History of Staffordshire," and 1759, the date of Wedgwood's starting in business at Burslem, raised their craft from the elementary drudgery of the brickmaker and tilemaker, and made it a highly artificial, though still an empirical, art of a scientific manufacture. Nothing, however, had yet been done worthy of the name of decorative art either in colour, form, or proportion. Their best attempts at ornamentation were produced by a mixture of different coloured clays, by scratching rude outlines with a nail, by putting a thin or brown edge-line, or sticking a pasty medallion to the outside; while the body of the ware, after all, was flimsy, and its surface was indifferently glazed; its lines were far from pure, and its shapes were rude, often angular and ungraceful.

The fifth chapter, giving an account of the Wedgwood family, potters of Burslem, and the birth of Josiah in 1730, ushers in the strictly biographical part of Miss Meteyard's work; and this occupies nearly two thirds of the first volume, extending to the period of his entering into partnership with his friend Thomas Bentley, of Liverpool, and establishing his celebrated factory of Etruria on the banks of the new Trent and Mersey Canal. This was in 1767, when Josiah Wedgwood had already become a man of considerable note and influence in the midland counties, not only by the commercial success and fame of his own manufactures, but also by his enlightened and public-spirited activity on behalf of many useful objects. As an episode of the social, the literary, or the political history of England, we may read with much interest either the account of the foundation of the Warrington Academy, with which the names of Dr. Aikin, Mrs. Barbauld, Dr. Priestley, and Dr. Taylor, of Norwich, are connected; or the frequent and intimate correspondence of Wedgwood with Erasmus Darwin, the poetical philosopher of Lichfield; or his negotiations with the great Duke of Bridgewater, Earl Gower, and other territorial magnates, followed by his efforts to obtain Parliamentary sanction for the extended scheme of inland navigation, which was ultimately carried out by Wedgwood's friend Brindley, to the immense benefit of the whole country, and most particularly of the Staffordshire trade. We are led throughout these transactions to look with increased respect upon the character of Miss Meteyard's hero, or rather of both her heroes; for the noble qualities of mind which seem to have distinguished Thomas Bentley, amidst the mercantile community of Liverpool—his candid and generous liberality of thought, his finely cultivated taste, and the manliness, as well as the urbanity of his demeanour—are the theme of her most enthusiastic praise. We may anticipate that her second volume, relating the closer connection between two such men, will prove even more interesting than the first. The portrait medallion of Thomas Bentley shows him to have been a man of singularly fine countenance and presence. These medallions, executed by Wedgwood on small oval tablets of porcelain, represent many of the distinguished persons of the day, and form the subjects of some of the most attractive illustrations in the volume.

"THE CAT'S PORTRAIT," BY THEOPHILE DUVERGER, IN THE EXHIBITION OF FRENCH AND FLEMISH ARTISTS.—SEE PAGE 593.

"THE SISTERS," BY C. BAXTER, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.—SEE PAGE 581.

Without anticipating the remainder of this history of the Staffordshire Etruria, we have much pleasure in setting before our readers a few of the engravings prepared by Mr. Pearson for the illustration of some of Wedgwood's most beautiful designs in pottery and porcelain. They may be properly contrasted with the specimens of early British manufacture on the same page. As an artist, Josiah Wedgwood possessed a very high degree of native genius; but the attachment to classical models which pervades most of his work was derived from his study of the masterpieces of Etruscan, Grecian, and Roman art, with which, having had small advantages of scholarship or travel in his youth, he was first made acquainted by the work of Count de Caylus upon that subject. The fashions of the age, it must be remembered, were mainly directed to the reproduction of antique forms, and would not have approved the Gothic or Mediæval styles of artistic decoration which find favour in our own day. The mind of Wedgwood was so broad and free from undue bias or prejudice, that he was capable of appreciating truth and beauty under the most various modifications. His achievements in the scientific, mechanical, and chemical parts of his manufacture, with his sagacity in adapting it to the popular wants of English and foreign markets, complete the merits of one of those great "captains of industry" who have created this prosperous England in which we live. It was high time, as Mr. Gladstone said, that the biography of the famous potter should be added to those of Watt and Stephenson and other worthies of equal rank. The family of Wedgwood, and likewise the possessor of most of his papers, Mr. Joseph Mayer, of Liverpool, have wisely provided for a becoming memorial of his person, in lending all their stores of information to the author of this handsome and instructive book.

FREDERICK THE GREAT.*

Hitherto Mr. Carlyle has been considered rather a giant-essayist than a historian, but now he shoulders, pretty roughly too, the greatest of historians. He has established his claim to a niche in the place devoted to those who have made history their study; and, though they by whose side he is placed may be supposed to shrug their shoulders at the shagginess, and ruggedness, and uncouth speech of their fellow, they will gaze in admiration at his higher stature, his nobler mien, and his more picturesque costume, at the same time that they will grin, in spite of their notions of propriety, at his grim humour and undignified grotesqueness. For, although it cannot be said that Mr. Carlyle "minces," he "nicknames God's creatures" in a most pungent and ludicrous manner; and, in fact, he writes as no one but Mr. Carlyle can write. There was a gentleman (but then he was a very great classical scholar) who professed to have discovered a vein of irony running throughout the whole of the noble work of Thucydides. This singular discovery has been hidden from the wise and prudent; but even they, as well as babes, cannot fail to see the humour which runs through nearly every page of Mr. Carlyle's history. It is of the sardonic kind, undoubtedly; but, such as it is, it is continually apparent, whether he is cursing Dryasdust, or scoffing at the Editorial Mind, or ridiculing Sham, or describing some questionable behaviour of Friedrich, or even telling a grim story of Death. In fact, his history of Frederick the Great is unique. Never, perhaps, before, was there seen a work so conscientiously elaborate in so far as the matter is concerned and so apparently loose in point of style. There is no lack of grandeur; but, on the other hand, there is good store of slang; there is a succession of contrasts; bursts of eloquence are followed closely by expressions which remind one of the street-boy; lucidity and obscurity are in alternate patches; and a love of the Real is professed in language which is quaintly suggestive of Sham. The frequent use of capital letters, too, and of unprotected adjectives, puts one unpleasantly in mind of Sir Bulwer Lytton's more metaphysical novels. Yet Mr. Carlyle's vigour, manliness, and originality extort admiration even from him who protests against affectation and against affronts to the dignity of Clio. But,

What need to speak of Launcelot in his might?

Mr. Carlyle's prowess with the sledge-hammer is as well known as his success in the art of nicknaming or battle-painting.

It seems now a long time—but certainly not longer than was required for the labour undertaken—since we were invited by Mr. Carlyle to ante-date our births considerably, and to take a lounge at a certain hour of some day during the latter half (but not later than August, 1786) of the eighteenth century, upon the terraces of Sans-Souci. The chances were, it was said, that we should see riding along there a "lean, little old man," about whom is an air of Spartan simplicity. He is a King, but there is no sign of his rank, unless the "Agamemnon's sceptre of wood" he carries, and with which he taps his horse between the ears, may be considered a mark of royalty. His coat is blue, with red facings, and snuffy withal; on his head is a military cocked hat, either old, or, if new, beaten into softness; his apparel generally is dingy; he wears overknee military boots, brushed ("and, I hope," says Mr. Carlyle, "kept soft with an underhand suspicion of oil"), but unvarnished ("Day and Martin with their soot-pots forbidden to approach"). You would not say he was of godlike physiognomy, but you could not help admiring his magnificent, azure-grey eyes; you might think you discerned in his manner a quiet stoicism, and such is the pose of his head that you would say, using Carlylese, he looked like "a snuffy old lion on the watch." This man did remarkable things, not to be forgotten by mankind; and the questions naturally arise, "Who was he, then? whence? how? and what did he achieve and suffer in the world?" Mr. Carlyle undertook, at the time to which we have alluded, to give the answer, and he has performed his voluntary task in a fashion so conscientious, on a scale so magnificent, and in a style grotesque indeed, but so picturesque and so powerful, that his great work is likely to discourage the boldest and most envious rivals, and to last, alone in its glory, to all time.

In the fifth and sixth volumes, which conclude the history, Mr. Carlyle has to tell of the direst straits to which Friedrich was reduced; of the calm front he presented to danger and adversity; of the likelihood that he would be, but the stern determination that he would not be, overwhelmed; of the news, bright with gleams of prospective peace, which came from St. Petersburg when "Death trussed up a certain Catin of the Hyperborean countries;" of the tragic fate which befel Czar Peter III.; of the seven campaigns of the Seven Years' War, which gradually ended with the Peace of Hubertsburg; of the success which at last attended "the twelve Hercules labours" of the hero; and of the "repairing of a ruined Prussia," which occupied the afternoon and evening of his life. Of the dawn, and forenoon, and meridian of that life Mr. Carlyle had already given a picture which few of those who studied it will easily forget. Karl Friedrich (for so he was christened, though the former name fell into disuse, and he was spoken of in after life by a loving people chiefly as "Vater Fritz") was born in the palace of Berlin about noon on Jan. 24, 1712. He was the son of Friedrich Wilhelm, Crown Prince, and afterwards second King of Prussia, and of Sophie Dorothee of Hanover; and he was grandson of that Friedrich in whose time the long negotiations of the Hohenzollerns fructified, and who obtained the step from electorate to kingship and the right to wear (to use Mr. Carlyle's expression) "a Royal crown on the top of his periwig." The future hero of Rossbach and Leuthen, and many another fight, is described as having been "one of the prettiest, vividest, little boys," and the charming picture in which he is represented as beating, to the huge delight of his drill-sergeant-like father, a miniature drum, whilst his good sister Wilhelmina and a sympathetic blackamoor smile approvingly upon him, fully bears out the description. The little boy did not inherit his father's love of pipeclay, and did not relish the Spartan drill, and frugal fare, and Rhadamanthine severity to which he was subjected; but displayed, to the disgust of his sire, an inclination for "French fopperies, flutings, and cockatoo fashions of hair." The little boy was delivered over to be educated first of all "by nurses and governesses, mostly of French breed," who are said to have been "tight-laced and high-frizzled in mind and body," and afterwards by tutors, brought by Friedrich Wilhelm from the siege of Stralsund, whom Mr. Carlyle calls "the Finck-Kalkstein functionaries." The little boy's religion, moreover, is to be imbibed from "Noltenius and Company." So he learns French and German, but not so far as to be able to spell either correctly, and a contempt for "theological drill-sergeants." At the age of fourteen he is put into the Potsdam Guards, and serves a bitterly hard apprenticeship ere he can gain the satisfaction of that stern father who did not scruple to chastise him publicly. Such is a brief outline of the early life of him whom Mr. Carlyle defines as "the Last of the Kings," against whom were to rise up "Principalities and Powers, Imperial, Royal, Czarish, Papal," and who "led them a dance."

There is no mistaking the loving spirit in which Mr. Carlyle set about his, we hope not thankless, task of setting people right in their ideas of Friedrich II.; and what gratification can arise from a consciousness of success must assuredly be his. It was difficult, no doubt, to "extricate" Friedrich "from a Century without a history;" but the greater the difficulty, the greater the honour to him who succeeds. It is undoubtedly true that the public character of Friedrich II. suffered in the estimation of Englishmen in consequence of, first, the hostility and, then, the friendship exhibited towards him by our George II.; so that the English estimate of him, at first entirely adverse, afterwards partially favourable, resulted in a compromise, whereby he was regarded with much the same feelings as the multitude displays towards a favourite highwayman, and took to the general eye the form of a Royal Dick Turpin. Nor did Friedrich's private character suffer less injustice; for the common idea of that was based upon a libel by Voltaire. Mr. Carlyle has come nobly to the rescue, and, if he has not washed Friedrich quite white, he has certainly done the man who was "not a Liar and a Charlatan, as his Century was," ample justice. He has drawn the portrait of a real, indomitable, in many respects noble, man; he has shown that, as there were brave men before Agamemnon, so there was a great General before Napoleon; that simplicity is at least not less grand than rhodomontade, and that Rossbach will raise a spirit as soon as Austerlitz.

The first four volumes carry us up to the first campaign of the Seven Years' War, and to the story how "The Saxons get out of Pirna on dismal terms," how, indeed, Friedrich compels his Saxon prisoners to enter his army. In the fifth and sixth volumes, with which we are here principally concerned, we read how the Seven Years' War rose to a height—a height almost beyond Friedrich's powers to surmount—subsided, and gradually ended. Herein are described the Battle of Prague, which sounded at the time throughout the world, and since through drawing-room or school-room as our mothers or our sisters plied the pedals; the Battle of Rossbach, when seven battalions and thirty-eight squadrons dispersed a mighty host, "the only stage direction, Exeunt omnes;" the Battle of Leuthen, "the most complete of Friedrich's victories;" the battles of Zorndorf, Hochkirch, Liegnitz, and several besides, until we arrive at the Siege of Schweidnitz, and the Peace of Hubertsburg. In the Battle of Prague fell the brave old Feldmarschall Schwerin. How he got his death shall be told in Mr. Carlyle's own spirited style:—"Seizes the colours, fiery old man. 'Heran, meine Kinder!' (This way, my sons!) and rides ahead, along the straight dam again; his 'sons' all turning, and with hot repentance following. 'On my children, Heran!' Five bits of grape-shot, deadly each of them, at once hit the old man; dead he sinks there on his flag, and will never fight more."

After the Peace of Hubertsburg we read:—"There remain to Friedrich Twenty-three Years more of Life, which to Prussian History are as full of importance as ever, but do not essentially concern European History, Europe having gone the road we now see it in. On the grand World-Theatre, the curtain has fallen for a New Act; Friedrich's part, like everybody's for the present, is played out. In fact, there is, during the rest of his Reign, nothing of World-History to be dwelt on anywhere. America, it has been decided, shall be English; Prussia be a Nation. The French, as finis of their attempt to cut Germany in Four, find themselves sunk into torpor, abeyance, and dry-rot—fermenting towards they know not what. Towards Spontaneous Combustion, in the year 1789, and for long years onwards! There, readers, there is the next milestone for you, in the History of Mankind! That universal Burning-up, as in Hell-fire, of Human Shams." That is to say, the next historical fact of importance to Europe in general was what Mr. Carlyle calls elsewhere the "grand universal Suicide of a despicable Century," but what common folk, with the ordinary depression or compression of language, call simply the French Revolution. At this point Mr. Carlyle touches upon the subject of Anarchies, and indulges in a sort of prophecy which the late course of events in America does not seem just now to justify. "In 1775, again, he says, "there began, over seas, another Anarchy much more considerable,—little dreaming that it could be called an Anarchy; on the contrary, calling itself Liberty, Rights of Man, and singing boundless Io-Pæans to itself, as is common in such cases; an Anarchy which has been challenging the Universe to show the like, ever since. And which has, at last, flamed up as an independent Phenomenon, unexampled in the hideously suicidal way; and does not need much to get burnt out, that matters may begin anew on truer conditions." Probably the American Republic may, after purification, and not suicide, begin anew; but, to all appearances, its new life will be commenced on the old conditions broadened, so that "Liberty, Rights of Man," will be more significant terms than before, so that a citizen of the Great Republic may have a black skin and not be ashamed. However, to return to Friedrich. The only important scene in which he appears upon "the World-Theatre," henceforth, is when he plays a part in the piece known to this day as "The Partition of Poland." He was, according to Mr. Carlyle, only a sort of "walking gentleman," who "put in his pocket, without criticism, what Providence sent." Mr. Carlyle's defence of his favourite is this:—"Considerable obloquy still rests on Friedrich, in many liberal circles, for the partition of Poland. Two things, however, seem by this time tolerably clear, though not yet known in liberal circles: first, that the partition of Poland was an event inevitable in Polish history; an operation of Almighty Providence and of the Eternal Laws of Nature, as well as of the poor earthly Sovereigns concerned then; and, secondly, that Friedrich had nothing special to do with it, and, in the way of originating or causing it, nothing whatever." The only comment one feels inclined to make upon this statement is, briefly, that, "in liberal circles" it is considered right that obloquy should rest upon those who, when a ship has been wrecked by "an operation of Almighty Providence," attempt to save neither splitting ship nor drowning men, but confine their attention to gathering in what spoil they can.

For the most part, Friedrich was engaged during the last twenty-three years of his life in "repairing a ruined Prussia;" in obliterating the scars left by cruel war; in consolidating the kingdom of which his grandfather was the first, and he himself ran great risk of being the last, to wear the crown; in establishing—his last pet feat—the now obsolete Fürstenbund; in comforting his people, and in earning for himself the affectionate title of "Vater Fritz." His "Old Age," says Mr. Carlyle, "is not unamiable; on the contrary, I think it would have made a pretty Picture, had there been a Limner to take it with the least felicity or Physiognomic coherency—as there was not. His Letters and all the symptoms we have denote a sound-hearted, brave old man, continually subduing to himself many ugly troubles, and, like the stars, always steady at his work." His amiability is well shown in the following anecdote:—"Saturday, Dec. 25, 1784.—Ziethen, in spite of the burden of eighty-six years, went to the Palace, at the end of the Parade, to pay his Sovereign this last tribute of respect and to have the pleasure of seeing him after six months' absence. The Parole was given out, the orders imparted to the Generals, and the King had turned towards the Princes of the Blood, when he perceived Ziethen on the other side of the Hall, between his Son and his two Aides-de-Camp. Surprised in a very agreeable manner at this unexpected sight, he broke out into an exclamation of joy, and, directly making up to him, 'What, my good old Ziethen! are you there?' said his Majesty; 'How sorry am I that you have had the trouble of walking up the staircase! I should have called upon you myself. How have you been of late?' 'Sire,' answered Ziethen, 'my health is not amiss, my appetite is good; but my strength! my strength!' 'This account,' replied the King, 'makes me happy by halves only; but you must be tired; I shall have a chair for you.' (Thing unexampled in the annals of Royalty!) A chair, on order to Ziethen's Aides-de-Camp, was quickly brought. Ziethen, however, declared that he was not at all fatigued: the King maintained that he was. 'Sit down, good Father' (Mein lieber alter Papa Ziethen, setze Er sich doch), continued his Majesty; 'I will have it so. Otherwise I must instantly leave the room; for I cannot allow you to be incommoded under my own roof.' The old General obeyed, and Friedrich the Great remained standing before him, in the midst of a brilliant circle that had thronged round them." This was that Ziethen to whom and to whose Hussars Friedrich, at a certain review, after saying various hard things, at length said this, hardest of all:—"Out of my sight with you.'" Whereupon Ziethen, himself of a fiery spirit, "turns to his Hussars, 'Right about, Rechts um; march!' and on the instant did as bidden." He was thought to be ruined; but Friedrich no doubt sympathised with his indignant old comrade, and "Ziethen never heard of the thing more." Other anecdotes there are—about Voltaire, and the Pompadour, and a hundred besides; but quotation is prohibited by inexorable space. The hungry soul must have recourse to Mr. Carlyle's own work, which is a marvel of completeness to the very table of contents, in addition to portraits and maps and index. No inquirer will have to heap upon Smelfungus the curses Smelfungus has heaped upon Dryasdust. Mr. Carlyle's minute accuracy may be traced even in the subscriptions to the portraits: the "König in Preussen" of the fifth volume and the "König von Preussen" of the sixth are undoubtedly meant to be significant.

And now let us observe the end of Friedrich. "His death seems very stern and lonely." It is twenty minutes past two on Thursday morning, Aug. 17, 1786; no one but Strützki is in Friedrich's room. Friedrich's right arm is round Strützki's neck, Strützki's left arm round Friedrich's back. Strützki, "faithful creature," has sat in this posture above two hours; and now Friedrich's breathing wavers, pauses, ceases. The "Last of the Kings" has fought out his "Life-battle," after seventy-four years, six months, and twenty-four days of sore travail. What creed he had was of little account; "he had to do his duty without fee or reward;" so he died hoping nothing, believing nothing, and fearing nothing.

* "History of Friedrich II. of Prussia, called 'Frederick the Great.'" By Thomas Carlyle. (Chapman and Hall.)

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Yachting Round the West of England. By the Rev. A. G. L'Estrange, B.A. (Hurst and Blackett.) This is a book of which the exterior is handsome and the interior ingeniously arranged, so as to irritate the envious to frenzy. The time of year suggests an early trip: now, of all trips the most delightful, one would think, is a yachting trip, and the author has described his own with so genial a spirit, in so pleasant a style, and after so taking a fashion, that all, except the most charitable, who cannot follow his example will consider that he published his volume simply to increase the tortures of less fortunate aspirants. We should all like to live for two or three months the amphibious life of the yatchsman; to spend a few days at sea, at one time dancing merrily before the wind, at another lying dreamily becalmed; and then to pass a few days on shore amidst flora and fauna, amongst ruins of castles and ruins of temples; and, with Tennyson in our thoughts but not in our hands (for the book-carrying tourist is a nuisance) to wander through places haunted by the memory of the great Pendragon, to test our innocence or try our fortunes in the Madron Well, and to float over the waters which cover what was once fair Lyonesse. But we cannot all do what we should like; and the next best thing to going in the flesh to the places to which we have alluded is for those of us who can control our envy to go thither in the spirit by the aid of Mr. L'Estrange's pages. He is a cheery guide, and makes few complaints, except of Murray's handbook, with respect to which he says (p. 70)—"I think it due to ourselves to state here that Mr. Murray owes us some compensation for the trouble he gave us, owing to the statement in his "Handbook," that there is a cascade here, 150 ft. high. After much searching and inquiring, we came to the conclusion that no such magnificent object existed, and agreed to regard the statement as a typographical error;" and (p. 85) "we could not, however, find any of the tumble-down houses mentioned by Murray, in which we had hoped to gratify our predilections for the antique and picturesque." It may be said, however, on the one hand, that Murray's handbooks are believed to be constantly undergoing revision; and, on the other, that all investigators are not equally happy in their investigations.

Eastern England, from the Thames to the Humber. By Walter White. (Chapman and Hall.) Let no man sneer at "silly" Suffolk; and let him who feels inclined to sneer go down to Mark-lane and ask the price of Suffolk wheat. Our eastern counties may not vie with others in scenery, in hill and dale, in mountain and lake; but if fields standing thick with corn, if comfortable farmhouses, if good shooting, if good horseflesh, good farming, and good living count for anything, they are all to be found in Suffolk and Norfolk. And those who have sailed, or steamed, or rowed down the Orwell, who have bathed on the delightful sands at Felixstow, or have come suddenly upon the Norfolk broads, will allow that Suffold and Norfolk have something to boast besides their agricultural prosperity. Nor let the oyster-lover forget that Colchester is in Essex. The eastern counties, then, are not unworthy of the tourist's notice, especially when we remember that they contain the birth-places of Newton, Crabbe, and Tennyson (for Eastern England is not confined to the three counties already mentioned), and spots memorable for other reasons. Mr. White, too, is an excellent guide, and we can imagine no better preparation for a tour in Eastern England than a course through his two volumes. He is full of information and anecdote, and omits to describe nothing, we should imagine, which is likely to be interesting. Nevertheless, if prejudiced persons are determined to learn nothing about our eastern counties, we can only say, in the Suffolk dialect, they don't "want" to read Mr. White's book. They will, however, miss such amusing anecdotes as the following:—"Don't meddle with the plants," said a Norfolk farmer to the little son of a lady, whom he met in a mangel-wurzel field; "I wants 'em to grow as thick as yer mawther's yed;" and one day, after hearing the same lady play a piece of music on the piano, he broke out with "Yes, Mum; I dessay it's very fine; but I'd rather hear my bullocks make a nize." For the Norfolk farmer has the character of being a man who speaks his mind, and is at no pains to be complimentary. Nor is his Suffolk brother more given to refinement of language, if a young specimen of the race be truly reported to have commenced the conversation with his beloved, to whom he had come to propose, by remarking, as he looked through the window into the farmyard, "Yeow 've got a fine muck heap."

Characters and Criticisms. By James Hannay. (Edinburgh: W. P. Nimmo.) The title will describe the sort of book to be looked for. A series of critiques and biographical sketches by one of our more prominent essayists and critics has been collected together from various sources and bound up in sightly form. It makes a very nice book, both for ornamental and for reading purposes. The writer uses his pen with great skill; he has force, versatility, picturesqueness, epigrammatic point, and humour at his command; and he employs his gifts freely.

Report on Cheap Wine. By Dr. Druitt. (Henry Renshaw.) A difficult case was tried before the late Justice Maule, and the jury were locked up until one of them was dreadfully athirst. Application was made to his Lordship for permission to give the thirsty juryman some water. His Lordship, according to report, said, "Well, the law is that he must have neither meat nor drink; now I don't think water is meat, and I'm quite certain it isn't drink, so you may let him have some." The same ideas seem to prevail amongst certain worthy people with respect to cheap—that is to say, light—French and other wines. But Dr. Druitt's little work, which is well worth the perusal of all but those who have a great deal of open air and hard exercise (and they may eat and drink almost anything), will correct such notions. There are light, cheap wines which may, according to Dr. Druitt, prevent biliousness, a course of "Banting," valetudinarianism, and all manner of disagreeables. The difficulty, of course, is to get your cheap wine good.

Early English Organ Builders. By Edward F. Rimbault, LL.D. (Alfred Whittingham.) We have been told that the man "that hath not music in his soul" is not to be trusted, and there is no instrument which discourses such grand music as the organ: we should, therefore, be inclined to give but little credit to the man whose soul is not moved by reminiscences of those noble instruments from which—in cathedral, in chapel, in the Crystal Palace, and even in the Agricultural Hall—are poured forth volumes of glorious sound. The history of that instrument, of its inventor and of its improvers deserved to be written, and Mr. Rimbault has with much learning and reseach done in this little book what he could for the "early English organ builders and their works from the fifteenth century to the period of the Great Rebellion," and he has prefaced that with which he was more immediately concerned with some interesting information relative to the origin of the organ. We commend his work heartily to the notice of organists and organ lovers. It is to be regretted that he should have despised the relative pronoun as he does when he writes in his dedication "one whom I felt certain would deem," &c. We imagined that sort of grammatical error was confined to novel-writers of the feminine gender.

Tangles and Tales. By Edward Charles Mogridge. (Saunders, Otley, and Co.) It is a little startling to find a young, unmarried lady of beauty, position, and virtue staying alone at an hotel on the borders of Wales, breakfasting alone in the coffee-room, and displaying so sympathetic a nature that she suffers herself to be driven (without so much as a "buttons" for attendant) for miles, even un ti moonlight has succeeded daylight, in a pony carriage to her friends' house by an utter stranger, not old and not of her own sex, however fascinating he may be, whom she meets in the coffee-room aforesaid. But whoever can get comfortably over this first difficulty will find in "Tangles and Tales" a volumeful of by no means uninteresting adventures and of by no means unpleasant reading.

Only a Clod. By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret." (John Maxwell and Co.) It will be taken for granted—and it may be—that this three-volume novel is very clever, and that it abounds with good description and glib writing. The effort, however, to prolong to the extent of three volumes a story based upon so slight a plot must have been great. To this effort we attribute the dreary, stale, unprofitable talk about the Haymarket, drunken men, and tawdry women. The characters may, perhaps, be true to life; but it is the life which one would pray to be delivered from. The dramatis personæ, quà they are supposed to be ladies and gentlemen, behave in a manner which one cannot reconcile to one's notions of characteristic behaviour; and, quà they are men and women, they are in nearly every instance either hateful or contemptible. Even "the clod" himself—who, by-the-way, turns out to be a scion of one of Cornwall's best families—has not the true nobility in him or he would never, with all his boorish ignorance, have floundered so helplessly between Julia and Maude. It was not lack of worldly training, but of native gentlemanliness and delicacy, which thrust him into Julia's toils; and how the author could have the heart to give us no better specimens of English ladies than Maude and Julia passes our comprehension. The author has been too severely bitten by the melodramatic gadfly to have quite recovered, and we therefore were not surprised to read (p. 256, vol. iii.) the following polite speech from the lips of a "refusee":—"I have sometimes wondered at the madmen who murder the women they have loved; but God help you, Maude Tredethlyn, if I had a loaded pistol in my pocket to-day!" The gentleman speaks of the probability of his having loaded firearms about him as if it were as great as the likelihood of his having "a copper" in his pocket; and there is something exquisitely bathetic (not pathetic, by any means), and even comic, in the fact that after so tragic a scene "he laid himself down amongst the rubbish of a deserted brick-field, and cried like a child" (p. 257). From the choice of that particular kind of field, one was almost prepared to read that he "cried like bricks."

The Secrets of Angling. By A. S. Moffat. (Edinburgh: Adam and Charles Black.) Somebody, in the words of a sentimental German poet, remarks,

Ich habe genossen die Erdenfreude,
Ich habe gelebt und geliebt;

such is the result of beer-drinking, tobacco smoking, and "evolving" things "out of the depths of" your own "consciousness." But he whose good luck it has been to drink the Tweed or the Tyne holds different views about "the earthly joy." He knows that whosoever has not once in his life, on the banks of streams which the kingly salmon haunts, thrown his fly, seen a dash, felt a tug, run a race with a monster plunging down a sombre pool, and, after fifty minutes' kilful playing and patient waiting, laid his silver-sided prey on the shingly ground, is not competent to speak of "the earthly joy." The angler, in fact, who has killed his salmon, alone has had a taste of "the earthly joy." Next to the silver salmon is, in point of interest, the speckled trout; and about the latter and the former, and all manner of fishing and angling apparatus, the reader of Mr. Moffat's book will receive much instructive, amusing, and exciting information.

Sir Felix Foy, Bart. By Dutton Cook. (Sampson Low, Son and Marston.) The author once more offers to the public three volumes of smooth, agreeable, piquant reading. He describes, in his usual happy manner, all kinds of characters, of which a banker-baronet and his reverend, unsophisticated, kindly brother; a prepossessing young gentleman of great susceptibility and no fortune and his fussy but large-hearted aunt; a beautiful, wealthy, self-deluded, or hypocritical widow; an excellent woman of the lodging-house-keeper order; and a pretty, clever, artful, calculating, and yet not heartless, minx of illegitimate birth are the chief; and several of them are charming. The plot is slight, and the incidents are not remarkable, unless such an adjective may be considered applicable to the suddenness with which love is made, the circumstances under which marriage is offered, accepted, or refused, and, when it is refused, the violent language used by the rejected to the rejectress. Some persons may think, also, that there is more than enough of detail; but they will acknowledge when they arrive at the end that, at least, the minuteness with which the personal appearance of the banker-baronet is portrayed is full of meaning, and delicately foreshadows the catastrophe.

Mr. Shirley Brooks' publishers have issued his admirable novel, the "Silver Cord," in a new and "popular" edition.

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

Two works on the subject of music, which have just appeared, are valuable contributions to the literature of that art. One is "A Course of Lectures on the Third or Transition Period of Musical History, delivered at the Royal Institution of Great Britain, by John Hullah" (Longman and Co.). The other is "A General History of Music, by Dr. Joseph Schlüter. Translated from the German by Mrs. Robert Tubbs" (Bentley).—In recommending these books to the attention of our readers we may tell them, in the first place, that the old Greek adage, "a great book is a great evil," cannot be applied to them, for each book consists of a single octavo volume. They are, moreover, concisely and pleasantly written, and free from the minute and tedious details with which literary men (Germans especially) are too much given to load their musical lucubrations. They are essentially popular, and require from the reader nothing more than that love for a beautiful art which is almost universal in every class of society.

The lectures, of which the substance is contained in the volume before us, are a sequel to a previous course of lectures, delivered by Mr. Hullah at the Royal Institution in 1861, and published soon afterwards, under the title of a "History of Modern Music." In those lectures he gave an outline of the history of the art, divided into four periods—a division, of course, somewhat arbitrary, but useful for the sake of classification and arrangement. The first period is from the foundation of the art to about the year 1400; the second extends from that date to about the year 1600; the third to about 1750; the fourth to the present time. These periods Mr. Hullah thus describes:—"The first as a period of preparation; the second as that of the old tonality, and of (to us) the old masters; the fourth as that of the modern tonality and the modern school; and the third as a transition period from the second to the fourth." The former course of lectures embraced all those periods; but in the subsequent course the lecturer returns to the third or transition period, treating it with greater fulness of detail. "This course of lectures," he says, "stands in the same relation to that which I delivered at the Royal Institution in 1861 as a topographical map to a geographical one. I have here treated a portion of the subject which, before, I had only been enabled to treat generally, with some attention to detail and with comparative completeness." Thus, his newly-published lectures embrace only about a century and a half—from about 1600 to 1750—a period apparently brief, but of vast importance, as it includes that rapid series of changes which brought the art from its mediæval rudeness to a state of maturity approaching that of the present day. As the course consisted of six lectures, Mr. Hullah had "ample room and verge enough" to do justice to a subject so limited in extent; and accordingly he has given the most satisfactory account of the great transition period of musical history that we have anywhere met with.

He traces the progress of music during this period in the principal countries of Europe, Italy, France, Germany, and England. He has, as an English historian, done his duty to his own country—a duty which some English historians have not done—by paying proper attention to the progress of music in England. He observes that, although we English are truly a musical people, yet we have exercised little influence on Continental music. This fact he ascribes to our insular position. When Hadyn came to England, in 1791, he had never heard an oratorio of Handel, who had then been dead forty years; and the greatest of German musicians is, even at this day, not popularly known in his native country, simply because he spent his artistic life in England. But at the beginning of the period in question the English school of music was great. "The last years," says Mr. Hullah, "of the sixteenth and the first of the seventeenth centuries form what might be called the golden age of English music, the age, for all musical Europe, of the madrigal. Nowhere was the cultivation of that noble form of pure vocal music followed with more zeal or success than in our own. Our great masters in this branch of art are exactly contemporaneous, too, with those of Italy—not subsequent, but exactly contemporaneous."

Beginning from the reign of Queen Elizabeth, Mr. Hullah passes in review the principal luminaries of the English school, giving just estimates of their merits and interesting specimens of their powers. In this review he includes Dowland. Ford, Henry Lawes, Pelham Humphries, Wise, Blow, and other eminent men, concluding with the illustrious Henry Purcell and the "giant Handel," whom we have every right, in an artistic point of view, to claim as our countryman.

In the same manner Mr. Hullah treats of the progress of music in the other countries of Europe, and the reader will be as much pleased with the easy and animated style of these lectures as with the interesting information of which they are full.

The plan of Dr. Schlüter's "General History of Music" has enabled him to compress a great deal of useful matter into a small space. Though a popular book, it is addressed to those readers who are really lovers of music and do not require to have their attention excited by musical gossip. "I have steadfastly and carefully kept in view," he says, "the progressive development of art; and, instead of crowding the pages of this little book with biographical anecdotes cheaply collected, or names and titles of books, have strictly excluded everything superfluous." He has treated the most remote periods of history with the greatest degree of conciseness, increasing in fulness as he approaches the present time; thus accommodating the treatment of each portion of his subject to the degree of interest which it is calculated to excite. The whole history of music, anterior to the beginning of the last century, does not occupy a fourth part of his book; all the rest being devoted to the events subsequent to that period. The author has thus found means to discuss the principal musicians of the last and the present century, from Bach and Handel to Mendelssohn, Meyerbeer, and Gounod, with a fulness quite surprising in so small a work. His plan, however, has had this disadvantage, that he has been led to confine himself too much to the music of Germany, while that of Italy and France is treated too slightly, and that of England absolutely ignored. Notwithstanding this great blemish, Dr. Schlüter's history is an excellent work; and there are few who will read the memoirs of Bach, Handel, Mozart, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, and Meyerbeer without finding their knowledge increased and their opinions influenced by sound and dispassionate criticism. The English version, we must add, is executed with taste and ability.

MUSIC.

Since the production of "Medea" at Her Majesty's Theatre, and of "Linda di Chamouni" at the Royal Italian Opera, there has been no novelty of any kind at either of the houses. Though the season is passing away and drawing near its close, it does not appear that Meyerbeer's posthumous work, "L'Africaine," is yet in preparation at Covent Garden; but it is asserted, nevertheless, that this long-looked-for opera will positively be brought out before the theatre closes. Several of Meyerbeer's operas have been produced at Covent Garden within a few days of the end of the season.

The fifth "Opera Concert" at the Crystal Palace took place on Saturday last. The principal singers were from the Royal Italian Opera. Mdlle. Lucca was received with vast enthusiasm; and Mdlle. Gayrard, an admirable pianist, was much applauded in Weber's "Concert-Stück." Above 9000 persons were present. The sixth concert, the last before the Handel Festival, takes place to-day. The solo singers are Mdme. Harriers Wippern, Signor Gardoni, and other performers of Her Majesty's Theatre.

The Popular Concert of Monday evening last was for the benefit of Mr. Sims Reeves, who has been one of the great attractions of these concerts ever since they were established, seven years ago. St. James's Hall, we need scarcely say, was crowded to the doors, and the favourite English tenor was welcomed with acclamations. His principal performance was Beethoven's celebrated "Adelaida," in which he was accompanied by Mdme. Arabella Goddard. That lady also played Sterndale Bennett's beautiful "Musical Sketches—the Lake, the Mill-stream, and the Fountain;" two quartets of Haydn and Mendelssohn were performed by Messrs. Joachim, Ries, Webb, and Piatti; and the great violinist astonished the audience by his marvellous execution of Tartini's celebrated "Trillo del Diavolo."

The sixth Philharmonic concert of the season took place on Monday evening last, at the Hanover-square Rooms. The programme included Wagner's overture to "Rienzi;" a flute concerto, composed by Molique, and played by M. Svendsen; Beethoven's pianoforte concerto in E flat, performed by Mdme. Arabella Goddard; Mozart's symphony in D; and Beethoven's overture to "King Stephen." Mdlle. Titiens was to have been the vocalist; but, being still suffering from her recent accident, her place was supplied by Mdme. Harriers Wippern, that admirable artist having just arrived to fulfil her engagement at Her Majesty's Theatre.

The Musical Society of London gave their third concert of the season, at St. James's Hall, on Wednesday last week. The programme included Mendelssohn's overture to "Athalié:" Beethoven's seventh symphony in A major; Spohr's ninth violin concerto, played by Herr Strauss; Bennett's overture "The Wood Nymphs;" and Cherubini's overture to "Anacreon." Mr. Santley sang Handel's "O ruddier than the cherry," Mozart's "Deh, vieni," and Benedict's scena "O lovely peasant girl!" from "The Lily of Killarney." An excellent concert, but destitute of any novel feature.

At the matinée of the Musical Union, on Tuesday last, the principal violinist was Herr Lauterbach (who appeared for the first time at these concerts) and the pianist was Mdme. Clara Schumann. The pieces performed were Spohr's quintet in G, op. 33; Mendelssohn's duet in D, for the piano and violoncello, played by Mdme. Schumann and Signor Piatti; Beethoven's quartet in B flat, No. 6; and two pianoforte solos of Schumann—his "Nachtstücke" and "Romanze"—played by Mdme. Schumann. There was also some vocal music—a thing unusual at the Musical Union—two of Schubert's songs, sung by Herr Hauser (an accomplished singer, just arrived from Baden), and accompanied on the piano by Mdme. Schumann. At the next matinée, on the 20th inst., Joachim, Piatti, and Mdme. Schumann are to appear.

"The meeting of the Three Choirs" takes place this year at Gloucester, and is therefore called the Gloucester Festival. It will be held at the usual time, in September next, and will be under the direction of Dr. Samuel Sebastian Wesley, the newly-appointed organist of Gloucester Cathedral. The preparations are already in a forward state. No less than eighty gentlemen of the neighbourhood have agreed to act as stewards—a number, we believe, unprecedented; and the success of the festival has thus been assured. The arrangements of the performances will be considerably altered. The first morning, instead of being engrossed by a full cathedral service, with the usual anthems, &c., is to be devoted to the performance of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul." On the second day there will be a selection, including the "Requiem" of Mozart. The third and fourth mornings will be occupied with "Elijah" and "The Messiah." The principal vocalists engaged are—Mdlle. Titiens, Miss Louisa Pyne, Mdme. Rudersdorff, Miss Wilkinson, Dr. Gunz, Mr. Santley, and Mr. L. Thomas. We are surprised not to find in this list the names of Mr. Sims Reeves—without whom no music-meeting of any pretension can be regarded as complete—of Mr. Weiss, and of Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, who so long have held prominent positions at the meetings of the Three Choirs. Mdme. Arabella Goddard is engaged, and appears to be the only solo instrumentalist.

An interesting musical performance was given at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Thursday, last week, in aid of the Royal Infirmary for Diseases of the Chest, City-road. It consisted of a new oratorio, entitled "Paradise Lost," by the distinguished amateur Mr. Lodge Ellerton—a work which, if not of the same calibre as "St. Paul" or "Elijah," displays the talents and attainments of an accomplished artist. The solo-singers were Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Cecilia Westbrook, Mdme. Laura Baxter, Mr. Cummings, Mr. Wells, and Mr. Renwick. The band and chorus were extremely good, and the performance was conducted with great care by Mr. John Hullah. The oratorio was preceded by a symphony from the pen of the same composer—a somewhat injudicious step, as it rendered the whole performance too long, and thus injured the effect of the latter part of the oratorio. It was, nevertheless, very favourably received by a numerous audience, and, as a whole, did much honour to the talented author.

Of the benefit concerts, as usual at this period of the season, it may be said that their name is legion. They are given daily, and often at the rate of three or four per day. Even to enumerate them would be impossible, and we can only say that among the concerts of the last eight or ten days those of Signor Arditi, the admirable music director of Her Majesty's Theatre; Mr. John Francis Barnett, the excellent pianist; Herr Ernest Pauer, Mdme. Puzzi, Mr. Howard Glover, Mr. Aguilar, and Mdlle. Sedlatzek have been the most remarkable.

Mdlle. Bettelheim, the accomplished contralto at Her Majesty's Theatre, has left London for Vienna, to fulfil her engagement at the Imperial Opera.

THE THEATRES.

A new drama was produced at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on Saturday. It is a comedy, though oddly entitled "War to the Knife." The work is in three acts, and proceeds from the well-practised pen of Mr. Byron. It bears all the marks of his lively style, and is smartly as well as elegantly written. In fact, its dialogue is much better than its structure, which is not without fault, yet the plot is interesting and ingeniously conducted. Mr. Harcourt (Mr. Montgomery) is a young married man, who is being practised upon by Captain Thistleton (Mr. Sidney Bancroft), who has introduced him to a disreputable gaming club as the readiest means of supplying the deficiency of his income. Thistleton has engaged the attention of Mrs. Delacour (Miss Marie Wilton), and is at length introduced to Mrs. Harcourt (Miss Fanny Josephs), when a mutual recognition takes place. Anon, the lady's cousin, John Blunt (Mr. F. Dewar), likewise recognises the stranger as an old sweetheart of her's; nor is it long before the bluff Bristol manufacturer is made to perceive that he has introduced many elements of confusion into the family by his unwelcome reminiscences. In the second act, we find Mrs. Harcourt consulting with the Widow Delacour in the matter, when it appears that the former when a child had had a correspondence with Thistleton; but, his character having been discovered, the connection had been broken off, and Thistleton had returned all the young girl's letters except one. This one he hangs in terrorem over her head, and vows "war to the knife" against the woman who had rejected him and married another. Mrs. Delacour, however, is easily induced to turn her acquaintance with Thistleton to account, and persuades the latter to partake of a sleeping draught, and during his slumber abstracts the letter in question from his pocket-book and substitutes another. When, therefore, Thistleton maliciously hands over the packet to Harcourt, it is found to contain a document implicating himself in a swindle that had been perpetrated on a Somersetshire bank. Amidst this more serious business a sportive action is introduced, in which Mr. J. Clarke is the principal, in the character of one Mr. Nubbly, a greengrocer, who lets himself out at night to parties, and who being so employed by Mr. Harcourt determines to improve the occasion, and dun him for his little account while serving him with an ice. Mr. Clarke enters into the part with wonderful spirit, and in the exuberance of his style produces no end of fun. Miss Wilton has in her rôle to exhibit a variety of moods, and in all proves herself to be an accomplished actress. Mr. C. James has painted for the piece some pretty scenery, and, altogether, it is probable that the new comedy will become attractive.

The Bateman family appear to prefer dramas in which cursing is an important element. On Monday they placed on the boards of the Adelphi a blank verse drama, in five acts, entitled "Geraldine," and said to have been written by Mrs. Bateman, in which Mr. Bateman himself acts the part of David of Ruthin, a Welsh bard, who utters his malison on the inmates of Chester Castle, in the reign of Edward I., in the dungeons of which his son is confined. That son afterwards emerges to light in order to carry out the curse, which he does by administering poison to Geraldine de Lacy, whereby she grows deformed—that is, slightly hunchbacked—and afterwards, in the disguise of her father confessor, instilling suspicion into her mind against her husband and her sister Edith, and inciting her to the murder of the latter. She relents, however, and commits suicide instead. We regret that we cannot much compliment Mrs. Bateman on the poetry of her drama, and to the plot and structure of it we might take many objections. We hardly ever met with a play which had so many carpenter's scenes, and these were occupied with a jester (Mr. Billington), a nurse (Mrs. H. Lewis), and an old steward (Mr. Stuart), who were the dullest company in the world. They talked an infinite deal of nothing about wit and wisdom, but never uttered a single word of either. Miss Bateman, however, acquitted herself well as the heroine; while Mr. Swinburne, as the revengeful son of the Welsh bard, and Mr. G. Jordan, as the Crusader Hubert de Borey, the lady's husband, acted with force. The two last acts are effective, and were received with applause.

The proceeds of the sale of the late Duke de Morny's snuff-boxes, last week, were more than £2000.

Captain James R. Keppell, commander of the Venetia, one of the London, Italian, and Adriatic Steam Navigation Company's steamers, has been presented by her Majesty's Government with a valuable telescope in recognition of his courageous exertions in rescuing nine men from the ship Phryne, of St. John, New Brunswick, off Cape Finnisterre, in the month of January last. A donation of £1 was at the same time presented to each of the men who manned the boat.

Ten millions two hundred and ninety-six thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven pounds of tea were entered for duty at the various custom-houses of the United Kingdom on the 1st instant, when the reduced duty of 6d. per lb. took effect. Of that amount, 5,760,000 lb. were paid in London on 32,490 entries; 465,920 lb. in Liverpool on 2648 entries; and 1,277,206 lb. in all other ports of England on 6132 entries. In Ireland, 1,593,993 lb., on 3275 entries of which Dublin contributed 758,784 lb. on 1071 entries, and Belfast 456,967 lb. on 999 entries. In Scotland, 1,199,738 lb. on 6550 entries, of which Glasgow contributed 591,951 lb. on 2926 entries; Leith, 345,507 lb. on 1838 entries; and Aberdeen, 109,000 lb. on 873 entries. The aggregate amount of revenue derived from tea throughout Great Britain and Ireland on that day was £257,423, of which £144,000 was paid in London, £11,648 in Liverpool, £31,932 in all other ports of England, £39,850 in Ireland, and £29,993 in Scotland.

THE DEEP-SEA AND COAST FISHERIES IN IRELAND.—The report for 1864 of the Commissioners for administering the laws relating to the Irish deep-sea and coast fisheries has been published. The conduct of the fishermen has been marked by good order; but in many districts their success has not been commensurate with their efforts, and great privation has been suffered, either from scarcity of fish or want of the necessary means to procure suitable boats and gear. The herring fishery on the east coast has been still more productive than the preceding year, which was an unprecedentedly prosperous season; and the native fishermen of Dublin, Howth, Skerries, and Arklow have continued to maintain a praiseworthy and successful competition with their English and Scotch fellow-labourers in energy and skill, and in the number and character of their boats. The fishing and coasting trade of Arklow has continued to make great progress. It is stated, on competent authority, that in the year 1825 there was only one two-masted vessel belonging to that port, and now there are eighty large vessels of from 60 to 120 tons, and 150 herring and oyster boats proportionably improved in size and gear, employing 1600 able-bodied men. The price of oysters there has greatly increased of late years in consequence of the improvement in the quality of the oyster and the almost unlimited demand by English and French purchasers. This has had the effect of stimulating a more energetic action than is consistent with the future prosperity of the great natural banks on the south-east coast; and the Commissioners, upon a memorial from the fishermen themselves for a limitation of the open time, and after a public inquiry, have constituted the close time for the oyster fishery upon that part of the coast to be between the 30th of April and the 1st of October. The subject of increasing or diminishing restraints upon trawling still occupies their attention. The question is very complicated, as the utmost diversity of opinion exists. The Commissioners think it proper to defer their decision until they have received the report of the Royal Commissioners, who were specially appointed to consider this and other matter connected with the sea-fisheries in Ireland as well as in Great Britain.

'AN ENGLISH PASTORAL,' BY F. W. HULME, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

"RUSTIC COURTSHIP."

IN our review of the Exhibition of the Institute of Painters in Water Colours we offered a slight description of the drawing engraved below. Some of our readers may possibly remember that description, but those who do not will find it best supplied by our engraver. We need only now say, for the information of such as are not already aware of the fact, that the painter of this work, Mr. W. Lucas, is one of the two members (Mr. W. L. Thomas being the other) elected within the last year into the junior Water-colour Society, in Pall-mall; and that, therefore, Mr. Lucas's drawings have novel interest, he having been previously little known to the general public. But the exhibited productions of this artist require no adventitious aid; they have only to be seen to be held in estimation, and if future efforts should prove equal to the sample we have engraved they will justify the remarks we have already made to the effect that Mr. Lucas evinces command of character and expression; that his heads are well drawn and modelled, and his colouring clear and pleasant. Moreover, we are glad to say that he promises to be among the few artists who know how to steer clear of vulgarity in treating humble, everyday subjects. This "Rustic Courtship," for example, was a perilous theme; but we think the reader will agree with us that the painter has passed safely through the ordeal he proposed for himself—an ordeal, failure in which, on his first appearance and in his principal performance, would have left an impression not easily effaced. There they are, those rustic lovers, just as they might, perhaps, often be caught, to the confusion of both. The buxom young woman over the wash-tub is not a fine lady or romantically employed, but she has beauty enough of a homely kind to turn the heads of all the lads in the village. She is neither a wanton nor a shrew, but she turns away from the flattery of her sweetheart with that expression of pleased displeasure peculiar to her sex under such circumstances. The smock-frocked bust of the suitor is not framed to advantage or with dignity by the narrow wash-house casement; yet he looks an honest, worthy fellow; neither an absolute clown—though who would not look somewhat foolish in his place?—nor is he a fine gentleman, though his "intentions" may be at least as "honourable" as if he were.

"RUSTIC COURTSHIP," BY W. LUCAS, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.

"AN ENGLISH PASTORAL."

THE title, "An English Pastoral," suggests exactly what we find in the unpretentious, well and faithfully painted landscape of Mr. Holme which we have engraved. The view deserves its title, although, doubtless, a direct transcript of a particular scene, not an artificial "composition" in the manner of the "classical" school of landscape art. It may be said that here are, without the patching and forcing which are always more or less apparent, those elements of natural scenery which, simple as they are, have furnished themes for a large proportion of all the poetry that has ever been written, from the lofty inspiration of ancient bards to the most earthly strains of the innumerable poets who, in all ages, have sung of bucolic delights in eclogue and idyl. Here is the winding stream, or brook, reflecting the sedges, flags, and dock-leaves which fringe its margins, or the alders, pollard willows, or young birch saplings which mark its course, and recalling how many images of life in its way-ward wanderings and ceaseless flow! There is the sun-flecked meadow, with its rich pasturage for flocks and herds, and its teeming associations of shepherd and flock, rustic wooings, and rural peace—the burden of sacred lyre and oaten reed. Then there is the majestic oak, the sylvan monarch, spreading his arms far and wide, proffering shade and shelter. How pleasant to stand in the cool shadow of his broad crown, and, while listening to the song of birds and hum of insects, as they mingle with the airy music of the shimmering leaves, to think of the endless associations with which that brave old tree is hallowed! The view is not shut in by the romantic or awful grandeur of mountains, for they are seldom elements of pastoral landscape, at least in England. But overhead we have the sweet English sky, with its particolours of pale azure, snowy white, and tender grey. Rightly, too, has the painter represented the trees and fields in their full summer bravery; for the green of the summer foliage, kept bright and fresh by alternate sunshine and showers, is the great characteristic of our English scenery.

The twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Yorkshire Union of Mechanics' Institutes was held, on Thursday week, at Stockton-on-Tees. Mr. E. Baines, M.P., presided at the business meeting in the morning; and the Right Hon. Thomas Headlam at the public meeting in the evening. A great amount of practical good has, during the past year, been accomplished by the Union. There are now in the Union 129 institutes with 29,700 members.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

THE Fenians and the mad dogs have this week been dividing the little, and somewhat distracted, attention which the much-perplexed Englishman can give to general matters. The Fenians, quasi Finnians, or Phœnicians, it appears, have adopted that name from a very logical determination to seize upon a basis wherefrom they cannot well be driven by any internal divisions. As it "is not known," we are gravely told "that Irishmen have ever been of one mind since the days of Queen Dido, they have returned to that halcyon period of unity for a fresh start." So "the sainted isle of old" has abandoned its connection with the saints. The viper-and-toad-expelling St. Patrick is removed, vice Finn, who was not a Christian at all at all, seeing that he lived long before he could have had any chance of being one. When he did live nobody knows. The excellent "Dictionary of Dates" is quite silent about him, and tells us nothing even about Fingal. But these disciples of an historical abstraction have the benefit of agreeing that, when he did live, their forefathers were united; and as the unity of Ireland, except under English rule, has since been a fiction, they are quite right. Brian Boru or Boroihme, Owen Roe O'Neil, O'Donnel Aboo, and SS. Patrick, Kieven, and the rest of them, are to be swept away. "Let us," says that merry old gentleman in "The Vicar of Wakefield" who is always ready to quote Sanconiathon, Berosus, and Herodotus, "return to first principles." And upon these first principles we are afraid that the English and Fenians cannot agree, seeing that theirs is to get what they can and ours to keep what we have got. Fenianism, then, is a fact, and the "Irish republic" is at present established, at least so we know from "an oath" sworn "in the presence of Almighty God," which was taken from an Irish Fenian soldier at Liverpool last week. It is true that this soldier, a spy in the camp, a forerunner and avant guard of the great army of the Fenians, having found himself in pleasant quarters, had taken unto himself the right of pillage, and, falling into the hands of one of the enemies of the republic in the "garb"—garb, you perceive, is the word—of a policeman, was taken before a magistrate, and this sad accident has revealed to us the sacred oath of the Fenians. The taker solemnly swears "allegiance to the Irish republic, now virtually established, to take up arms in defence of its territory and independence at any moment! and to implicitly obey the commands of my superior officer."

Distracting the attention somewhat from the rabid dogs which have turned up suddenly at every thoroughfare, have been reported by every local pill-gilder, have frightened all the nursemaids, and troubled the peaceful and dreamy beadles of the London squares, we have visions of railway accidents brought home to us by most vivid reports, and even nearer to us, from the fact that one whose writings we all read, and whom we regard as a common friend, very narrowly escaped being a victim. Of these accidents very little can be said, except that they are just as likely to occur again as not, being the results of that which no one can guard against, and which all the stringent laws in the world cannot put down—pure carelessness. But out of this sad result, which culminates in dead bodies, broken bones, shaken frames, and injuries from which people never recover, there has arisen the great question of railway keys. People are locked in the carriages by the guard, and, with the exception of adventurous and knowing bagmen, commercial travellers, and those who travel almost every day, few people carry a railway key which will admit them into a locked carriage or loose them from it, as the case may be. It is true the railway authorities say these keys, which may be purchased for about the price of a pocket-knife or a corkscrew, are illegal; but then the "authorities" are themselves doing an illegal thing in locking people in. In the terror and darkness, with the engine off the line, roaring, hissing, and sputtering, like a distressed fiend; the women shrieking, the timid men groaning, and the bolder ones shouting, one feels that to be locked into a third-class carriage, with stiff iron bars across the windows, is indeed something even more dreadful than has been imagined by the most rabid sensation writer of the day. But what can one do? Simply, buy a key and say nothing about it. Its possession has more than once saved many lives. If it be illegal to use a key to get in, it is quite legal to use it to get out, and, if not, a slight fine is much better than a broken leg. Moreover, Mr. Milner Gibson tells us emphatically "that it is illegal to lock both doors." So one illegality balances the other. Let us remember the Clayton Tunnel accident on the Brighton Railway, and—since the public cannot ensure perfection in drivers, signalmen, station-masters, traffic-managers, railway-porters, platelayers, or mischievous fools who put, "just for a lark, you know," half a hundred of bricks across the rails of a line—let it guard itself as well as it can.

It is probable that in those things in which John Bull fancies that he has set a rule and line to the world he will have his excellent nose put out of joint. If anybody can be a traffic-manager John Bull can; and yet no excursion season ever comes round without these fearful accidents. Why not spread the excursions over more time? Do people really love to be packed together like slaves in the middle passage? Is there any necessity for Margate and Ramsgate being chokeful while other equally accessible and more wholesome places are abandoned? Man is a gregarious animal, no doubt; but if cheapness of travel were extended to other places, Brighton and the south coast would be in time relieved. Again, John Bull believes that he is the best and cheapest engine-maker and engineer in the world, and yet the French beat him on his own ground; and in a land of iron and furnaces an English railway is being laid with Belgian rails and another worked by French engines! And so, also, upon English turf, and under an English sky, with a crowd which really would surpass anything to be seen elsewhere, a French horse carries off "the Blue Ribbon of the Turf!" By-the-way, who first used that phrase? Was it Lord Derby, Mr. Disraeli, or Lord George Bentinck? If John Bull comes off second best in iron and horseflesh, and third best, they do say, in armour-plated ships and armour-smashing guns, he had best wake up and look to his laurels.

The gentlemen of the Civil Service are stirring — a notion at once novel, and to the public mind delightful—stirring not however for the public, but for themselves. They vow to have two things, the first of which is right and proper, and the second of which is absurd. It appears, and the fact is amongst those things which Mr. Timbs has, will, or should have classed amongst those not generally known, that all members of the Civil Service connected directly or indirectly with the collection of revenue are forbidden under the strongest penalties from voting or taking any part in the return of a member of Parliament. Mr. Anthony Trollope "considers such a barrier as this to be a stigma on the profession;" but surely he must know that the barrier was put on to secure both Government and the clerks from suffering much worse stigmata. Mr. Trollope ought to know how employés, if he likes the word, in America are regarded, used, and made capital of during an election. What does it matter to him, the employé, if he has been doing his duty and is thoroughly and efficiently protected, whether or not he records his vote for blue or yellow? He certainly can use his interest, and in the case with many of our public servants who guide public opinion, as their "business of pleasure," he does do so most effectually. Had he not better take the material good he has and not coquet with the hustings? Again, as to that half-holiday movement, is not the Civil Service bringing discredit on the movement itself by demanding that it should be extended to it? To those who work from six to six it is very needful; to those who work from eight to eight, or from nine till eight, or, indeed, from ten to seven, let us say to all these. But, oh! gentlemen who live at home at ease, and who work from ten till four, who end every day your pleasant labours at the very time when the placards recommend, only on Saturday, that gentlemen should "cease to shop," what about the half-holiday, gentlemen? Yours would only gain you the extension of two short hours.

While Mr. Mark Lemon—that gentleman who has been the very "antipathies" of his name, as Mrs. Malaprop would have it—has been presented with a piece of plate as a testimonial of his worth, his sweetness of disposition, his tact, and the gentleness of bearing (and this testimonial, let me add, came from the Dramatic Authors' Society). Mr. Cox, Cox for Finsbury! is about to bring an action against Punch, its publishers, and editor. This is only the second action which Mr. Punch has had to sustain for twenty years; and let me say that which all literary coachmen will at once recognise, especially that "whip" of the Shilling Magazine, whose harness was so good and whose bloods and half-bloods so restive, that for Punch to have spun along at the rate he has done for twenty years with only two actions from B. and C., represented by the late Mr. Bunn and the present Mr. Cox, proves that the driving has been exceedingly delicate, clever, and watchfully careful.

The Dramatic College Gazette, to be sold at the Crystal Palace fête in July, will this year be full of good things, gathered from almost every known English author—living author, that is, for its conductors will neither reprint Shakspeare, "Dr. Dodd's Prison Thoughts," nor "Blair's Grave." The Prince of Wales was so much pleased with his reception at Maybury that he has sent £50 towards the funds of the college. The Arts Club, at Hanover-square—not, perhaps, intentionally, but in reality a great rival to the Garrick—will shortly number amongst its members Charles Dickens and Wilkie Collins. It has already opened its doors to Mr. W. H. Wills, the sub-editor of All the Year Round, &c. A gentleman to whom Mrs. Garrick had left her husband's Court sword has signified his intention of presenting it, as a memorial of the great actor, to the Garrick Club. Whilst the Urban Club, also reckoning amongst its chief members dramatic authors and actors, possesses a relic equally curious in a punchbowl once that of David Garrick.

This column of June 3 having, it would seem, unduly reflected on Mr. Cyrus W. Field, I subjoin a letter from Professor Thomson, who was associated with Mr. Field in the first great, and temporarily successful, enterprise; and also add a paragraph from Mr. Varley, the celebrated electrician. It would seem that "Mr. Field and his associates in America, having obtained the sole privilege, for fifty years, of placing a telegraph cable on the shores of Newfoundland, actually laid the line connecting that island with the United States. They next induced the United States Government to take soundings across the Atlantic, after which Mr. Field came to England; and, joining himself to Mr. J. W. Brett, Mr. C. T. Bright, and Mr. Whitehouse, promoted the formation of the Atlantic Telegraph Company. The capital of £350,000 was raised in twenty weeks, Mr. Field himself taking shares to the amount of £88,000. He has crossed the Atlantic, at his own expense, thirty-three times on this business. In 1858 he refused a present of £1000 offered him by the directors as a reward for his services. So much for Mr. Cyrus Field's part in the undertaking. With regard to the naval officers and engineers, it is not denied that those belonging to this country received in America the same medals and other honorary rewards as were bestowed upon their American colleagues." I give Professor Thomson's letter entire:—

I remarked with surprise a statement in your Number of June 3 to the effect that Mr. Cyrus Field and the Americans had "taken all the credit" of the temporary success of the first Atlantic cable. Having been cognisant of the main facts of the case from the commencement, I can confidently express the opinion that injustice has been done to both the Americans and Mr. Field in that remark. In answering congratulatory addresses which, immediately after his landing with the end of the cable were very naturally given to him both by his countrymen and our own people of our North American colonies, he most fully and handsomely gave credit to English directors and executive officers of the company, and on no occasion claimed or admitted more than the most moderate statements of credit for his own very large share in the great work. I believe also that, to the utmost of their knowledge, the American press gave credit to all our countrymen who in any way promoted or assisted the undertaking. The rapid and lamentable change from exultation in a supposed success to painful disappointment did, however, prevent, on both sides of the Atlantic, a final and well-balanced judgment of the claims of all concerned, which no doubt would have done effective justice to all.
I am, &c., WILLIAM THOMSON.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

Royal Horse Guards: H. A. W. F. Somerset, Marquis of Worcester, to be Cornet.

6th Dragoon Guards: Cornet G. Salis-Schwabe to be Lieutenant.

14th Hussars: Staff Surg. O. B. Miller to be Surgeon.

9th Lancers: Lieut. A. B. Bingham to be Lieutenant. 16th: Lieut. C. Agnew to be Lieutenant; Assist. Surg. W. L. Farmer to be Assistant Surgeon.

7th Foot: E. R. Burnett-Stuart to be Ensign. 9th: Ensign T. W. Clogstoun to be Lieutenant; C. G. B. Martin to be Ensign. 16th: Staff Assist. Surg. W. Keir, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon. 26th: Staff Assist. Surg. W. Carpenter, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon. 29th: Lieut. T. C. Lambert to be Captain; Ensigns W. R. Elliott and J. H. Pitfield to be Lieutenants; T. C. Yard and J. W. Jameson to be Ensigns; Staff Assist. Surg. J. P. H. Belleau to be Assistant Surgeon. 31st: Lieut. D. D. Chadwick to be Lieutenant. 41st: Staff Assist. Surg. W. H. Jameson to be Assistant Surgeon. 47th: Major-General Sir C. T. Van Straubenzie, K.C.B., to be Colonel. 49th: Staff Assist. Surg. L. Corban, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon. 63rd: Ensign A. H. G. Taubman to be Lieutenant; Cadet J. M. Jackson to be Ensign. 66th: Ensign W. L. Beattie to be Lieutenant; P. O'Reilly to be Ensign. 96th: Staff Assist. Surg. E. O'Sullivan to be Assistant Surgeon. 100th: Lieut. C. E. L. Lyon to be Captain; Lieut. J. B. Kersteman to be Captain; Ensigns G. M. Fox and J. Hart to be Lieutenants; L. N. De la Cherois-Crommelin and C. V. S. Downes to be Ensigns.

3rd West India Regiment: Lieut. J. J. Plumbridge to be Captain; Ensign J. F. Lynch to be Lieutenant; Cadet E. King and F. H. Forjett to be Ensign.

DEPOT BATTALION.—Captains J. Hare and J. N. Colthurst to be Instructors of Musketry.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—Surgeon-Major W. Arden to be Staff Surgeon-Major; Assist. Surgs. J. N. Davis, R. W. Troup, J. R. Greenhill, and T. Maunsell, to be Staff Assistant Surgeons.

BREVET.—Capt. S. M'Donough to have the honorary rank of Major.

ADMIRALTY.

B. Browning, J. W. Dobbin, P. M. Roe, and R. Humphreys, to be Surgeons in her Majesty's Fleet; W. G. N. Burney and H. H. P. Shanks to be Paymasters in her Majesty's Fleet; the Rev. A. Buckley to be a Chaplain in her Majesty's Fleet.

A grand field-day and sham fight took place at Woolwich-common yesterday week, in the presence of his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, and a numerous Staff.

Captain George A. Bedford, R.N., has been appointed to the post, under the Board of Trade, lately held by Admiral Sullivan, who has been compelled to retire in consequence of ill-health.

The members of the Navy Club dined together on Tuesday evening at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's. Admiral Sir George Lambert presided.

The officers of the 26th Light Infantry (Cameronians) had their annual regimental dinner on Tuesday evening at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's.

The fourth triennial dinner of the friends of the Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows will be held, at Willis's Rooms, on Monday next, the 19th inst.

At Woolwich, on Monday, a 600-pounder Blakely gun—the first of a new series—underwent the Government proof successfully. The charges were 60 lb. The gun, being composed purely of steel, weighs only 14½ tons, or 7½ tons less than a wrought-iron gun of the same calibre.

The Queen has given orders for the appointment of Admiral Sir George Robert Lambert, K.C.B., to be a Knight Grand Cross; Admiral Edward Collier, C.B., and Vice-Admiral Peter Richards, C.B., to be Knights Commanders; and Alexander Bryson, Esq., M.D., Director General of the Medical Department of the Navy, to be a Companion of the Bath.

The coloneley of the 47th Regiment, vacant by the death of General Sir J. Shaw Kennedy, has been given to Major-General Sir C. Straubenzee, K.C.B., on the Staff in India, temporarily commanding-in-chief in Bombay, in the absence of Sir R. Napier. A good-service pension of £100 per annum is by this appointment placed at the disposal of the Duke of Cambridge.

The Duke of Cambridge, accompanied by Sir James Yorke Scarlett, Adjutant-General, visited Sandhurst College on Monday, and inspected the gentlemen cadets before they left for the Midsummer vacation.——The cadets had a field-day with the division at Aldershott on Wednesday week. About 6000 troops were on the ground. The strength of the cadet companies was 262 of all ranks.

The Emperor of the French has proposed to her Majesty's Government, and the offer has been accepted, that the English armour-plated fleet should make a cruise round the French coast, while the French fleet would come round the coast of England. Previously to this exchange of courtesies, the two fleets will assemble in Plymouth Sound, about the middle of next month.

According to a return issued last Saturday, the deaths among the non-commissioned officers and privates of her Majesty's forces in the three Indian Presidencies, last year, were as follow:—Bengal, 843 (the mean strength being 41,223); Madras, 257 (mean strength, 12,800); Bombay, 192 (mean strength, 12,153). The numbers invalided and discharged were—Bengal, 2264; Madras, 748; Bombay, 876.

Major-General Sir Robert Walpole, K.C.B., completed his half-yearly inspection of the infantry troops at Chatham garrison last Saturday by the inspection of the 3rd dépôt battalion quartered at St. Mary's Barracks, the 1st and 2nd dépôt battalions having been previously inspected. After inspecting the battalions in various manœuvres on Chatham Lines, Sir Robert Walpole went over the barrack-buildings and quarters, and also inspected the accounts and official records of each battalion.

The first "flying column" of the present season was detached from the division at Aldershott on Thursday week. The force, which is under the command of Major-General Lord H. Percy, V.C., consists of the 14th Hussars, the E battery, 9th brigade Royal Artillery; the 39th, 62nd, and 85th Regiments of Foot; and detachments of the Military and Engineer Trains and Commissariat Staff Corps. The Hussars and Artillery took their departure on Wednesday, but the "column" proper marched on Thursday morning shortly after five o'clock. The force encamped about a mile from the college on the side of a chain of hills, and near the spot chosen last year. A plentiful supply of water runs at the foot of the encampment, and in close proximity the bakery, consisting of nine ovens, is constantly engaged in baking the rations, more than 2000 of which have to be prepared daily. The column is acting upon the tactics adopted in pursuing or meeting an enemy; and the troops are, of course, subjected to the same strict discipline as if actively engaged in the field.

MILITIA.

The Northumberland Artillery Militia, having completed the period for which they were called up to train, were inspected at Berwick, on Thursday week, by Colonel Anderson, C.B., R.A. The corps is commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Clementson, and the inspection was highly satisfactory. After the inspection there was a sham fight, in which the militia, the Berwick and Eyemouth volunteers, and the men of the Ruby gun-boat took part. It attracted an immense number of spectators, and, the day being beautifully fine, the military demonstration was a great success.

The North Durham Regiment of Militia, under command of Colonel Johnson, having completed their allotted days of training, were inspected on the Durham racecourse, on Thursday, by Colonel Shute, of the 64th Regiment of the Line. Earl Vane was present at the inspection. At the conclusion, Colonel Shute congratulated the officers and men on the efficiency and soldierly bearing of the regiment.

The Marquis of Salisbury, as Lord Lieutenant of Middlesex, will give his annual entertainment to the Middlesex magistrates and officers of the several regiments of Middlesex militia to-day (Saturday), at Hatfield House, Hertfordshire.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The 1st London Artillery Brigade is busily engaged in gun practice and carbine-firing at Plumstead for the annual challenge and money prizes presented by the commanding officer, Lieutenant-Colonel Walmisley, and very good practice is made by the members of the brigade. The practice is carried on on alternate Saturdays until the end of the season, commencing generally about half-past four p.m. Recruiting is steadily progressing, and the gun and battalion drill of the members is carried on with great zeal.

The 2nd and 8th Tower Hamlets Rifle Volunteers were officially inspected, last Saturday, in their drill-ground adjoining Victoria Park, by Colonel Wright, the Deputy Inspector-General of Volunteers. The 2nd is a regiment by itself, under the command of Colonel Walker, and the 8th is a corps commanded by Captain Charles Wigram. There was an excellent muster of all ranks on the ground, and the battalion, formed in six very strong companies, after having been drilled in the manual and platoon exercises by Major Samuda, was put through a variety of evolutions, all of which were executed with fair precision. The company and sub-division volley-firing was excellent, and a volley by the kneeling ranks, when formed in fours to receive cavalry, according to the plan recommended by Colonel M'Murdo, was fired like one shot. The inspecting officer expressed his complete satisfaction with the inspection which the corps had undergone. The two corps, he said, were well equipped, their arms were in good order, and they had executed with precision all the orders which their commanding officer gave them. He also praised the efficiency of the officers, and said he should have great pleasure in making a favourable report to the Secretary of State.

A second volunteer review took place, on Wednesday week, in the Duke of Devonshire's park at Chatworth, Derbyshire, in presence of a large number of spectators. The troops were divided into four battalions. The first consisted of the Derbyshire Yeomanry Cavalry, under the command of Colonel Colvile, and numbering 11 officers, 13 non-commissioned officers, and 187 rank and file. This battalion also included the mounted Derbyshire volunteers, numbering 3 officers and 28 rank and file. The second battalion was under the command of Colonel Wilmot, and numbered 31 officers, 36 non-commissioned officers, 480 rank and file, and 48 band and buglers. Major Hayes commanded the third battalion, consisting of 17 officers, 22 non-commissioned officers, 169 rank and file, and 34 band and buglers. The fourth battalion, under the command of Lord George Cavendish, numbered 16 officers, 22 non-commissioned officers, 251 rank and file, and 33 band and buglers. The grand total of the troops was 77 officers, 93 non-commissioned officers, 1121 rank and file, 165 band and buglers—in all, 1500 men. They were taken to the hills at some distance from the hall, and there awaited the arrival of the inspecting officer to commence proceedings. Colonel Manners, Inspector of Volunteers for the district, and the reviewing officer, shortly came upon the ground, accompanied by the Duke of Devonshire, who wore his uniform as Lord Lieutenant of the county, and by a distinguished Staff, mostly composed of members of his Grace's family. Captain Somerset officiated as Brigade Major. The first part of the day's business was a sham battle, in which it was assumed that Chatsworth House and its approaches were in the possession of the enemy. When a number of complicated evolutions had been gone through, the troops marched past in quick time, the cavalry leading. They then formed in hollow square and were addressed by the reviewing officer, who expressed his entire satisfaction with the day's proceedings. Afterwards the troops were marched to a large marquee, where an excellent dinner was provided for them.

The shooting-club of No. 7 Company of the 3rd Manchester Rifle Volunteers held its first contest last Saturday, for prizes, on the ground of the regiment at Barton Moss. The prizes were won by the following members, in the order named:—Private Fidler, Sergeant Knight, Corporal Shaw, Private Balding, Sergeant Cooper, and Private W. Knight.

The Hoyland, Wakefield, Goole, Birstal, Pontefract, Dewsbury, Doncaster, Barnsley, and Rotherham (West Riding) volunteers, numbering 900 men, were reviewed, on Tuesday week, in Pontefract Park, by Colonel Shute, 64th Regiment. The troops were put through three hours of severe work in the park, in presence of many hundreds of spectators, the town and villages near keeping holiday. The movements were gone through generally with admirable precision and steadiness, and the warmest commendations were bestowed on the men previous to dismissal.

The executive committee of the forthcoming Wimbledon prize-meeting have published, for the information of intending competitors, the following rough division of the prizes for the two weeks:—The first week's competitions will include the first stage of the Queen's prize, the St. George's challenge vase, International (Enfield) match, China cup, first stage of the Alexandra prize, county all-comers match, his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales's prize, Enfield Rifle Association cup, Oxford and Cambridge bronze medal, Middlesex bronze medal, telescope prizes, his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge's prize, extra prizes, Daily Telegraph prize, public schools, Spencer cup and Ashburton challenge shield, and the London and North-Western prize. The second week's contest will include the following:—Second stage of the Queen's prize, second stage of the Alexandra prize, St. George's (dragon cup), the Albert prize, the Elcho challenge shield, Dudley prize, Mr. Henry Peek's prize, Earl De Grey and Ripon's prize, carbine prizes, the Spectator prize, the Saturday Review prize, the Chancellor's plate (Oxford and Cambridge), extra prizes, Volunteer Service Gazette prize, and Captain Horatio Ross's prize. The executive will, as far as possible, endeavour to adhere to this arrangement.

Sir Lascelles Wraxall, Bart., died, in Vienna, last Sunday morning.

The Paris Société d'Encouragement pour l'Industrie Nationale has offered a prize of £60 for an ink which will not corrode steel pens.

Under the personal supervision of the contractor, Mr. W. T. Henley, a heavy submarine telegraph cable, with three conducting wires, has been successfully laid between Tralleborg, Sweden, and the German island of Rugen, a distance of fifty-five miles.

The Swiss Federal Council offers a prize of £800 for the best model of a breech-loading firearm. Competitors are to send in their specimens before the 1st of September. These models must fulfil certain defined conditions.

A notice issued on Monday by the Postmaster-General states that on the 1st of July and thenceforward letters addressed to Gambia, posted unpaid, will be charged with an additional rate of 6d. each letter, besides the usual postage; and letters posted insufficiently prepaid will also be charged with the amount deficient and with 6d. additional. A similar fine, in addition to the postage, will be levied in this country upon all letters received from Gambia which may have been posted unpaid or insufficiently paid.

On Saturday last the agent of the Canterbury Government dispatched from Gravesend, per ship Tudor (one of Shaw, Savill, and Co.'s passengers' line of packets), 144 assisted emigrants, seventy-five of whom were married couples and their children; thirty-nine single men (farm labourers) and thirty single women (domestic servants). There were also on board eighty-four passengers paying their own passages, the greater part of whom were farmers and agriculturists.

Earl Russell, K.G., her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, notifies that he has received intelligence from her Majesty's Minister at Buenos Ayres and her Majesty's Chargé-d'Affaires at Monte Video, to the effect that the ports and coast of the republic of Paraguay were about to be blockaded by a Brazilian naval force, which, on the 24th of April (last), was on its way up the Parana; and, further, that the ports in the province of Matto Grosso are closed to all vessels.

The first match of the season of the Ranelagh Yacht Club will take place on Saturday, July 1. Course—Erith to the Chapman Light, and back. This is a match open to all yacht clubs for vessels not exceeding twelve tons; and the club hopes that owners possessing yachts within the above-mentioned limit will enter their little craft for the contest. The list of entries will close at the Club House, Pier Hotel, Chelsea, on Wednesday, the 21st, at ten p.m. A steam-boat will accompany the match, leaving Hungerford at 9.30 a.m., calling at London Bridge at 9.45.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, BART.

Sir John Maxwell, eighth Baronet, of Pollok, in the county of Renfrew, who died on the 6th inst., at his family seat, Pollok, Renfrewshire, was the only son of Sir John Maxwell, the seventh Baronet, by his wife, Hannah Anne, daughter of Richard Gardiner, Esq., of Aldborough, Suffolk. He was born May 12, 1791, and was educated first at a school kept by the Rev. Dr. MacLetchie, minister of Mearns; then at Market Raisen; and afterwards at Westminster School, and Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated. He in 1812 attended several of the classes in the University of Edinburgh. He was early in life appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of the Renfrewshire Militia, but he did not hold his commission long, owing to his being displeased at the refusal of the Government to send relief to the distressed operatives at Paisley. In August, 1813, he, accompanied by John Bramsen, an ex-officer of the Prussian army and afterwards a professor of German in the University of Oxford, set out on a foreign tour, in the course of which they visited Sweden, Prussia, Austria, the Ionian Islands, Egypt, Jerusalem and Syria, returning by Greece, Italy, Denmark, Holland, and the Netherlands. An account of these travels was published by Mr. Bramsen, and a copy of the journal, kept by Mr. Maxwell, is still preserved at Pollok. He was first elected M.P. for Renfrewshire in 1818; he was re-elected in 1820, and again in 1826. He was, at the first general election after the passing of the Reform Act, returned to Parliament as member for Lanarkshire, and he sat for that county till 1837, when he finally retired from Parliamentary life. He, while in the House of Commons, took an active interest in most leading measures, and particularly in the condition of the hand-loom weavers, of whom large numbers were then in great distress from want of employment. He espoused their cause both in and out of Parliament, and promoted every measure which had for its object the alleviation of their sufferings. In two successive Sessions he brought forward motions for a Select Committee to inquire into the subject, which, although opposed by the Government of the day, were carried against Ministerial influence: of the Committees appointed Mr. Maxwell was chairman. He succeeded his father as eighth Baronet July 30, 1844. He married, Oct. 14, 1839, Lady Matilda Harriet Bruce, daughter of Thomas, seventh Earl of Elgin, which lady died Aug. 31, 1857, having had no issue. The family of Maxwell of Pollok is one of the oldest in Scotland, being said to have accompanied Edgar Atheling into Scotland at the time of the Conquest. So important have been the Maxwells of Pollok that their memoirs have been published in a most learned work by William Frazer, Esq., an able and distinguished genealogist. Their great and ancient line has had many eminent branches, such as those of the Earls of Nithsdale, Lord Maxwell, Lord Herries, Lord Farnham, and the Maxwells of Calderwood. In 1388 Sir John Maxwell, the then head of the main stem, won renown at the Battle of Otterbourn, or Chevy Chase, by his capture of Sir Ralph Percy, son of the Earl of Northumberland and brother of the famous Hotspur—an exploit which elicited from John Dunbar, Earl of Murray, the remark—"Well, Maxwell, hast thou earned thy spurs to-day." From this Sir John the descent passes through a goodly succession of Maxwells to the first Baronet, Sir John Maxwell, who was so created March 27, 1707. He had been member for Renfrewshire at the Convention of Estates, and was a Privy Councillor of William III. and Lord Justice Clerk of Scotland: from him directly descended the Baronet just deceased. As that Baronet has died childless, his estates pass to his only nephew, his sister's, the late Mrs. Stirling's son, William Stirling, Esq., of Keir and Cawder, M.P. for Perthshire, who is already one of the wealthiest of commoners, and who is so well known as the accomplished author of "Annals of the Artists of Spain," "The Cloister Life of the Emperor Charles V.," and other works. Mr. Stirling married, at Paris, on the 26th of last April, Lady Anne Maria, third daughter of David, eighth Earl of Leven. As the baronetcy of Maxwell of Pollok has the wide limitation to the heirs male whatsoever of the first Baronet, it may not now become extinct, but may be claimed by some kinsman of the house: the only misfortune is that, owing to a deficiency in our law, there is no satisfactory tribunal where such claim can be positively established.

SIR JOSEPH PAXTON, M.P.

Sir Joseph Paxton, M.P. for Coventry, one of the most famous gardeners of modern times, who died, on the 8th inst., at his residence, Rock Hills, Sydenham, after an illness of some weeks' duration, was the son of a Bedfordshire yeoman, William Paxton, of Milton-Bryant, near Woburn. He was born at Milton Bryant in 1803, and was educated at the free school in that town. He was a landscape gardener and garden architect, and had the good fortune early in life to attract the attention of that nobleman of great and varied taste, William Spencer, sixth and late Duke of Devonshire, K.G., who employed him first at Chiswick and then at Chatsworth. The magnificent conservatory at Chatsworth, which covers an acre of ground, and the unrivalled gardens there, are monuments of Paxton's invention and skill. The great act of his life, however, was his coming to the aid of the building committee with his admirable design for the building so successfully erected in Hyde Park for the Great Exhibition of 1851. In acknowledgment of his services in connection with that stupendous undertaking he was knighted in 1851. Sir Joseph Paxton was also the architect of the Crystal Palace, at Sydenham, of now world-wide fame, and he laid out the beautiful gardens there. He was one of the most active directors of the Crystal Palace Company. Sir Joseph Paxton was also distinguished in literature as the editor of the Horticultural Register, the Botanical Magazine, the Cottagers' Calendar, and of the "Botanical Dictionary." He was elected M.P. for Coventry, in 1854, in the Liberal interest, and has continued to represent that borough till his demise. Sir Joseph was fellow of the Horticultural and Linnean Societies, a member of the Society of Arts, and a Knight of St. Wladimir, of Russia. He married, in 1827, Mary, third daughter of Thomas Bown, Esq., of Huntbridge House, Matlock, Derbyshire.

SIR JOHN RICHARDSON, C.B.

Sir John Richardson, C.B., F.R.S., D.C.L., who died, on the 5th inst., at Lancrigg, Crasmere, was the son of Gabriel Richardson, Esq., Provost of Dumfries, by his wife, Ann, daughter of Peter Mundell, Esq. He was born in 1787, and was educated at Dumfries Grammar-school and at the University of Edinburgh, where he graduated M.D. in 1816. He entered the Royal Navy, as Assistant Surgeon, in 1807, and served at the siege of Copenhagen. He was promoted to be Acting Surgeon in the Hercules (74), 1808, in reward for his conduct in the boats of that vessel during a night attack upon a French brig in the Tagus. He also acted in the war with the United States, in Canada and Georgia, as surgeon to the first battalion of Marines. In 1819 he accompanied Sir John Franklin's overland Arctic expedition as surgeon and naturalist, and went again with Sir John in his second expedition, in 1825, and commanded two boats, in which he discovered a passage between the mouths of the Mackenzie and Coppermine rivers. After nearly two years of severe toil, he returned in 1827 and published an account of the part he took in the enterprise; and his narrative was attached to the great work produced by Captain Franklin. He became, in 1838, a Physician to the Fleet, and in 1840 was made an Inspector of Hospitals. He was knighted in 1846. In 1847, in consequence of no tidings coming of the vessels then in the Arctic regions under Sir John Franklin, three expeditions were sent out by the British Government, the command of one of which was given to Sir John Richardson. He started from Montreal in 1848, and returned there in 1849. He published a narrative of his journey in a work entitled "The Arctic Searching Expedition." He was also author of "Fauna Boreali Americana," the "Zoological Appendix" to Captain E. Parry's second voyage; "The Ichthyology of the Voyage of the Erebus, the Terror, and the Sulphur;" the "Fossil Mammals" appended to the Zoology of Captain Kellett's expedition; and of other scientific essays, notes, and papers. He was a Fellow of the Royal Society, and of several other learned bodies. He was made a C.B. in 1850. He married, first, in 1818, Mary, second daughter of William Stiven, Esq., of Leith, which lady died in 1831; secondly, in 1833, Mary, only daughter of John Booth, Esq., of Stickney, which lady died in 1845; and, thirdly, in 1847, Mary, youngest daughter of the late Archibald Fletcher, Esq., of Edinburgh.

ARCHDEACON WOOD.

The Ven. Isaac Wood, M.A., of Newton Hall, Cheshire, and Moreton Hall, Denbighshire, Archdeacon of Chester, whose lamented death occurred on the 7th inst. at Moreton Hall, near Chirk, was son of Isaac Wood, Esq., of Winsford, by his wife Annabella, daughter of Andrew Wilson, Esq., M.D., of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and was grandson of Isaac Wood and his wife Jane, daughter and heiress of James Moreton, Esq., of Church Hill. He was born in 1797, and was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1818, and M.A. in 1822. Having entered into holy orders, he became Vicar of Middlewich, and was made Archdeacon of Chester in 1847. The Ven. Archdeacon married, in 1824, Mary, third daughter of John Nugent, Esq., of Clay Hill, Epsom, Surveyor General of the Customs, and niece of the Right Hon. Edmund Burke, by whom (who died on the 9th of last March) he had four sons and a daughter, of whom the eldest son is Isaac Moreton Wood, Esq., who was born in 1825.

Her Majesty the Queen of Spain has presented to Thomas Bate, coxswain of the Bude Haven life-boat of the Royal National Life-boat Institution, the gold medal of honour for his brave services in aiding, with others to save ten of the crew of the Spanish brig Juanito, which was wrecked during a fearful gale of wind off Bude Haven, in January last.

CHESS.

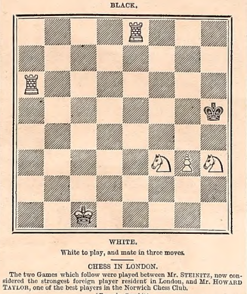
TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W. BOSNING.—1. In the game mentioned you have stated the position incorrectly, and have not numbered the moves. If at move 73 Black had played his King to K B 6th, instead of giving check with the Bishop, he must have won easily. 2. In the problem mentioned your first move is impossible.

C. F. M., Aberdeen.—You will see from the solution that the problem, though easy, was quite accurate.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NO. 1110 (continued).—I. B. S., Diggory, R. R. V., Clarissa, Edward, F. G., Phantom, S. B., Derevon, Fire Plug, Teazer, Van O., Trial, Glasgow; R. S., of Malines; Julio, A. M., Bion, Henry, Boz, Pedro, N. B., R. T. E., A Student, Lionel, Arthur, S. G. R., Q. E. D., A Surgeon, T. Leslie, Francis, V. P., G. Somerset, Peterkin, C. P. C., Locksley, C. S. L., Geraldine, Adelphi, E. M. D., Pedagogue, A Looker-on, Subaltern, are correct. All the others are wrong.

S. T. U.—1. An elaborate analysis of the variation mentioned (the "Mortimer") appeared in the second number of the new magazine, called The Chess World. We must refer you to that article, not having room to give the variation in extenso. 2. We know nothing of the collection of problems referred to.



I. O. U., Peterborough.—You have omitted to indicate the problem by number or by date of the paper, and we know not to which you refer. Be good enough to send the number of the diagram and the moves in full of the second solution.

T. C. D.—If the promoters of the Dublin Chess Congress have the courage and ability to keep the management of affairs in their own hands, and conduct them in accordance with the dictates of fair play and common-sense, they will command a good deal of public support. On the other hand, if they permit themselves to be led by those who have usurped the arrangement of such gatherings of late years in this country, the meeting will probably be a signal failure. Upon one important point we commend to their attention a letter which appeared in this Journal on June 21, 1862.

PROBLEM No. 1112.

By Mr. F. HEALEY.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

The two Games which follow were played between Mr. STEINITZ, now considered the strongest foreign player resident in London, and Mr. HOWARD TAYLOR, one of the best players in the Norwich Chess Club.

(Evans's Gambit)

BLACK (Mr. T.)	WHITE (Mr. S.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q R 4th
6. P to Q 4th	P takes Q P
7. Castles	P takes Q B P
(This defence was frequently played some twenty years back, but it is not commendable. Neither in the Scotch game nor in the Evans's Gambit can the second Pawn be taken without compromising the taker's game.)
8. Q to Q Kt 3rd
(Good; but not so strong as 8. P to K 5th, or, as advised in "Chess Praxis," p. 511, 8. B to Q R 3rd.)
8.	Q to K B 3rd
9. P to K 5th	Q to K Kt 3rd
10. Kt takes Q B P	B takes Kt
(If he had played 10. K Kt to K 2nd, Black's reply would probably have been 11. Q Kt to K 2nd, and, upon White castling, 12. B to Q 3rd.)
11. Q takes B	P to Q Kt 3rd
(Instead of this move we have seen the defending player here move sometimes 11. Q Kt to Q sq, and at others K Kt to K 2nd.)
12. B to Q R 3rd	Kt to K R 3rd
13. B to Q 3rd
(K. R. to K sq looks to us a preferable move.)
13.	Q to K R 4th
14. Kt to Q 4th	B to Q Kt 2nd
15. P to K 6th
(Very well played.)
15.	K B P takes P
16. Kt takes K P	P takes Kt
17. B to Q R 6th
(Finessing overmuch. He would have done much better by playing this Bishop to K 4th. After that move, indeed, the game would have been in his hands.)
17.	Q to Q R 4th
(Very ingenious. A resource quite unlooked for, and quite efficacious.)
18. Q takes K Kt P	Castles on Q side
19. B to Q 6th
(Well conceived.)
19.	Q R takes B
20. Q takes K R (ch)	R to Q sq
21. B takes B (ch)	K takes B
22. Q takes K R P	Kt to K B 4th and ultimately Mr. Steinitz won the game.

Another Game between the same Players.—(Evans's Gambit.)

BLACK (Mr. T.)	WHITE (Mr. S.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q R 4th
6. P to Q 4th	P takes P
7. Castles	P takes P
8. Q to Q Kt 3rd
(See note to this move in the preceding game.)
8.	Q to K B 3rd
9. P to K 5th	Q to K Kt 3rd
10. Q Kt takes P	B takes Kt
11. Q takes B	P to Q Kt 3rd
12. Kt to K Kt 5th	Kt to K R 3rd
13. R to K sq
(This style is too tardy for a gambit. He should rather have marched on boldly with his King's Pawn.)
13.	Castles
14. B to Q 3rd	Q to K R 4th
15. B takes K R P (ch)	K to R sq
16. P to K 6th	B to Q Kt 2nd
17. P takes Q P	P to K B 4th
18. R to K 6th
(The forerunner of a very pretty chain of moves.)
18.	P to K B 5th
19. Q tks K Kt P (ch)	K takes Q
20. B to Q Kt 2nd (ch)	R to K B 3rd
21. B takes R (ch)	K to B sq
22. Q R to K sq	Kt to K Kt 5th
23. R to K 8th (ch)	R takes R
24. P tks R (Queens) (ch)	Q takes Q
25. R takes Q (ch)
(Checking with the Bishop at K Kt 7th would have availed him nothing.)
25.	K takes R
26. B to K Kt 6th (ch)	K to B sq
27. Kt to K 6th (ch)	K to Kt sq and the game was abandoned as a drawn battle.

CHESS IN BERLIN.

Another consultation Game between Messrs. CORDEL and KNORRE and Messrs. BERGELL and NEUMANN.—(Giuoco Piano.)

WHITE (Messrs. C. and K.)	BLACK (Messrs. B. and N.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. Castles	P to Q 3rd
5. P to Q B 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
6. P to Q 4th	P takes P
7. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
8. Kt to Q B 3rd	Castles
9. P to Q 5th	Kt to K 4th
10. Kt takes Kt	P takes Kt
11. B to K Kt 5th	Q to Q 3rd
12. P to K R 3rd	B to Q 2nd
13. K to R sq	P to K R 3rd
14. B to K R 4th	P to K Kt 4th
15. B to K Kt 3rd	K to K R 2nd
16. B to K 2nd	Q R to K sq
17. Q to Q B 2nd	P to Q R 3rd
(Would not the advance of their King's Rook's Pawn have been more to the purpose? The move made appears to be merely lost time).
18. P to K B 4th	K Kts P takes P
19. R takes P	Kt to K Kt sq
20. Q R to K B sq	P to K B 4th
21. K R to K B 3rd	P to K B 5th
22. B to K R 2nd	Kt to K 2nd
23. P to K Kt 4th	Kt to Kt 3rd
24. B to Q 3rd	K to Kt 2nd
(Apprehensive, we suppose, of White's taking the K B Pawn, and, after an exchange of pieces, winning the Queen by the long-threatened check by discovery).
25. Q R to K sq	Kt to K R 4th
26. K R to K B sq	P to K B 6th and White resigned.

The Bristol Times states that Mr. Thomas Arnold, who seceded, a few years ago, to Rome, and was for some time a Professor in Dr. Newman's University at Dublin, has returned to the English Church.

According to a letter from Tiflis, the Russian General Evdokimoff had been defeated, with considerable loss, by the forces of the Khan of Kokan, at a place called Tchimketi.

At Padua, the students recited prayers in the church St. Antoine on the occasion of the anniversary of the death of Count Cavour. In the evening bombs exploded in the theatre.

THE LATE FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE SHREWSRURY AND CHESTER RAILWAY.

THE dreadful accident to one of the Great Western Railway Birkenhead excursion trains returning to London, which ran off the rails at Rednal, on the Shrewsbury and Chester line, about two o'clock in the afternoon of Wednesday week, was recorded in our last Number. The sketch we have engraved for this publication was drawn by one of the passengers very soon after the event. The train consisted of thirty-two carriages and two vans, drawn by two engines. It was going at the rate of at least thirty-five miles an hour, when it came to a place where a green "caution" flag was placed by the side of the line, about a mile and a half from where the final catastrophe occurred. The platelayers were at work half a mile from the caution flag. They had been readjusting the rails and sleepers; the ballast was therefore removed from about the sleepers, and, as the line was consequently in an unsettled condition, it was the duty of the engine-drivers to proceed slowly. The driver of the first engine, William Anderton, who has died of the hurts he received on this occasion, stated before his death that he saw no caution flag; but David Evans, who drove the second engine, did see it; and he thereupon shut off steam, and whistled to Anderton to do the same. The speed of the train was reduced to thirty miles an hour by the time it came up to the platelayers; but this was not enough to save it from going off the rails; at least the engines, with one half of the carriages, went off the rails, as shown in our Illustration. Nine or ten of the passengers were instantly killed, while four or five more received such injuries that they survived but a short time. Numerous, however, as were the deaths, it was a matter of surprise to all who witnessed the wreck that many more were not killed. On the left there lay, first, the engine, which had run some short distance down a siding, torn up the rails and twisted them, ploughed into the field adjoining, and then capsized. Further along lay the tender, on its side. Further along still, towards the front of the train, but away from the main line, lay a first-class carriage, a complete wreck, with several persons underneath it, some evidently not dead. On the right of the train, the side on which the doors were locked (in the hinder part of the train the doors were locked on both sides, and the passengers were obliged to get out at the windows), the other engine lay embedded in a ditch, and immediately behind it there were the splintered remains of a first-class carriage, the pieces piled upon each other as if broken up for firewood. Close beside this again, lying on the down-line, was another first-class carriage, which had been thrown off its wheels and turned over on its side. That any of the passengers here escaped with their lives is a miracle. Several bodies were extricated with great difficulty from beneath the wreck of the first carriage. The other carriages were chiefly, if not all, second and third class, and remained in a line. The first was raised in front by the wheels of some other carriage, and it was left like a house without a front, with all the doors, windows, and boarding torn away in the front and on the left side. The first seat was carried away, but the others remained. Many persons escaped entirely unhurt out of this carriage. Beneath it, however, and under the one adjoining, there was a heart-rending spectacle. A child, apparently three or four years old, lay on its face covered with the mud, with the exception of its legs and hips, which were naked; at its feet lay its mother, and at her side a man with his head completely severed from his body. Another woman and a little girl about ten years old lay dead on the left of the line, terribly blackened and disfigured, and all around were faces streaming with blood; some had broken arms, others broken legs, and many still more severely injured were gathered up and conveyed, on stretchers made of the doors of the broken carriages, to a shady spot in a field adjoining. One man had his cheek laid open, and he walked about, a ghastly spectacle, unable to speak to those who addressed him. Not less than fifty persons were injured more or less. Those killed are William Anderson, engine-driver; Samuel Moreton, stoker; Elizabeth Shaw, of Wolverhampton; Mary Ann Jones, of Bilston; Samuel Hawke, of London; William Edward Owen, of Southampton, a steam-boat engineer; Annie Collinard, of Warrington, a child of nine years; Charles Allen, of London, with his wife and his little boy; George Kent, of Greenwich; and Mr. Hughes, with one or two others. An inquest has been held, and a verdict found of "Accidental Death;" with great blame to the officials of the Great Western Railway Company for not providing better engines and more sufficient break-power; the jury also blame the engine-drivers and platelayers in particular,-the former for neglecting the signals and driving at too great a speed, the latter for neglecting to pack the sleepers so as to make the rails secure for the passage of so heavy a train.

"THE LOST—FOUND."

THE painter of the picture we have engraved on page 592 has shown excellent taste in representing an incident which will appeal to all as the crisis of interest in some pathetic domestic drama; yet without suggesting an absolutely hopeless or purely painful certainty, which, except for a very unmistakable moral purpose, should never be the theme of art, whether in painting, in writing, or on the stage. We may, with all probability, infer that this is the father bursting into the room with outstretched arms, yearning to embrace his lost one; and his travelling coat and spurred, muddy boots seem to testify to his having sought a prodigal child, like him of old, while she was yet a "great way off." But the veil is drawn over the causes which would explain the absence of that beloved and, perhaps, only daughter from a home which would doubtless present a great contrast to the miserable garret, with its squalid furniture and straw pallet, in which she is found. Has she been seduced from that home by some base and perfidious wretch who has not only forsaken her but abandoned her to want and infamy? has she fallen on her knees unable to meet the gaze of that parent whose watchful care and tenderness, bound up with her lifelong recollections, she has repaid with such woeful forgetfulness and cruel ingratitude? and is she even now praying to a heavenly Father that the heart she has wrung with bitterest grief and shame may still be not quite shut towards her? If so, what will her feelings be when she sees the compassion, pity, and forgiveness in the familiar face of him whose love time and wrong cannot change? Questions like these will naturally arise before this picture; and such an interpretation of it can have but a salutary effect. But still, as we have said, there is no absolute certainty of guilt or shame. That the poor wanderer has not been long lost seems evident from the recognition of the family dog. But it is possible to conceive that an unjust imprisonment for political opinions, or social misfortunes, or some other untoward circumstance has severed the father from the daughter whom he thus finds praying for his return. We must own, however, that the expression of the father, and the gesture of the girl's hands, and the situation generally favour the first inferences. Nevertheless, still the father may have arrived in time to save his daughter from dishonour. A margin of uncertainty such as we find here is always a very interesting attribute in the conception of the subject of a picture. It seems to enlarge the scope of art by affording outlets into the illimitable fields of imagination. The only point to which it remains to draw attention—as, however, again indicating a basis rather for conjecture than for the certainty—is that the costumes seem to be those of the last century, a circumstance that may suggest an analogy between the painter's representation and a scene in one of Goldsmith's novels. But the resemblance is not such as to diminish the originality of Mr. Herrick's conception, or greater than might be found to subsist between the picture and the denouement of many novels, dramas, and poems.

MONUMENT TO THE LATE GENERAL BRUCE.

BY J. H. FOLEY, R.A.

WE give an Illustration of the group of sculpture, designed by Mr. Foley, R.A., for the monument to be erected in Dunfermline Abbey, Scotland, to the memory of the late General Bruce; the sculptor having received from Mrs. Bruce a commission to execute this work. The form of the monument is that of a tomb, 10 ft. 6 in. in length, in the front of which are bas-reliefs, in three compartments, illustrative of the General's journey to the East (in his capacity of governor to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales), where he unfortunately contracted the illness which resulted in his death. The tomb is to be surmounted by the group shown in our Engraving.

"THE LOST FOUND," BY W. S. HERRICK, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

"THE CAT'S PORTRAIT."

MUCH that we have said of M. Langlé's "Reaper's Returning Home" might be repeated in connection with the picture by M. Duverger, "The Cat's Portrait." Here is a subject that many of our English painters of domestic and humble life would have vulgarised by comic gesticulation and funny contretemps. The cat would, probably, have been represented as more or less refractory, and the artist as more or less in despair. But M. Duverger depicts the incident he has chosen in the most matter-of-fact and unforced manner possible, leaving it in all its simplicity to appeal to us as it may, satisfied with doing his best faithful to what he, doubtless, actually saw, and with having represented the matter with the best resources of his art appropriate thereunto.

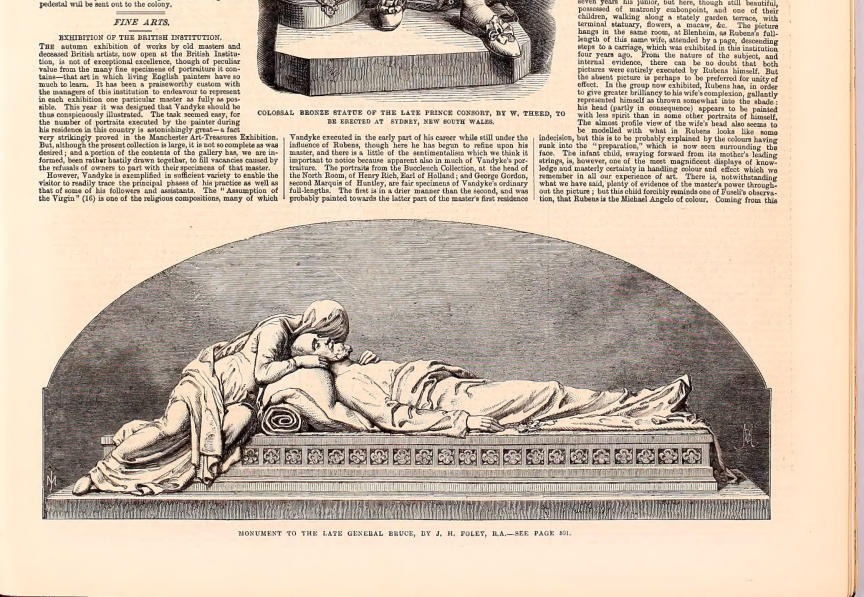
The interior into which the painter introduces us is the reception and dining room, the parlour, kitchen, and as it proves, also the studio of a French cottager or cabaret. The bright culinary utensils are ranged on the shelves or hang about on the walls, and, standing out in the room is the inevitable stove, so little consonant with English notions of comfort. The young genius of the family, an embryo painter en blouse—and let us recollect that from similar small beginnings have arisen some of the greatest artists of all ages and nations—is seated on a low rush-bottomed stool, with a portfolio at his side, drawing-board on knees, and pencil in hand, taking the cat's portrait "from the life." Intent as he may be on his difficult task, his interest is hardly more absorbed than that of the connoisseur in shirt-sleeves, who, bending over him, and at once performing the function of public and critic, examines with suspended judgment the artist's progress. Taking the place of the portrait-painter's "throne," and the inquisitorial instruments of torture of the photographer, a little sister suggests and poses the artist's subject (of which, for though Pussy, who has perhaps most reason to object to the operation, is quiet enough, the little girl holding her cannot entirely restrain her curiosity to see the progress of the wonderful portrait. Voilà tout: yet how truthfully, simply, and with what charming unaffectedness, is this little incident represented! We have only to add that in this picture M. Duverger nearly approaches his master, Edouard Frère. Like his master, Duverger proves his sympathy with the peasant-folk from whom he draws all his subjects, by living and painting among them. It is pretty well known that Frère has long considered and worked at Écouen, a village not far from Paris. Although out of the capital, his studio, like those of other eminent French painters, is always open to scholars and visitors, the same could be said of our best English painters), and in it has been trained, among others, Charles Frère his son; Duverger, the painter of this picture, and the best of his pupils, Thom, Paul Soyer, and, if we are rightly informed, Mr. Boughton, a promising young English painter.

COLOSSAL STATUE OF THE LATE PRINCE CONSORT FOR SYDNEY.

THE colossal bronze statue of the late Prince Consort, designed by Mr. Theed, R.A., and executed under his superintendence, at the command of her Majesty the Queen, for a monument to the lamented husband in the town of Coburg, has more lately been reproduced for the monument to be erected by public subscription in the capital of New South Wales, the late Duke of Newcastle, when Secretary of State for the Colonies, having been requested by the committee of subscribers or municipal authorities of Sydney to select the design which he should consider superior. We give an illustration of this fine work of sculpture. The statue itself is 16ft. in height. It was cast at Sir Gurney, by Messrs. Lenz and Herzbli, of that city, and is considered a remarkable specimen of casting. A suitable granite pedestal will be sent out to the colony.

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE BRITISH INSTITUTION.



THE autumn exhibition of works by old masters and deceased British artists, now open at the British Institution, is not of exceptional excellence, though of peculiar value from the many fine specimens of portraiture it contains—that art in which living English painters have so much to learn. It has been a praiseworthy custom with the managers of this institution to endeavour to represent in each exhibition one particular master as fully as possible. This year it was designed that Vandyke should be thus conspicuously illustrated. The task seemed easy, for the number of portraits executed by the painter during his residence in this country is astonishingly great—a fact very strikingly proved in the Manchester Art-Treasures Exhibition. But, although the present collection is large, it is not so complete as was desired; and a portion of the contents of the gallery has, we are informed, been rather hastily drawn together, to fill vacancies caused by the refusals of owners to part with their specimens of that master.

However, Vandyke is exemplified in sufficient variety to enable the visitor to readily trace the principal phases of his practice as well as that of some of his followers and assistants. The "Assumption of the Virgin" (16) is one of the religious compositions, many of which Vandyke executed in the early part of his career while still under the influence of Rubens, though here he has begun to refine upon his master, and there is a little of the sentimentalism which we think it important to notice because apparent also in much of Vandyke's portraiture. The portraits from the Bucclench Collection, at the head of the North Room, of Henry Rich, Earl of Holland; and George Gordon, second Marquis of Huntley, are fair specimens of Vandyke's ordinary full-lengths. The first is in a drier manner than the second, and was probably painted towards the latter part of the master's first residence in this country, but both have a general resemblance to Vandyke's numerous works of the class in the selfconscious pose, the rather affected delicacy and disposition of the hands, and the unnatural smallness of the feet. Although in technical qualities Vandyke was perhaps the most complete of all the great portrait-painters, we must not be blind to the fact that, in his works, there are the germs of what, favoured by the licentiousness of the Restoration, developed into the artificiality and meretriciousness of Lely, reappeared in the flimsy, "genteel" style of Lawrence, and still depraves the taste of fashionable painters and patrons. Many of Vandyke's portraits somewhat lack the manly, unconscious dignity of the great Italians, and the unmistakable honesty of the great Northern masters. That Vandyke on visiting Italy changed his style in emulation of Titian, is obvious in his Genoese portraits; but, on his return, the artistic power and richness of those noble works are replaced by a grayer and more "ornamental" manner. The fine full-length of James Stuart, Duke of Richmond (21), contributed by the Duke of Buccleuch, and two large anonymous groups, sent by the Hon. R. Curzon, remind us of Vandyke's portraits executed while under Italian influence; but the two last are so blackened, and have apparently been so much injured, as not to admit, in their present position, a decided opinion on their genuineness. In bust and half-length portraits, the faults—probably often chargeable to Vandyke's assistants—are not so evident: witness the broadly-painted Lord Treasurer Portland, and Dudley, Lord North. Deserving also to be placed beside these are the quiet and unostentatious portrait of Lord Baltimore (36), attributed to Mytens; and the group of Prince Rupert and his younger brother, Prince Maurice, ascribed to Gerard Honthorst, though differing from the usual Caravaggiesa style of that artist, of which "Peter Denying Christ" (64) is an example. But the most successful imitator and follower of Vandyke was the English painter Dobson, whom the generous foreign master sought out and introduced to King Charles I., by whom he died in the early age of thirty-six. He is represented here by a fine portrait, belonging to Lord Warwick, of the gallant Marquis of Montrose (48), the name who was beheaded at Edinburgh in 1650, and who appears on the gallows in a fresco, by Mr. Ward, at Westminster. It is almost impossible to distinguish this from the best work by Vandyke, and there are many other portraits indisputably by Dobson, justly treasured in the private galleries of England, and not a whit less admirable. Some of the contributions bearing the name of Vandyke, not yet noticed, must be considered as replicas executed in the master's studio mainly by his pupils and assistants, or as later copies by his followers. Among each we should class the rather coarse, unflattering half-length of Charles, with the mark of the Garter encircled on his mantle, so inferior to the Windsor, Louvre, and other portraits, but, perhaps, a repetition of the portrait, supposed to have been destroyed in the fire at Whitehall, from which we taken a well-known engraving; and, likewise, Lord Bayning's repetition of the celebrated Windsor group of the children of Charles I.—the future Charles II. standing beside an immense mastiff, and James II. an infant in the cradle; together with the later companion copies of Charles I. and one of the Royal children, and Queen Henrietta Maria and one of the infant Princesses. An unfinished study, by Vandyke, of the heads of two nuns (30) leaves a deeper impression of the master's vigour and boldness of hand than the finished portraits, and is extremely instructive to artists.

Rubens, that other and greater Flemish portrait-painter, but who in all probability is still more rarely seen in works by his own hand, is worthily represented in the Duke of Marlborough's famous full-length portrait group of the painter himself, his second wife, Helena Fourment, thirty-seven years his junior, but here, though still beautiful, possessed of matronly embonpoint, and one of their children, walking along a stately garden terrace, with terminal statuary, flowers, a mascaw, &c. The picture hangs in the same room, at Blenheim, as Reubens's full-length of this same wife, attended by a page, descending steps to a carriage, which was exhibited at this institution four years ago. From the nature of the subject, and internal evidence, there can be no doubt that both pictures were entirely executed by Rubens himself. But the absent picture is perhaps to be preferred for unity of effect. In the group now exhibited, Rubens has, in order to give greater brilliancy to his wife's complexion, artificially represented himself as thrown somewhat into the shade: his head (partly in consequence) appears to be painted with less spirit than in some other portraits of himself. The almost profile view of the wife's head also seems to be modelled with what in Rubens looks like some indecision, but this is to be probably explained by the colours having sunk into the "preparation," which is now seen surrounding the face. The infant child, swaying forward from its mother's leading strings, is, however, one of the most magnificent displays of knowledge and masterly certainty in handling colour and effect which we remember in all our experience of art. There is, notwithstanding what we have said, plenty of evidence of the master's power throughout the picture; but this child forcibly reminds one of Fuseli's observation, that Rubens is the Michael Angelo of colour. Coming from this great work, which we should add was presented to the great Duke of Marlborough by the city of Brussels, it is not difficult to see that the picture over the fireplace in the same room is but "of the school" of Rubens. The conventionally-draped figures therein—the man appearing as a painter—are also called "Rubens and his Wife;" but should doubtless be named Pausias and Glycera—Pausias, the Greek painter, and Glycera, the flower-girl of whom he was enamoured, and whose portrait he painted. The too-obtrusive flowers are probably painted by Breughel.

COLOSSAL BRONZE STATUE OF THE LATE PRINCE CONSORT, BY W. THEED, TO BE ERECTED AT SYDNEY, NEW SOUTH WALES.

MONUMENT TO THE LATE GENERAL BRUCE, BY J. H. FOLEY, R.A.—SEE PAGE 601.

Rembrandt is only exemplified in a small picture of a homely-looking girl in bed, pretending to screen herself from observation with the bed-curtain—a subject that has suggested the gratuitous title of "Rembrandt's Mistress" (109). The picture is in a dirty condition, and scarcely of average quality; yet bears the stamp of Rembrandt's genius in the bold handling and magic touches, the rich texture, and the inimitable chiaroscuro. A picture of an old rabbi (19), by Phillip (?) Solomon de Koning, has the fine scheme of light and shade (minus some transparency) and the truth of characterisation of the painter's master, Rembrandt, but not his rich creamy impasto and consummately-dextrous brushwork. By Eckhout, another of Rembrandt's best scholars, there is a grotesquely Dutch version of "Ruth in the Field of Boaz." Of analogous character is Cornelius Schut's large picture of the "Adoration of the Magi."

Among Dutch and Flemish painters of cabinet pictures none are seen here to so much advantage as Metzu and Jan Steen. By Metzu, one of the most refined of the Netherlandish genre painters, there is a pair of companion pictures, silvery pure in tone; illusive, almost, in their truthful light and shade; and as free as they are finished in execution. Together they suggest a story. In the one a gentleman is seated at a table before an open window, absorbed in writing a letter; in the pendent picture a lady is not less intently engaged reading, as we must infer, this same letter; while, to beguile the time, the servant-maid who has brought the letter and waits for an answer draws back the curtain from before a seapiece hanging on the wall. Of two pictures attributed to Jan Steen, "The Drained Cask" and "The Pancake Girl," the latter is immeasurably the better. The incidents in this last are of Hogarthian common life and coarse humour, without Hogarth's satiric or moral intention. The cruelty or gluttony of a family of boys and girls—two impish boys tormenting a cat, and the other children preparing or swallowing pancakes or porridge—is not an edifying spectacle. And yet the representation derives rare artistic interest from the wonderfully lifelike expressions, the vivid relief of the figures against a light background, and the astonishing lightness and certainty of the manipulation. An exquisitely-finished little picture of "St. Francis Receiving the Stigmata" (41), ascribed to Van Eyck, and unquestionably of the school, deserves the closest scrutiny. As regards the more ordinary Dutch and Flemish painters to be found in almost every collection, it will suffice to mention some works of salient interest in subject, or which afford a representative standard of merit—such, for instance, as W. Vandevelde's large picture (140) of the victory gained off Lowestoft by the English fleet, under the Duke of York, over the Dutch fleet, under Van Tromp; and "A Calm" (32), a more familiar subject, by the same painter; other good marine pieces, by Vander Capella (57) and Backhuysen (47), with, however, the waves in the latter, as Mr. Ruskin says, "en papilotte," and in a state of inflation from beneath, as in a storm on the stage; examples of Teniers's three styles in "The Village Festival" (5) with the array of simmering cauldrons and rows of expectant peasants; an interior (in the painter's harder manner), with a man cleaning an old wheel-lock musquetoon (31), and—most mature and brilliant in handling—the "Playing at Cards" (11); Cuyp's "Landscape, with Cattle and Figures" (106), with its splendid breadth and glow of sunlight, and a similar subject and effect by Both (49); two of Ruysdael's always impressive or solemn landscapes (7 and 28); "A Hawking Party" (9), an elaborate specimen of Wouvermans; "The Duet" (44), by Gonzales Coques, one of the best Dutch painters of "conversation pieces;" the laboriously finished "Stall with Fish, Vegetables, &c." (3), by Mieris—well calculated to excite vulgar wonder by ropes of onions, and heaps of winkles, painted much better than the faces; Hondekoeter's "Poultry," Weenix's dead stag, &c., both on a scale suited to decorate the Islington Agricultural Hall; and Van Huysum's very choice flower-piece (No. 36); "The Head of a Man" (104), by F. Hals—the comical, dissipated-looking physiognomy of the painter himself, we believe; a fine specimen of J. Ostade (60); and fair samples of Hobbema and Berghem.

The Spanish and French schools are very sparsely represented by a spirited and vigorous but sketchy portrait of "A Spanish Princess" (? the Infanta), by Velasquez; and two unimportant pictures in the style of Murillo, by some inferior Claudes, and "The Surprise" (79), by Greuze, a little work objectionable in conception but of naïve beauty and tender purity in the flesh tints.

In Italian art of the best period the exhibition is also very deficient; and those early works which merely illustrate the archæology of painting may be very cursorily noticed. "The Madonna Enthroned," signed by Margaritone d'Arezzo, which Mr. Wornum, of the National Gallery, purchased for a very trifling sum at Christie's the other day, is curious as showing what, without this hideous voucher, would be the inconceivable degradation to which art had sunk six centuries ago under Byzantine influence, and it is interesting as affording a measure whereby to estimate the step in advance made by Cimabue, and without which measure it would not be easy to understand. The head of our Saviour at the pillar (89), by Antonello da Messina has much technical interest, affording as it does a highly-wrought example of the oil method of the Van Eycks, which Antonello was the medium of introducing into Italy. We pass by several pre-Raphaelite pictures, as either of doubtful attribution or not fully representative of the affluents or main stream of Italian art history, and pause before the "Musical Party" (23). By some connoisseurs this picture of a youth accompanying on his lute two maidens singing is considered worthy of the great Venetian Giorgione; by others it is deemed an example of Palma. We confess we inclined decidedly to the latter opinion on seeing the work in Lord Northwick's collection; and coming to it again confirms our original impression. The exaggerated yellow tone is frequently found in Giorgione's follower, but is too common in Venetian art to be adduced in evidence for either. The subject naturally lends itself to romantic and idyllic suggestions; but the sentiment is not consistently carried out by the painter in the ugly commonplace homesteads in the background. Above all, we cannot credit Giorgione with the extremely weak drawing and painting of the heads. The picture has been transferred from panel to canvas, and, no doubt, suffered much at various times; but enough remains to prove that, if this be the work of Giorgione, nearly all the few pictures which have hitherto been generally ascribed to him must have been from another hand; and Palma is often by much the better workman. The "St. John" (77), by Bassano, is a large and favourable example of the later Italian conventionally religious art. The decline of the true religious feeling of the earlier schools is also shown in the unsuitable theatrical gestures and expressions of a small Pietà (45), by Ludovico Caracci—in other respects a choice example of the eclectic schools. The true nobility of Italian portraiture—its perfect fidelity to nature without, on the one hand, the ignoble insensibility to beauty of the Dutch, or, on the other, the affectation of elegance or technical display chargeable even to some of the great Flemish and Spanish painters—is exemplified in the full-length of a boy (91), probably by Paul Veronese; and in a very manly and solid half-length of "The Earl of Pembroke" (85), by Barroccio, a painter whose works of another description betray the decline of Italian art. With the mention of several Italian views by Canaletto, and an affected "Sleeping Cupid," in Guido's third or grey manner; and a small painting on vellum, by Giulio Clovio, the best of the Italian miniatori, we close our survey of the foreign schools.

Our review of the works of the deceased British painters must be postponed till next week.

THE PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION.

It may well appear not a little surprising that, after struggling on for ten years, the annual photographic exhibition can no longer maintain an independent existence; and that, after removing from place to place almost every year seeking a new home, it now appears as a modest adjunct to the Architectural Exhibition in Conduit-street. When we think of the enormous extension, both of the practice of, and demand for, photography; when we recollect the varied applications of the art, and that it is now cultivated by high and low at home and abroad; by an army of amateurs, as well as by professionals; by ladies and men of rank, as well as by the intelligent mechanics who contribute to industrial exhibitions; that it has a literature of its own and supports several journals; and that there is hardly a home in the three kingdoms without a sun picture of some sort; it does, we say, appear remarkable that a self-supporting exhibition cannot be established. Yet for some years, we believe, the receipts from the exhibition have not equalied the expenses; and the last and present exhibitions especially have been very inadequately representative of the progress of the art in various directions. Doubtless some blame must be attached to the management of these untoward results. The repeated alterations of the place and season of exhibition have alone been sufficient cause for numbers of the general public overlooking the show altogether. But the body of photographers must also be charged with unaccountable and, we suspect, illiberal neglect of a great means of advancing their art, and securing it a definite and respectable status.

A new complaint to be made this year is the absence of a catalogue. It is true that the title, method, and name of executant are affixed to each contribution. But, though this innovation is so far entirely commendable, it does not supersede the uses of a catalogue to those who wish to make comparisons and preserve a record. A more serious deficiency, however, is, as we have already intimated, the absence of examples of some new processes, of several valuable applications of the art, and of some of its most skilful practitioners. The only specimen of the too-much-vaunted Wothleytype is completely, and we need not add tastelessly, obscured by colour. There are no specimens of the photozincography and photolithography employed by Colonel Sir Henry James, in conjunction with the methods of chromo-carbon printing developed by Captain Scott, for the multiplication of copies of the "Ordnance Survey," "Domesday Book," &c. Some other processes of heliography affording means for using printers' ink and carbon printing are likewise not represented. In this exhibition surely there should also be specimens of the admirable photograpby from the Farnley Hall Turners, by Messrs. Caldesi, and other recent photographs after the same master; together with sheets of the photographic facsimiles of Shakspeare's first folios. Photosculpture, "crystal cubes," and other useful and ornamental applications of photography would also contribute to give the display a more popular character. As regards photosculpture, however, we may repeat what we said on its first appearance—namely, that it is not likely to win any but most qualified admiration from persons with a just conception of the nature of sculpture as a fine art. Moreover, until photosculptures are produced in London, as at Paris, by the aid of a large number of simultaneous photographs from different points of view, and not merely from a half dozen of such photographs, we shall not be disposed to accord to the invention even the moderate amount of credit it may fairly claim when properly carried out. It is utterly impossible for a photosculpture from a small number of views of a figure or object to have the actual or closely-approximate photographic accuracy claimed for the invention, whatever the degree of resemblance it may (but is not likely to) derive from the generally inferior sculptors employed to round off the ridges left after using the pantograph. The peculiar value of photography in copying architecture and sculpture should be more fully illustrated in such fine studies as those of the Architectural Photographic Society (though even these are surpassed by the French), and in such examples as have been on former occasions contributed by the Stereoscopic Company and by Messrs. Thurston Thompson, Lake Price, Dixon Piper, and others. We miss, too, from this exhibition the exquisite "studies" of the Viscountess Hawarden, the artistic "out-of-focus" portraits of painters by Mr. Winfield, the beautiful vignettes of Mr. T. R. Williams, and the productions of some proficients in the management of figure-subjects.

However, notwithstanding these drawbacks—notwithstanding that the exhibition is far from being so comprehensive as we think the society ought to strive to make it, yet it is very interesting and in many ways instructive. The great discovery of the year is Mr. Wharton Simpson's new method of printing with the collodio-chloride of silver, and it is here exemplified (we wish it had been more fully) in three or four diverse tones of colour, one lane scene in a bistre tone being marvellously delicate and aerial. The process is as simple as it is beautiful; and, to Mr. Simpson's great honour, it is presented to photographers at large as common property unfettered by restrictions of any kind. The principle of the process is founded on the possibility of suspending chloride of silver in collodion in such a fine state of subdivision as to constitute something very nearly resembling a solution—a chemical fact so unexpected as to excite the surprise of every member of the Photographic Society present on its announcement.

The nearest approach to art, or rather the most bold and successful application of the principles of fine-art to photography, will be found in several portraits of literary men and painters, and studies from women and children, intended as illustrations of "Faith," "Hope," "Charity," &c., by Miss Julia Cameron. These photographs are "out of focus;" but, for the most part, not extravagantly so, like some former works by this lady. We are disposed to think that some of their softness of outline, breadth, and (as we might almost say) their apparent lifelike capability of movement is obtained—so general and equalised are these qualities—by some mechanical contrivance other than by simple manipulation with the lenses. At all events, these attempts by scientific means to imitate nature not only as she is, but as we see her, afford rare pleasure to artists, and irrefragably establish many leading principles of art which have been ignored even by a certain class of painters themselves. How it is that these principles have not been more generally adopted by portrait photographers we are at a loss to understand. How it is, above all, that greater attention is not paid to lighting, we cannot conceive. Light, instead of being the greatest friend is, we verily believe, the greatest enemy to the mass of photographers: and until we see three fourths of their glass houses bricked up they will never be able to secure the one great charm of art within their reach, the broad, simple, and regulated chiaroscuro of Rembrandt, Correggio, and Velasquez. These productions by Miss Cameron, a portrait composition by Mr. Twyman, with two or three portraits by Mr. H. P. Robinson, one or two by Claudet, a few vignettes, and a solar camera enlargement of the head of Tennyson by Mr. Mayall, are among the few figure-subjects here which have any very decided art-value in their lighting; and the remark can apply in very limited degree to vignettes. The portrait composition by Mr. Twyman, just mentioned, represents a musical club, "Our Society," as it is called. The various members are well arranged; but what is more remarkable is the very diverse gradations of tone and degrees of definiteness with which they appear, according to their relative position—variations that are excellent in intention, though carried somewhat too far. But this, like all photographs produced from "positives" joined together from several "negatives," is open to the charge of violating our faith in the understood, or what should be the understood, conditions of photographic representation. The same objection applies, in a more limited degree, to Mr. Robinson's "picture compositions," of which the most noteworthy is "The Lady of Shalott." After making this deduction we must, however, admit that Mr. Robinson's contributions are, as usual, pre-eminent for artistic feeling in idea, arrangement, breadth, selection of models, and accessories, combined with manipulative skill. But the most curious examples from more than one negative, and the most successful in their concealment of all traces of joining, are the "doubles" or "Siamese" photographs of Mr. Gill, in which we see a man shaking hands with himself, or drinking to himself, or squaring up to himself, a little girl wheeling herself along in a perambulator, and such like supernatural phenomena. The more ordinary "ghost trick" in photography, of which there are examples here, was noticed on a former occasion. Several beautiful subjects have been obtained by Mr. Rouch from the statuary and flowers in a handsome conservatory. Much taste is displayed by Mr. S. Thompson in his vignette "book illustrations."

We have given warm commendation to some photographs of the face and figure that appear to us to indicate artistic knowledge or feeling, because, without a certain amount of artistic treatment, photographs, more especially of the face, are, from various imperfections of the process, false to our impressions and destructive of the beauty of nature. But it is not to be concealed that there are many classes of subject in which any such treatment, or anything short of the utmost sharpness and accuracy of which photography is susceptible, would be wholly out of place. It must also be admitted that photography is never more legitimately employed than as a scientific record, wholly independent of art. Its value when so employed is indicated, for instance, in the photographs by Mr. How of numerous microscopic organisms and structures. It will be readily understood that applications of photographs such as this must be an immense assistance to chemistry, medicine, geology, and many branches of scientific inquiry. The photographs also by Mr. Bedford of buildings, sites, and scenes in the East are unsurpassed for delicacy and multiplicity of details, and have therefore the quality which in photographic representations of such subjects is of primary importance. On the other hand, Mr. Walker's photographs of more familiar scenes are also to be highly esteemed, because, while they have less detail where detail is of less interest, they are equally records of natural effect, although they render paramount those broad gradations which it is the aim of the artist to secure. The contributions of the two last-named exhibitors are instructively placed side by side, and evince how entirely distinct may be the works of two photographers—distinct, almost, as their several handwritings, or as the styles of different artists. Mr. Mudd, the results of whose manipulations lie, for the most part, between these two last, is represented in several admirable examples. The highest praise is also due to the Indian photographs of Messrs. Macfarlane and Buxton, their purity and beauty being the more remarkable on account of the greater difficulties imposed on the photographer by the climate. Some instantaneous stereographs, by Mr. Blanchard, of seaside views, with clouds and breaking waves; and a series of photographs of the animals in the Zoological Society's Gardens, by Messrs. Melhuish and Hayes, exemplify two of the many useful applications of the more rapid processes.

The carbon process of Mr. Swan we should have mentioned before as a novelty promising most valuable results. It may be remembered that we last year spoke in high terms of this process of printing (in which indestructible carbon takes the place of always more or less fugitive silver); but we spoke with some reservation, because the process was only illustrated in landscapes, not in portraiture. This year, however, there is a portrait, and we must say that it is the best example of the employment of carbon we have seen. Though unnecessarily black, and still lacking the extreme delicacy of a silver print, we have never yet seen the gradations and modelling of flesh so tenderly rendered by the material. Mr. Pouncey, who claims to be the originator of carbon printing, exhibits some examples; but, as these are prepared for enamelling, they are not fair specimens of his method. By-the-way, there are some beautiful monochrome and also several coloured photographic enamels. Lastly, Mr. Burgess exhibits specimens of ordinary printing on a material he calls "eburneum," resembling in its soft tone and semi-transparent texture the finest ivory. The material is, we believe, gelatine, opalised, in a state of fusion, with whitelead.

An important addition has been made to the Exhibition of French and Flemish pictures, Pall-mall, in a large picture by Rosa Bonheur. It represents a family of red deer, consisting of a stag and several hinds and fawns, crossing an elevated treeless plateau in the Forest of Fontainebleau, called "Les Longs Rochers," from a few rocks which alone break the monotonous level. The effect is of quiet, cool, grey daylight just after rain; a few pools having collected on the generally arid, rocky, and thin soil. The interest is almost wholly confined to the animals, who trot along as usual with the stag ahead. He has suddenly stopped, sniffing danger. The oldest hind alone has partaken of his alarm; the others, with their fawns, follow more or less incurious. Nothing can be more simple or less affected than this picture throughout; nothing could be more subtle in observation and expression of the forms, character, and habits of the animal represented. One of the least pretentious of the artist's work in treatment, we take it to be a consummate example of that perfect art which conceals itself.

There is a class of artists, ready workmen, with a showy, taking style, and apt at rendering a tolerable likeness, but with no pretension to possess the highest artistic powers, who are commissioned by print-publishers to execute pictures of state ceremonials, popular events, gatherings of celebrities, and so forth, which (never seen at the Academy exhibition) seem obviously intended chiefly to furnish a salable engraving. Among such painters Mr. Jerry Barrett has occupied a more than ordinarily prominent, and, we must add, respectable, position. Various works by this artist must be widely known to the public; but a very large picture of "A Drawingroom in the Reign Queen Victoria," now exhibiting at Mr. Hogarth's, in the Haymarket, is by much the best we have seen. The lady who is represented as being "presented" on this occasion, and who, kneeling, is in the act of kissing her Majesty's hand, is the Hon. Miss Pitt, now the Marchioness of Carmarthen. Two other débutantes bearing on their arms the long trains which have been gathered up by the gentlemen-in-waiting are retiring round the contracted, awkward, horseshoe-shaped avenue alone afforded by the inadequate accommodation of the Throne-room in St. James's Palace. The presentation furnished the opportunity of introducing portraits of the Queen and the late Prince, the Prince and Princess of Wales, other members of the Royal family, and about fifty of the most illustrious personages of the realm, representing, with gentlemen and ladies in waiting, the Corps Diplomatique, &c., the British Court. It is but simple justice to say that the picture has all the requisites for furnishing a good engraving, that it is very well coloured, and that it is especially commendable for breadth and unity of effect.

Twenty-one water-colour drawings of Alpine scenery are on view at the German Gallery, New Bond-street, in the room containing the large and admirable series of Indian drawings, by Mr. Simpson, and which has received numerous additions of interest since our notice. The Alpine drawings are by Mr. Elijah Walton, an artist who has made a considerable reputation by his oil pictures of similar subjects. We must leave to the members of the Alpine Club to vouch for the truth of the drawings of the higher peaks; we can only repeat a doubt we have already expressed, whether the scarcely paintable phenomena of such altitudes afford a profitable field for art. We may, however, warmly eulogise the representations of some of the intervening valleys, which come more within the range of ordinary experience. Praise is also due to the command of artistic resource, which is everywhere apparent. The drawings are to be chromo-lithographed by Messrs. Day and Son.

Messrs. Marion and Son, of Soho-square, have published a very fine series of more than thirty photographs, by Mr. Thurston Thompson, from the Turner pictures in the National Gallery. Some of them are wonderfully successful in giving, not only the broad masses of light and shade of the originals, but also much of the tenderness and atmosphere for which so many of Turner's works are remarkable. The series includes some of the most masterly productions of the great painter, ranging from 1803 to 1846. As studies for the artist they are invaluable, and as choice examples of art they must be equally acceptable to the general public.

Mr. W. D. Kennedy, an artist with a fine eye for colour and a true feeling for art generally, but with something of that "fatal facility" which rather disappoints than fulfils the great expectations to which it gives rise, died on the 2nd inst., at his residence in Soho-square. He was born at Dumfries, in Scotland, June 16, 1813. He won the highest prize at the Royal Academy—viz., the gold medal and the travelling studentship. From Italy, whither he went in 1840, he brought back the large collection of sketches which have furnished the long series of semi-fanciful and elegant but somewhat slight pictures, generally combining landscape and figures, with which his name is associated. By the more discerning his art-faculty was always highly esteemed; and in private life he was, we believe, generally beloved. He survived his elder and only brother, Colonel J. D. Kennedy, but a few days. The painter's remaining works, with his fine collection of etchings, prints, &c., will be disposed of shortly by Messrs. Christie and Manson.

The Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, widower of Princess Anna of Hesse, has been betrothed to Princess Alexandrine, daughter of Prince Albert of Prussia.

The crops in Ireland are reported from all quarters to be progressing most satisfactorily. Potatoes, hay, wheat, flax, and oats are all in a forward state, and the most beautiful weather continues throughout the island.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

ALEC FORBES OF HOWGLEN. By GEORGE MACDONALD, M.A. 3 vols.
MISS CAREW. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS, Author of "Barbara's History." 3 vols.
VIOLET OSBORNE. By LADY EMILY PONSONBY.
A FAITHFUL WOMAN. By Author of Cousin Geoffrey.
ROSE AYLMER'S HOME. 3 vols.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

INTERESTING NEW WORKS.

THE LIFE OF JOSIAH WEDGWOOD; from his Private Correspondence and Family Papers. By ELIZA METEYARD. Dedicated to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone. Vol. I., 8vo, with upwards of 100 Illustrations. 21s.
BRIGAND LIFE IN ITALY. By Count MAFFEI. "Two volumes of interesting research."—Times.
YACHTING ROUND THE WEST OF ENGLAND. By the Rev. A. G. L. ESTRANGE, R.T.Y.C. 8vo. Illustrated. 15s.
IMPRESSIONS OF LIFE AT HOME AND ABROAD. By Lord EUSTACE CECIL. 8vo. 14s.
HISTORIC PICTURES. By BAILLIE COCHRANE, M.P. "Two entertaining volumes."—Times.
ADVENTURES AMONG THE DYAKS OF BORNEO. By F. BOYLE, F.R.G.S. 8vo. With Illustrations. 15s.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

ELEGANT GIFT-BOOK. Second Edition, now ready, with Frontispiece by F. Gilbert, toned paper, crown 8vo, price 6s.,

BEAUTIES OF TROPICAL SCENERY, LYRICAL SKETCHES, AND LOVE-SONGS. With Notes. By R. N. DUNBAR.
"This is a charming volume; the poems are full of vitality, and rich, varied beauties."—Morning Post.
"The love-songs are worthy of Thomas Moore."—Critic.
"It is adorned with a delicious frontispiece."—Illustrated Times.
London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

Now ready, 8vo, cloth, with numerous Illustrations, from Original Sketches, drawn on Wood by R. P. Leitch, and engraved by J. D. Cooper and W. J. Linton, with New Maps, showing the Route, price 21s.,

THE NORTH-WEST PASSAGE BY LAND; being the History of an Expedition from the Atlantic to the Pacific, through British Territory, by one of the Northern Passes in the Rocky Mountains.
By VISCOUNT MILTON, F.R.G.S., F.G.S., &c., and W. B. CHEADLE, B.A., M.B. Cantab., F.R.G.S.
CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, London, E.C.

CHEAP EDITIONS.
This day, at all Booksellers' and Railway Stations,

CAPTAIN HALL'S LIFE WITH THE ESQUIMAUX. 100 Illustrations. Price 7s. 6d.
CHARLES READE'S HARD CASH. 6s.
WILKIE COLLINS'S QUEEN OF HEARTS. 2s. 6d.
LOST SIR MASSINGBERD. 2s. 6d.
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Milton House, Ludgate-hill.

NOTICE.—On Wednesday, the 20th instant, at every Library.

SELVAGGIO. A Story of Italian Country Life. By the Author of "Mary Powell." One volume.
THE GAYWORTHYS. Two volumes.
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Milton House, Ludgate-hill.

Published this day, price 6s., post 8vo, cloth,

SPEECHES AND ADDRESSES by THE HON. THOMAS DARCY M'GEE, one of the Members for the city of Montreal, and Minister of Agriculture, Canada, &c., Chiefly on the Subject of British American Union.
London: CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

Just published,

PLEASING TALES. A Short and Easy Method of Learning the German Language. By GEORGE STORME, Professor of German in Hanover. 16mo, cloth, 2s. 6d.
ASHER and Co., 13, Bedford-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

NOW READY.

ASHER and CO.'S CATALOGUES of FOREIGN BOOKS.
No. VI.
SPANISH and PORTUGUESE LITERATURE. 16 pages.
No. VII.
ITALIAN LITERATURE. 16 pages.
One Penny each by post.
ASHER and Co., 13, Bedford-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

BY THE LATE DAVID ROBERTS, R.A.,

SKETCHES of the HOLY LAND, SYRIA, IDUMEA, ARABIA, EGYPT, and NUBIA. From the Lithographs by Louis Haghe. With Historical and Descriptive Notices, and an Introductory View of Jewish History, by the Rev. GEORGE CROLY, LL.D. 250 Plates, executed in the highest style of double-tinted Lithography.
6 vols. in Parts, paper wrappers, £2 18s., pub. at £7 7s.
6 vols. cloth elegant, £4, pub. at £10 10s.
6 vols. in 3, cloth elegant, £3 10s., pub. at £9.
6 vols. in 3, half morocco, £4, pub. at £10 10s.
6 vols. in 3, whole morocco, £4 16s., pub. at £11 11s.
Warranted perfect in every respect, and precisely the same as when issued by the publishers, and equally as good as if the full price were paid.
N.B. Sent carriage-free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of a remittance for the amount.
London: S. and T. GILBERT, 4, Copthall-buildings, back of the Bank of England, E.C.

Ninth Edition, with 26 Plates, price 1s., postage-free,

STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process of Diaphanie; easily performed by any person, at small cost.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

New Edition, with Drawings in Colour, price 2s. 6d.; post-free, 2s. 10d.,

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON LANDSCAPE PAINTING AND SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHASE, M.W.C.I. Edited by the Rev. J. Harris, M.A.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,

MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS, Modern and Gothic (Handbooks of), by VICTOR TOUCHE, London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,

ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of DIFFERENT PERIODS, for the Use of Illuminators and Decorators, by F. C. WOOD.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 6d., postage-free,

PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY; an Easy Method of Colouring Photographs (producing a beautifully enamelled appearance), which may be practised by any person unaccustomed to drawing and ignorant of art. By M. C. C.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Fifth Edition, with 12 Diagrams printed in colours, price 2s.,

PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Draperies, Backgrounds, &c. A guide to Painting in Water Colours; to which is added Instructions for Painting in Oil Colours. By A. N. RINTOUL.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., W.

MANUSCRIPT MAGAZINE.—The Advertiser is about to establish a Manuscript Magazine. Particulars sent on receipt of a stamped directed envelope.
E. NORMAN, Goadby, Melton Mowbray.

This day, price 1s.,

ON HAY-FEVER, HAY-ASTHMA, OR SUMMER CATARRH. By W. ABBOTTS SMITH, M.D., M.R.C.P. Lond., Physician to the Metropolitan Free Hospital and to the Finsbury Dispensary, late Senior Physician to the City Dispensary, &c.—London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

Tenth Thousand, price 2s. 6d., post-free, 32 stamps,

HUNT on the SKIN; a Guide to the Treatment and Prevention of Diseases of the Skin and Hair, with Cases. By THOS. HUNT, F.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Dispensary for Diseases of the Skin, 21A, Charlotte-st., Fitzroy-sq. "Mr. Hunt has transferred these diseases from the incurable class to the curable."—Lancet.—London: T. RICHARDS, 37, Gt. Queen-st., W.C.

THE COMMENTARY WHOLLY BIBLICAL.
Three volumes, 4to, price £3 3s.
SAMUEL BAGSTER and SONS, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

STAMP YOUR OWN PAPER with ARTHUR GRANGER'S Patent Percussion Press, fitted with engraved die (business or crest) and copper counterpart complete, 10s. 6d. Specimens sent free. The cheapest house in London for Stationery and Printing.—308, High Holborn.

THE GREAT FLOWER SHOW of the Season.—The HIGHGATE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY will hold their Annual Exhibition of Flowers, Fruit, &c., by permission of Miss Burdett Coutts, in the beautiful Grounds of HOLLY LODGE, Highgate, on THURSDAY, JUNE 29.
The Band of the Royal Horse Guards (Blue), the Band of the S Division of Metropolitan Police, and the Band of the Royal Caledonian Asylum will be in attendance and perform at intervals.
Admission—Half a Crown, until Four o'Clock; from Four till Six o'Clock, One Shilling; after Six o'Clock, Sixpence. Carriages to set down at the Principal Entrance to Holly Lodge, on West-hill.
By order, J. WARD, Jun., Hon. Secretary.

PRIVATE PICTURE GALLERY, 4, Queen Anne-street, Cavendish-square. The proprietor having lent this Gallery, without charge, to Artists to exhibit their Pictures, the Patrons of the Art are respectfully informed that the Gallery is now complete, and are earnestly invited to inspect it, admission being granted on presentation of address card.

LONDON and RYDER, Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, and Diamond Workers, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street), have NOW ON VIEW a new and recherché Stock of first-class JEWELLERY, in best possible taste, of original design, and sterling quality, as wedding souvenirs.
London and Ryder, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street). Prize Medal at the International Exhibition for "General good taste and merit." A large variety of Diamond Ornaments. A liberal discount for cash always deducted.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR. DEWDNEY beautifully makes and mounts in fine gold Hair Bracelets, Chains, Brooches, Rings, Pins, Studs, &c., and forwards the same at about one half the usual charge. An elegant collection of specimens handsomely mounted kept for inspection. A splendid assortment of Jet in every variety. An Illustrated Book sent post-free.—Dewdney, 172, Fenchurch-street, London.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

THE FIVE-SHILLING ILLUMINATING COLOUR BOX contains twelve superfine Colours, body, white, gold, aluminium, and brushes.—J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., London; and all Artists' Colourmen, &c.

THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to colour photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with twelve colours, all materials, specimen, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by a NEW TELESCOPE for £5, which will also distinguish the features of a man four miles, and time by a church clock ten miles. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post. S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. High-power Pocket Telescopes, Opera, Race, Field, and general Outdoor Glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

REGISTERED ACHROMATIC AND TINTED SPECTACLE LENSES.—Messrs. SOLOMONS beg to inform persons in the Country that the uncertainty and risk experienced in accurately suiting the sight without personal attendance are entirely obviated by their new arrangement, which gives the exact optical condition of the eye, so that the defects can be remedied by the proper adaptation of spectacles. Particulars and testimonials from the principal Ophthalmic Hospitals post-free.—39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS. The £5 Set of Magic, Microscopic, and Phanta Apparatus comprises a 3½ in. improved Achromatic Lantern, producing 12 ft. figures; a microscope, throwing upon a screen animalculæ; ten slides, containing forty subjects; eight movable comic slides; one panorama, with shipping in motion; one photograph; and one chromotrope, with view and revolving watermill. S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

CROQUET! ARCHERY! CRICKET! An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

CROQUET, 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 40s., 60s., 80s., complete.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

CROQUET.—An elegantly-bound illustrated Treatise on the Game presented with every set by ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

WEDDING PRESENTS.—A Variety of Useful Elegances, at prices from 5s. to £50.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Mounted and Ormolu Suites for the Boudoir, Toilette, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in russia or morocco, of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at H. Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or plated fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Cigar Cases, and Purses. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in ormolu, walnut, and coromandel. Albums for monograms, crests, and postage-stamps.—At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art. Note-paper and envelopes stamped in colour relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The PEOPLE'S PRINTING-PRESS, price from 25s. to £4 4s., for letterpress, copperplate, or lithographic printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps, each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stampmaker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., Silversmiths, Cutlers, &c., pre-eminent for their
Electro-Silver Plate, for Dinner à la Russe,
Electro-Silver Plate suitable for Presentation,
Electro-Silver Christening, Wedding, and Birthday Presents,
Sterling Silver ditto ditto,
Sterling Silver Volunteer and Rifle and other Prizes,
Electro-Silver ditto ditto,
Electro-Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Plated Spoons and Forks, guaranteed quality,
Sterling Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Silver Tea and Coffee Services,
Electro-Silver Side Dishes and Dish Covers,
Electro-Silver Breakfast, Luncheon, and Dinner Cruets,
Electro-Silver Egg Frames,
Electro-Silver Fish-eating Knives and Forks,
Electro-Silver Fish Carvers, in case,
Electro-Silver Dessert Knives and Forks, in cases,
Table Knives of unsurpassed excellence,
Canteen-Cases completely fitted for Officers,
Plate Chests for partial or entire Outfits.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory—The Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.
Illustrated Catalogues and priced list free on application.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Celebrated DRESSING CASES } completely fitted with every article DRESSING BAGS } of convenience and luxury.
DESPATCH BOXES, fitted with Cutlery and Stationery.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and at 71 and 72, Cornhill.

PALE SHERRY at 36s. per Dozen, fit for a gentleman's table. Bottles and Cases included. Terms, Cash. Post Orders payable Piccadilly.
Samples sent free of charge.
CHARLES WARD and SON
(Established upwards of a century), 1, Chapel-street West, Mayfair, W., London.

PORT and SHERRY, 12s. per Dozen; Claret and Sauterne, 10s. per Dozen.—VICTORIA WINE COMPANY, 63, Lower Thames-street, E.C. Two samples sent for 12 stamps.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and much superior to low-priced Sherry. One guinea per dozen. Excellent Clarets, 18s. and 24s. per dozen. Terms cash. Three dozen, rail paid.—W. D. WATSON, Wine Merchant, 73, Great Russell-st. (corner of Bloomsbury-sq.), London, W.C.—Established 1841.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

SUMMER DRINKS.—Soda Water, 2s. per dozen; Lemonade, Gingerade, and Orangeade, 1s. 9d. and 2s. 3d.; Seltzer, Potash, Magnesia, 3s. Packages 2s. per dozen, same price allowed on return. Agents wanted where none are appointed. T. P. WOOD, Jun., Chesterfield.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'

WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, pronounced by Connoisseurs "THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE."
None genuine without name on wrapper, label, bottle, and stopper. Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Barclay and Sons, and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS are an exceedingly delicious Sweetmeat rapidly increasing in public favour.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is prepared with scrupulous regard to purity, and, being exceedingly wholesome, is much valued for Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing popularity of J. S. Fry and Sons' Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of sweetmeats.
FEW ARTICLES OF CONFECTIONERY embrace so many advantages. It is very delicious and sustaining, and is thus peculiarly adapted for persons who require light refreshment in A PORTABLE AND CONVENIENT FORM.

THE TEA ESTABLISHMENT, 4 and 5, King William-street, City, E.C.
Reduction of 6d. per lb. in the Tea Duty.
The PRICES of ALL OUR TEAS are this day REDUCED 6D. PER POUND.
Our Customers should order Tea at 6d. per pound less than the price previously paid.
We hope to give Improved Quality at the Reduced Prices.
June 1, 1865.
RIDGWAY and COMPANY.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic practitioners, and the medical profession generally, recommend COCOA as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of homœopathy was first introduced into this country there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach: the nut was either supplied in the crude state or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice.
J. EPPS, of London, Homœopathic Chemist, was induced, in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through, as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach.
For general use, Epps's Cocoa is distinguished as an invigorating, grateful breakfast beverage, with delicious aroma.
Dr. Hassall, in his work, "Food and its Adulterations," says:—"Cocoa contains a great variety of important nutritive principles—every ingredient necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, cocoa stands very much higher than either coffee or tea."
Directions—Two teaspoonfuls of the powder in a breakfast-cup filled up with boiling water or milk. Tin-lined ¼ lb., ½ lb., and 1 lb. labelled packets, sold by Grocers, Confectioners, and Chemists.
Each packet is labelled "J. Epps, Homœopathic Chemist, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; 48, Threadneedle-street; Manufactory, 398, Euston-road."
Epps's Homœopathic Medicines.—Caution.—The medicines supplied by Agents are secured by a band over the cork, and which band bears James Epps's signature, without which none are genuine.

HEALTH IN THE FAMILY.—Very Choice, Nourishing, and Pure Diet.—FISON'S PEARL SEMOULE is very delicate for invalids; invaluable for children. Infants will thrive amazingly upon it, and often when everything else fails. Sold by Grocers, &c.—Agents, HICKS BROTHERS, E.C. Works, Ipswich.

THE ONLY PRIZE-MEDAL CORN FLOUR.

MAIZENA. Reported by the Jury "Exceedingly excellent for food." Costs no more than inferior articles.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.

COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

COLMAN'S STARCH obtained Prize Medals, International Exhibitions, 1851, 1862.
Report—"Superior Quality, with large Production."

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-street; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

CONSUMPTION.—DR. CHURCHILL'S Successful Treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Chest, Chronic Cough, General Debility, Loss of Appetite, &c., by Hypophosphates, prepared by H. H. Swann, of Paris. Full prospectuses, testimonials, and medicines, of DINNEFORD and CO., Chemists, 172, New Bond-street, W., wholesale and retail agents.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomachic Disorders of every kind and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

TEETH.—By Mr. ESKELL'S INVENTION. (Patent granted July 17, 1860).—Sets or partial sets of teeth, exquisitely enamelled to nature, are made and fitted in a few hours, without the extraction of stumps or giving the slightest pain. They support loose teeth, and act independently of all disturbing causes, and are guaranteed to last a lifetime, as well as for mastication and articulation. A treatise, which fully explains the above, free for seven stamps. Consultation free. Terms strictly moderate.—8, Grosvenor-street, Bond-street W.

VERY IMPORTANT TO TAILORS. PLATT'S TWEEDS, the very best article that can be made for gentlemen's Riding Trousers, are now ready, and can only be had of James Platt and Co., 78, St. Martin's-lane, W.C. Patterns sent free. 5 per cent allowed for cash. On and after July 1 all parcels will be prepaid.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 2, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; or, Parcels being sent, Post-office orders remitted the same day. Est. 64 years. Terms cash

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property, &c. Highest price given. Ladies and gentlemen waited on. Address Mr. or Mrs. D. DAVIS, 46, Marylebone-lane, Oxford-street, W. Parcels being sent, Post-office orders remitted. Established 1800.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

YAK LACE ROTONDES.—The whole of a Manufacturer's Stock of these beautiful and fashionable articles, which will be sold at 1 guinea each. Unprecedented.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—The most beautiful Moire Antiques, in all the new colours, at 4½ to 5½ guineas the Full Dress, of the richest quality. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FOULARD SILKS.—A Great Variety of New French Foulard Silks, best quality, from 28s. 6d. the Full Dress. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FANCY SILKS.—Patterns forwarded of new and beautiful Fancy Silks, from 2½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards. Any length cut. Odd Dress Lengths of rich Silks, from 2 guineas Full Dress, very cheap.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MADE-UP DRESSES and COSTUMES for MORNING and SEASIDE wear, in a variety of new and useful fabrics; also French Percale Suits in quite new designs. Organdie Muslins in immense variety.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

NEW MANTLES and SHAWLS.—The Mantle and Shawl Departments are fully supplied with a large assortment of NEW and CHOICE GOODS at most moderate prices. An immense Stock of LACE SHAWLS and ROTONDES, greatly under value. Illustrated Fashion-books forwarded free.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FRENCH KID GLOVES.—CALVAT'S BEST PARIS KID GLOVES, at 2s. 6d. per pair, usual price 3s. 3d. Sample pair by post.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSES, by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 119, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Yachting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys, for Ladies' Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage paid on parcels of £5 and upwards, Single and Double Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Tickings, Huckaback and Diaper Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Lawn and Cambric Handkerchiefs.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

BLACK SILKS.
Patterns free.
Ducapes and Glacés (Bright Imperial Black), £1 11s. 6d. the Full Dress (14 yards).
Gros Grains, Drap de France, Drap de Lyon, £2 5s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Gros de Venice, Gros d'Athens (reversible for mourning), £2 2s. the Full Dress (14 yards).
Coloured Silks, Fancy Dresses, Mantles, and Shawls, in the newest productions for this season.
F. CATER and COMPANY, Finsbury-square, E.C.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now open).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.
Patterns free.
A large assortment of New Patterns, £2 5s. 6d. for 14 yards.
Black Gros Grains, Black Gros de Suez.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

SUMMER CHALLIS.—Patterns free. Checks and Striped Summer Mohairs, a large variety of useful Dresses cut by the yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

LENO and MUSLIN CURTAINS. Double Borders, four yards long, 12s. 6d. per pair.
A variety of handsome Curtains, 18s. 6d. per pair, 4½ yards long.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips,
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques, in White, Black, and all the New Colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.—Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square, W.

SEWELL and CO. have an unequalled display of FRENCH CHINTZES, from 1s. to 1s. 6d. per yard. Also of the much-admired Cretonne Chintz, from 2s. 3d. per yard.
Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square.

FORD'S NEW MANTLE and JACKET ROOMS, No. 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W., exhibit the largest and most varied stock of these goods, at lowest possible prices.

FORD'S GUINEA JACKETS, to wear open or closed, beautifully braided in silk, cashmere, and fine cloth, are arranged in sizes to fit ladies without delay. The New Coquette, in all colours, from 16s. 6d. to 2 guineas.—Thomas Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RICH SILK MANTLES.—A number of new patterns now ready, in Glacé and Gros Grain, of superior style and quality. Price 38s. 6d. to 10 guineas.—Thomas Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RIDING HABITS, 3 to 8 Guineas. Illustration of the new Riding Jacket, with patterns of cloth, post-free. Riding Trousers, chamois and cloth feet, 21s. per pair.—Thomas Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

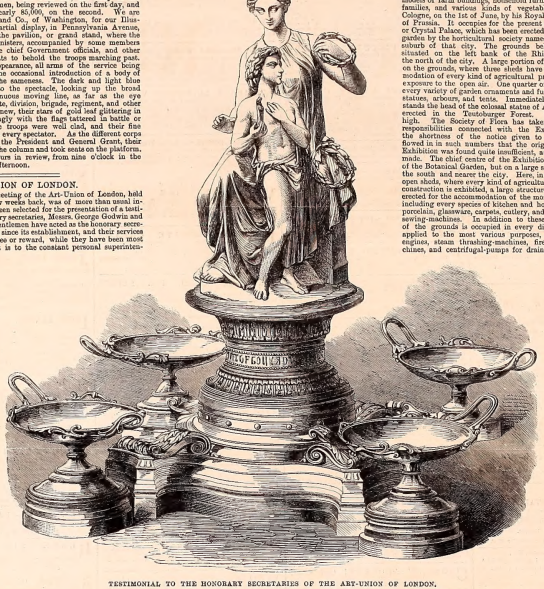
THE Celebrated SHREWSBURY WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS, JACKETS, and Gentlemen's OVERCOATS. Patterns post-free.
I. E. and W. PHILLIPS, 37, High-street, Shrewsbury.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make at moderate prices. A stock always on hand of Chemises, Nightdresses, Petticoats, Mourning Robes, &c. Price-books by post. Address "Ladies' Department," WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

INDIA OUTFITS and WEDDING TROUSSEAUX. Newest styles, best work, and moderate prices. Price-books by post.—WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6½d. the yard, made of bright Italian silk, with the guarantee for durability of eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster-bridge, S.

MARRIAGE TROUSSEAUX and LAYETTES.—CHRISTIAN and RATHBONE respectfully solicit an inspection of their extensive and recherché Stock, combining Parisian taste with the excellence and durability of material for which their House has been noted for upwards of seventy years.
Christian and Rathbone, 11, Wigmore-street, W.

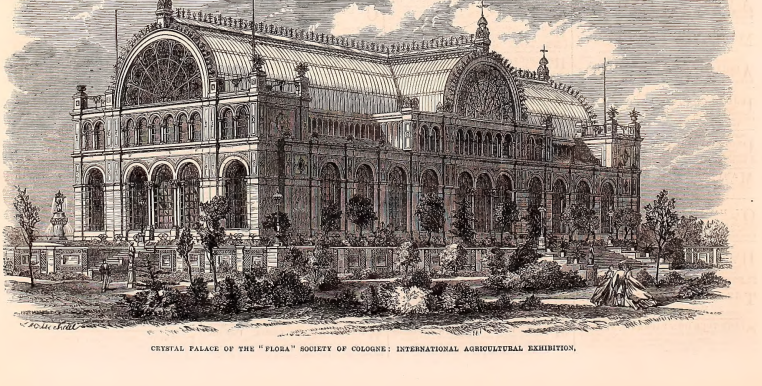


BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL have returned from Paris with their Elegant GUINEA BONNET, in Tulle, Crape, French Straws, &c. Show-rooms (no shop), 61, Regent-street (four doors from Swan and Edgar's).

REVIEW OF FEDERAL ARMIES AT WASHINGTON.

A GRAND review of the Federal armies under the command of General Grant and General Sherman took place at Washington, before President Johnson, on the 23rd and 24th ult., the army of the Potomac, numbering 75,000 men, being reviewed on the first day, and General Sherman's army, nearly 85,000, on the second. We are indebted to Messrs. Brady and Co., of Washington, for our illustration of the first day's martial display, in Pennsylvania Avenue, near the White House, with the pavilion, or grand stand, where the President and his Cabinet Ministers, accompanied by some members of the Senate, the Judges, the chief Government officials, and other persons had taken their seats to behold the troops marching past. They had a very imposing appearance, all arms of the service being represented in full force. The occasional introduction of a body of Zouaves served to relieve the sameness. The dark and light blue uniforms gave the effect to the spectacle, looking up the broad avenue. There was a continuous moving line, as far as the eye could reach, of national, State, division, brigade, regiment, and other flags. Some of them were new, their stars of gold and glittering in the sun, and contrasted strongly with the flags tattered in battle or worn to mere shreds. The troops were well clad, and their fine marching elicited praise from every spectator. As the different corps and divisions passed before the President and General Grant, their respective commanders left the column and took seats on the platform. The troops occupied six hours in review, from nine o'clock in the morning until three in the afternoon.

ART-UNION OF LONDON.



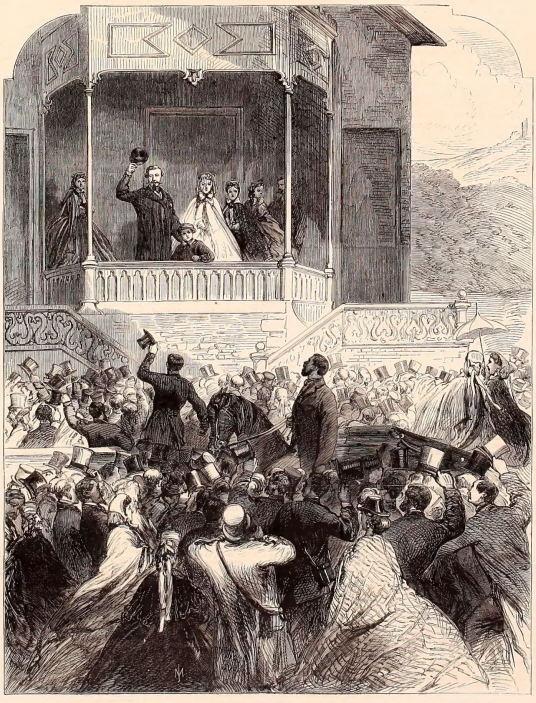
THE twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Art-Union of London, held in the Adelphi Theatre a few weeks back, was of more than usual interest, this occasion having been selected for the presentation of a testimonial to each of the honorary secretaries, Messrs. George Godwin and Lewis Pocock. These two gentlemen have acted as the honorary secretaries of the Art-Union ever since its establishment, and their services have been entirely without fee or reward, while they have been most real and efficient. Indeed, it is to the constant personal superintendence and fostering care of Messrs. Lewis and Pocock that we may ascribe in a very great degree the flourishing condition of an institution which has seen numerous other schemes avowing similar objects arise, prosper for a time, and then disappear, since it was first set on foot. The present testimonial originated in the proposal of a member, at the annual meeting in 1863, that a portion of the funds of the society should be appropriated to the purchase of some work to be presented to the honorary secretaries as a mark of recognition of the value of their services. To this proposal those gentlemen offered an immediate and decisive opposition, affirming that such a diversion of any portion of the funds of the institution was in direct contravention of the charter and laws. It was then resolved to raise an amount by voluntary subscription amongst the members, and the result has been the production of the very chaste and elegant work shown in our Illustration. The two pieces of plate are precisely identical in design. The subject of the group is "Wisdom Encouraging Genius," represented by a seated female crowning with a wreath a youth who holds in his hand a small statuette. This group of figures is accompanied by four appropriate tazzas. The work was modelled by Mr. W. F. Woodington, and has been most successfully produced in silver by Messrs. Elkington, the whole being mounted on a carved and inlaid ebony pedestal. Our Engraving is from a photograph by Mr. Carrick, of Regent-street.

TESTIMONIAL TO THE HONORARY SECRETARIES OF THE ART-UNION OF LONDON.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE OF COLOGNE AND INTERNATIONAL AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION.

AN international exhibition of agricultural implements and machines, models of farm buildings, household furniture and clothing for rustic families, and various kinds of vegetable produce, was opened at Cologne, on the 1st of June, by his Royal Highness the Crown Prince of Prussia. It occupies for the present a building of glass and iron, or Crystal Palace, which has been erected for the purpose of a winter garden by the horticultural society named "The Flora," in the Riehl suburb of that city. The grounds belonging to this society are situated on the left bank of the Rhine, and about one mile to the north of the city. A large portion of the Exhibition is to be seen on the grounds, where these sheds have been erected for the accommodation of every kind of agricultural product liable to be injured by exposure to the open air. One quarter of the grounds is occupied by every variety of garden ornaments and furniture, including fountains, statues, arbours, and tents. Immediately at the back of the palace stands the head of the colossal statue of Arminius, or Hermann, to be erected in the Teutoburger Forest. The head alone is 10 ft. high. The Society of Flora has taken upon itself all pecuniary responsibilities connected with the Exhibition. Notwithstanding the shortness of the notice given to the world, announcements flowed in in such numbers that the original space assigned for the Exhibition was found quite insufficient, and large additions had to be made. The chief centre of the Exhibition is not within the grounds of the Botanical Garden, but on a large space adjoining, situated on the south and nearer the city. Here, in addition to a long stretch of open sheds, where every kind of agricultural implement of the newest construction is exhibited, a large structure, chiefly of wood, has been erected for the accommodation of the more delicate kinds of articles, including every species of kitchen and household furniture, clothing, porcelain, glassware, carpets, cutlery, and a very expensive display of sewing-machines. In addition to these things, the uncovered part of the grounds is occupied in every direction with steam-engines, applied to the most various purposes, as steam-ploughs, traction-engines, steam thrashing-machines, fire-engines, brickmaking machines, and centrifugal-pumps for draining mines and marshy soil. These machines are constantly in full action. The total number of exhibitors, as stated in the catalogue, is 1737, in divisions. Division 1, with 322 exhibitors, includes all kinds of "agricultural machines and implements." Division 2, with 356 exhibitors, includes all articles which have nothing to do with agriculture, and are classed together under the title of "Domestic Economy." Division 3, with 100 exhibitors, includes the articles of "Garden Architecture and Ornamenta." Division 4, with 163 exhibitors, is devoted to objects connected with forest economy and hunting or sporting. Division 5, in which there are no less than 556 exhibitors, includes every kind of agricultural produce, live stock alone excepted. Division 6, including 290 exhibitors, is devoted to objects connected with mining. It is estimated that the cost of the Exhibition will amount to at least 100,000 thalers, and it is feared the guarantors will have to bear a considerable portion of this sum. The number of visitors has not at all equalled the expectation of the promoters of the Exhibition. The cause of this is to be attributed to the fatal mistake of omitting an exhibition of cattle, as well as to the high price of admission (3s.) maintained during the Whitsun holidays. We give a View of the building in which the Exhibition is held.

CRYSTAL PALACE OF THE "FLORA" SOCIETY OF COLOGNE: INTERNATIONAL AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION.



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1321.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, JUNE 24, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

CONSTITUTIONALISM IN GERMANY.

ENGLAND—whose constitutional freedom is the result of centuries of growth, and has struck its roots all the deeper into the public mind in consequence of the storms which it has outlived—watches with profoundest interest and sympathy the process by which several European States are developing for themselves a stable system of political liberty. The people of this country resemble such as have successfully crossed by tempestuous straits from a rocky and unproductive region to one of surpassing fertility, and who, from some safe headland, look with a feeling more earnest than that of mere curiosity on the progress of others who have but recently ventured upon a similar course. They read occurrences by the light of their own experience. They have faith in constitutional principles, wherever they are being worked with courage, constancy, and moderation, that they will eventually surmount the worst of dangers that can beset them in the earlier stages of their career. As a rule, they believe that brute force, however perfectly organised, and however triumphant for a season, is destined to succumb to the irrepressible vital energy which is evolved by intellectual enlightenment. They know that freedom advances by slow and irregular degrees; that what is gained by one generation often seems to be lost by another; and that not until after many vicissitudes, some of them perhaps supposed to be fatal, is an enduring victory to be secured. But they know also that, great as may be the fluctuations by which that advance is marked, and frequently as the waves of effort, after having spent themselves, recede beyond all present expectation, the flowing tide will at length beat down all obstructions, and the precious freight will be borne into a secure haven. With some such feeling we watch the struggle now in progress in Northern Germany. The protracted contest between the monarchical and the popular elements in Prussia may be considered as constituting the birth-throes of political freedom for the whole of central Europe. The issue of that struggle will mainly determine not only the proximate future of the population subject to the sceptre of the Hohenzollerns, but also of those governed by the House of Hapsburg, and of those who are ruled over by the petty Sovereigns of the minor German States. There is a close—we may even say a Providential—interdependence of the Prussian kingdom, the Austrian empire, and the cluster of smaller States, each upon the other, arising in part from sympathetic susceptibilities, but still more from mutual jealousies, fears, and objects of ambition, which justifies a confident anticipation that the political condition of the whole of Germany will be dominated by the events now in the course of occurrence at Berlin. The true battle of Teutonic freedom is being fought out there and now; and the conflict between M. von Bismarck and the Lower Chamber not merely represents, but virtually is, the conflict which must decide what for the next half century shall be the course and complexion of public affairs over the greater part of the Continent.

The Prussian Opposition appear to be fully conscious of the momentous nature of the crisis through which their country is being carried. The paroxysm of military passion which, during the brief interval of the Dano-German war, overcame their reason, has at length subsided. They do not intend to substitute territorial conquest for constitutional freedom. The last cannon had hardly been fired against the Danes when they resumed their hold upon their political rights. The success of their arms, although it was followed by a flush of vainglory, did not permanently affect the relations between the Crown and the people. The Lower House refuses to be dazzled into a surrender of its claims. Such fruits as the sword has obtained for them they are not unwilling to enjoy, but they can defer the full enjoyment of them until after they have laid the foundation of that edifice under shelter of which they desire to place all that the nation can call its own. M. von Bismarck alternately tempts and taunts them, but cannot prevail upon them to relax their grasp upon their privileges. He has tested all their weak places, but hitherto in vain. They will not give up to him the power of the purse. They are ready to grant supplies, but not until he acknowledges their claim to control expenditure. They present alike to his entreaties and his threats the same calm, unswerving, united front. They want a navy, and they have a port; but neither the possession of Kiel nor the possibility of developing a strong fleet can induce them to put money, either in the form of taxes or of a loan, into the hands of the Minister until he has yielded to them the proper security that it shall be duly spent in accordance with their appropriation of it. A navy, they reason, may be a good thing; but, in the hands of a despotic Premier like M. von Bismarck, it may be employed against the freedom of the Prussian people. Kiel may be a magnificent port, but so much the greater care must be taken that so rich an acquisition does not contribute additional influence to a party inimical to popular interests. Governments must have money, no doubt, but they who have to furnish it have a right to see that what they provide for one purpose is not wasted for another. Such is the contention being waged at this moment between the Crown and the Commons in the city of Berlin, reminding the historical student of that memorable struggle between Charles I. and his Parliament. The King of Prussia, misled by desperate advisers, seems about to put himself in permanent antagonism to the Constitution which he has sworn to obey. Precedents, certainly, do not promise him a successful result; but Kings whose tendencies are despotic do not usually care to study precedents.

RECEPTION OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON IN THE GRAND STAND AT THE LONGCHAMPS RACECOURSE, NEAR PARIS.
SEE NEXT PAGE.

If the constitutionalists in Prussia should be ultimately overborne by the Crown, and an essentially military despotism should be established, there is but too good reason to fear that the whole of Germany will feel the effects of the disaster. Austria, as is well known, has considerably abated her autocratic pretensions of late; but then it is also evident that, in doing so, she has been governed rather by motives of jealous rivalry than of genuine preference for political freedom. At this moment Austria is strengthening herself and consolidating her dominion, by conceding the long-resisted claims of Hungary; and when the reconciliation between the empire and the kingdom is completed, as it appears likely to be, the Austrian Government will be more powerful in Southern Germany than it has been since the accession of M. von Bismarck to office in Prussia. To what end its increase of influence will be applied will depend very much on the political necessities of its position. If Northern Germany should be permanently constitutional, Austria, in order to keep her place, must be equally so. If, on the other hand, freedom is chased from the North, it is certain that it will find but cold entertainment in the South.

We have no very serious misgiving as to the result. Nations live longer than their Sovereigns, and, if in earnest, prove themselves in the end too powerful for the most imperious Ministers. Prussia is Liberal at heart, and Prussia will be Liberal in form. The people are all but unanimous in support of the Lower Chamber, and whilst they remain so faction, however exalted, can ensure but a transient triumph. Besides, the tendencies of modern thought and action, even on the Continent, are in opposition to the continuance, and much more so to the revival, of feudal pretensions. A free Italy is a strong guarantee against absolute Government in Germany. M. von Bismarck, if we may say so, has played his trump card, and has not won the game. He seized the sword. He made conquests. But he has not turned aside the settled purpose of the Prussian people, whose representatives refuse to yield the least of their political privileges. Our own history teaches us how such a struggle must eventually terminate; and it hardly needs the gift of prophecy to foretell that if either the Crown or the Commons must give way, it will not be the latter.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor received Prince Napoleon on Monday, this being the first meeting of the cousins since the Ajaccio speech and its results.

The Portuguese Minister has delivered to the Emperor the insignia of the grand cross of the Order of St. James of the Sword.

Prince Wittgenstein, aide-de-camp of the Emperor of Russia, has remitted a letter to the Emperor Napoleon from the Czar, together with the insignia of the Russian orders which have been conferred upon the Prince Imperial.

A dinner was given at the Tuileries on Wednesday week, at which were present the deputies who composed a part of the committee relative to the great works in Algeria. The Emperor had a long conversation with them on the situation of the colony, its wants and resources, and appeared to be perfectly satisfied with his journey.

In the Corps Législatif, on Tuesday, the Government brought forward a bill relative to the general and municipal councils. On Thursday week the last three sections of the Budget for the Ministry of War and four sections relating to Algeria were adopted.

A convention for the reciprocal guarantee of literary and artistic copyright has been signed, at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Paris, by M. Drouyn de Lhuys and Baron Wambold d'Umstadt, Envoy Extraordinary for the Grand Duke of Hesse.

M. Léon Dufour, the oldest of French naturalists, has followed Mr. Charles Waterton to the grave, at the ripe age of eighty-five. He was a great friend of Cuvier, and had contributed very largely to the literature of natural science in France, more especially in respect of the results of his microscopic examinations of the insect world.

The case of the Countess of Civry against the Duke of Brunswick has been determined in the French courts. About a year ago the Countess, who is the daughter of the Duke and "Lady Charlotte Colville," made a demand against the Duke for 35,000f., for board and lodging. The Court declared the claim set up by the Countess to be unfounded, and dismissed the suit.

Paris is subjected to the inconvenience of a cabmen's strike, originating in a demand for increased wages. On Thursday week 2600 cabs were removed from circulation. The waiters of the Paris coffee and eating houses talk of following the example set them by the cabmen. There is, too, a partial strike among the washerwomen.

The "new electric infernal machine," of the power of which many marvellous stories have been told, turns out to be a common-place sort of affair. "The new submarine torpedo," says the Paris Presse, "invented by Vice-Admiral de Chabannes, Maritime Prefet of Toulon, consists of a receiver containing from 16 lb. to 20 lb. of powder, so arranged as to easily attach itself to the keels of vessels in their submerged part. This machine is then fired by an electrical apparatus."

Tuesday's Patrie announces the occupation of several important points in Mexico by the French. Now, according to the Patrie, the whole country is commanded.

SPAIN.

On Wednesday Marshal Narvaez tendered his resignation as President of the Council, which was accepted by the Queen. Her Majesty intrusted the formation of a new Cabinet to Marshal O'Donnell. In the evening sitting of the Congress, Royal decrees were read accepting the resignation of the Narvaez Cabinet and appointing the new Ministry, which is composed as follows:—President of the Council and Minister of War, Marshal O'Donnell; Foreign Affairs, Senor Bermudez Castro; Interior, Senor Posada Herrara; Public Works, Senor Armerso; Colonies, Senor Canovas; Marine, Senor Zavala; Finance, Senor Alonso Martinez; Minister of Justice, Senor Fernando Calderon Collantes.

ITALY.

The National Rifle Meeting was inaugurated on Sunday by King Victor Emmanuel, who fired the first shot. His Majesty was received with loud cheers by the immense crowd of persons present. The ceremony passed off in the most brilliant manner.

The municipality of Naples has been dissolved by Royal decree.

According to the latest accounts received from Naples, the band of brigands under Ciardullo has been dispersed, many of them being taken and some killed. Nothing more has been heard of Mr. Moens.

Another Englishman—a young artist, Mr. W. R. Oliver, who, for the last two or three years, has been pursuing his study amongst Italian scenery—has been taken by the Italian brigands.

Serious difficulties appear to have arisen in the negotiations between the Italian and Papal Governments, and it is thought M. Vegezzi's mission will be a failure. The Pope is said to have rejected the conditions proposed by the Italian Government.

The French Embassy has demanded that the Pontifical soldiers be commanded by General Montebello. This the Pope has refused.

Saturday being the anniversary of the Pope's accession to the Papal throne, his Holiness received the bishops and cardinals, and in reply to the congratulations of the latter he delivered an allocution thanking them and encouraging them to sustain with fortitude the difficulties of the present times. On Thursday week, being the Feast of Corpus Christi, the usual ceremonies were performed with great splendour. The Pope was present, and appeared in perfect health.

AUSTRIA.

In the day's sitting of the Lower House of the Reichsrath, yesterday week, Herr von Schmerling gave some reassuring explanations relative to article 13 of the Constitution, which empowers the Ministry, at the time the Reichsrath may not be sitting, to take certain urgent measures, for which they are, however, bound to render an account to the House on its reassembling. "The Government," said the Minister, "will pursue the same course as hitherto, by not abusing the power conferred by this article for legislative purposes. The guarantee for this is in the repeated promises of the Emperor to uphold the Constitution. Neither does the Government contemplate impairing, on the ground of this article, the legislative powers of Hungary and Transylvania."

The Lower House of the Reichsrath agreed, last Saturday, by a very large majority, to the proposals for the modification of article 13 of the Constitution in such a manner as to secure Parliamentary rights during the recess.

The Lower House voted on Wednesday the proposals of the Financial Committee granting the credit of 13 million florins required immediately by the Government to pay the interest of the public debt due in July next. It was resolved at the same time not to grant any further credit to the Government until the Budget for 1865-6 shall have been voted by the Reichsrath in conformity with the Constitution.

PRUSSIA.

The Upper Chamber, yesterday week, adopted a provisional Budget, the Finance Minister stating that, being unable to accept the Budget voted by the Chamber of Deputies, the Government is compelled to fix a normal amount for the public expenditure, which must be considered as the State Budget in the absence of one voted by the Chambers. The estimates of expenditure, which will be regulated by an understanding between the Ministers, will be submitted for the King's sanction and published, though not as a law, after the close of the Session.

The Parliament was closed last Saturday with a speech from the Throne, which was read by Herr von Bismarck. The King thanks the Upper House, but is very harsh in his language to the Lower. He intimates that the Government will continue to act in defiance of the votes of the Representative Chamber. The President of the Lower House, Herr von Grabow, made a spirited speech, in which he accused the Government of endeavouring to transform a Constitutional system into one of absolute military power. He declared, however, that all such efforts would be foiled by the constitutional perseverance of the Prussian people. The last act of the day was to give three cheers for the Constitution and the people.

Before the prorogation of the Chambers the Upper House had agreed to the treaties of commerce with England and with Belgium, as passed by the Lower Chamber.

RUSSIA.

An Imperial decree was published at St. Petersburg, on Thursday, ordering the issue of four new series of Treasury bonds, amounting to 12 million rubles, for the purpose of covering the deficit in the Budget for 1865.

Yesterday week a deputation of Poles presented an address of condolence to the Emperor on the death of the Czarewitch. His Majesty, in replying, expressed his regret at the misfortunes which the "dreams" of the Poles had brought upon their country, and expressed a hope that they would no longer be indulged, as he would never tolerate the idea of separating the kingdom of Poland from Russia.

AMERICA.

The Federals are occupying all the military positions in Texas. The artillery at Brownsville had been sold by the Confederates to the Mexican Imperialists. Kirby Smith is said to have gone to Mexico with a large sum of money.

Messrs. Horace Greeley, Wendell Phillips, Gerritt Smith, and others are arguing strenuously against the hanging of Mr. Jefferson Davis. They declare that it would be a gross breach of faith to try General Lee or other pardoned men. In the course of a speech delivered on negro suffrage at the Cooper Institute, New York, Mr. Wendell Phillips observed:—"It is idle to talk of punishing the South. 'You cannot,' said Burke, 'indict a nation. I cannot draw an indictment against a whole people,' said the great British orator. It would be in vain, also, to indict as guilty of murder fourteen States, or to convict them of treason. Every unnecessary severity is cruel; and if this nation is as strong as it seems to be, it does not need vengeance (Applause). . . . I shall never consent to the death of Jefferson Davis until I fear his life. He is weaker alive, a ridiculous fugitive, than dead and buried in the sympathies of millions. Let him live, then. I once said of John Brown, 'Virginia dared not let him live.' No man, with my consent, shall have it to say of this strong, serenely secure nation, 'It dared not let Davis live.' We are too strong to need vengeance.

A great fire has taken place at Nashville, by which Government stores to a large amount have been destroyed.

Georgia is said to be in a starving condition, the negroes refusing to work.

Mr. John Nicolay, formerly private secretary to Mr. Lincoln, is appointed Consul-General of the United States in Paris; and Mr. Hay, Secretary of Legation, was to leave New York, for France, to-day (June 24), by the City of Baltimore.

In our notice last week of the Photographic Exhibition the name of Mr. Frank Haes (M'Lean and Haes, of the Haymarket), the photographer of some of the animals in the Zoological Society's Gardens, was accidentally misspelt.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

9th Lancers: Cornet F. Henry to be Lieutenant.

10th Hussars: Staff Assist. Surg. J. Hinton to be Assistant Surgeon. 11th: Lieut. R. Calvert to be Captain; Cornet J. S. Black to be Lieutenant; Acting Veterinary Surg. C. Percivall to be Veterinary Surgeon. 15th: A. G. P. C. Perceval to be Cornet. 19th: Staff Surg.-Major E. Menzies to be Surgeon; Staff Assist. Surg. B. T. Giraud, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon. 20th: Staff Surg. D. F. Rennie, M.D., to be Surgeon. 21st: Capt. J. M. Biddle to be Captain; Staff Surg. G. A. Turnbull to be Surgeon.

Royal Artillery: Lieut.-Col. and Brevet Col. C. J. B. Riddell, C.B., to be Colonel; Capt. and Brevet Lieut.-Col. G. Rolton to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Capt. H. Bent to be Captain; Lieut. S. P. Lynes to be Second Captain; Surg.-Major J. A. W. Thompson, M.D., to be Surgeon-Major; Staff Surgs. J. Gibbons, T. B. Reid, W. M. Gibaut, R. Menzies, A. K. Drysdale, W. W. Mills, E. M. Sinclair, A. Maclean, R. A. Chapple, C. Ricketts, and C. C. Dempster to be Surgeons; Staff Assist. Surg. G. E. Gascoyen to be Assistant Surgeon.

Royal Engineers: Lieut.-Col. W. Kendall to be Colonel; Capt. J. B. G. Close to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Second Capt. C. W. Finch to be Captain; Lieut. E. P. Gambier to be Second Captain; Cadet M. Greer to be Lieutenant with temporary rank.

7th Foot: Lieut.-Col. M. H. Dowbiggen to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Major T. W. Marten to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Capt. J. M. Clayhills to be Major; Lieut. H. S. Harrison to be Captain; Ensign T. Groube to be Lieutenant. 13th: Staff Assist. Surg. J. Stuart to be Assistant Surgeon. 22nd: Staff. Surg. W. H. Pollard to be Surgeon; Staff. Assist. Surg. T. F. O'Dwyer, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon. 30th: Capt. L. Macpherson to be Major; Lieut. P. T. Pelham to be Captain; Ensign G. E. Cobden to be Lieutenant; A. J. Goldie to be Ensign. 38th: Assist. Surg. J. E. Clark to be Assistant Surgeon. 40th: Ensign C. F. Hulme to be Lieutenant; J. Brougham to be Ensign. 41st: Lieut. F. B. Eagle to be Lieutenant. 47th: Cadet J. J. Burnett to be Ensign. 48th: Lieut. T. H. Duncombe to be Lieutenant. 60th: Staff Assist. Surg. G. A. Hutton to be Assistant Surgeon. 71st: Staff Surg.-Major G. T. Galbraith, M.D., to be Surgeon. 73rd: Ensign C. W. Featherstonaugh to be Lieutenant; J. H. S. Rivett-Carnac to be Ensign. 80th: Staff Surg. T. Wright to be Surgeon. 95th: Staff Surg. T. J. Murphy to be Surgeon. 100th: Capt. H. Parker to be Captain. 101st: Staff Surg. E. Y. Kellett to be Surgeon. 102nd: Surg. R. B. Smyth, M.B., to be Surgeon. 103rd: Cadet E. C. Showers to be Ensign. 104th: Staff Surg. L. G. Hooper to be Surgeon. 105th: Staff Surg. A. M. Macbeth to be Surgeon. 108th: Surg. E. G. Noott to be Surgeon.

Rifle Brigade: Ensign H. J. T. Walpole to be Lieutenant; Ensign J. W. Sandilands to be Ensign; Staff Assist. Surg. R. J. B. Canynghame, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon.

1st West India Regiment: Lieut. D. Gardiner to be Instructor of Musketry.

Cape Mounted Rifles: F. B. Harvey to be Ensign.

Chaplains' Department.—The Revs. M. Crook and H. W. Wheeler, Chaplains of the Fourth Class, to be Chaplains of the Third Class.

Medical Department.—Staff Surg.-Major G. T. Galbraith, M.D., to be Staff Surgeon-Major; Surgs. G. T. Woodman, H. Hulsh, J. Dunlop, A. Maclean, A. Homfrey, E. L. Lundy, W. H. Pollard, T. Wright, T. J. Murphy, P. N. Jackson, F. S. B. F. De Chaumont, A. Guthrie, E. Y. Kellett, R. A. Chapple, C. Ricketts, L. G. Hooper, A. G. Young, and C. C. Dempster to be Staff Surgeons; Assist. Surg. G. R. Woolhouse to be Staff Assistant Surgeon.

Veterinary Department.—W. B. Edmonds to be Acting Veterinary Surgeon.

STAFF.

Major-Gen. Lord William Paulet, K.C.B., to be Adjutant-General to the Forces.

BREVET.

Cols. H. Rivers and H. A. Turner to be Major-Generals; Capt. S. R. Little to be Major.

The undermentioned promotions to take place consequent on the decease of General Sir J. S. Kennedy, K.C.B., Colonel 47th Foot, on May 30, 1865:—Lieut.-Gen. R. B. Coles to be General; Major-Gen. Sir T. S. Pratt to be Lieutenant-General; Brevet Col. Sir T. M. Biddulph to be Major-General; Capt. and Brevet Major E. J. Carthew to be Lieutenant-Colonel.

ADMIRALTY.

Commander J. B. Field to be retired Captain; Sub-Lieut. C. J. Kent to be Lieutenant.

Royal Marine Light Infantry: Col. and Second Commandant W. R. Maxwell to be Colonel Commandant; Lieut.-Col. R. J. Conolly to be Colonel and Second Commandant; Capt. and Brevet Major J. Pickard to be Lieutenant-Colonel; First Lieut. H. V. Forbes to be Captain; Second Lieut. H. J. Bowman to be First Lieutenant; Sub-Lieuts. J. Hayes, R. H. W. Cornwall, R. F. Britten, J. W. Jones, C. R. C. Hamilton, C. W. Jones, E. R. Mathias, E. Hicks, G. O. Moore, H. Brioger, J. Hext, A. R. Kerr, W. B. M'Hardy, H. H. Justice, J. G. Jones, J. A. Dashwood, F. Hayter, and N. L. Moncrieff to be Lieutenants.

W. Murray, C. Bulford, and E. W. Thomas to be Acting Engineers in her Majesty's Fleet; H. Harrison, T. Carline, C. Platt, and J. Hopwood to be Engineers in her Majesty's Fleet.

The Prince of Wales has fixed on the 3rd of July for speech-day at Wellington College. His Royal Highness will preside.

Dr. A. Nisbet, Inspector-General of Hospitals and Fleets, is to receive the good-service pension vacant by the decease of Sir J. Richardson.

Lord Harris presided, on Tuesday, at the annual distribution of prizes to the cadets of the training-ship Worcester, at Erith, before a large number of the boys' friends.

The annual distribution of prizes to the pupils of the Royal Naval School, New-cross, took place on Tuesday—Admiral Sir William Bowles, K.C.B., in the chair.

The Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief has appointed Lieutenant-Colonel and Brevet Colonel Edwin Beaumont Johnson, C.B., Royal (late Bengal) Artillery, to be his Assistant Military Secretary.

The Royal Sovereign finished her smooth-water trials off the Isle of Wight, on Tuesday, under the supervision of Captain Astley C. Key, C.B., commanding her Majesty's ship Excellent at Portsmouth, after three days' firing from her guns with shot, shell, and case, with full and reduced charges, during which time 290 rounds have been fired without scratching a man's finger or breaking a ropeyarn.

The dinner in promotion of the objects of the Royal Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows took place, on Monday, at Willis's Rooms—the Prince of Wales in the chair, supported by the Duke of Cambridge, Earl De Grey and Ripon, and about 160 noblemen and gentlemen. Nearly £1200 was contributed, and the Duchess of Cambridge was also announced as a donor of £1000.

The half-yearly inspection of the dépôt battalions at Chatham garrison, by the Commandant, was completed on Monday. Major-General Sir Robert Walpole, K.C.B., having previously inspected the 1st and 2nd Dépôt Battalions in Chatham Barracks, proceeded on Monday morning to the Casemate Barracks at St. Mary's, where the 3rd Dépôt Battalion is stationed, and inspected that battalion. The General was perfectly satisfied.

Lieutenant-General Sir Hugh Rose, G.C.B., late Commander-in-Chief in India, was entertained, yesterday week, by the members of the United Service Club, at a dinner, at the clubhouse, in Pall-mall. Covers were laid for 106 persons. Field Marshal the Duke of Cambridge, K.G., presided at the principal table.——The annual dinner of the 7th (Queen's Own) Hussars took place, last Saturday evening, at the Clarendon Hotel. Lieutenant-General the Earl of Rosslyn, Colonel of the regiment, presided on this occasion (the first anniversary since his Lordship was appointed to the regiment).——The annual dinner of the officers now and formerly serving in the 71st Regiment (Highland Light Infantry) took place at the London Tavern on Monday.——The officers of the 13th Hussars gave an entertainment, on Thursday, at Willis's Rooms, to the officers of the 16th Lancers, previous to their embarkation for service in India.

The ninth annual meeting of the friends and supporters of the Soldiers' Daughters' Home was held, last Saturday, in the theatre of the United Service Institution, Whitehall-yard—Major-General the Hon. Yorke Scarlett, K.C.B., in the chair. The report stated that, during ten years, nineteen girls had been placed in service, making a total of seventy-one so placed up to the present time. Nine girls had been withdrawn, three had been admitted by payment, and ten by election, making the present number of children in the home 161. The expense of maintenance during the year for each girl had been £18 4s. 10d. The health of the children was good, and satisfactory progress had been made in the educational and industrial departments. The total income for the year had been £7482. The report was adopted, and rewards of £2 each were distributed to several former pupils of the school who had retained the situations in which they had been placed with satisfaction to their employers for ten years.

The Duke of Cambridge visited Aldershott Camp on Monday morning, when a review of the troops at the station, to the number of about 8000 of all arms, took place. The Duke was attended by Colonel Kerrett, Equerry in Waiting, and was accompanied by Lieutenant-General Sir J. Yorke Scarlett, K.C.B., A.G., and Lieutenant-General Sir R. Airey, K.C.B., Q.M.G. His Royal Highness and the general and other officers proceeded to the plateau adjoining that known as Cæsar's Camp, where the troops had formed up in line of contiguous column at quarter distance. The Duke was received with the customary salute on arrival, and inspected the troops; after which they marched past. The cavalry and Royal Horse Artillery also galloped past. The division then proceeded to carry out the details of an attack upon Aldershott Camp, representing an enemy advancing from Portsmouth, which were vigorously managed. At the conclusion of these movements, all of which were gone through in a perfect manner, the troops returned to quarters.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The London Scottish held their annual prize-meeting at Wimbledon last week. There were many valuable prizes contested for, and these were only open to efficients and recruits. A "Celestial cup," value £100, given by Scotchmen dwelling in China and the East, has yet to be shot for.

The annual meeting of the Finsbury Rifle Corps was held last week, under the presidency of Colonel Penton, when it was stated that there was an increase in the strength of the regiment, and that the funds were in a healthy state.

The annual meeting of the West (9th) Middlesex Rifle Volunteer Corps was held on Monday—Lord Radstock presiding. His Lordship stated that the regiment, in this its seventh year, stood better than before in numbers, efficiency, and finances. On Tuesday the regiment was inspected in Regent's Park by Colonel Wright, who paid a high compliment to the corps. Both officers and men had vigorously applied themselves to their duties, and he should make a most favourable report.

The field artillery of the 1st Middlesex Artillery, under the command of Captain Sharpe and Captain Adams, the Adjutant, marched last Saturday to Wormwood-scrubbs for gun drill. After marching past, the battery was put through various field manœuvres, coming into action, and limbering up several times with a celerity very creditable to the volunteer service. The general inspection of the corps is appointed to take place on

Last Saturday evening the London Rifle Brigade, ten companies strong, was inspected in Hyde Park by the Honorary Colonel of the regiment, the Duke of Cambridge, in the presence of the Prince of Wales. The Prince was accompanied by the Duke de Brabant, Colonel Keppel, and the Hon. Colonel Lindsay. The regiment marched into an excellent square, kept by the 1st Surrey, under Major Irvine, and, having received the Duke and staff with military honours—namely, in line in review order—broke into open column and marched past in quick time, afterwards in close column, and then, having changed front by the wheel of subdivisions, the companies went by at the double, all of which movements were loudly applauded. The usual movements of a battalion were then gone through, and were executed with precision. The advance in line and Royal salute having been given, the Duke of Cambridge congratulated men and officers on having passed a most satisfactory inspection. The Duke also complimented Colonel Warde on the manner in which he had handled the brigade.

The 1st Tower Hamlets Battalion, including the 3rd, 7th, 10th, and 12th corps, was inspected last Saturday evening, by Colonel Wright, in the park at Ham House, Essex, the seat of Lady Buxton. Ten strong companies were formed in two battalions; one under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Buxton, M.P. (who also acted as Brigadier), and the other under Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Fowell Buxton. A large number of brigade and battalion evolutions were gone through. At the conclusion Colonel Wright expressed his thorough satisfaction with the steadiness of the men and the skill and pains which had evidently been bestowed by the officers.

The military-prize meeting at Tottenham, on Saturday week, though not quite so well attended this year as last, being rather later in the season, proved very successful.

The fifth annual prize-meeting of the Lancashire Rifle Association took place last week at Altcar. The programme for this meeting, which continued five days, comprised fourteen competitions for prizes amounting to £1021, being about £100 more than the prizes of last year. The Mayor of Liverpool distributed the prizes to the successful competitors, on Saturday, in the presence of a large number of ladies and gentlemen. The meeting was a highly satisfactory one. The attendance of volunteers during the week was greater than on any former occasion; and the shooting was much above any former average.

The second periodical prize-meeting of the Altcar Enfield Club was held last Saturday. The gold challenge cup, indicating that the holder has headed the score most frequently at ordinary meetings, was awarded to Sergeant John Jones, 5th Lancashire.

A review of the volunteers of Forfarshire took place, on Saturday, on the Links of Barry, at the mouth of the Tay. The day was a holiday in Dundee and other towns in the county of Forfar, and there was a vast concourse on the heath and sands. The volunteers present numbered 1670, besides fifty men of the Naval Reserve. The volunteers were constituted in four battalions—1st, Artillery, commanded by Colonel Paterson—strength, 358; 2nd, Dundee Rifles, commanded by Majors Alison and Anderson—strength, 648; 3rd, Arbroath, Montrose, and Brechin Rifles, commanded by Colonel Renny Tailbour—strength, 405; 4th, Forfar, Kirriemuir, &c., Rifles, commanded by the Earl of Airlie—strength, 271. The volunteers were reviewed by the Earl of Dalhousie (Lord Lieutenant of the county), Colonel Erskine (Inspector of Volunteers), Colonel Jones, &c. After they had marched past, in creditable style, a sham fight took place, which lasted nearly three hours, the Naval Reserve men and a company of artillery representing the enemy. Six brass 6-pounders, belonging to the Earl of Dalhousie—having been presented to him on leaving the War Department—were lent for the occasion, and several other field-pieces were on the ground. The battle consisted of an attack on forts, constructed among the numerous sand-hills, and was conducted with vigour. At the close the volunteers were addressed by Colonel Erskine, who, after a few words on faults he had noticed, said he was very well pleased with what he had witnessed and that he should be happy to make a favourable report.

The prize-meeting of the West of Scotland Rifle Association at Irvine, which extended over a whole week, excited great interest in the North. The meeting was not only for rifle-shooting but for artillery practice as well, there being at Irvine an excellent land range for big guns. On the last day of the match upwards of 1000 volunteers were present. Some excellent shooting was made, though the weather was rather trying.

A great volunteer review and sham fight will be held at Edinburgh to-day, at which it is expected 6000 men from the adjoining counties will be present. The Edinburgh regiment will be inspected.

At the beginning of the present year the Council of the National Rifle Association offered a prize of £100 for the most efficient and serviceable military breech-loading rifle, open to all gunmakers and others. Six gentlemen entered their rifles for the competition—viz., Mr. Westley Richards, Mr. Henry, Mr. Joslyn, Mr. Mont Storm, Mr. Dawes, and Mr. Von der Poppenburg, the three latter of whom retired before the commencement of the competition; and the test took place at Woolwich. Colonel Kennedy superintended the shooting for Mr. Westley Richards's rifle, Mr. Wells that of Mr. Henry, and Mr. Ross that of Mr. Joslyn. The rifles were subjected to three trials, and twenty rounds were allowed for accuracy of shooting, with five trial shots, and 100 rounds for rapidity. On the committee submiting their report to the council of the National Rifle Association, it was found that they recommended that the prize of £100 should be given to Mr. Henry, as "his rifle and ammunition approached nearer to what would be required for a military breech-loading rifle than any of those entered by any other of the competitors." The council approved the report, and awarded the prize accordingly.

The council of the National Rifle Association has notified that the following alterations and additions have been made to the prize-list and regulations for the Annual National Rifle Meeting, which will commence on the 10th proximo on Wimbledon-common:—

III. Prince of Wales's Prize.—Five shots instead of seven.

IV. St. George's Vase.—1st Stage.—Seven shots instead of five. The 5s. entrance fee has been cancelled.

XIII.—Five-grooved Rifle Prize.—At 500 yards only, and seven shots instead of five.

XV. Swiss Target Prizes.—To be shot for at all ranges, in any position.

XVI. Duke of Cambridge's Prize will be shot for at 800 yards only.

XXV. Rifle Oaks can be shot for with any rifle carrying ·577 bore ammunition. Any ammunition of that bore may be used.

XXVI. Volunteer Service Gazette Prize.

The Lords and Commons Match will not take place.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Corporation of Liverpool voted, last week, £5000 for a new fever hospital, and £500 to the Toxteth Park Girls' Reformatory School.

Earl Granville has consented to officiate at the opening of the Alton Towers Art-Exhibition, which will take place on the 5th of July.

The election of an Irish Representative Peer, in the room of the Earl of Desart has terminated in the return of Viscount Gort.

Penarth Docks, near Cardiff, have been publicly opened, with great rejoicings. The execution of the works in connection with the docks cost nearly £700,000. They are to be handed over to the Taff Vale Railway Company for management.

The inquest on the sufferers by the Staplehurst railway accident was concluded on Monday, the jury returning a verdict of "Manslaughter" against Joseph Gallimore, the superintendent of repairs on that part of the line, and Henry Benge, the master platelayer.

A fatal colliery accident happened, on Friday morning, in one of the pits belonging to the Tredegar Company. An explosion of fire-damp killed twenty-seven men. There were two hundred men in the pit at the time, and they were with difficulty got out.

The Duke of Wellington has sent the following letter to all his tenants:—"Strathfieldsaye, June 1, 1865.—Dear Sir,—I think it right clearly to explain to you my feeling regarding the exercise of your vote. It is a trust imposed on you for the advantage of the country, and the responsibility of the proper exercise of it rests on yourself alone. It is committed to you—not to me; and I beg you distinctly to understand that no one has my authority for stating that I wish to bias you in favour of any candidate."

At Coventry, Sir Joseph Paxton, a Liberal, has been replaced by Mr. Eaton, a Conservative. The polling, which took place on Wednesday, was close, Mr. Eaton obtaining 2396 votes, and his opponent, Mr. Mason Jones, a Liberal, 2142.——Sir Arthur Buller, a Liberal, was, on Wednesday, elected, without opposition, for Liskeard, in the room of Mr. Bernal Osborne.——The seat for Devonport, vacated by Sir A. Buller, was warmly contested on Thursday. There were two candidates—Mr. Fleming, a Conservative; and Mr. Brassey, a Liberal. The latter gentleman was chosen, the numbers officially declared at the close of the poll being—Brassey, 1264; and Fleming, 1208.

On Monday the closing meeting of the Central Executive Committee of the Lancashire Distress Fund was held in the Townhall, Manchester—Sir J. P. Kay Shuttleworth in the chair. The hon. secretary reported that £80 had been received since the last meeting, and that the balance in the bank was £26,134. Mr. Rawlinson presented a report, in which he stated that public works have been in operation in the distressed cotton districts for nearly two years, and about one million sterling has been expended upon useful employment, at an average rate of some £10,000 weekly, since the commencement of the works to the present time. During the deepest portion of the distress some 35,000 people, directly and indirectly, have received relief from the money so expended. Upwards of 200 miles of streets have been sewered, formed, paved, channelled, and footwalks flagged. The average wages earned by cotton operatives have ranged from 12s. to 14s. per week. The hon. secretary stated that in the amount of subscriptions received the following large sums from foreign sources had been remitted to the central and Mansion House funds:—Europe, £1750 7s. 5d.; Asia, £132,625 8s. 6d.; Africa, £13,115 1s.; South America, £9612 2s. 8d.; North America, £40,868 2s. 2d.; Australia, &c., £64,740 8s. 6d: total, £275,521 12s. 8d. The amount from Asia includes the balance of the Indian Famine Fund, which was remitted from Calcutta to the Mansion House. The amount from North America, however, does not include the value of provisions received from the New York International Relief Committee, amounting to £25,000. The other remittances were almost all from British residents abroad. Mr. Farnall then read his usual report, and in a brief speech announced his recall by the Government. At the request of the chairman, Mr. Farnall and Mr. Rawlinson retired from the room, when the committee deliberated on a series of resolutions which were proposed by the chairman, seconded by Lord E. Howard, and unanimously adopted, expressive of the sense the committee entertained of the important services which the President of the Poor-Law Board had rendered to that district by his cordial co-operation with this committee, adverting to the appointment of a Special Commissioner (Mr. Farnall), to the services of that Commissioner, to the earnestness and skill with which Mr. Villiers recommended the Public Works Manufacturing District Act to the approbation of the House of Commons, and to the vigilance with which he promoted the passing of that Act through both Houses of Parliament. The resolutions likewise expressed the committee's sense of the importance of the labours of the officers (Mr. Rawlinson and others) to whom Mr. Villiers has intrusted the execution of that Act, and to the beneficial consequences which have flowed from it to this district. Mr. Farnall and Mr. Rawlinson having re-entered the room, the chairman communicated to them the terms of the resolution having special reference to their services; and those gentlemen having briefly returned thanks, the committee, after making a number of grants, adjourned sine die, subject to the summons of the chairman, vice-chairman, and secretary.——The surplus moneys of the Bradford Lancashire Relief Fund have all been distributed. In every case the money returned to individual subscribers was handed over to local charities, and the sums contributed by congregations have been distributed in a similar manner, at the instance of the committee. The Preston Relief Committee have recently ceased to operate, and it appears from their report that they have expended £131,000 among the Preston operatives since the 27th of January, 1862. Above £25,000 of this money was raised in Preston and neighbourhood. The Manchester Central Committee contributed more than double that amount, and the Mansion House Committee a little more than £30,000 of it.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

Emmanuel Church, Streatham, was consecrated last Saturday, by the Bishop of Winchester, in the presence of a large congregation.

The foundation-stone of a new church has been laid at Penarth, near Cardiff. It is to be erected at the sole expense of Baroness Windsor. The estimated cost is £7000.

Yesterday week the foundation-stone of St. Peter's Mission Church, situated in Spread Eagle-street, Limehouse, was laid by Lord Radstock. After the ceremony, the Rev. J. Bardsley stated that the church was one of thirty-three which it was contemplated to erect in different parts of the diocese from the proceeds of the Bishop of London's Fund.

The Bishop of Norwich held his triennial visitation on Monday. The Right Rev. Prelate, in his charge, condemned latitudinarianism on the one hand, and the Romanistic tendencies which have lately invaded his diocese on the other. He besought his clergy to submit with soberness to the rule of "this Church," and to aim at increased earnestness, godliness, and prayer.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has fixed to-day (Saturday) for the consecration of the Rev. Robert Machray, D.D., to the bishopric of Rupert's Land, rendered vacant by the resignation of Bishop Anderson.

There was a meeting of the York Convocation in the Chapter House of York Cathedral yesterday week. The President, the Archbishop of York, was in the chair. His Grace alluded to the bill with respect to the subscriptions of the clergy, and suggested that a Royal license should be applied for in order to amend, or repeal, or make alterations in the 36th, 37th, 38th, and 40th Canons. His Grace then read an address to the Crown for this purpose, and it was adopted on the motion of Archdeacon Creyke, seconded by Canon Johnstone. Convocation was then adjourned until July 7.

The governors of the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy held a meeting, last Saturday, at their house, 2, Bloomsbury-place, to distribute the Midsummer benefactions to poor clergymen with families of not less than three children. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, president; and Lord Cranworth, vice-president; were present. On this occasion 144 clergymen in various parts of England and Wales applied for a grant from the benefactions, and to 138 donations from £10 to £20 were given.

The Incorporated Society for the Enlargement, Building, and Repairing of Churches and Chapels held its last meeting but one for the present session, at the society's house, Whitehall, on Monday—the Bishop of Lichfield in the chair. Grants of money amounting to £820 were made.

The annual meeting of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts was held, on Thursday week, in the Egyptian Hall, Mansion House—the Lord Mayor in the chair. The receipts for the year amounted to £102,997, showing, as compared with the previous year, an increase of £5616. The society's missionary list now includes 501 clergymen maintained wholly or in part, and a large body of catechists, schoolmasters, and divinity students. In British North America an expenditure of nearly £26,000 was incurred, by which the incomes of 229 clergymen were raised to an amount sufficient for their support, in places where the ministerial duties were increased by the arrival of 18,083 emigrants. In the West Indies and in Africa there was advancement. In India and the East, by an expenditure of nearly £40,000, a Christian education had been provided for 7507 scholars in Bengal and South India, and 587 clergymen and lay teachers had been maintained at chosen spots, where they had held up the torch of Christian teaching and Christian life amid the dark idolatry of 200 millions of heathens, of whom 1700 had been baptised this year; and in Australia £4500 had been spent to extend the ministrations of seventy-one clergymen.

The following preferments and appointments have recently taken place:—Rectories: The Rev. Y. J. E. Riadore to All Saints', Chichester; Rev. H. Ridgeway to Sternfield, Suffolk. Vicarages: Rev. J. Ogilvy Millar to Tamworth, with the rural deanery; Rev. C. J. K. Shaw to Brenzett. Incumbency: Rev. J. B. Seaman to South Baddesley, Lymington. Perpetual Curacies: Rev. D. Medcalf to Charsfield, Suffolk; Rev. A. Perceval to Woolfardisworthy, Devon; Rev. H. T. Salmon to St. John's, Milford, Surrey; Rev. C. E. Smith to Nackington. Curacies: Rev. T. F. Clarke to Marchington Woodlands; Rev. W. King to Lower Hardres; Rev. I. Wood to Chillenden.

UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—At Oxford the annual procession of racing-boats took place on the Isis, on Monday evening, and was witnessed by some thousands of spectators. The festivities of the day concluded with a grand masonic ball in the Corn Exchange, given by the Apollo University Lodge of Freemasons. All the élite of the University, county, and the principal visitors staying in Oxford were present. At the encœnia held on Wednesday morning, in the Sheldonian Theatre, the honorary degree of Doctor in Civil Law was conferred on Lord Lyons, Lieutenant-General Sir Hugh H. Rose, Count Melchior de Vogüé, the Hon. John Alexander Macdonald, Henry James Sumner Maine, Robert Christison, M.D., and William Stokes, M.D. The usual speeches and recitations followed the ceremony of conferring degrees.

A congregation was held at Cambridge, on Tuesday, for the purpose of the creation of such gentlemen who had proceeded to the degree of doctor in the several faculties, and also to that of M.A. during the past academical year. The proceedings were entirely of a formal character.

Yesterday week was "Speech Day" at Dulwich College. There are few Londoners to whom the college gallery, with its choice collection of pictures, is not familiar. It was here that the speeches were delivered, in the presence of a crowded audience, including the Bishops of Winchester and Ely, the Dean of Westminster, Sir Sidney Cotton, the Hon. Mr. Brodrick, and other distinguished persons. The Bishop of Winchester distributed the prizes. The Master of the college (the Rev. Dr. Carver) referred with justifiable pride to the distinctions which had been obtained by the school at the Universities, where four open scholarships have been won during the present year by boys educated at Dulwich; and also in the Cambridge local examinations, in which the successes of the school have been very conspicuous (including eight first-class and thirteen second-class honours during the last three years); and in several other public competitions. The chairman of the board of governors (the Rev. W. Rogers) read some very flattering extracts from the examiners' report and announced the award of two exhibitions of £40 a year each to the two head boys, C. E. Doble and C. H. Lane; and the proceedings terminated with a deafening "three times three!" given by the boys to the Master of the college.

Mr. Hayter Lewis has been appointed Professor of Architecture in University College, London, vice Mr. Donaldson, who becomes Eremitus Professor.

The Bishop of Bath and Wells has appointed the Rev. Henry Bannerman Burney, M.A., Chaplain in H.M. Indian service to be the Principal of Wells Theological College, in succession to the Rev. J. H. Pinder, who has been compelled by declining health to resign that appointment.

Wednesday was Apposition at St. Paul's School, when the founder, Dean Colet, D.D., was commemorated, after the usual manner, by an oration, the distribution of prizes, and the delivery of speeches. There was a very large company present.

The annual distribution of prizes in connection with the Stockport Grammar School took place on Wednesday, in the school-room—Mr. E. W. Watkin, M.P., presiding. There was a large attendance of parents and of friends of education.

The annual distribution of prizes to the pupils of the North London Collegiate School took place, yesterday week, in St. Martin's Hall, in the presence of a fashionable audience. The chair was taken by the Bishop of London.

The fifteenth annual distribution of prizes to the North London Collegiate School for Ladies took place yesterday week, at the Vestry-hall, St. Pancras—the Rev. Canon Champneys, the Vicar, in the chair. The report stated that the number of pupils exceeded 200.

The National Portrait Gallery on and after July 1 will be open to the public three days in the week—namely, on Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday. During the months of July and August the gallery will be open from ten to six, and during September from ten to five. From October 1 to April 1 the gallery will be closed at four o'clock.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Earl Granville presides at the annual distribution of prizes to the students of the Female School of Arts, at the theatre in Jermyn-street, to-day (Saturday).

The third competition for the gold medal, given annually by Sir William Fraser, Bart., M.P., for the encouragement of swimming, is appointed to take place at Hammersmith, on the afternoon of Monday next.

At a meeting of the Common Council on Thursday week it was agreed, with two dissentient voices, that a bust of the late Mr. Cobden should be placed in the common hall; and a letter from Mrs. Cobden, acknowledging the address of condolence on her husband's death, was read.

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Death by Fire have added to their stations three new escapes, made by Mr. Clark, of Barton-crescent, similar to those that carried off the first prize at the Great Exhibition. They are placed, one in New Bridge-street; another at Bishop's-road, Paddington; and the third at Islington.

Messrs. Barry Brothers, the defendants in the recent case of the insurance frauds, have forwarded to Sir George Grey a memorial complaining in strong terms of their treatment while under trial. For seventeen days, they say, they were lodged in Newgate, placed in solitary cells, fed like convicts unless they purchased food, and subjected to various "cruel indignities," till at last released on bail and ultimately acquitted. In other words, they, being innocent, endured a sentence of seventeen days' imprisonment.

The annual presentation dinner of the Incorporated Society of Licensed Victuallers took place, on Tuesday, at the Pier Hotel, Chelsea, on which occasion Mr. William Harris, the immediate past governor of the society, was sumptuously entertained by his colleagues on the board of management, and was presented, in the name of the society, with a costly silver tea service, in commemoration of the distinguished services rendered by him to the institution during his year of office.

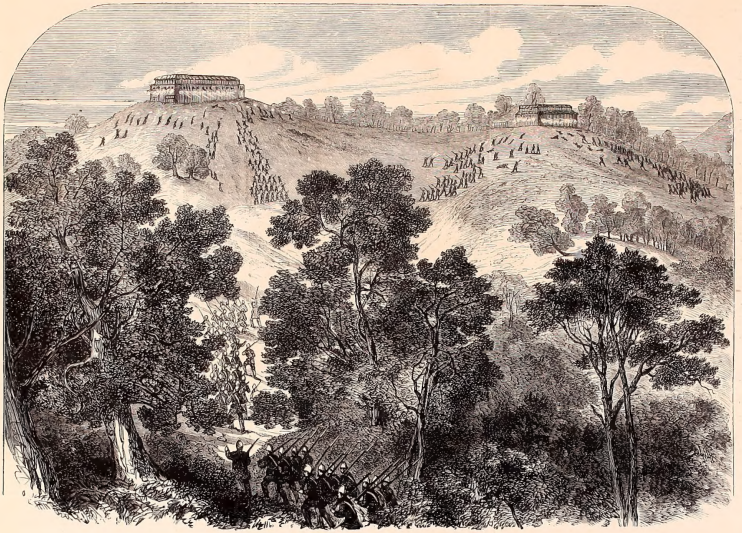
A meeting of the committee of the Newspaper Press Fund was held last Saturday. The Duke of St. Albans, the Earl of Cardigan, Lord Taunton, the Right Hon. Spencer Walpole, Sir John Hay, Professor Owen, Mr. Scholefield, Mr. David Keane, M. Octave Delapierre, Mr. T. H. Allen Poynder, Mr. J. Laird, the Rev. Charles Merivale, Mr. Baillie Cochrane, Mr. S. Butler, and the Rev. Herbert Randolph, were elected vice-presidents of the fund. Several members were admitted, and additional honorary agents appointed throughout the country.

A meeting called by the British North American Association was held yesterday week, at the London Tavern, to hear a statement from the Hon. Darcy M'Gee, Minister of Agriculture for Canada. Mr. R. W. Crawford, M.P., was in the chair. Mr. M'Gee, in the course of his address, stated that Canada did not wish, at present, to be severed from the mother country. He strongly advocated the confederation scheme, and pointed out the natural advantages of Canada as a field for emigration. He said there was no desire whatever on the part of the Canadians to be annexed to the United States.

The ninety-first anniversary dinner of the Royal Humane Society took place, on Wednesday evening, at the Freemasons' Tavern—Lord Clarence Paget, M.P., in the chair, supported by many gentlemen well known for their advocacy of the claims of this society to public encouragement. There were also present three gentlemen connected with a similar institution in France—Le Marquis de Béthisy, M. Jaybert, and M. Gémond. During last year the society conferred, as rewards of gallantry to those who risked their lives to save the lives of their fellow-creatures, fifteen honorary silver medals, fifty-eight honorary bronze medals, nineteen vellum and fifty parchment testimonials. The subscriptions amounted to nearly £320.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Asylum for Fatherless Children was held, on Monday, at the London Tavern—Mr. Henry Harvey, sub-treasurer, in the chair. During the past year the charity received many substantial tokens of favour and confidence; for, in addition to the ordinary contributions for the current expenses of the establishment at Reedham, £5000 had been promised towards the removal of the debt, which at the last annual meeting was announced to be £10,800. Of the amount promised towards the liquidation of the remaining sum, £2650 had been paid. The amount received in legacies during the past year was larger than usual, but still the sum of £5200 was needed to effect an entire removal of the debt.

The first general meeting of the trustees and governors of the institution known as the Corps of Commissionnaires was held, last Saturday, at Exchange-court, Strand. Major-General Russell, C.B., presided. The chairman explained the object of the meeting, which was to place the Corps of Commissionnaires, which had proved itself not only one of the best conducted but useful bodies in the metropolis, upon a permanent basis, and to relieve its founder from the onus and responsibility which has hitherto rested upon him. For this purpose it was proposed to elect a board of permanent trustees, as well as a general board of administration, for the ensuing year, and to adopt such other measures as might be recommended for the furtherance of the endowment fund and for the interests of the corps generally. The financial statement having been read by Captain Walter, the meeting proceeded to elect certain gentlemen as permanent trustees. The administrative board was then elected, and, after the alteration and amendment of certain rules connected with the general administration of the corps, thanks to Captain Walter and the gallant chairman brought the proceedings to a close.



The friends of University College Hospital held their annual dinner, on Wednesday evening, at Willis's Rooms. The chair was taken by Lord Belper, one of the vice-presidents. The annual cost of maintaining the hospital in its present state is £6500. The certain income consists of annual subscriptions, which do not amount to £1100; fees paid by students for clinical instruction, which are relinquished by the medical staff for the purposes of the charity, and average about £1000; and interest of investments, £640; making together £2740. Thus a yearly deficit of nearly £4000 has to be provided for. During the last year 1457 in-patients were admitted into the hospital; 13,898 received medical and surgical treatment as out-patients; nearly 12,000 were attended to as casualties; and relief was administered to 1100 ophthalmic cases, and 898 women in childbirth were attended at their own habitations. At the end of the last financial year (Oct. 31, 1864) the debt, which had been accumulating for several years, amounted to £7800. It has since been reduced to £4800, but is again increasing. The subscriptions announced, including £50 from the chairman and £100 from Mr. Samuel Carter, amounted to £1000.

At a special general meeting of the subscribers to the Printers' Orphan Asylum, a newly-formed charity, held on Monday evening at Anderton's Hotel, a report from the committee was considered. Charles Reed, Esq., F.S.A., presided, and was supported by a large number of master printers of the metropolis, the room being well filled by working members of the trade. A brief report was read by Mr. W. Dorrington, describing the success which has attended the exertions of the committee, who had succeeded in obtaining the support of a large body of journeymen as subscribers to the institution, and also in enlisting the sympathy and support of a considerable number of employers. The rules, eighty-five in number, prepared by the committee, after discussion and some verbal amendments, were unanimously adopted. The object of the charity is to provide an asylum for destitute orphans, children of compositors, pressmen, machinists, and others connected with the printing trade. As soon as £250 is subscribed an election will take place; more than £200 is already in hand. The chairman expressed his warm approval of the scheme; and, connected as he was with many similar charities, he should always feel, as a member of the trade, an especial interest in the one he had that evening assisted in inaugurating.

A public meeting was held, on Thursday, at Willis's Rooms, in aid of the fund for the exploration of Palestine. The Archbishop of York presided. His Grace, in opening the proceedings, made the gratifying announcement that her Majesty the Queen had accepted the office of patron of the institution. He proceeded to say that the state of our knowledge of Palestine was far from being what it ought to be, and that in almost every branch of the inquiry much remained to be done. Explorations and excavations had hardly taken place in Palestine at all, though, no doubt, under the sacred city every stone contained a monument. The Palestine Exploration Fund had for its object an inductive inquiry. It was not a religious institution, nor did it intend to plunge into controversy. The first resolution, providing for a fund to carry out the objects of the society, was moved by the Bishop of London, seconded by Viscount Strangford, and unanimously adopted. Mr. Layard moved a resolution to the effect that the exploration of Jerusalem would probably throw much light on the archæology of the Jewish people. He bore testimony to the extreme liberality of the Sultan in permitting excavations, and expressed a hope that her Majesty's Government might see its way to making grants for these interesting investigations. Count Vogel seconded the resolution, which was adopted. Several most interesting addresses were delivered, and a committee was formed to carry out the objects of the meeting.

The births of 2013 children—1028 boys and 985 girls—were registered in London last Saturday, June 17. In the corresponding weeks of ten years 1855-64 the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 1870. The deaths registered in London last week were 1204. The average number for the twenty-fourth week of the year—viz., the corresponding week in ten years, 1855-64—is, with a correction for increase of population, 1196. The deaths from diarrhœa rose to 93, which is more than double the number returned in the preceding week. Those from typhus were also more numerous; they were 55, the deaths from that disease in the two previous weeks having been 44 and 38.——Last week the births in London and ten other large towns of the United Kingdom were 4149; the deaths 2477. The annual rate of mortality in the week in those eleven towns was 23 per 1000 persons living. In Liverpool the births were 402, the deaths 267; in Manchester—births 286, deaths 173; in Salford—births 129, deaths, 62; in Birmingham—births 229, deaths 126; in Leeds—births 187, deaths 116; in Bristol—births 111, deaths 63; in Hull—births 105, deaths 42; in Edinburgh—births 143, deaths 79; in Glasgow—births 361, deaths 222; and in Dublin—births 183, deaths 123. The rate of mortality last week was 21 per 1000 in London, 24 in Edinburgh, and 20 in Dublin; 29 in Liverpool, 25 in Manchester, 29 in Salford, 20 in Birmingham, 27 in Leeds, 20 in Bristol, 21 in Hull, and 27 in Glasgow.

THE WAR IN BHOOTAN.

STORMING THE STOCKADE OF DEWANGIRI.

NATIVE TROOPS OF THE BENGAL ARMY EMPLOYED IN BHOOTAN.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

THE LATE SIR JOSEPH PAXTON.

IN the churchyard of the village of Edensor, in Derbyshire, and on the same day, Thursday week, in the Crystal Palace near London, the funeral of Sir Joseph Paxton, gardener and builder for a great English Duke, and for the greater English people, was duly commenised. Within the lordly demesne of Chatsworth, one of the highest in rank and personally most accomplished of the old and rich nobility of this realm, having inherited from his predecessor, with the ownership of vast estates, and with an all but princely title, the services and the friendship of a man of genius, the fame of whose works has reflected a fresh lustre upon the house of his early and constant patron, met a few private gentlemen, engineers, contractors, authors, artists and scientific men, with the secretary and manager of the Crystal Palace Company, to lay Sir Joseph Paxton in his grave. The Crystal Palace at Sydenham—the People's palace in a suburb of this metropolis, erected, in a great measure, by his taste and skill—was closed and silent at the hour when his lifeless body was interred in the beautiful demesne of the wealthy Peer's palace which he had so wonderfully adorned, in the Peak country of Derbyshire. But when the Crystal Palace was opened that day, at the unusual hour of one in the afternoon, it was consecrated to a special performance of mournful music, in reverent sympathy with the feelings of those who had attended his obsequies, and of his other personal friends, as well as in just recognition of his claims upon the gratitude of the public at large. A marble bust of him, inscribed "Fundator Domûs," and for some months past been exhibited in front of the Handel Orchestra; and it was suggested last week, at the meeting of the Crystal Palace Company, that his statue, on a conspicuous pedestal, should be erected in the centre of the nave and transept. The inscription "Si monumentum quæris, circumspice" might bear record of Paxton in that glorious edifice as fitly as, in St. Paul's Cathedral, it bears witness to the genius of Wren.

The history of the Crystal Palace and of the Exhibition Building in Hyde Park, suggested by the previous construction of the Duke of Devonshire's grand conservatory at Chatsworth, is familiar to most of our readers. The Number of this Journal for July 6, 1850, contained an Engraving of Mr. Paxton's design for the Exhibition building, of cast-iron columns and glass. It differed much from the actual Crystal Palace in its form, especially in the absence of a transept and in the flatness of its three roofs, which rose one above the other, like steps or terraces, in receding stages, towards the centre of its width; but it furnished what was wanted—the means of expeditiously covering a space of twenty-one acres with a structure that would keep out the rain and wind, but let in the light of day. The Exhibition of 1851 would, to all appearance, have been a failure if it had not been for this design, since 240 other plans had been offered in vain. Sir Charles Barry has the credit of inventing the central transept, which was intended to preserve the elm-trees, but which, of course, added greatly to the architectural beauty of the building in Hyde Park. Messrs. Fox and Henderson were the builders. Still, it cannot be disputed that the merits of Sir Joseph Paxton on that occasion were sufficient to deserve all the praise which he received—as well as the knighthood; and, by his subsequent achievements at Sydenham, he proved that the confidence of the shareholders in his ability as a self-taught architect and engineer had not been misplaced. As a landscape-gardener, which was the art he first practised at Chatsworth, he has, beyond question, surpassed all others in our time. The Crystal Palace gardens, like the Crystal Palace itself, bear testimony to the genius of their designer. In practical horticulture and the science of botany, having, when a very young man, been employed in the establishment of the Horticultural Society at Chiswick, and having maintained throughout his life a constant intercourse with Professor Lindley, the greatest of modern botanical writers, Sir Joseph Paxton made some useful contributions to the literature of those subjects. He commenced, in 1831, with Mr. J. Harrison, a serial publication entitled The Horticultural Register and General Magazine, and, in 1832, The Magazine of Botany and Register of Flowering Plants, of which fifteen annual volumes appeared; and which then was somewhat remodelled and continued under the title of Paxton's Magazine of Gardening and Botany, ultimately being transformed into Paxton's Flower Garden. In 1838, when dahlias were fashionable, he wrote a "Practical Treatise on the Cultivation of the Dahlia," which was translated into French, German, and Swedish, and to the translations of which Humboldt and Adrien Jussieu wrote special introductions. The last work with which his name is associated was a "Botanical Pocket Dictionary," in which he had Dr. Lindley as a coadjutor, and which proposes to give the history and culture of all plants known in Britain. But Sir Joseph Paxton's chief performances were less of a scientific than of a practical and executive character.

THE LATE SIR JOSEPH PAXTON, M.P.

In 1854, the year of the completion and opening of the Crystal Palace at Sydenham, Sir Joseph Paxton entered the House of Commons as member for Coventry. He was a sincere Liberal in politics, being one of the original proprietors of the Daily News; but it was upon matters within the range of his own experience as a director of great public works and an employer of labour that he was most willing to give the benefit of his sagacity and special knowledge either for the information of Parliament or of the Government, by whom he was frequently consulted. The institution of the Army Works Corps, during our war in the Crimea, was mainly due to Sir Joseph Paxton.

The Portrait we have engraved is considered by his friends the best likeness of the man. A brief obituary notice appeared in our last Number.

VOLUNTEER REVIEW AND SHAM FIGHT AT BERWICK-ON-TWEED.

THE Northumberland Artillery Militia, with the Berwick Artillery and Fifth Volunteers, and one company of the Eyemouth Artillery Volunteers, assisted by the coastguard and sailors of the gun-boat Ruby, to the number altogether of 600 or 700 men, had a most successful field-day, upon the 8th inst., at Berwick-on-Tweed. They were first inspected by Colonel Anderson, C.B., of the Royal Artillery, after which they were divided into two conflicting parties—the one, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Charlesworth, occupying the ramparts, from Brass Mount to the Windmill Mount, the King's Bastion, and Fisher's Fort, with the batteries of the defence; while the other party, under Major Frivault, as Brigadier, having been conveyed by a steam-boat down the River Tweed, landed on the pier, in spite of a heavy fire, and made an assault upon the ramparts. The gun-boat meanwhile, or rather the Tweed steamer, which represented the gun-boat on this occasion, since the Ruby herself was under repair, was feigning an attempt to come up the harbour, when some torpedoes exploded to destroy her. At last the blowing-up of a stockade erected near the old Cowport Gate enabled the besiegers to force their way into the town. Both parties were highly commended by Colonel Anderson for their soldierly conduct and skill. Our Illustration, from a sketch by Mr. W. Wilson, represents the assault on the walls.

VOLUNTEER SHAM FIGHT AT BERWICK-ON-TWEED.

BIRTHS.

At Brighton, the wife of J. W. F. Lowthorpe, Esq., of a son.

On the 3rd ult., at Rangoon, the wife of Captain Eardley Childers, Royal Artillery, of a daughter.

On the 16th inst., the wife of Jas. Ramsay Dow, of Oporto, and 7, Brondsbury-road, Kilburn, of a son.

On the 11th inst., at the Vicarage, Barrow-on-Humber, the Hon. Mrs. Richard Beverley Machell, of a son.

At Seabank House, near Inverness, the wife of John Congreve, Esq., of Stony Stratford, Bucks, and Flichity, Invernesshire, of a daughter.

At Prince's-gate, Lady L. Feilding, of a daughter.

On the 17th inst., at Talacre, the Hon. Lady Mostyn, of a son.

At Agra, the wife of Captain the Hon. J. H. Fraser, of a daughter.

At Charles-street, Berkeley-square, Lady G. Rolle, of a daughter.

At Woodville House, Blackheath, the Hon. Mrs. C. Webber, of a son.

At Green-street, Grosvenor-square, the Hon. Mrs. W. Napier, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 15th inst., at the Church of the Holy Ascension, Settle, by the Rev. Canon Boyd, Rural Dean, Vicar of Arncliffe, and the Rev. W. F. Pierson, Incumbent of Settle, and brother-in-law of the bride, the Rev. Matthew Wood, Rector of Bentham, Yorkshire, to Sarah Mary, youngest daughter of the late John Birkbeck, Esq., of Anley, Settle. No cards.

On the 15th inst., at Cheshunt, by the Rev. A. Brown, Thomas Masterman Hardy Johnston, of the Madras Railway, M.I.C.E., son of the late Captain Edward Johnston, R.N., to Emma Mary Olivia, third surviving daughter of the late Rev. Albany, Wade, Rector of Elton, near Stockton-on-Tees.

On the 21st inst., at Chalfont St. Peter's, Bucks, by the Rev. T. G. P. Hough, Incumbent of Ham, Surrey, the Rev. Maxwell H. Coote, of Clonaslea, Queen's County, Ireland, to Charlotte, youngest daughter of the late Major Barry Fox, of Annaghmore, King's County, Ireland.

On the 30th ult., at Holy Trinity Church, Paddington, by the Rev. A. Denny, assisted by the Rev. Charles Walsham, M.A., Edward Hood Lingard Ray, Esq., Commander R.N., H.M.S. Implacable, to Blanche, daughter of the late George Robinson, Esq., of Bagatelle, Mauritius. No cards.

DEATHS.

On the 14th inst., at South-hill Grove, Henry, second son of the late Charles Coteswortb, Esq., of Liverpool, aged 29.

On the 14th inst., at 24, Brunswick-terrace, Brighton, after a long and severe illness, deeply regretted, Edward William Wall, Esq., youngest son of the Rev. William Ellis Wall, of Wheatfields, Powick, Worcestershire, in the 27th year of his age.

On the 12th inst., at Monaghan, suddenly, deeply regretted, Maurice Peppard Warren Lewis, Esq., LL.D. and J.P., the eldest and much loved son Lieutenant-Colonel Arthur Gambell Lewis, D.L. and J.P., County Monaghan, and Fitzwilliam-square, Dublin.

At Elm Lodge, Hampton, Lord C. Fitzroy, son of the fourth Duke of Grafton, in his 75th year.

At Hamilton, Lanarkshire, Mrs. Livingstone, mother of Dr. Livingstone, the African traveller, aged 82.

At Constance, Lady Temple, relict of Sir G. L. Temple, Bart.

At High Elms, Kent, Sir J. W. Lubbock, Bart., in his 63rd year.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 1.

SUNDAY, June 25.—Second Sunday after Trinity. Death of Louis Bonaparte, ex-King of Holland, father of the Emperor Napoleon III., 1846.

MONDAY, 26.—Oliver Cromwell inaugurated as Lord Protector, 1657. Death of Gilbert White of Selborne, the naturalist, 1793. The Corn Laws repealed, 1846.

TUESDAY, 27.—Gibbon finishes his "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" at Lausanne, 1787. Death of Runjeet Singh, the great Sikh chief, 1839.

WEDNESDAY, 28.—Coronation of Queen Victoria, 1838. Death of James Henry Fitzroy, Lord Raglan, Commander of the British Army in the Crimea, 1855.

THURSDAY, 29.—St. Peter, apostle and martyr. Charles V. declared to be elected Emperor of Germany, 1519. Death of the American statesman Henry Clay, 1852.

FRIDAY, 30.—The first stone of Greenwich Hospital laid by Wren and Evelyn, 1696. Execution of Richard Parker, leader of the mutiny at the Nore, 1797.

SATURDAY, July 1.—Battle of the Boyne: victory of William III. over his father-in-law, James II., 1690. Steam navigation first tried on the Thames, with a barge, 1801. The Moon's first quarter, 1h. 40m. a.m.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 1.

Sunday.		Monday.		Tuesday.		Wednesday.		Thursday.		Friday.		Saturday.
M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
3 12	3 35	3 55	4 15	4 35	4 53	5 13	5 33	5 53	6 12	6 31	6 56	7 18	7 40

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOMETER		WIND.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Minimum, read at 10 A.M.	Maximum, read at 10 P.M.	General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours.	Rain in 24 hours, Read at 10 A.M.
	Inches.	°	°		0-10	°	°		Miles	Inches
June 14	30·355	63·8	52·7	·69	0	49·3	74·0	E.	149	·000
15	30·369	61·1	52·2	·74	2	45·3	71·4	NNE.	98	·000
16	30·391	56·1	45·4	·69	5	51·3	65·6	NNE. NE. N.	334	·000
17	30·341	57·1	47·9	·73	3	49·6	67·2	NE. ENE.	297	·000
18	..	..	..	..	..	47·7	56·7	..	281	·000
19	30·324	55·7	48·0	·77	3	49·2	69·6	NE. E. N.	220	·000
20	30·325	64·4	44·6	·51	0	42·5	75·7	NNE. ENE. E.	116	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer (in inches) corrected	30·371	30·402	30·407	30·388	30·297	30·351	30·357
Temperature of Air	67·0°	60·5°	59·7°	59·5°	53·2°	51·9°	63·3°
Temperature of Evaporation	58·9°	55·7°	53·7°	54·3°	50·7°	50·0°	55·0°
Direction of Wind	CALM.	CALM.	NNE.	NE.	NNE.	NE.	NNE.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 24, 1865.

THE coroner's jury which sat to inquire into the details of the frightful railway accident at Staplehurst has returned a verdict of manslaughter against the two subordinate officials, and they have been committed, and bailed, to await their trial. This verdict, so far as it goes, will receive the approbation of the public. There is no doubt that both Benge, the platelayer, and Gallimore, the district inspector, grossly neglected their duty, and they have, indeed, virtually admitted the fact. Their punishment will, probably, be a severe one. In Benge's case the allegation is that he misread the time-bill. The consequence has been the most distressing casualty, all things considered, which we recollect in the history of railway travelling. He will, if condemned to a heavy punishment, say that it is hard to be imprisoned for a long term for misreading figures. But the unanswerable answer of the English Judge to the man whom he had sentenced for horse-stealing will occur to the public. "It is hard," said the culprit, "that I should be hanged for stealing a horse." "You are hanged," said the Judge, "not for stealing a horse, but that horses may not be stolen." Time-bills must not be misread. The case of Gallimore is worse, as he is a person of superior intelligence, and is stated to have been in possession of power to prevent the line from being disturbed at any time when he might think it dangerous to touch the metals. It will be, to a certain extent, beneficial to make signal examples of these offenders, and we recommend the companies to do, in reference to them, what the management is, very properly, prompt to do when a passenger has ridden in a wrong carriage, scratched the windows, or torn the cushions; we would have a statement of the offence and of the punishment placarded at every station in the kingdom.

But this will by no means satisfy the public. We believe sincerely that the directors on whose line the accident has occurred are profoundly grieved at it. To doubt this would be to accuse gentlemen of a callousness that would be a disgrace to human nature. That enormous damages will assuredly be recovered in a great number of cases is certain; but we are quite willing to give the directors all credit for disinterested sorrow for what has happened. The South-Eastern Railway has for many years done a much better thing than talk about security for the public. It has exerted itself to provide that security, and the proof is in the paucity of accidents on a line on which travelling at tremendous speed is the rule rather than the exception. But though the system has worked well, by comparison, it is clearly defective, as are the arrangements on all the lines in the country. We cannot assent to the doctrine that accidents must happen sometimes, or, at least, we refuse to do so until every plan for preventing them has been exhausted. Now we are quite sure that not only the South-Eastern line, but every line, is in the hands of gentlemen who are willing to give calm consideration to every reasonable suggestion for increasing the safety of the public, and we are certain that our own views will receive the attention which we believe they deserve.

The inherent vice of the railway system—we mean, of course, the system of working the lines—is in the fact that those to whom responsibility is committed are selected from too low a rank in life. What is absolutely demanded on the railway is a discipline which should be military in its rigidity, not to say severity. The best code of rules in the world is all but valueless if it be not obeyed with precision; and it is proved on every inquest that is held on a sufferer that rules are continually and habitually disregarded. They were disregarded on the line on which the accident in question occurred, and one of the witnesses seemed to think it was matter of course that they should be. It is, as everyone who understands human nature knows, perfectly impossible to compel rigid attention to rules where there is no broad social distinction between the commander and the commanded. Men who lounge about on a sort of equality, and exchange friendly chat, when no business is going on, will not drop into clockwork precision, and into the respective attitudes of despotism and submission, at the sight of a train. Ask any military man the secret of the unhesitating obedience in the Army, and he will tell you that it is secured by the existence of two classes, so distinct that the slightest act of fellowship between members of the two orders is visited, in the case of the superior, at least, with the severest censure. The railway companies must take a leaf out of the Army List, and annex that leaf to Bradshaw. The responsible offices on the lines should be filled by men of higher social rank than now fill them, men who have been in the habit of command, and men who will have no intercourse with their inferiors, except for the purposes of business. Such officials, and such alone, will be able to compel the most careful obedience to orders, and will have no feelings of friendship or class-sympathy to induce them to relax discipline or to screen an offender. There can be no difficulty in obtaining such officers. There are hundreds of gentlemen who have served in the Army and the Navy who are in every way qualified for such duties—prompt, keen, determined men, who will know nothing of the persons under them except that they do or do not do their duty. Only, such officers must receive the pay of gentlemen. It is for the companies to consider whether it is not better to add such salaries as will be needful to the annual outlay than to leave the lines in coarser keeping and occasionally to pay £50,000 for an accident.

Until the authorities of a company can say—and gentlemen will not say anything untruthful—that they conscientiously believe every jot and tittle of their carefully and thoughtfully penned rules is understood and obeyed throughout their whole line, the public will not consider that due provision is made for their safety. This cannot be done under the present system. Stand quietly at a station, at an interval between the lines of traffic, and see what sort of authority really exists there. We do not condemn the friendly habits of Englishmen—it is natural that those who are in constant association should acquire familiarity, exchange the joke and the grin, and generally establish a sort of fraternity. But it will not do. The laws of the line must be sternly enforced, and you can obtain this discipline only by a system like that of the Army. One of the men who have been committed—Gallimore—refused to say whether he had any other business than that of inspection, and of course there can be but one interpretation of the answer. Such an answer should be impossible. Let the companies create a new class of officer; by all means give him a new title; let the holder be a gentleman, and, for choice, a military or naval man; pay him well, and we shall see the rules observed which we now know to be habitually broken.

The submarine telegraph cable between Marsala and La Calle, on the Algerian coast, has been laid. Direct telegraphic communication is now opened between the Continent and Algeria and Tunis.

In consequence of the cholera having broken out in Egypt the whole of the India, China, and Australian mail was sent from the General Post Office, on Tuesday, in boxes instead of bags, to prevent infection from being carried out of Egypt by the mail passing through that country.

The following post towns in Tasmania now can issue money-orders payable in the United Kingdom—viz., Hobart Town, Launceston, Longford, Oatlands, New Norfolk, Port Arthur, Ross, Sorell, Torquay, and Westbury. Money-orders can also be drawn on those towns.

The widow of the Duke of Northumberland has intimated her wish to give to the National Life-boat Institution the cost of a life-boat, its equipment, and transporting-carriage, in memory of her late husband, who was for many years the president of the Life-boat Institution. The Duchess added that she would like the life-boat to be called the Algernon and Eleanor—their united names—and suggested that it might be placed on the Northumberland coast, the native county of the late Duke.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, Prince Arthur, and Prince Leopold, arrived at Windsor Castle yesterday (Friday) week, at nine o'clock in the morning, from Balmoral Castle. The suite in attendance consisted of the Duchess Dowager of Athole, Miss Bowater, Major-General the Hon. A. and the Hon. Mrs. Gordon, Lord Charles Fitzroy, Major Elphinstone, Mr. Buff, Mr. Sahl, and Dr. Brown. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the castle grounds. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, rode out. Prince Leopold, attended by Mr. Buff, took a drive.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Princess Beatrice, and attended by the Countess of Caledon, Lord Charles Fitzroy, and Colonel the Hon. De Ros went to London, and visited the Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. Earlier in the day Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold, attended by Major Elphinstone and Mr. Buff, went to London. The Queen held a Court at Buckingham Palace, an account of which is given below. After the reception the Duke and Duchess de Brabant visited her Majesty at Buckingham Palace. Viscount Palmerston had an audience of the Queen. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Princess Beatrice, left the palace, in an open carriage-and-four, at twenty minutes past six o'clock, and drove through Hyde Park to the Paddington station of the Great Western Railway, arriving at Windsor Castle at twenty-five minutes past seven. Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold returned to the castle shortly after the reception.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, Prince Arthur, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Hon. and Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor officiated.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, walked and drove in the grounds of the castle. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove out. Princess Helena, attended by the Hon. Flora Macdonald, rode out. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, left the castle for Greenwich Park.

Tuesday was the twenty-eighth anniversary of the Queen's accession. The bells of St. George's Chapel and of the parish church of St. John, New Windsor, were rung during the day, and Royal salutes of twenty-one guns were fired from the artillery in the Long Walk and from the Royal Adelaide frigate and Fort Belvedere at Virginia Water. In the metropolis flags were hoisted upon the public buildings, the Tower guns were fired at noon, and peals of bells were rung at many of the churches. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, walked and drove in the castle grounds. Later in the day, her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Prince Leopold, drove out. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington and Colonel the Hon. D. De Ros, left the castle for Buckingham Palace. Princess Helena held a Drawingroom at St. James's Palace, an account of which is given below. The Princesses returned to the castle at a quarter before six o'clock.

On Wednesday the Queen, accompanied by the members of the Royal family, went to Frogmore. The Duke and Duchess de Brabant visited her Majesty, and remained to luncheon. Prince Teck arrived at the castle, and was presented to the Queen by the Duke de Brabant. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington and Colonel the Hon. D. De Ros, went to London, and were present at the state concert given at Buckingham Palace, an account of which is given below.

The Queen will remain at Windsor until the second week in July, when the Court will proceed to Osborne. After a short sojourn the Queen will return to Windsor Castle, and afterwards the Court will proceed to Germany.

The Duchess of Roxburghe has succeeded the Countess of Caledon as Lady in Waiting to the Queen.

The Hon. Caroline Cavendish, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, and the Hon. Horatia Stopford are the maids of honour in waiting.

Lord Talbot de Malahide and Lieutenant-Colonel H. Cavendish have succeeded Lord Cremorne and Colonel the Hon. A. Liddell as Lord and Groom in Waiting to her Majesty.

THE QUEEN'S COURT.

The Queen held a sixth Court, on Saturday last, at Buckingham Palace. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Arthur, and Prince Leopold, and accompanied by the Countess of Caledon, Lord Charles Fitzroy, and Colonel the Hon. D. De Ros, arrived at the palace at two o'clock from Marlborough House. The Prince of Wales, escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards and attended by Earl Spencer, the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Lieutenant-General Knollys, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and Mr. C. L. Wood, arrived at the palace at four o'clock. The Queen's body-guard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms was on duty at the Court, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir W. Topham. The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty at the palace, under the command of Colonel C. Patterson. A guard of honour of the Grenadier Guards was mounted in the court of the palace. The Queen, accompanied by the Prince of Wales and the other members of the Royal family, entered the Throne-room shortly after four o'clock. In attendance upon her Majesty were the Duchess of Wellington, the Countess of Caledon, Viscountess Forbes, Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, the Hon. Caroline Cavendish, Viscount Sydney, the Marquis of Ailesbury, Earl Spencer, Viscount Castlerosse, Viscount Bury, Lord Proby, Colonel Sir T. M. Biddulph, Lord Cremorne, Colonel the Hon. A. Liddell, Lord Charles Fitzroy, Colonel the Hon. D. De Ros, the Hon. Spencer Ponsonby, Viscount Gough, Earl Ducie, Lord Foley, Colonel De Bathe, and Major-General the Hon. C. Grey.

The Queen wore a black silk dress with train, trimmed with crape and jet, and a Mary Queen of Scots cap, with long veil, the cap ornamented with large diamonds. Her Majesty wore a necklace and cross of diamonds, the ribbon and star of the Order of the Garter, the Victoria and Albert order, and the order of Louise of Prussia.

Princess Helena wore a train of rich blue silk, trimmed with blonde; petticoat of rich white glacé, covered with tulle and trimmed with blue flowers. Head-dress, flowers to correspond; feathers and veil; ornaments, diamonds, Victoria and Albert order, and order of St. Isabel.

Princess Louisa wore a train of rich pink silk, trimmed with bows of ribbon; petticoat of white glacé, covered with white tulle and trimmed with pink roses. Head-dress to correspond, feathers and veil; ornaments, pearls and diamonds; order of Victoria and Albert.

Of those who had the honour of receiving invitations to attend the Court were the Turkish Ambassador and Mdme. and Mdlle. Musurus, the Austrian Ambassador and Countess Apponyi, the Russian Ambassador and Baroness de Brunnow, the Prussian Ambassador and Countess de Bernstorff, the French Ambassador, the Belgian Minister and Mdme. Van de Weyer, the Portuguese Minister, the Danish Minister, and 118 members of the aristocracy.

THE DRAWINGROOM.

By command of the Queen a Drawingroom was held, on Tuesday, at St. James's Palace, by Princess Helena on behalf of her Majesty. Presentations at this Court were, by the Queen's pleasure, considered as equivalent to presentations to her Majesty. Princess Helena, accompanied by Princess Louisa, attended by the ladies and gentlemen in waiting and escorted by a detachment of the Life Guards, arrived at St. James's from Buckingham Palace at two o'clock, and was received by the Duchess of Wellington and the great officers of state of the Queen's household. The Prince of Wales, escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards and attended by the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Mr. C. L. Woods, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, arrived at the palace from Marlborough House at two o'clock. The Duke of Cambridge, the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar were present at the Court. The Queen's body-guard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms was on duty in the state saloons, under the command of the lieutenant. The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel C. Patterson. Princess Helena took her station in front of the throne, accompanied by the Prince of Wales, Princess Louisa, and other members of the Royal family. In attendance upon Princess Helena were the Duchess of Wellington, the Marchioness of Waterford, the Countess Dowager of Mount-Edgcumbe, the Countess of Caledon, Viscountess Jocelyn, Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Mrs. George Campbell, the Hon. Mrs. Alexander Gordon, the Hon. Lucy Kerr, the Hon. Emily Cathcart, the Hon. Harriet Phipps, the Hon. Emma Lascelles, the Hon. Florence Seymour, Viscount Sydney, the Marquis of Ailesbury, Lord Talbot de Malahide, Lieutenant-Colonel W. H. F. Cavendish, Colonel the Hon. D. De Ros, Lord Alfred Paget, Lord Proby, Viscount Castlerosse, and the pages of honour in waiting. The Earl of St. Germans, Lord Steward, was prevented by indisposition from attending the Court.

Princess Helena wore a train of rich white silk, trimmed with bouillon of tulle, bouquets of narcissus: petticoat of white glacé, covered with tulle and festooned with wreaths of narcissus. Head-dress, diadem of emeralds and diamonds, plume and veil; ornaments, emeralds and diamonds, Victoria and Albert order, and order of St. Isabella.

Princess Louisa wore a train of rich blue silk, trimmed with ruches of tulle and silver cord; petticoat of white glacé, with a tunic of silver tulle, trimmed with strawberry blossoms. Head-dress, wreath of strawberry blossoms, plume and veil; ornaments, rubies and diamonds, and Victoria and Albert order.

The Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced in the order of their precedence, several presentations in the diplomatic circle took place.

STATE CONCERT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

By command of the Queen, a state concert was given, on Wednesday evening, at Buckingham Palace. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington and Colonel the Hon. D. De Ros, arrived at the Palace from Windsor Castle. The Prince of Wales, escorted by a detachment of the 2nd Life Guards and attended by Earl Spencer, the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and Mr. C. L. Wood, arrived at the palace, from Marlborough House, at ten o'clock. The Duke of Cambridge was present at the concert. The Queen's body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty in the palace, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson. A guard of honour of the Grenadier Guards was mounted in the court of the palace. The Prince of Wales, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and the Duke of Cambridge, conducted by Viscount Sydney, and attended by the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, entered the saloon shortly after ten o'clock.

Princess Helena wore a dress of crimson and white silk, handsomely trimmed with rick white lace. Head-dress, diadem of turquise and diamonds; necklace and earrings to correspond, and the Victoria order.

Princess Louise wore a similar dress. Head-dress, a wreath of sweet peas and diamonds. Ornaments, diamonds, and the Victoria and Albert order.

The concert was begun immediately upon the entrance of the Royal family to the saloon. The following distinguished artistes had the honour of singing upon the occasion:—Mesdames Harriers Wippern, Trebelli, and Parepa; Mdlles. Adelina Patti and Ilma de Murska; Signor Graziani, Herr Gunz, and Herr Schmid. The performers, exceeding 160 in number, consisted of her Majesty's private band, aided by several instrumentalists of the Philharmonic Society, Her Majesty's Theatre, and the Royal Italian Opera, the chorus being selected from the Operas, and the Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall.

Among those who had the honour of receiving invitations to the concert were the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, the Prince and Princess of Leiningen, the Prince and Princess of Turn and Taxis, Prince Egon of Turn and Taxis, Prince Lichtenstein, Prince Teck, Count and Countess Gleichen, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess of Dornberg; Aristarchi Bey, Prince of Samos; Marchioness San Germano, the Marchioness de Targiani, the Count and Countess de Villa Marina; the members of the Corps Diplomatique, with the ladies of their respective families; the ladies and gentlemen in waiting upon the various Royal members, the Archbishops of Canterbury and Armagh, the Lord Clerk Register of Scotland, the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress, various members of the Queen's household; the commanding officers of the Coldstream Guards, the 1st Life Guards, and the Royal Horse Guards; and between 600 and 700 members of the aristocracy.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Princess of Wales and the infant Prince are in good health.

Yesterday week the Prince of Wales, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. His Royal Highness attended the House of Lords. In the evening the Prince, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, honoured the Royal Italian Opera with his presence.

On Saturday last the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. In the evening his Royal Highness gave a dinner party to the Duke and Duchess de Brabant. The following were invited to meet their Royal Highnesses:—Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, Prince Teck, the Austrian Ambassador and Countess Apponyi, the Belgian Minister and Mdme. Van de Weyer, the Duke and Duchess of Manchester, the Marquis and Marchioness of Ailesbury, the Countess of Macclesfield, Earl and Countess Spencer, the Earl and Countess of Clarendon, Lord and Lady Proby, Lieutenant-General the Hon. Sir Edward Cust, the Right Hon. W. E. and Mrs. Gladstone, the Right Hon. T. M. Gibson, Major Teesdale, Countess Grüne, Count de Lanoy, M. Brewer, and Dr. Smith (in attendance on the Duke and Duchess de Brabant), Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel.

On Sunday the Prince attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. the Sub-Dean, the Rev. J. C. Haden, and the Rev. H. M. Birch were the officiating clergymen.

On Monday the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. In the evening his Royal Highness presided at the dinner, at Willis's Rooms, in aid of the Cambridge Asylum.

On Tuesday the Prince, accompanied by the Duke de Brabant, drove to Chiswick, and visited the Duchess Dowager of Sutherland. In the evening his Royal Highness honoured the Belgian Minister and Mdme. Van de Weyer with his company at dinner, to meet the Duke and Duchess de Brabant.

On Wednesday the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, visited the French and Flemish Gallery of Paintings, Pall-mall.

The Hon. Mrs. Arthur Hardinge is appointed to the household of the Princess.

His Highness Prince de la Tour and Taxis and her Royal Highness the Princess de la Tour and Taxis have arrived at Claridge's Hotel from the Isle of Wight.

His Highness Prince Lichtenstein has arrived at Claridge's Hotel from Paris.

The Duke and Duchess of Newcastle arrived in town, on Tuesday, from Clumber Park, Notts.

The Duke of Northumberland and Lady Louisa Percy have arrived at their house in Portman-square from Torquay.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Hastings have left London for Cowes to make a trial of his Lordship's new yacht the Ladybird.

The Earl and Countess of Yarborough have arrived in town from Brocklesby, Lincolnshire.

The Bishop of Argyll and Lady Alice Ewing have arrived in London from Palermo—the Bishop in better health.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

Countess Apponyi give a "dance," on Monday night, at Chandos House. The Duke and Duchess de Brabant, the Prince and Princess of Tour and Taxis, the Sovereign Prince of Lichtenstein, Prince Egon of Tour and Taxis, Prince Teck, the Countess of Dörnberg, and nearly 400 members of the élite of society were present.

His Excellency the Belgian Minister and Mdme. Van de Weyer entertained the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, and a distinguished company at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at the Belgian Legation, Arlington-street, Piccadilly.

Mrs. Thomson had an evening party, on Monday, at the Archbishop of York's residence in Portman-square.

The Duchess (Dowager) of Sutherland entertained a select circle of friends, on Tuesday afternoon, at Chiswick House.

The Duke of Buccleuch's second conversazione took place, on Thursday evening, in the conservatory of the Royal Horticultural Society's Gardens.

The Earl and Countess of Derby entertained the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale and a distinguished company at dinner, on Tuesday, at the family mansion, St. James's-square. The Countess received a select party after dinner.

Earl and Countess De Grey entertained a select company at dinner, on Saturday last, at their residence in Carlton-gardens.

The Earl and Countess of Shaftesbury received a large party at a "Syrian conversazione," on Monday, at their family mansion in Grosvenor-square.

The Countess of Gifford gave the first of a series of afternoon parties, on Wednesday, at Dufferin House, Highgate. Two hundred members of the aristocracy assembled.

The Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue and Frances Countess Waldegrave received the Count and Countess de Paris, the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale, the Prince de Condé, and a select circle, on Saturday last, at Strawberry Hill.

Viscountess Palmerston had an assembly, on Saturday evening last, at Cambridge House. The Prince of Wales honoured her Ladyship with his presence. The réunion was attended by a large and distinguished company.

Viscount and Viscountess Stratford de Redcliffe entertained a select party at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at their residence in St. James's-square.

The Bishop of London gave his annual dinner to the Archbishops and Bishops, on Tuesday evening, at the palace at Fulham, in celebration of the Queen's accession.

Lady Molesworth received the Duke and Duchess de Chartres and a select circle at dinner on Monday evening.

Lady Rivers gave a ball on Tuesday night at her house in Portman-square. Nearly 500 members of the nobility were present.

Sir Thomas and Lady Cochrane entertained the Duke and Duchess de Chartres and a distinguished party at dinner on Tuesday evening.

Miss Burdett Coutts gave her first ball for the season, on Tuesday evening, at her residence, Stratton-street, Piccadilly. The Duke of Cambridge and upwards of 300 members of the élite of society were present.

THE COMING ELECTION.

Whatever may betide politics and parties in the ensuing election, it seems to be certain that its main interest will turn on the personal changes in the representation which it will produce. In numerous instances constituencies and members are parting company, generally with civility on both sides; while, as it were, with Parliamentary fickleness, the latter are wooing new suffrages and the former enjoying the pleasure of being wooed by new voices. So far as any rough calculation can be made, founded upon apparent chances, the number of new men will not be particularly large; but there will be a considerable number of old men in new places. The recent records of electioneering contain accounts of some new movements. For instance, there are decidedly new phases in the candidatures for some of the metropolitan boroughs. Notably, in the city of London a decided step has been taken by the Conservative party to contest two of the seats. Simultaneously addresses have been issued by Mr. Lyall, the present member for Whitehaven (which he leaves as a legacy to Mr. Cavendish Bentinck, now one of the representatives of Taunton, who must be supposed to have secured the Lowther interest in that borough), and Mr. R. N. Fowler, a London banker, who has for a long time been simmering in the cauldron of Conservative candidature. Some claim is founded on Mr. Lyall's behalf in the fact that his father represented the City some years ago; and of course his experience as a member of the house, where he has been, if not distinguished, well known for the last eight years or so, is so much in his favour. There is a theory that the City, in order to be duly represented, ought to have one Conservative member; and that was the state of things during the long period in which Mr. Masterman occupied a seat. It would seem as though the tactics of Mr. W. H. Smith, the Conservative candidate for Westminster, have proved formidable; for, suddenly, an announcement has been made that Mr. Stuart Mill and Captain Grosvenor have coalesced, and are to fight the battle in conjunction, in order to prevent their political opponent from slipping in between. Up to the present writing, Mr. Mill continues to maintain the character of an invisible and silent candidate, occupying a very singular and almost unprecedented position in electioneering. Into Lambeth—where Mr. Tom Brown Hughes keeps on the steady tenour of his canvass, which must be taken to be directed against both or either of the present members, as it may turn out—a new element of contention has been infused; for Mr. Maudslay, the well-known mechanical engineer, has been asked to pit himself immediately against Mr. Doulton; and the locally wise say that Mr. Maudslay is a sure card if he stand. One has heard of the power of Mr. Maudslay's workmen to turn a contested election in Lambeth; and their march in a body to the hustings is always an event on the day of polling. Although it is believed that these voters are left wholly to their own devices as to voting, it needs no ghost to tell how they will poll if such an event as has been mentioned should come to pass. An elector of Finsbury plaintively tells of the embarrassment which he and co-thinkers with him are placed by the plethora of Liberal candidates for that borough, there being no less than five of them, each fighting for his own hand. Looking to the list, an impartial person might be permitted to say that, apart from Mr. Torrens, the choice might fall on any one of the rest without its making much difference to electoral mankind as it exists in Finsbury; and the adoption of the primitive process of shaking in a bag could be well applied. In Greenwich, a Captain Harris has actually and in the body appeared; and there is no saying "that there is no such person."

Glancing, in a manner alphabetically, at election facts and prospects, one finds that at Bath Mr. Tite retains the allegiance of a constituency which has always been proud of him as the sole product of the famous Administrative Reform Association which made this gentleman an M.P. and did nothing else; while Mr. Way's vacated seat will be sought by Colonel Pinney, who has, we hear, received notice to quit Lyme Regis; but he will probably have to contest the seat with Colonel Hogg, a son of Sir James Weir of that name, once well known in Parliament. When Birkenhead was erected into a Parliamentary borough, it was well supposed that Mr. W. Jackson, the present member for Newcastle-under-Lyne, who claims almost to have founded that annexe to Liverpool, would have been solicited to represent it; but the claims of Mr. Laird and Conservatism were found to be paramount. Now, however, we perceive that the relative Jackson and Laird interests are to be tested, inasmuch as Mr. Jackson, jun., contests the election with the sitting member. There is an open seat at Beverley, Mr. Walker having ceded his pretensions; and Mr. Christopher Sykes will seek to retain the Conservative unity of the borough as hitherto, in conjunction with Colonel Edwards, who occupies such a place in the House and in his party, to say nothing of his personal popularity in the West Riding, as to be almost certain of a return. There is, however, to be an attempt to get in the Liberal wedge, and Mr. D. D. Keane, Q.C., a leader on the Norfolk Circuit, is to drive it in if he can. Bodmin has more than once returned a Conservative member even in these later days, and doubtless Lord Ranelagh has cause for essaying a candidature in that political sense; and as, in more ways than one, he has shown that he is a man of energy and of practical capability, it may be taken that he will fight the election with spirit and skill. In the various lists of members of Parliament which are accessible to everybody, the name of Mr. Malcolm will, of course, be found as member for Boston; and the politico-biographical chronicles tell us that he is a Liberal-Conservative; but one may venture to say that since his return in 1860 none of those who are accustomed to watch the House and to make themselves familiar with the persons, doings, and sayings of members have the least idea of Mr. Malcolm; and when he comes before the electors of Boston, as he means to do, his Parliamentary history will be a blank. There is every temptation, therefore, for efforts to restore the representation of the borough to the footing on which it stood five years ago—namely, with complete Liberal representation. Two new candidates are in the field—to wit, Mr. Serjeant Pulling, whose antecedents are not local, and Mr. Parry, whose qualifications and claims are patent to the constituency. Mr. Staniland, the Liberal sitting member, seeks re-election. What the hold of Lord Athlumney, better known as Sir William Somerville, who is Irish by descent, birth, property, and possessions, on the electors of Canterbury was, few persons probably are aware; but there must have been some reason why he has represented that borough since 1854. At any rate, he now looses that hold, and leaves his seat as a legacy, it is believed, to Major Lyon, a Liberal, who will probably divide the representation of opinion in the cathedral city with Mr. Butler Johnstone, Conservative, that rising young member, whose rise has been exactly like that of a balloon, which, fast secured by a rope, is permitted to shoot up a few yards and then come down again with a heavy thump. There is a candidate in the Liberal interest for Chatham, a gentleman who was a very smart young Parliament man when member for Stafford before 1852; but Mr. A. J. Otway, if he should succeed in ousting Sir F. Smith, whose claims on the borough are rather personal than political, will hardly be able to take a place amongst the "brisky juveniles" of the Liberal party in the new Parliament, so far as the qualification of youth is concerned, after the lapse of fifteen years, although he may probably retain some of his points. There is threatened "a feeble opposition to Mr. Lowe," at Calne—so runs the rede; and the statement is eminently suggestive of the likelihood of any attempt to give spontaneity to that docile constituency; probably quite unable to see the public virtue of the Mr. Griffith who has contemplated the unclosing of the borough.

Whatever may have been the offences of Liskeard towards Mr. Osborne, the expiation has fallen heavily on Sir Arthur Buller, who has been enforced to vacate his seat at Devonport and to endure two elections at Liskeard within a few weeks in order to prevent his candidature for the latter place slipping through. Things accordingly are going merrily—if the people think so—at Devonport, for the borough is in the fever of a contested election now, and may be under the same influence again three weeks hence. Doubtless Mr. Ferrand is in his glory, battling for himself for the future of next month, and for his Conservative coadjutor, Mr. Fleming, now and at once. They will find troublesome foemen in the Liberal candidates—Mr. Brassey, solid as one of his father's embankments, and Mr. Phinn, who was one of the most advancing legal members of Parliament when member for Bath, some years ago, and who, if he had not forsaken politics for a permanent official place—which was, however, anything but permanent in his case—would have distanced all his then competitors for high legal office, several of whom have attained those objects of ambition which would have awaited him. By an obvious chain of recollection, one recurs to the Solicitor-General, who, in conjunction with Mr. Morrison, the other sitting member, is recurring to the favour of the neighbouring borough of Plymouth, and whom at present no one gainsays; and as one is speaking of dockyard boroughs, it may be in place to tell how, at Portsmouth, the seat which Sir Francis Baring renders, is sought by a Conservative scion of the noble house of Bruce, with whom Sir James Elphinstone, most stalwart of naval reformers and of men, stands the brunt of the attack of Mr. Stone and Serjeant Gaselee, who, the latter at least, are Radicals, if anything. Having got amongst nautical members, it is only apt to allude to Sir John Hay, who caught Wakefield in a penitential mood at the moment when the franchise was restored to her after a long period of suspension, and persuaded her that the retrieving of her character could only be attained by adopting genteel Conservatism in her representation. Now, however, it would seem that Mr. C. H. Leatham, who was the member in whose name the indictment for corruption against the borough was laid, is of opinion that the penance he and the constituency have gone through has achieved their lustration, so far as to justify an effort to re-assert Liberalism at the coming election; so a contest is imminent. Who is Mr. Probyn, who has dared to threaten Mr. Roebuck's seat, at Sheffield? Wherever Mr. Probyn may be on the poll, his worst enemies could wish him no hotter place than that he will occupy on the hustings in antagonism to Mr. Roebuck.

There has not been so much prominency given to the circumstance that the second son of Lord Derby is about to be launched into political life was given in the great Amberley and Gladstone cases; but it is to be noticed that a third neophyte of that class is seeking the suffrages of the electors of Preston, a place where at one time the name of Stanley was all powerful, and where it is said that a reaction in favour of the claims of that family has taken place. At any rate, Mr. Arthur Stanley seeks to establish Conservative unity in the representation, in conjunction with Sir Thomas Hesketh, one of the present members, and threatens the Liberal interest as it is maintained by Mr. Grenfell, the other member. Something has been said of Sir John Shelley, who, as unattached pretendant to Parliamentary honours, seems to be held ready to be popped in any constituency that is supposed to desire to push out a Tory. The programme for the southern division of the West Riding of Yorkshire has been issued, and it declares that a regular square-sided contest is to be carried on between Mr. Spencer Stanhope and Mr. C. Beckett Denison for the Conservatives, and Sir John Ramsden and Hon. C. W. Fitzwilliam for the Liberals. The former as all the political world knows, asks for a section of the West Riding, for the whole of which he has sat for some time; while the latter, reviving recollections of the great family contests for Yorkshire, leaves his quiet retreat in the snug borough of Malton for the chances and struggles of a county election, where parties are distinctly pitted against each other. Supposing that Mr. Truscott should oust Mr. H. B. Sheridan from Dudley, who is to press the rest of the Fire Insurance Duty out of the Chancellor of the Exchequer next year?

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO ALGERIA.

The journey of the Emperor southward from Constantine to Batna, and thence, passing the rocky borders of the Sahara desert, as far as the oasis of Biskara, presented several incidents of a picturesque character; which our Special Artist, M. Mariani, attending all the movements of the Imperial traveller, has taken care to illustrate, as is shown in our present Number. He writes to us as follows:—

"After leaving Constantine, our road lay through a wild and mountainous country, intersected by many torrents. His Majesty had accepted an invitation to the banquet, or diffa, offered him by an Arab chief, named Bou-Lakas-Ben-Gannah, on the road near Melila. A tent of camel's hair had been erected, and carpets laid upon the ground within, for the reception of the Imperial guest. The staple of an Arab feast is always the kous-kous, a mess of flour cooked with slices of mutton or of poultry, but all so highly seasoned that I have never been able to eat a bit. The enormous dishes of this kous-kous were brought and placed just outside the tent, covered with napkins and silk handkerchiefs. Close by stood a sort of tripod, formed of three poles joined at the top, upon which were impaled as many sheep roasted whole, and these were cut up very dextrously and the fragments brought to table as fast as they were wanted. The Emperor, I observed, was not able to accommodate himself to the Arab fashion of sitting upon the ground, but sat upon a chair—the only person who did so—during the repast, while his host, the chieftain Bou Lakas, remained standing, and holding a splendid ewer, full of fresh water, which he poured out for the Emperor's drink. A little to the right hand of this tent was another smaller tent, of linen and damask, in which a couch had been prepared for his Majesty to repose on a few minutes after dinner. He stayed about two hours at Melila, and saw the warlike exercises or sports of the Arab cavalry, some thousands of whom were assembled to do him honour. My next Sketch gives a view of the town of Batna, where the Emperor arrived in his carriage about six o'clock that evening. The Arabic name of this town signifies "The Bivouac;" but the quarter inhabited by the French, which appears towards the right hand, with a loop-holed wall inclosing the barracks, has been built since the expedition to Biskara in February, 1844, and is the head-quarters of a subdivision of the military administration of Algeria. The native mosque, with trees behind it, is seen more to the left. In the foreground are a number of Arab horsemen galloping to and fro, discharging their muskets and performing various feats of skill or agility—called here a 'fantasia'—for the entertainment of the Emperor on his approach. On the extreme right is the road which leads to Lambessa; and the subject of my next sketch is the Emperor's visit to the ruins of the Roman city of that name. I have chosen the moment when the Emperor was examining the Prætorium, or Palace of the Roman Legate, which has been kept as a museum for the reception of the ancient sculptures found at Lambessa. On the right hand of my view, quite in the background, you will see the modern French prison, or penitentiary, in which several political offenders have been confined since the revolution of 1848. The ruins of ancient Lambessa are rather extensive, occupying a site of 2600 metres in length by 1800 metres in width. It was a town of some importance, having been founded, about the commencement of the Christian era, to be the head-quarters of the 3rd Legion, employed to hold the Numidians in subjection. The Emperor Napoleon started again for Biskara very early next morning, by a path still more rugged than before. Here the signs of cultivation became more scarce, and wide tracts of barren sand were frequently encountered, where the only vegetation we could see was that of the oleander plants, growing in the beds of the stream and poisoning the water as it flows. A caravanserai, or a fortified post, where marching troops or peaceful travellers alike may find refuge, is here and there to be met with upon the way, which bears traces of an old Romanroad. Suddenly, as we reach the bridge of El Kantara, after passing along a sort of corniche cut in the side of the river bank, the rocks and mountains are left behind. This bridge, a single arch ten metres in span, was built by the Romans, and is still in good preservation. Shortly afterwards we enter the oasis, having already discerned its palm-trees afar off, and we alight at the caravanserai of El Kantara, which is distant 179 kilometres from the city of Constantine. One of my sketches gives a view of this place. On the left hand you see a relay of horses, awaiting the Emperor's arrival; beyond, and on the right, are the huts of the Arabs, beneath the shade of palms. We are here quite in the desert. The surrounding country is a vast bed of sand, tossed and tumbled into innumerable billows and strewn with boulders, amongst which are to be found some shells. As we proceed farther we find no longer a road, but we follow the course of the streams. A few ruined buildings are within sight, or we meet an Arab family, with the women and children riding upon camels, going to change their abode. So we come to El Outaia, the second oasis, and thence we go on till we ascend the Col de Sfa, the highest ground in this part of the country, from which at last we obtain a view of the unbounded expanse of the immense Sahara. I have tried to give you an idea of the aspect of this place. On the right hand is M. de Verthire, the Aide-de-Camp, coming up to announce that the Emperor will be here at six o'clock. Far away, far beyond the horizon, stretches, like the open sea, an endless plain of sand, which has really a bluish tinge, perhaps from the salt of the lakes which once filled much of its space. To the left you may perceive the beginning of the Oasis of Biskara; and a caravan of camels, winding beneath the mountain, completes this piece of African scenery."

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON'S VISIT TO ALGERIA.

FROM SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR TO THE ROMAN RUINS OF LAMBESSA.

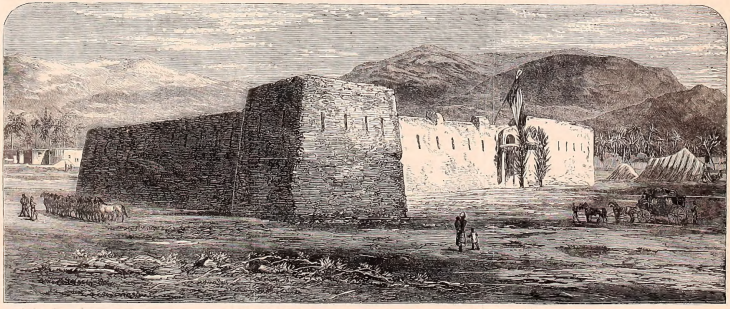
THE EMPEROR ENTERTAINED BY ARABS IN A TENT ON THE ROAD FROM CONSTANTINE TO BATNA.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON'S VISIT TO ALGERIA.



FROM SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

THE EDGE OF THE SAHARA DESERT, FROM THE COL DE SFA.

THE TOWN OF BATNA: MARTIAL EXERCISES OF THE ARABS.

CARAVANSERAI IN THE OASIS OF KANTARA.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

People out of doors, as the British public is contemptuously designated in the slang of its representatives, are not probably aware of the immense significance to her Majesty's Government of the introduction of the Appropriation Bill. It means simply that the national purse is placed entirely in the hands of Ministers; that they can send Parliament packing in a few days; and that—except from some violent political rupture—they are safe in office for a period varying from six to eight months. As a rule, this bill is brought in with a little flourish. One always knows when its advent is imminent by a certain air of importance assumed by the Secretary to the Treasury as he hovers near the bar, awaiting the moment when he will be called by the Speaker; and when he stands at "attention" he squares his person and holds his head erect in military fashion, and "presents" his folded paper as though he were saluting the House "about to die." For the reason that they see their holiday clearly, the members present always cheer—forgetting that they have just witnessed a symbolical parting with one of their dearest privileges, the guardianship of the national strong box, and are for the time reduced to nonentities in the eyes of those dispensers of the treasure which Parliament has committed to them for some time to come. On Wednesday last the Appropriation Bill for this year was brought in without any of the ceremonial which, slight as it is, generally accompanies the operation. There had been a feeble House all day, in more senses than one; private members amusing themselves with moving the second readings of bills which they had introduced in March and then withdrawing them; and the Parliamentary quorum at the close of the business was reduced to its minimum. For several days Mr. Brand grand veneur to the Government, had been absent, beating up the game all over the country for the great battue, which comes off in a fortnight; and, as it is that official's business annually to wave the Appropriation Bill over the heads of members in his absence, the duty fell now to his deputy, Mr. Knatchbull Hugessen. Somehow that gentleman, oppressed with a novel fit of modesty, seemed to shirk the responsibility, and, sitting down in front of the place where he should have stood, shuffled the bill into the hands of Mr. Dodson, Chairman of Committees, who had several others to bring in, and the consequence was that, instead of standing out singly and in bold relief, the name of the measure of measures was mumbled out amidst a plump of bills, and was lost upon the audience until the Speaker gave voice to his announcement of its title, when the great fact was understood, and applause, sounding more like a cackle than a cheer, was raised by the three members who were left.

On the whole, there have been very good Houses, and considerable assiduity has been displayed during the sittings of the Commons; while the Lords, having their table piled up with business, proceed in their usual nonchalant fashion to get through it, in what may be called a pitchfork style. If there is any obstruction it is levelled very soon by a consentaneousness of feeling amongst their Lordships not to be bored after seven o'clock; while in cases where bills are practically unopposed the operation of getting through them is akin to that of turning the cock of a cistern and letting the water flow until the reservoir is, for the time, exhausted. The House of Peers never seems so much at its ease as when it has thirty or forty bills on the paper of the evening. But, after all, registration is not a difficult or a lengthy process. In the Commons many of the old subjects of the Session have cropped up again, and been discussed with bated vigour, of course; notably, the malt tax, as an instance. A curiosity of Parliament, too, has here and there turned up; witness the singular process to which the Law of Evidence Bill—a scheme of Sir F. Kelly to allow parties in divorce, breach of promise, and other cases to be witnesses—was subjected. It was certainly an original proceeding to behold clause after clause of the measure elaborately discussed, members putting out their powers of argument, sarcasm, and humour, and exercising their ingenuity to frame amendments; and, as each clause in its regenerated condition was put as a part of the bill, to have a motion made to strike it out, which was regularly carried. As this amputation went on, it was clear that in the end the measure would be reduced to its preamble, and present the spectacle of a bill without enactments. So Sir F. Kelly took the hint which had been so broadly given, and thrust it into that invisible waste-basket, which this year must have had its capacities severely tested. During the last dying throes of the Estimates, spasmodic reaction arose. The subject being dockyards, Mr. Seely (of whom it is said that during a severe fit of sea-sickness last year, on board a yacht he had recently purchased, he vowed that he would make himself thoroughly acquainted with naval matters, in the hope that, with knowledge of seagoing things, he should, as sailors do, acquire seagoing stomachic strength) went in, for the fourth time, with his stupendous array of statistics and figures, and reproduced his famous indictment against the Wasp sloop, which cost four times as much to repair as could have bought her out and out from a contractor. The hon. naval reformer's manner had much changed since his previous dissertations on this theme; for he was not merely persistent and steady in the production of his case, but he was sufficiently loud in voice and confident in demeanour, "which were not so before." With the aid of Mr. Bright, who for once thought an Estimate occasion worthy of his intervention, quite a little debate was got up, and Lord Clarence Paget was angry and made false moves, and the Government got defeated by a majority of 2, the effect of which would have been to prevent their going into Committee of Supply that night. So there was a technical device adopted, and talking against time, which the victors in the first division, not perceiving what was going on, assisted to prolong, amidst the secret hilarity of the Treasury bench, until sufficient hack votes were provided to set things into the Ministerial groove again. The result of these two divisions was curious. It would be in vain to endeavour to explain to those who are not well versed in the technical forms of the House how it happened, but it must be accepted as a statement that the position to which things had been reduced was that the only question before the House which could be discussed or voted upon was the monosyllable "that;" and it was only when the next motion on the paper was tacked on it that Legislative action rose beyond such a practical absurdity.

What is to be said of Mr. Berkeley and the ballot? The novelties of the occasion were that the motion was brought on at a late instead of an early hour; that the mover was more grim than humorous, although he was humorous enough, and not the less when he declared that he had given "John Stuart Mill his quietus;" and, lastly, that Lord Palmerston sat until past twelve o'clock in the house, for the first time since his last illness, in order to reply to Mr. Berkeley This motion has been growing more shadowy and unreal every year, and this time its unreality may be said to have culminated.

It needs no very close observation to detect an electioneering spirit in all the proceedings of the House of Commons, and her Majesty's Government are by no means exempt—if they, of all people, could be expected to be exempt—from the influence. The treatment, from a soothing point of view, which Irish members, and through them Irish constituencies and the directors of Irish constituencies, have received, and the effect of that treatment, were singularly illustrated in the motion of The O'Donoghue with reference to a charter for the Roman Catholic University, and still more in the speech with which he introduced the motion. In the first place, the motion was not mandatory or defiant in its terms, asked nothing directly, and was in a sense humble in tone. Then the speech: there was not a trace of the outraged patriot, or the crushed-down Irishman who declined to be crushed down, or the fierce denunciator of the wrongs of Ireland, or any of the signs and symptoms of the ideal of an Irish demagogue, which have sometimes attached to The O'Donoghue. On the contrary, there was a gentleman par excellence, with a quiet though impressive manner, in well-chosen language and nicely-balanced sentences, expressing a sense of the disposition displayed by Government and Parliament to do justice to Ireland, stating the case he had to bring forward with singular fairness, and yet giving it all the necessary force, so that everyone who was not convinced was conciliated, and those who were ready before to concede were pleasantly justified in their convictions. The speech, so nearly if not altogether perfect, gave the tone to the debate, and especially warranted the terms in which Sir George Grey, and still more Mr. Gladstone, dealt with the question. The policy indicated on this occasion, and that adopted on the Roman Catholic Oath Bill, must go far to set the Government in a pleasant light before the Irish constituencies in the coming election.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Monday.

The Lord Chamberlain (Viscount Sydney) brought up the reply of her Majesty to the address of their Lordships congratulating her on the birth of a grandson. The Queen expressed her thanks for the interest which their Lordships took in the welfare of her family.

The Lord Chancellor laid on the table a bill, which was read a first time, for completing the revision of the statute law and for the expurgation of the statute book.

There was a brief discussion on the area of rating in Ireland.

Reports of amendments on the Partnership Amendment Bill and the Union Chargeability Bill were brought up and agreed to.

The following bills were read a second time:—The Prisons (Scotland) Act Amendment, the Trespass (Scotland), the Ecclesiastical Leasing Act (1858) Amendment, the Lunatic Asylum Act (1853) Amendment, the Pilotage Order Confirmation (No. 2), the Smoke Nuisances (Scotland) Act Amendment, the Procurators (Scotland), the Churches and Chapels Exemption (Scotland), the Colonial Laws Validity, the Colonial Marriage Validity, and the Defence Act (1860) Amendment.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:—The Dockyards Extension, the Drainage and Improvement of Lands Act (Ireland) Amendment, and the Drainage and Improvement of Lands Act (Ireland) (Provisional Order Confirmation No. 2).

The Royal assent was given by commission to the following bills—the Royal Commissioners being the Lord Chancellor, the Duke of Argyll, and the Earl of St. Germans:—The Commissioners of Supply (Scotland), the District Church Tithes, the Inclosure (No. 2), the Lancaster Court of Chancery, the Married Women's Property (Ireland), the Pilotage Order Confirmation, the Common Law Courts (Fees), the Local Government Supplemental (No. 3), the Dogs Regulation (Ireland), the Courts of Justice Concentration (Site), the Courts of Justice Building, the Militia Ballots Suspension, the Militia Pay, and a number of private bills.

Earl Russell stated, in reply to Lord Brougham, that there was a greater disposition on the part of Spain to co-operate with this country in repressing the slave trade; and, now that there was every probability of the United States acting energetically with us in putting down this traffic, he hoped their efforts would not be without success. Lord Brougham spoke in highly eulogistic terms of the conduct of the United States with regard to this important subject.

Lord St. Leonards moved the second reading of the Railway Passengers Bill, the object of which was to prevent railway companies from locking both doors of passenger-carriages. This bill is probably the shortest of the Session. It has no recital, and runs thus:—"Be it enacted by, &c. (the regular words, of course), from and after the 18th of July next, it shall not be lawful to lock both the doors of any railway-carriage while any passenger is within it." A discussion followed, in which it was urged by several Peers that the measure was an unnecessary intermeddling with the business of railway companies. Eventually the bill was withdrawn.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Monday.

The orders of the day for the second reading of the Lahore Bishopric and the Companies Workmen's Education Bills were discharged.

The Lords' amendments to the Sewage Utilisation Bill were considered, and one of the amendments disagreed to.

The order for the second reading of the Forfeiture for Treason and Felony Bill was discharged and the bill withdrawn.

The Comptroller of the Exchequer and Public Audit Bill was committed pro forma for the insertion of amendments.

The Carriers Act Amendment Bill and the Ulster Canal Transfer Bill were read a second time.

The National Gallery (Dublin) Bill, the Harbours Transfer Bill, and the Pier and Harbour Orders Confirmation Bills (Nos. 2 and 3) passed through Committee.

The Wick and Ayr Burghs Election Bill was considered as amended, and ordered for third reading.

The report of the Greenwich Hospital Bill was received after a lengthy conversation, and the bill was ordered for a third reading.

The Crown Suits, &c., Bill, the Kingston Harbour Bill, the Ecclesiastical Commission (Superannuation Allowance) Bill, and the Pheasants (Ireland) Bill were read a third time and passed.

The order for the third reading of the Sugar Duties and Drawbacks Bills was discharged, and the bill was recommitted. Certain amendments having been inserted, the bill was read a third time and passed.

The Serjeant-at-Arms informed the Speaker that George Morris Mitchell, for whose apprehension an order had been made by the House on June 2, had been apprehended that day, and was now in his custody.

On consideration of the Malt Duty Bill, as amended, a clause was introduced on the motion of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, providing that grain making into malt may be sprinkled at the expiration of ninety hours after being emptied from the cistern, and substituting Sept. 1 for Oct. 1 for the commencement of the Act.

Colonel Dunne having called attention to the state of the ancient records of Ireland, Mr. F. Peel briefly explained the steps which had been taken for their preservation and publication.

Mr. Hubbard adverted to the treaty recently contracted with the German Zollverein, and moved for papers. Mr. M. Gibson replied with some minuteness to the arguments advanced by the last speaker, expressing an opinion that England had received quite as much benefit through the treaty as Italy, or France, or any other nation. The papers would be laid on the table as soon as the arrangements were completed.

Mr. Cardwell laid upon the table some papers giving the result of the negotiations between the Government and the Canadian delegates. Briefly stated those results are, that the Government approve of the confederation scheme, and will give every assistance in carrying it out; that the Government will recommend the guarantee of a loan for the carrying out by Canada of the fortifications recommended by Colonel Jervois, and will provide the necessary armament so soon as the Provincial Legislature had expressed its opinion on the matter; that the Government will do all it can to procure a renewal of the Reciprocity Treaty; that the Government will recommand the guaranteeing of a loan to pay the indemnity to the Hudson's Bay Company for the North Western Territory, which is to be made over to Canada; and, finally, the Government gives assurances of its desire to assist Canada as far as possible.

SUPPLY.

The House went into Committee of Supply, and agreed to votes for the Post Office packet service, the Office of Works, and Landguard Point Works.

Mr. Cowper, in moving a supplemental vote of £20,000 for the enlargement of the National Gallery, explained that the amount asked for was intended for the purchase of that portion of the space in the rear of the gallery which was now occupied by St. Martin's Workhouse, Archbishop Tennyson's Library, and the parochial offices and schools. By agreeing to the vote all the Committee would do was to express an opinion that the National Gallery ought to be retained in Trafalgar-square, and this proposition had already received the sanction of the House.

Lord Elcho advocated reconstruction of the National Gallery, in order that a fireproof building might be erected in its stead, which could be lighted by gas at night, so that the working classes might be enabled to see the pictures.

Mr. Tite thought it would have been far more satisfactory if Mr. Cowper had placed an estimate on the table showing the cost of the site and of the new building. He warned the House against dealing with such a subject in a narrow spirit, and reminded them that South Kensington began with a modest vote of £10,000, which had subsequently swelled into £120,000 per annum.

Sir G. Bowyer reprobated patching up the present building, and recommended that not a stone of so hideous a pile should be allowed to stand upon another. He hoped there was no intention to pull down Burlington House.

Mr. Locke took the same view, characterising the present building as a national disgrace.

Mr. H. D. Seymour commented upon the necessity of not only raising a new building worthy of the finest site in Europe, but that of making proper approaches to it.

Mr. Cowper explained that the Government had no desire to interfere in any way with Burlington House, now that Parliament had condemned the proposition to build the National Gallery on its site.

Sir J. Pakington expressed a hope that the new building would be as unlike the old one as possible, for nothing more detestable in the architectural way could well be desired than the latter.

Mr. Ayrton supported the vote, which was ultimately agreed to.

A vote of £700,000 for the Site of the New Courts of Justice and Offices Bill was agreed to without comment, as was a vote of £53,600 for Greenwich Hospital.

With these appropriations the whole of the Estimates were voted, and the Chairman left the chair amid the cheers of the House.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Tuesday.

The Commons' amendment to the Oxford University Vinerian Foundation Bill was agreed to.

The Prisons Bill, the Small Benefices (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill, the Admiralty Acts Repeal Bill, the Admiralty Powers Bill, and the Dockyards Ports Regulation Bill were read a second time.

The Railway Debentures Registry Bill, the Land Debentures (Ireland) Bill, the Locomotives on Roads Bill, and the Mortgages Debentures Bill passed through Committee, as did also the following bills:—The Prisons (Scotland) Act Amendment, the Trespass (Scotland), the Ecclesiastical Leasing Act Amendment, the Smoke Nuisances (Scotland) Act Amendment, the Procurators (Scotland), the Churches and Chapels (Scotland) Exemption, the Colonial Laws Validity, the Colonial Marriages Validity, the Defence Act Amendment, and the Union Chargeability Bill.

The Union Chargeability Bill was read a third time and passed, as also were the following private bills:—Maltby's Estate, Cromford and Belper Road, Manchester Corporation Water, Heysham Pier; Rickmansworth, Avesham, and Chesham Railway; Sutherland Railway, Barnstaple Roads, Crays Gas, and Belfast New Streets.

On the consideration of the Public-house Closing Act (1864) Amendment Bill, the Marquis of Clanricarde moved the restoration of clause 5, which had been struck out in Committee.—Earl Granville opposed the reintroduction of the clause.—After some discussion, however, the clause was restored, the metropolis being exempted from its operation.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Tuesday.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer obtained leave to bring in a bill to permit the warehousing of compound spirits.

It was resolved, on the motion of Mr. F. Peel, that the Treasury should be authorised to pay out of the Consolidated Fund an addition of £300 per annum to the salary of each of the County Court Judges in England.

In Committee of Ways and Means, a sum of £1,318,526 was voted from the Consolidated Fund, being the surplus of ways and means granted for the service of the preceding year, and a further sum of £23,342,568 out of the Consolidated Fund for public purposes.

A considerable time was spent in the discussion in Committee of the Fire Brigade (Metropolis) Bill. Eventually, with some amendments, it passed through Committee.

Leave was given, in Committee of the whole House, to Mr. Blackburn to bring in a bill to amend the law relating to the issue of bank notes in Scotland.

Mr. Whalley moved the second reading of the Turnpike Tolls Abolition.—Sir G. Grey said it was impossible that at this period of the Session a measure of so complicated a character could be passed. He therefore recommended its withdrawal. This suggestion was complied with.

The Salmon Fishery Act (1861) Amendment Bill was considered as amended.

The Peace Preservation (Ireland) Act (1856) Amendment Bill, the Harwich Harbour Bill, the Carriers Act Amendment Bill, the Ulster Canal Transfer Bill, the War Department Tramways (Devon) Bill, and the Falmouth Borough Bill passed through Committee.

The Local Government Supplemental (No. 5) Bill, the Colonial Dock Loan Bill, the Turnpike Trusts Management Bill, and the Turnpike Acts Continuance Bill were read a second time.

The Greenwich Hospital Bill, the Fortifications (Provisions for Expenses) Bill, the Malt Duty Bill, the Harbour Transfer Bill, the Pier and Harbour Orders Confirmation (No. 2 and No. 3) Bills, the Trusts Administration (Scotland) Bill, the Record of Title (Ireland) Bill, and the Wick and Ayr Burghs Election Bill were read a third time and passed.

The O'Donoghue moved an address praying that the system of University education in Ireland may be amended, so as to get rid of obstacles which prevent many of her Majesty's subjects from enjoying the benefits of a University education. He showed that the Roman Catholics had no fair chance in this matter with the other religious bodies. They could not take degrees in Trinity College and the Queen's Colleges were disliked by them. He suggested that a charter should be granted to the Catholic University. Sir G. Grey admitted that there was a grievance. The Government could not grant a charter to the Catholic University, but they would enlarge the charter of the Queen's Colleges, so that Catholics might obtain degrees there just as at present they could obtain them at the London University. A discussion followed, and the motion was ultimately withdrawn.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Wednesday.

Mr. Blake moved the second reading of the Municipal Corporations (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill. It was opposed by Government, and, after some discussion, was withdrawn.

The Merchant Shipping Disputes Bill and the Bank Notes (Ireland) Bill were also withdrawn, owing to the lateness of the Session.

The Railway Clauses Bill, after a long discussion on the motion to go into Committee, was likewise withdrawn.

Mr. Lygon moved the second reading of the Educational and Charitable Institutions Bill. Some discussion ensued, Sir G. Grey saying that he would vote for the second reading on the understanding that the bill would not be further proceeded with this Session. Mr. Lygon accepted this offer, and the second reading was carried by 49 votes to 35; the bill being, on the motion of Mr. Lygon, ordered to be committed that day three months.

The Bank Notes Issue (Scotland) Bill was read a first time.

The Parsonages Bill was read a third time and passed, as were the National Gallery (Dublin) Bill, the Harwich Harbour Bill, the Carriers Act Amendment Bill, the Salmon Fishery Act (1861) Amendment Bill, the Falmouth Borough Bill, and the Peace Preservation (Ireland) Bill.

Finally, the Appropriation Bill, that harbinger of the close of the Session, was brought in and read a first time.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Thursday.

Their Lordships only sat about one hour, in the course of which the following bills were read a third time and passed—viz., Public-house Closing Act (1864) Amendment, Trespass (Scotland), Ecclesiastical Leasing Act (1858) Amendment, Pier and Harbour Orders Confirmation, Pilotage Orders Confirmation (No. 2), Churches and Chapels Exemption (Scotland), Colonial Laws Validity, Colonial Marriages Validity, and Defence Act (1860) Amendment Bills.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Thursday.

Mr. Eaton took the oath and his seat for Coventry, in the room of Sir Joseph Paxton, deceased.

CLERICAL SUBSCRIPTION BILL.

Sir G. Grey, in moving the second reading of this bill, stated that its object was to carry out the report of the Royal Commission, which had been presided over by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and he trusted that the House would sanction a measure which was founded upon a report that had been prepared with so much care.

Mr. Whiteside contended that the bill before the House affected the Church of Ireland equally with the Church of England, and considered that the dignitaries of both Churches ought to have been consulted before a new canon of the Church was made by Parliament on the recommendation of the Convocation of Canterbury and York.

Mr. Briscoe saw no reason why the consciences of the clergy should be relieved by oaths, whilst in their clerical capacity they were obliged to perform ceremonies and advocate doctrines to which they seriously and positively objected to subscribe. As he did not undertand the nature of the bill, he should abstain from voting upon it.

Mr. Lefevre entertained objections to the proceedings of Convocation, as he did not consider them a legally-constituted body; and he could not understand upon what principle the debates in those assemblies should be quoted authoritatively in Parliament.

Mr. Hadfield entered into the early history of the Church and the cause and progress of Dissent, stating his belief that at the present moment there were many errors in doctrine and that many young persons imbibed false principles from the teaching of the Church of England. He would not oppose the bill, becaused he desired that every tender conscience should be relieved from the burden of subscription.

The Attorney-General went at length into the reasons for supporting the bill, which, he submitted, was greatly needed, and, instead of injuring, would benefit the Established Church. The hon. and learned gentleman explained the reasons why permission had not been given to the revival of the Irish Convocation in company with the English Convocation. With respect to Convocation itself, he contended that it was a body whose action was useful and salutary.

After some further discussion, in which Sir W. Heathcote, Mr. Lefroy, and Mr. D. Griffith took part, the bill was read a second time.

The Colonial Governors (Retiring Pensions) Bill passed through Committee.

On the motion for the second reading of the Appropriation Bill, Mr. Hennessy called attention to the inadequate salaries and superannuation of the outdoor officers of Customs, and asked the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has recently taken any steps to remedy the grievances under which those officers labour.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer deprecated the unusual proceeding of the hon. gentleman in raising a question pointing in the direction of further taxation upon the motion for the second reading of the Appropriation Bill. He could inform the hon. member that, as long as he was Chancellor of the Exchequer, he would never be induced to yield to Parliamentary pressure that which he did not consider right or proper. The principle acted upon in respect to the Government officials referred to was to promote according to seniority, as well as to superior merits tested by competitive examination. There was every disposition on the part of the Government to do justice to all parties. He did not think that the officers of Customs had good grounds for complaint. The bill was then read a second time.

The County Courts Equitable Jurisdiction Bill then went into Committee, the clauses of which were, after considerable discussion, agreed to.

Several other bills were advanced a stage.

A pamphlet by Mr. W. Ray Smee, F.S.A., which has just been published, advocates the admission of light French wines at the customs' duty of one penny a bottle, since there are many qualities very suitable for English consumption which cannot be preserved in good condition when imported, under the Gladstone tariff, in cask, but which would be excellent if they were imported in bottle.

With respect to the review, in our last Number, of Miss Meteyard's "Life of Wedgwood," we have received a letter from Major Lacy, of Southampton, who is connected by marriage with the family of the Brothers Elers, the German manufacturers of pottery, mentioned as having come to settle in Bradwell Wood, Staffordshire, towards the close of the seventeenth century. Major Lacy thinks we ought not to have called them "two mysterious strangers," because they were of distinguished German ancestry, Admiral Elers having married a Princess of Baden; and John Philip Elers, a learned chemist, having come to England with the Prince of Orange. But it is obvious that the word "mysterious" was not meant to disparage their previous relations in their native country, and referred merely to the impression which must have been produced on the minds of the Staffordshire people by the jealously-guarded secrecy of the Elers' manufacture. As for the conduct of Samuel Astbury, in obtaining access to their pot-work by feigning to be an idiot and getting himself employed to turn the wheel, Miss Meteyard, in page 136 of her interesting volume, denounces quite as strongly as Major Lacy does "the baseness and immorality of such a method of stealing other men's honest secrets." We are entirely of the same opinion.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE result of the New Stakes at Ascot does not at present seem to have much bearing on the Derby, as the four first were within half a neck of each other, and Chibisa, the winner, was beaten so very easily on the Tuesday. He is a very nice colt, but his legs do not look like standing a strong preparation. Broomielaw, heavily backed by his owner, never gave Farewell and a bad field a chance over the New Mile, and the "all rose" is in luck at last. If anything goes wrong with Gladiateur, who has been spending nearly a fortnight in France since the race for Le Grand Prix, Breadalbane's St. Leger chances seem "rosy" enough. Fille de l'Air's defeat for the Ascot Cup and her position in the Alexandra Plate next day hardly seemed to tally, and all explanations are very complicated, owing to Baragah being so close up with Ely in the Triennial. The settling was easy; and a new French favourite for next year's Derby has sprung up in Auguste by Monarque. The Liverpool meeting was a mere two-days' shadow of old General Chassé and Charles XII. times, and even the Croxteth party were absent. Caller Ou carried off the Queen's Plate so easily that she became a good favourite for the Northumberland Plate, which she won in 1863-4. If she does win it next week she will come in for an ovation such as only Bob Chambers receives, despite the intense difficulty experienced by the county in pronouncing her name. Seven went for the Liverpool Cup, and Chibisa gave 9 lb. and just beat Gretna in a half-mile race. It is said that a spring meeting is to be held at Ascot and two summer ones at Windsor next year. The experiment of another Ascot meeting was tried a few years since, and it proved a failure.

The Eltham sale was as great a success as the Hampton Court ones, and the unequalled average was made of 320 gs. for the forty-five! Mr. Chaplin gave 1500 gs. for a Stockwell colt from Governess, and fairly cut down his opponent (Mr. W. Morris) by a 500-guinea advance on the first bid. He also gave 700 gs. for a half sister to Caractacus, 1000 gs. for a Newminster colt, 650 gs. for a Marsyas colt, and 180 gs. for a Horror filly—rather a good afternoon's work for a Lincolnshire squire, or "any other man." Mr. Merry bought only one, a thousand-guinea colt by Dundee, and Mr. Robinson put some of his Vase money into an 1100-guinea St. Albans colt. Thus four colts averaged 1150 gs. in one afternoon, and of these the couple of one-thousand-guinea ones were knocked down in succession. Some more of the Diss yearlings came up to Tattersalls', but the eighteen only made 2000 gs. A black Vedette colt, 520 gs., was the top price of the day.

The Royal London Yacht Club ocean-match was won, on Saturday, by Messrs. W. and G. Gordon's Niobe, 40 tons, and Mr. George Duppa's Alarm, 248 tons, was second. Mr. Kennard's Christabel and Lord Alfred Paget's Zantha received the two £10 notes. Niobe also won the cutter match on Tuesday, by twenty-nine minutes, from Mr. Mandslay's Volante. The Royal Thames Yacht Club's third regatta of the season came off on Monday, Gravesend being the starting-place and goal. Mr. Johnson's Glance won the first cutter prize; but, there being a dead heat between Christabel and Vindex, the second prize was reserved. The first-class schooner prize was carried off by Mr. Wilkinson's Gloriana; the second-class schooner prize by Mr. Edwards's Intrigue.

The M.C.C. and Ground (for whom the Rev. E. T. Drake and Grundy each played a great innings) beat Cambridge University in their return match, by 244 runs at Lord's; and the latter had also to succumb to Surrey by 101. Kent and Sussex have had a fine match, which the former won by three wickets. Oxford University made 429 in one innings against Suffolk, and T. Case (146) and R. A. H. Mitchell (109) were the leviathan scorers.

The chase has lost one of its best huntsmen in Charles Treadwell, of the Bramham Moor, who died, after two hours' illness, of, we believe, heart complaint, on Sunday night. He was brother to James Treadwell (who was huntsman, for several seasons, to Squire Farquharson, in Dorsetshire, and retired when his master gave up hounds) and uncle to John Treadwell, of the O. B. H. The deceased was, in early life, whip and kennel huntsman to Mr. Horlock, whose principal work upon "the noble science" gives many anecdotes of his pluck and skill. He hunted the Quorn for the late Lord Suffield during his Lordship's brief tenure of office; and hence it was noted as a remarkable fact, at the Yarm hound show, a few summers since, that three Quorn huntsmen, past and present, should be showing hounds there—to wit, Tom Sebright, who held office under Squire Osbaldeston, in 1819; Charles Treadwell, under Lord Suffield, in 1839; and John Treadwell, under Lord Stamford, in 1859. From the Quorn he went with the Suffield pack, for three or four seasons, into Berwickshire; and when Mr. Robertson gave up hounds he engaged himself, we believe, to the Bramham Moor. He was a good judge and breeder of hounds; and, although quite the heavy-weight huntsman of the day, thanks to good horses and horsemanship, he could always hold his own in a fast thing. No man dies more lamented, both by his master, Mr. George Lane Fox, and the members of the hunt generally.

While the horn and the view halloo are silent in the woodlands the otter-hunters in the North are "up in the morning early," with Dr. Grant or "Sandy," at the water-side. The Carlisle hounds had a very beautiful thing a few days since, near Mossknowe, with a 22 lb. dog otter, which took to wood and water alternately. At one moment it, and "Sandy," and one of the hounds all rolled over a scaur together; and, after some beautiful hunting, it was killed in a wood. Dr. Grant, master of the Teviotdale, killed his second otter of the season at Lilliesleaf. His Dandie Dinmont terriers, Tom and Teddy, each brought out an otter at the same moment from under a large tree-root. The Doctor, with his usual daring, wrapped his coat round one of "the dark tan fishermen," and ran off with it in his arms, while his pack were busy with the other. However, some of the hounds followed him and fought him so savagely that he was obliged to drop it; but it luckily escaped into a root fortress once more, and, as digging is against the Doctor's articles of war, it was left for another day. The dwellers on twelve or thirteen streams in the neighbourhood of Hawick keep a sharp look out for "the varmint," and the moment one is seen, or "fitted," the Doctor and his Dandies are summoned professionally. This sport, which rather waned in the North when the late Duke of Athole gave up his pack and Lord John Scott died, has quite undergone a revival in the last two years.

LIVERPOOL SUMMER MEETING.—MONDAY.

Her Majesty's Plate.—Caller Ou, 1. Helen, 2. Stanton, 3.
Flying Stakes.—Lucy Long, 1. Prescription, 2.
Great Lancashire Produce Stakes.—Blue Riband, 1. Dagmar, 2. Full Bloom, 3.
Molyneux Cup.—Windham, 1. Arbutus, 2. Viola, 3.
Craven Stakes.—Chibisa, 1. Gretna, 2. Grand Master, 3.
Stanley Nursery Stakes.—Belmont, 1. Full Bloom, 2. Merry Lass, 3.
Grand Stand Stakes.—Traffic walked over.

TUESDAY.

Liverpool St. Leger.—Spring-Gun, 1. Lavinia, 2. Breffni, 3.
Mersey Stakes.—Orontes, 1. Fan, 2. Jolly Boy, 3.
Liverpool Cup.—Success, 1. Macbeth, 2. Sidewind, 3.
Sefton Plate.—Lady Bohun, 1. Lucy Long, 2. Gipsy Girl, 3.
Badminton Stakes.—Selim, 1. Gretna, 2. Proserpine, 3.
Bentinck Testimonial.—Lady Bohun, 1. Charming Woman, 2. Orontes, 3.
Foal Stakes.—White Guantlet walked over.

NEWTON (LANCASHIRE) RACES.—WEDNESDAY.

Trial Handicap.—Queen of Trumps, 1. Wild Poppy, 2. Cutaway, 3.
Golborne Park Stakes.—Xi, 1. Belmont, 2. Balsam, 3.
Great Newton Cup.—Moulsey, 1. Sprite, 2. Dermot Asthore, 3.
Makerfield Handicap.—Cranbury, 1. Worthless, 2. Garotter, 3.
Maiden Plate.—Ned Digby, 1. Oulton Lowe, 2. Yeatsall, 3.

THURSDAY.

St. Helen's Purse.—Cutler, 1. Breffrei, 2. Yeatsall, 3.
Two-year-old Stakes.—Dead heat between Xi and Ozone. King of France, 3.

HAMPTON RACES.—WEDNESDAY.

West Moulsey Stakes.—Attaché, 1. Moose, 2. Cobweb, 3.
Hampton Plate.—The Proctor, 1. Catherine, 2. Canzonetto, 3.
Claremont Stakes.—Tina, 1. St. Albans f., 2. Alberta, 3.
Stand Plate.—Vixen, 1. Charity, 2. Arabia, 3.
Surrey and Middlesex States.—Auditor, 1. Hopper, 2. Auricula, 3.
Hurst Plate.—Wild Thyme, 1. Virtuous, 2. Duenna, 3.

THURSDAY.

Visitors' Plate.—Finesse, 1. Skirmish, 2. Leoville, 3.
Bushey Plate.—Blackbird, 1. Fairy Footsteps, 2. Concordia, 3.
Queen's Plate.—Caller Ou beat Threadbare.

FONTAINEBLEAU RACES.—JUNE 18.

Prix du Conseil Général.—Meli-Melo, 1. Prince Regent, 2. Yamuna, 3.
Prix Principal.—Matamore, 1. Le Bernais, 2. Ninon de l'Enclos, 3.
Prix de la Société d'Encouragement.—Lalla Rookh, 1. Tourmalet, 2. Betty, 3.
Prix de l'Imperatrice.—Gaulois, 1. La Reine Berthe, 2. Touriste, 3.
Prix de la Vénerie Steeplechase.—Biribi, 1. Valentino, 2. Gilles, 3.

A specimen of the wingless bird of New Zealand—the kiwi-kiwi (Apteryx Australis)—lately brought to England in H.M.S. Miranda, by Mr. Slade, has been presented to the Zoological Society, London.

The Unita Cattolica of Turin has sent to the Pope, on the occasion of the Whitsuntide holidays, a sum of 90,000f., as well as a casket of jewellery and other valuable objects.

A portrait of Mr. Carlyle, photographed by Messrs. Elliott and Fry, has been published, which is the most artistic, and perhaps the most expressive, that we have yet seen. It represents only the head leaning upon the right hand, in a vignette of moderate size. The likeness is very good.

Two large photographic views of Epsom and Ascot Races were taken by Mr. Herbert Watkins, of Regent-street, and will preserve a most accurate representation of each of those memorable scenes this year. The one shows the aspect of the course at the moment of the start for the Derby; the other is a view of the Grand Stand, Royal Stand, and the Earl of Bessborough's Stand at Ascot, thronged with fashionable people.

For the encouragement of part-singing and other performances of sacred music in the domestic circle, an excellent collection of original pieces, composed by Messrs. Rudolf Schachner, Macfarren, Benedict, Barnett, and others, has been compiled, with some of his own, by Mr. Frederick Westlake, Associate of the Royal Academy of Music. It is calculated to be most serviceable to families which cultivate this graceful accomplishment for the solace of their Sunday evenings at home.

The Bengal Hurkaru says that some ancient native coins have been found upon the Soonderbun. They are in good preservation, and in weight something more than the current rupee. On the obverse side are the words, "The most powerful sovereign, Ghias-ood-dunnya-wa-ood-deen, the victorious Balban, the Sultan;" and on the reverse the words are "The Imam ool Mustassem, commander of the Faithful." Ghias-ood-deen was the tenth Monarch of the Pathan dynasty.

The Journal de Genève gives an account of some antiquities which have been temporarily exhibited in the Academical Museum of that city. They consist of three bronze tripods of Roman origin recently found by a peasant while digging in a field at Lyaud, near Thonon (Haute-Savoie), and purchased for a trifling sum by M. Griollet, who intends to present them to the museum of the Louvre. Two of the tripods are fine specimens of a model hitherto unknown. The three legs are terminated by human heads and connected by bronze bands with rings at the end, which slide up and down the legs, and allow them to be opened more or less. From the elaborate execution of these tripods, it is probable that they belong to the first or second century of the empire. The third tripod is made on a different principle. Instead of sliding rings to raise or lower the brazier, the latter is fixed to an upright stem by a socket which slides up and down and fastens at any height with a wedge. The legs of the tripod are connected horizontally by a Y-shaped piece of bronze ingeniously articulated, so that the whole can be folded up to occupy a very small space. Many tripods like the first two may be seen in the museum at Naples, but none at all resembling the third. Near the same spot were also discovered a small bronze bas-relief; a stone trough, apparently used to receive the blood of the victims sacrificed; and a number of bones.

A return has been made to Parliament giving full information respecting the measurement, draught, tonnage, material, principle, and cost of the iron-plated ships and batteries already built, in course of building, or proposed to be built. Of the twenty-six vessels afloat, nine are not completed, four are designed according to Captain Coles's cupola plan, and seven according to Mr. Reed's plan. There are two others, designed on Mr. Reed's plan, on the stocks; and one other, the Penelope, not yet begun. There are two others, iron vessels, being built—on neither Captain Coles's nor Mr. Reed's plan, the Northumberland and the Waterwitch; and one other, the Hercules, is proposed, but the plans are not yet completed, as they depend upon experiments now going on at Shoeburyness. There are five floating batteries, three of wood and two of iron; but these were all launched during 1855 or 1856.——On Monday a return, moved for by Mr. Laird, was issued, showing that there are twelve non-armour-plated vessels of war building or ordered to be built in the year 1865. Five of these have already been launched, two are to be launched in September next, one in December, one in March of next year, and the date of the launch of three cannot be fixed with certainty. The cost of hulls up to March last was £139,370, and the estimated expenditure on hulls up to next March is £154,080.

THE LATE MR. WATERTON.—Our notice of the death of Mr. Charles Waterton has brought us a communication from Mr. Frederick Verbeke, formerly of British Guiana, who was well acquainted with Mr. Waterton at the time of his South American travels, forty years ago. Mr. Verbeke wishes to bear testimony to the truth of Mr. Waterton's story of his ride upon the alligator's back. He says:—"I know as a fact that he did so mount on the back of a living alligator. He told me the circumstance himself, and he was a man of exact truth. Moreover, two or three years subsequent to the occurrence, I was travelling in the Upper Essequibo River, where, falling in with an intelligent half-caste Indian, who had been the steersman of Waterton's canoe, he confirmed the truth of the statement, he himself being present at the capture. Waterton had desired to obtain a good specimen of an alligator, or, as there called, a 'cayman,' without being injured by its struggles in landing. The cayman was caught, and completely gagged with two hard wood cross sticks, so that it could not injure anyone with its bite; the only fear, then, was the power of its tail. The reptile was then drawn to the edge of the bank, when Waterton entered the water, sprang on its back, caught hold of its forefeet and fastened them with a rope over its back; thus it was drawn ashore uninjured. This specimen of a cayman is now in the Walton Hall Museum, and has been seen there by thousands of people. I may here mention that Waterton was a most expert swimmer, and at that time of great muscular strength. He prided himself on these qualities, and was fond of exhibiting them. When he journeyed in the woods with the Indians, as he did for many months at a time, he lived entirely as they did, on game and Cassava bread; he went barefoot, and was clothed with only a coarse blue check linen shirt, canvas or duck trousers, and a straw or Panama hat."

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, June 19.—There was only a limited quantity of English wheat on sale here to-day. The demand was far from active; yet, in some instances, prices advanced 1s. per quarter, compared with Monday last. The show of foreign wheat was moderate, and sales progressed steadily, at full quotations. In floating cargoes of grain very little was passing. Barley was in short supply and fair request, at full currencies. No change took place in the value of malt, the show of which was tolerably extensive. Oats were quite as dear as last week; whilst beans and peas were very firm. The demand for flour ruled steady.

June 21.—The transactions in most kinds of produce to-day were only moderate. Prices, however, were well supported.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 39s. to 43s.; ditto, white, 41s. to 49s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 39s. to 43s.; rye, 26s. to 28s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 25s.; distilling ditto, 26s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 30s. to 33s.; malt, 47s. to 62s.; oats, 16s. to 24s.; beans, 35s. to 45s.; peas, 34s. to 40s. per quarter; town-made flour, 33s. to 40s.; country marks, 26s. to 29s. per 280 lb.

Seeds.—The demand for agricultural seeds is heavy, and the quotations are almost nominal. Linseed, rapeseed, and cakes are very inactive.

Linseed, English, sowing, 68s. to 70s.; Calcutta, 54s. to 55s.; hempseed, 44s. to 46s. per quarter; tares, 9s. 0d. to 10s. 0d. per bushel; white mustard seed, 10s. 0d. to 12s. 0d.; brown ditto, 10s. to 11s. per bushel; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; red clover seed, 65s. to 90s.; white ditto, 62s. to 75s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5½d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 41s. 1d.; barley, 27s. 3d.; oats, 23s. 8d.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 51,802; barley, 1073; oats, 2161 quarters.

Tea.—The demand for most kinds has fallen off. Prices, however, are fairly supported. The quantities on offer are very large.

Sugar.—The transactions in all raw qualities are on a full average scale, at full quotations. The stock consists of 89,273 tons, against 80,117 tons last year. Refined goods rule about stationary.

Coffee.—The market is very firm, and fine qualities are rather dearer. Stock, 10,865 tons, against 8578 tons in 1864.

Rice.—Very little business is passing in any kind, at about previous currencies. Stock, 29,872 tons, against 37,701 tons last year.

Provisions.—The demand for most kinds of butter is steady, at very full prices. Bacon is rather dearer, with a good inquiry. Hams have given way 2s. per cwt. All other provisions are firm in price.

Tallow.—The demand is steady, at 40s. 9d. per cwt. for P.Y.C., on the spot. The stock is 31,602 casks, against 43,938 casks last year.

Oils.—Linseed oil is selling at £33 10s. to £33 15s.; rape, £42 10s. to £46; fine palm, £36 to £36 10s.; and French turpentine, 54s. per cwt.

Spirits.—There is a fair demand for rum, at 1s. 7d. per gallon for proof Demerara. We have very little change to notice in the value of brandy or grain spirits.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 10s. to £5 15s.; clover, £5 10s. to £6 12s. 6d.; and straw, £1 6s. to £1 12s. per load. New meadow hay, £3 to £4.

Coals.—Haswell, 17s. 9d.; Hetton, 17s. 9d.; Hartlepool, 17s. 6d.; Cowpen Hartley, 16s. 9d.; Holywell, 16s. 9d.; Tanfield Moor, 13s. 3d.; Wylam, 16s. 9d. per ton.

Hops.—The demand for all kinds is very inactive, at about stationary prices—viz., from 100s. to 200s. per cwt.

Wool.—The public sales are still in progress. By private contract, very little is doing.

Potatoes.—The supplies are extensive, and the demand is heavy, at from 40s. to 110s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, June 22).—The supply of beasts on sale to-day was tolerably extensive, and all breeds met a dull inquiry, on rather lower terms. The general top figure for Scots and crosses was 5s. per 8 lb. The show of sheep was moderate, yet sales progressed slowly, at drooping prices. The best Downs and half-breds changed hands at from 6s. to 6s. 2d. per 8 lb. We have to report a dull trade for lambs, at barely previous rates. The quotations ranged from 6s. to 7s. 8d. per 8 lbs. The supply of calves being extensive, the veal trade was heavy, at 2d. per 8 lb. less money. Prime small pigs were rather dearer, but milch cows ruled heavy.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 3s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 4d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 8d.; prime Scots, &c., 4s. 10d. to 5s. 0d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 4d.; prime coarse-woolled ditto, 5s. 6d. to 5s. 10d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 0d. to 6s. 2d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; prime small ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; large hogs, 3s. 10d. to 4s. 6d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 8d. to 5s. 0d.; lambs, 6s. 0d. to 7s. 8d.; suckling calves, 19s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 25s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1150; cows, 136; sheep and lambs, 12,760; calves, 1020; pigs, 220. Foreign: Beasts, 690; sheep and lambs, 4300; calves, 950.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—These markets are but moderately supplied with meat, yet the trade is inactive, at barely late rates. ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, JUNE 16.

BANKRUPTS.

T. ARMSTON, Thanet-place, Temple-bar, bricklayer.—J. W. BRETT, Coleman-street, Camberwell, licensed victualler.—R. JOHNSON, Salisbury-street, Bermondsey, lighterman.—D. REES, Cheapside, photographer.—G. R. BROWNE, Major in the Army, Aldershott.—S. R. WELLS, Landport, Hants, plumber.—W. MOORE, Upper King-street, Bloomsbury-square, bootmaker.—C. EASTWICK, Cheshunt, Herts, beer retailer.—T. SADLER, Argyle-road, Mile-end.—W. Y. BROWN, Ventnor, Isle of Wight, draper.—T. PAYNE, Norfolk-terrace, Old Kent.—W. G. LAUNCEMAN, Coleharbour-street, Hackney-road, bootmaker.—E. NORTH, Merton, Surrey, gardener.—J. JONES, Chapel-street, Tottenham-court-road, baker.—C. WARREN, Allen-road, Hornsey New Town, painter.—H. HARRISON, Peterborough, coal merchant.—C. ECHLIN, Carlton-square, New-cross, commercial traveller.—F. J. HOLLIS, Winchester, attorney.—J. E. TYRIE, Norwood.—W. ARMIT, Exeter Hall Hotel, Strand.—R. BOYLE, Woolwich, Captain Royal Artillery.—J. CROOK, St. George's-terrace, Kilburn, undertaker.—W. R. GARRETT, Spring-place, Wandsworth-road, baker.—J. HALLETT, Bristol-terrace, Brighton, wine and spirit merchant.—W. ASHFIELD, Red Lion-yard, Great Warner-street, Clerkenwell, bricklayer.—C. A. FERGUSON, Royal-parade, Blackheath, mast and block maker.—H. W. LUMLEY, Portsea, Hants, general dealer.—J. I. LUPTON, Richmond, Surrey, veterinary surgeon.—J. DIBBLE, Birmingham, tailor.—T. BROMFIELD, Worcester, victualler.—A. and C. EVANS, Wolverhampton, iron braziers.—T. MEDLICOTT, Birmingham, printer.—J. RICHMOND, Ratcliffe-on-Trent, butcher.—J. ROBINSON, Warmley, commission merchant.—J. W. MARMONT, King's Stanley, timber-dealer.—P. COURTI, Exeter, watchmaker.—W. MORTON, Ripon, wine merchant.—C. BATTEN, Liverpool, licensed victualler. W. ROWBOTHAM, Birmingham, painter.—A. COWEN, Birmingham, retail brewer.—T. WILLS, Maidstone, bootmaker.—J. CLARK, Gateshead, joiner.—J. SMITH, Penrith, innkeeper.—G. HEFFORD, Swinford, baker.—M. ROBERTS, Conway, licensed victualler.—T. WILSON, Haversham, joiner.—J. SHAW, Woodchurch, farmer.—I. WILT, Stockton, jeweller.—F. WATTSON, Gravesend, baker.—T. FELLOWS, Darlaston, chartermaster.—W. F. PEACOCK, Chorlton-on-Medlock, commission agent.—J. T. STONE, Manchester, watchmaker.—G. C. DICKINS, Cornhill, late Major of the Turkish Contingent.—W. PATTISON, Leeds, tailor.—W. HUGHES, Liverpool, grocer.—S. STANDRING, Oldham, cotton-waste dealer.—R. APLIN, Ashburton, baker.—W. WRIGHT, Nottingham, commission agent.—H. LOCKE, East Cowes, victualler.—G. COOPER, Dresden, grocer.—R. FORD, Blackburn, grocer.—T. YATES, Birmingham, seedsman.—W. SMITH, Parr, victualler.

TUESDAY, JUNE 20.

BANKRUPTCIES ANNULLED.

J. THORNTON, Paddock, Yorkshire, woollen manufacturer.—H. CLOUGH, Bradford, Yorkshire, bookseller.

BANKRUPTS.

J. THOMAS, Acton, builder.—R. MILLER, Brompton, dairyman.—J. LACY, Foley-street, builder.—W. NOKES, Hammersmith.—S. and H. PELHAM, Clapham-road, lessees of the New Royalty Theatre.—W. GODDEN, Plumstead, grocer.—D. JOHNSON and E. SNOOK, Millwall, shipbuilders.—J. BRYAN, Rotherhithe, cocoanut matting manufacturer.—C. SEATON, Upper Ebury-street, comedian.—R. SNELL, jun., Islington, photographer.—J. BOND, Grafton-street, surgeon.—H. SCHALLEHN, Kensington, professor of music.—G. H. STEVENS, Dock-street, soap manufacturer.—E. ENGLISH, Bow, butcher. C. and R. CHAMBERS, High-street, Hampstead, contractors.—J. BALLARD, Lambeth-walk, shoemaker.—R. JARLETT, Lee, corndealer.—G. GIPSON, Low Leyton, plumber.—R. MUDD, Milton-next-Gravesend, carpenter.—D. STRATTON, Luton.—W. WHITE, Aldershott, agent.—W. GOSLING, Worth, grocer.—J. HANCOX, New Alresford, millwright.—W. BULBECK, Westbourne, butcher.—G. PERCIVAL, Latchford, butcher.—W. R. WEDGWOOD, Greyshott, farmer.—R. RYDER, Portswood, house-painter.—C. RIMINGTON, Oakham, saddler.—A. GRAY, Great Wilbraham, pollard merchant.—T. L. JOHNSON, R. HAWKES, G. BARLOW, and G. WALLINGTON, Birmingham, bankers.—J. ROWLEY, Longport, licensed victualler.—H. SLACK, Sidbury, stationer.—B. D. REES, Cwmamman.—G. BINDON, Aberavon, potato-dealer.—W. TURNER, Hartland, farmer.—C. R. JONES, Great Torrington, physician.—J. PYE, Liverpool, licensed victualler.—C. GLADISH, South Redford, corn miller.—O. THOMAS, Birkenhead, builder.—G. HARRISON, Liverpool, outfitter.—J. DIXON, Birkenhead, joiner.—T. KEMP, jun., Liverpool, woolbroker.—H. LIDDLE, Manchester, commission agent.—R. DARCEY, Manchester, leather-dealer.—J. HEATON, Oldham, grocer.—J. MARSHALL, Stockport, cotton-spinner.—T. MATTHEWS, Stoke-on-Trent, carter.—T. STOCKWELL, New Wortley.—T. BROGDEN, Old Accrington, block printer.—J. ROBERTS, Chickenley-heath.—T. ARDEN, Middlewich.—B. ANDREWS, Ashington, dairyman.—J. PROCTOR, Liverpool, builder.—J. BATES, Heaton Norris, commission agent.—W. BAILEY, Newcastle-under-Lyme, joiner.—T. ROSBOTHAM, Liverpool, sackdealer.—E. W. LAWRENCE, Liverpool, auctioneer.—D. COOK, Liverpool, dealer in submarine gins.—J. ROGERS, Bridgewater.—H. SCORE, Bridgewater, beerhouse-keeper.—M. BARRELL, Worcester.—W. COREY, St. Austell, cattle-dealer.—W. REDFERN, Loughborough druggist.—H. BAKER, Swansea, bookseller.—J. GIFFIN, Tranmere, Cheshire, bookkeeper. R. MAINWARING, Birkenhead, carter.—J. BOSTOCK, Malpas, innkeeper.—G. KNIGHT, Blakeney, potato-seller.—F. BACKHOUSE, sen., Goole, plumber.—A. PIERCE, Bootle, publican.—W. HARRISON, Halifax, leather-dealer.—W. SHENTON, Belper, tobacconist. S. NELSON, Middlesborough, tobacconist.—R. JENKINS, Llawhaden, cattle-dealer.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

W. MILLER, Port Glasgow, cabinetmaker.—J. ROWIE, Ardrossan, spirit merchant.—W. and P. WILSON, Paisley, shawl manufacturers.

THE MAXWELL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, GLASGOW.

THE new church of the Scottish Established Presbyterian form of worship erected at Glasgow, upon a site given by Sir John Maxwell of Pollok, was opened about the end of last March. It stands at the junction of Pollok-street and Ardgowan-street. The style is Early Middle Pointed, the principal front being in Pollok-street. The tower, which rises to the height of 140 ft., is at the side, at the immediate corner of the two above-named streets. The main feature in the front elevation is the four-light centre window over the principal doorway, the tracery in the arch-head being of a chaste and elegant character. The front doorway arch is supported by columns with carved caps and vases, the whole exterior being simple and plain, the general effect being gained more by beauty of proportion and outline than by richness of carving. The ledge of the roof is surmounted by an elegant cresting. There will be a clock with four faces above the belfry, and the spire terminates with a handsome gilded vane. The church inside is divided into nave and aisles by iron pillars on each side. These pillars support the galleries and also the roof. They have moulded caps, from which spring arches of perforated woodwork. There are five doors to the building. The ceiling being partly ceiled, it was deemed necessary to relieve it with colour. In the centre, between the main couples, are pierced centre flowers, designed in character with the building and tastefully ornamented. These will be used as ventilating outlets. The walls are tinted of a light salmon colour; the front of the galleries is of an ornamental design, and the panels are decorated. The principal features internally are the two windows, the one over the main door and the other over the pulpit. The pulpit, or rather platform, is of stained woodwork, the panels diapered in gold, on a crimson ground. The small carved caps and other carving is hatched in gold. The arcade at the back of the platform is to be filled in with illuminated texts and the Ten Commandments. The organ will be placed in the end gallery, and will be divided half on each side of the large window, and so designed as to be an ornament to the church. The doors are to be covered with crimson cloth and ornamental brass hinges. The Maxwell Church is from designs by Mr. G. H. O'Donoghue, architect, Glasgow, under whose superintendence it has been erected.

STATUETTE OF THE PRINCE OF WALES.

IN our review of the sculpture at the Royal Academy Exhibition we have already given a word of commendation to the statuette of the Prince of Wales, which we now engrave. In this excellent little portrait work, his Royal Highness is represented in his uniform as Captain-General and Colonel of the Hon. Artillery Company—a command in which he succeeds his father, the late Prince Consort. The statuette has been presented to that distinguished corps of volunteers by the Prince, as the shooting-prize for the year 1864, and has been won by Corporal Hunt. "Volunteers" we call them, seeing that the members enter and withdraw at will; but the Hon. Artillery Company rightly takes precedence of the first regiment of ordinary volunteers (i. e., the Victorias), being the representative in direct descent of the old train bands of England, and dating, therefore, long before the establishment of a standing army in this country. We may add that the artist also has in the Academy Exhibition a case of cameos and a bust of Mr. E. Mackenzie, of Fawley Court, who presented the munificent sum of £14,000 to the British Orphan Asylum two years ago.

JAPANESE BADGERS.

THE two animals represented in our Illustration are a pair of Japanese badgers which have lately been brought to England by Captain Wright, of the ship Comet, and have been added to the collection of the Zoological Society of London, in their gardens in Regent's Park. They are the first specimens of the kind which have ever come to Europe. The genus Meles, or badger, which belongs to the plantigrade family of mammals—having its feet so formed that, in standing or walking, it rests upon the entire sole of the foot, and not only upon the toes—is distinguished from other genera of that family by its ample provision of grinder-teeth, so well adapted for bruising and masticating vegetable substances, that the badger is much less carnivorous than the other animals of its class. Its claws are strong though not sharp, and suitable therefore for burrowing in the earth, either in search of the roots upon which it feeds or in the excavation of its subterranean abode. The badger wherever he is found appears to be a sturdy and independent fellow, dwelling like a hermit by himself and interfering with nobody else; but when attacked or baited he makes a fierce defence. He sleeps all day in his snug hole, and walks abroad at night. He is found in all the northern parts of Europe, Asia, and America, and also in India. The Japanese variety, as will be seen from our Illustration, differs in several respects from the familiar badger of Great Britain, which used to be so cruelly tormented for the sport of the vulgar crowd. This badger of Japan, the Meles Anakuma, is more diurnal in its habits and more exclusively vegetarian in its food than the badger of Europe. The Zoological Society has also just received a specimen of the wild pig of Japan, Sus leucomystax, given by Messrs. Glover, of Nagasaki; and one of the red-faced monkey, Macacus speciosus, from the same country. The Japanese deer, Cervus sika, has bred for several seasons in Regent's Park Gardens.

JAPANESE BADGER IN THE ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY'S GARDENS, REGENT'S PARK.

THE NEW CHURCH OF SAINT BARTHOLOMEW, BRIGHTON.

THE site upon which this church has lately been built is in Shepherston-street, New North-road, and in the centre of a very poor and populous district. The building consists of a nave, north and south aisles, tower, and spire, besides the vestry, with necessary offices. The church is arranged to seat 1000 persons; but, on account of the limited extent of the site, it was found that accommodation for this required number could not be afforded without the introduction of galleries. The west front is built of Kentish rag, the mouldings, weatherings, and dressings being of Bath stone. It is fenced off from the road by means of a dwarf wall, surmounted by a wrought-iron railing. The spire rises to a height of about 110 ft. from the pavement. The western doorway is divided into two openings, and the tympanum is decorated with tracery and carving, the centre medallion containing a head of Saint Bartholomew; the doors open into a porch the whole width of the nave. The entrances in the tower and at the west end of the south aisle open also into porches, which contain the gallery staircases. The nave is 70 ft. long, 21 ft. 6 in. broad, and 50 ft. high to the ridge. It is divided from the aisles on each side by an arcade of five arches. The columns and the arches, which are moulded, are of Bath stone; the capitals to the columns and to the responds are all of Caen stone, and carved (by Mr. Robinson), each capital varying in design and embracing studies of natural foliage—the passion-flower, vine, geranium, maple, and rose, being amongst the number. The clerestory windows are circular, and filled in with different forms of tracery. The roof is open-timbered, and is boarded, and stained and varnished. The principal beams are stained darker than the boarding, and are moulded and framed with arched braces, and contain open traceried spandrils, which vary in each pair. A chancel arrangement is effected by means of a different treatment of the eastern bay of the nave; the roof over it, which rests upon a stone cornice, is boarded, and constructed with curved moulded ribs, having carved bosses at their intersections. The principals at the ends of this bay are carried by small red marble shafts, the intermediate ribs resting upon small carved corbels. A brass corona is suspended from this roof. The eastern wall is pierced by a five-light window, surmounted by a moulded and enriched arch. This window is filled in with stained glass of geometrical design, from the works of Messrs. Lavers and Barraud. The lower portion of the wainscot is composed of Minton's majolica tiling; over this is an arcade of Caen stone, resting upon marble shafts of different colours, having carved capitals. Over the centre space is a crocketed canopy, terminating in a jewelled cross. The several compartments are decorated. The floor in the chancel is paved with encaustic tiles, and is raised above the level of that of the rest of the church. The reading-desk, pulpit, and other fittings are of carved oak; the font and the base of the pulpit are of Caen stone, relieved with marble shafts. The seats throughout the church are open, and are of deal, stained and varnished, those on the ground floor having sloping backs, with floor-de-lis terminations to the stall ends. The aisles are each about 65 ft. in length, 14 ft. 6 in. in width, and 22 ft. high to the wall plates; they are lighted by two tiers of windows, the lower ones under the galleries being simple triplets, and those above being two-light traceried windows. The glazing throughout the building is of tinted cathedral glass, each light being surrounded by a border of glass of a rather deeper colour. The galleries, which are kept quite distinct from the nave columns, are supported by cast-iron shafts, which are decorated in colours and gold. The front to the galleries is panelled, those panels immediately under the bookboard being of pierced tracery. The whole of the works have been carried out, at a cost of about £5000, under the superintendence of Mr. Edwin Clare, of Guilford-street, by Messrs. Dove, the contractors.

VOLUNTEER FIELD-DAY IN SOMERFORD PARK, CHESHIRE.

THE 1st Staffordshire and 5th Cheshire Administrative Battalions of Rifle Volunteers, mustering together above a thousand men, assembled, on Tuesday week, as they have done in two former years, at Somerford Park, near Congleton, the seat of Sir Charles Shakerley, Bart., who himself, as Lieutenant-Colonel, commanded the Cheshire battalion in their field operations; while the Staffordshire battalion was under the command of Colonel Buller. Many thousand spectators from the neighbouring towns were present at this interesting display of military discipline and skill, an Illustration of which, from a sketch by Mr. J. F. A. Lynch, of Macclesfield, is here placed before our readers. It should be observed that the Staffordshire volunteers formed the attacking force. Their plan was the invasion of the park, by making a descent from the Radnor Heights into the valley below, there to contest with the Cheshire men the passage of a river which winds through a circuitous route; and, after gaining the river, to chase their imaginary foe up the declivities leading to the park, finally compelling them to surrender. The Staffordshire men had, in the valley, the advantage of cover behind fences and thick hedges, where they concealed themselves and peppered away in a manner that must have told with terrible effect in real warfare. The Cheshire men contested every inch of ground, slowly retiring before the superior number of the advancing foe; until, with a cheer, the latter drove the left wing of the Cheshire battalion over the bridge, following up the pursuit through the plantation. Simultaneously Lieutenant-Colonel Shakerley withdrew his right wing through the wood, hard pressed by the enemy's left. Thousands of the spectators had as usual posted themselves directly in the line of march, so that for a time the movements could not be distinctly seen. On gaining the level of the park, the battalions were drawn up in line, and were exercised in volley-firing by companies and divisions, several of those volleys being remarkably good on both sides. This closed the movements of the sham fight, which had occupied about two hours. The whole force was then marched past Colonel Buller at the saluting-flag, and were after-making a descent from the Radnor Heights into the valley below, there to contest with the Cheshire men the passage of a river which winds through a circuitous route; and, after gaining the river, to chase their imaginary foe up the declivities leading to the park, finally compelling them to surrender. The Staffordshire men had, in the valley, the advantages of cover behind fences and thick hedges, where they concealed themselves and peppered away in a manner that must have told with terrible effect in real warfare. The Cheshire men contested every inch of ground, slowly retiring before the superior number of the advancing foe; until, with a cheer, the latter drove the left wing of the Cheshire battalion over the bridge, following up the pursuit through the plantation. Simultaneously Lieutenant-Colonel Shakerley withdrew his right wing through the wood, hard pressed by the enemy's left. Thousands of the spectators had as usual posted themselves directly in the line of march, so that for a time the movements could not be distinctly seen. On gaining the level of the park, the battalions were drawn up in line, and were exercised in volley-firing by companies and divisions, several of those volleys being remarkably good on both sides. This closed the movements of the sham fight, which had occupied about two hours. The whole force was then marched past Colonel Buller at the saluting-flag, and were afterwards briefly addressed by Sir Charles Shakerley and Colonel Buller. The conduct of all engaged, both troops and commanding officers, was worthy of praise. The military arrangements of the day, under the direction of Captain-Adjutant Swetenham, were no less to be commended.

VOLUNTEER REVIEW AND SHAM FIGHT AT SOMERFORD, NEAR MACCLESFIELD.

THE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION AT BROMPTON.

WHEN the Queen, one morning in March last, visited the Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest at Brompton, she inspected every part of the institution, walking through the wards and kindly speaking to the poor patients at their bedsides (one of whom was a soldier of Balaklava); then examining the kitchens, with their steam-cooking apparatus, the store-rooms and larders, and the lifts or hoists for raising either persons or stores to the upper floors of the building. Her Majesty asked many questions about the internal economy of the institution, and expressed her entire approval of all she had observed. She then wrote her name in the visitors' book, and examined the vellum scroll containing the signatures of the lamented Prince Consort and of the distinguished visitors who were present at the laying of the foundation-stone of the new building by his Royal Highness, on the 11th of June, 1844. A view of this building forms one of our illustrations this week. Its capacity of accommodating patients does not, we believe, satisfy the present demand for admission. While the latter is steadily increasing year by year, the power of receiving patients in the existing building has almost reached its limit. The present number of beds (210) includes those extra beds which have been put up during the last few winters, to meet the pressure at that season. Every available space in the wards is thus filled up; and the committee, in their last report, spoke of the importance of extending the operations of the charity wherever the opportunity is presented. This has been effected to some extent by the Manor House Branch at Chelsea, which accommodates twenty patients; but there is now commenced an effort at extension of a novel character, which, it is believed, will be of great benefit to the patients, as well as conducive to medical science. A proposal has been made, through Dr. Stone, to establish—at first experimentally—a sanatorium in Madeira, in direct connection with this hospital, the residents in the island having liberally offered to provide for twenty male patients during the coming winter, on condition that their expenses out and home be paid by the hospital. The committee have resolved to accept the offer, feeling assured that, with the assistance of the governors and the public, the necessary funds will be forthcoming. It is hoped that the experiment, if successful, may be repeated with advantage, not only in Madeira, but in other suitable climates, both at home and abroad.

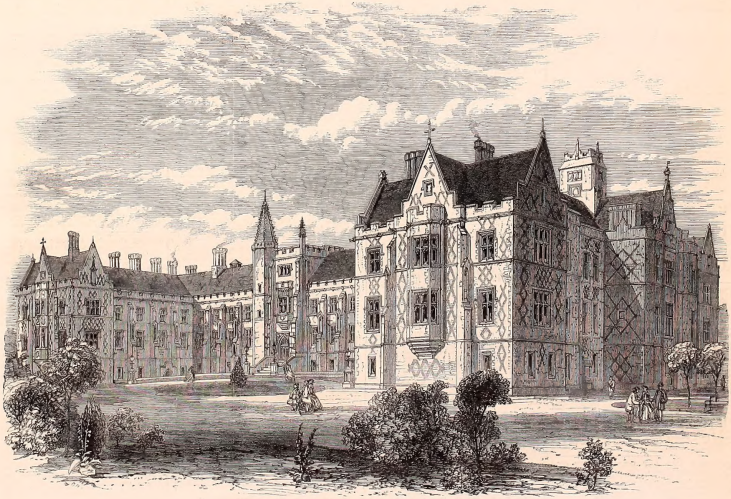
The hospital building, which stands on a square piece of ground measuring three acres, fronts the main road. Its width is 300 ft., with two projecting wings, each of which has a depth of 190 ft.; and the quadrangle between is laid out as a garden. The west wing, with a part of the ground floor of the central portion of the building, contains the dispensary and out-patients' rooms, laboratory, museum, and sitting-rooms of the resident clinical assistants. The east wing contains the apartments of the resident medical officer and matron, the linen-room, store-room, secretary's office, board-room, physician's room, and seats and movable tables for meals. The gallery of the west wing is named after her Majesty, the patron of the charity and one of its earliest friends, and is called the "Victoria Gallery." The gallery of the east wing is called the "Jenny Lind Gallery," in testimony to the kindness of Mme. Lind-Goldschmidt, who enabled the committee to commence building this wing, now filled with grateful patients. The first floor accommodates 103 female patients. The arrangements of the second floor are precisely the same as those of the first floor, the wards being occupied by male patients, for whom there are 107 beds. The west gallery is named after H.R.H. the late Prince Consort, who laid the foundation-stone of the hospital in 1844, and is called the "Albert Gallery." The east gallery is named after the Rev. Sir Henry Fenlis, Bart., at whose expense the chapel was built. The breadth of the galleries in both floors is 10 ft., and their height, and that of the wards, is 14 ft. The attic floor has comfortable dormitories for the nurses and servants, and in the lower rooms are the and servants' hall. In the centre of the middle corridor are the apparatus-rooms for warming the hospital. The kitchen and sculleries abut on the north side of the central corridor, and are built outside the hospital. The first floor is devoted exclusively to female patients, except small rooms for the chaplain and for each of the two head nurses, and the two requisite sculleries, baths, and lavatories. The temperature is the same in the galleries as in the wards; patients are therefore able to read or work in these well-lighted, roomy corridors without inconvenience or exposure, or they may walk when the weather will not permit of their going out; they are also provided with easy couches sleeping apartments of the resident clinical assistants. The chapel, already mentioned, is situated at the rear, or north side, of the building, but is approached through the corridor opposite the front entrance.



THE MAXWELL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, GLASGOW, SEE PAGE 607.

BRONZE STATUETTE OF THE PRINCE OF WALES, BY T. FOWKE, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.—SEE PAGE 607.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S CHURCH, ISLINGTON, SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

THE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, AT BROMPTON.—SEE PAGE 612.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

CONSIDERABLE inactivity has continued to prevail in the market for Home Securities. The purchases on account of the public have been trifling; nevertheless, as the supply of stock afloat is very moderate, the fluctuations in prices have been limited. There has been rather more doing in the Unfunded Debt, owing to the low range in the value of money.

There is a large supply of capital on offer in the general discount market. The demand for accommodation has been very inactive, at the annexed quotations for the best paper:—

Thirty days' bills	3 per cent.
Sixty days' bills	3 ,,
Three months' bills	3¼ ,,
Four months' bills	3½ ,,
Six months' bills	4 to 4½ ,,

The price for money in the Stock Exchange is from 2½ to 3 per cent, if on Government Securities.

Throughout the Continent capital has ruled about stationary. We quote the rates in the leading cities:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	3	2¾
Vienna	5	4½
Berlin	4	3½
Frankfort	4	3
Amsterdam	3	2½
Turin	5	4½ 5
Brussels	3	3
Madrid	8	9
Hamburg	—	2¾
St. Petersburg	5½	6

The joint-stock banks are giving 2 per cent for money on call; 2¼ with seven, and 2½ per cent if with fourteen, days' notice of withdrawal.

The imports of the precious metals have been on a full average scale, chiefly from America. In the absence of an active demand for shipment, a portion of the gold at hand has been sold to the Bank of England. Fine bar silver has been disposed of at 60⅛d. per ounce.

The Council for India have disposed of £250,000 in bills on the various presidencies, at previous rates.

The funds were heavy on Monday. Consols, for Delivery, marked 90¼ ⅛; Ditto, for Account, 90¼ ⅜; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89¾ ⅞; Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem.; India Bonds, 16s. to 24s. prem.; Bank Stock was 245 to 247; Rupee Paper, 101 to 102, and 108 to 109. On Tuesday Consols, for Transfer, closed at 90¼ ¼; Ditto, for the 6th of July, 90¼ ⅜; Bank Stock, 245 to 248; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89¾ ¾; India Five per Cents, 104¼; Rupee Paper, 101 to 102, and 108 to 109; India Bonds, 16s. to 21s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem. On the following day Consols, for Money, realised 90 to 90¼; Ditto, for Time, 90¼ ¼; Reduced and New Three per Cents 89¾ ⅞; India Five per Cents, 104¼; Ditto Bonds, 16s. to 21s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem.; India Five per Cent Rupee Paper, 102. On Thursday the market was quiet. Consols, for Money, sold at 90 to 90¼; for Account, 90¼ ¼; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89¾ to ⅞; Bank Stock, 248, 250; India Five per Cents, 104¼ ⅜; India Bonds, 18s. prem.; and Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem.

American Securities have changed hands freely, at enhanced quotations. Illinois Central have been 87½; United States 5.20 Bonds, 73¾; and Erie, 55¼.

Spanish Securities have ruled heavy, and the quotations have given way. Mexican Stock, however, is firm, and an advance of from ¼ to ⅝ per cent has taken place in its value. For most other Foreign Securities, the market has been quiet, at about former prices. Turkish Scrip has sold at 1½ dis., and Italian at 3 to 2¾ dis. Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have realised 81½; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 1864, 91½; Greek, 21⅝; Ditto, Coupons, 8½; Italian Old Five per Cents, 66½; Ditto, 1865, 74¼; Mexican Three per Cents, 26; Ditto, 1851, 25¾; Portuguese Three per Cents, 49½; Russian Old Five per Cents, 91¼; Ditto, 1862, 91⅝; Ditto, 1864, 91¼; Ditto, Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 89¾; Ditto, Three per Cents, 56½; Spanish Three per Cents, 49; Ditto, Deferred, 40¾; Ditto, Passive, 30¾; Ditto, Certificates, 14⅞; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 93½; Ditto, 1858, 73; Ditto, 1862, 75; Ditto, 1865, 47¼; Ditto, Four per Cents, 101 to 103; and Venezuela Six per Cents, 42; Turkish Consolidés have been done at 50¾ ⅞.

Only a moderate business has been done in the market for Joint-stock Bank Shares; nevertheless, prices have ruled firm, and have had an upward tendency:—Agra and Masterman's have realised 122; Alliance, 29½; Australasia, 76; Ditto, New, 74; British North American, 45½ ex div.; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 26½; Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China, 50½; Colonial, 41; Continental, 20¼; Imperial Ottoman, 17⅞; Land Mortgage of India, 4½; London and County, 78½; London Joint-stock, 51½; London and South-Western, 20¾; Midland, 18; New South Wales, 42; Oriental, 54; Union of Australia, 55; and Union of London, 55½.

Colonial Government Securities have commanded but little attention. Canada Six per Cents have sold at 98½; Ditto Five per Cents, 86½; New South Wales Five per Cents, 92½; Queensland Six per Cents, 105½; and Victoria Six per Cents, 110.

The Miscellaneous Market has continued quiet. Atlantic Telegraph Company's shares have realised 5½; Australian Agricultural, 46½; Ceylon, 10½ ex div.; Company of African Merchants, 3; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 9¼; Ebbw Vale, 8; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 3½; Electric Telegraph, 121; General Credit, 6¼; Hudson's Bay, 17; International Financial, 6¾; Joint-stock Discount, 9; London Financial, 23¼; London General Omnibus, 3¼; National Discount, 16½; Ocean Marine Insurance, 24½; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 77¼ ex div.; Royal Mail Steam, 104½; Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance, 7⅞; and Warrant Finance, 7½.

The dealings in the Railway Share Market have been very moderate. In some instances prices have given way. Annexed are the official closing quotations on Thursday:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Bristol and Exeter, 96½; Great Eastern, 48⅞; Great Northern, A Stock, 146 ex new; Great Western, 70⅞; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 121⅞; London and Blackwall, 93; London and Brighton, 108; London, Chatham, and Dover, 41⅞; Ditto, Metropolitan Extension, 63; London and South-Western, 99; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 63½; Metropolitan, 143½; Metropolitan District, 106; Midland, 135½; North British, 53⅞; North Eastern—Berwick, 112⅞; Ditto, Leeds, 70½; North London, 122½; North Staffordshire, 79½; South Devon, 58; South Eastern, 84½.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 104½; East Indian, 104¼; Grand Trunk of Canada, 1st Preference, 65½; Ditto, 2nd Preference, 57; Ditto, 4th, 25½; Great Western of Canada, 11⅞; Madras Five per Cent, 103½; Scinde—Delhi, 102.

Foreign.—Dutch Rhenish, 22⅞; Great Luxembourg, 14½; Namur and Liege, Six per Cent Pref., 19¾; Recife and San Francisco, 14; San Paulo, 18½.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending June 21 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

A decrease of circulation of	£37,554
An increase of public deposits of	779,095
An increase of other deposits of	731,185
An increase of securities of	1,233,708
An increase of bullion of	249,241
An increase of rest of	10,223
An increase of reserve of	274,181

The total circulation is £21,153,552. Public deposits amount to £9,581,293; private ditto to £13,606,166; and securities to £31,327,370. The stock of bullion is £16,294,910; and the reserve of notes and coin, £10,240,455.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—ENTRIES CLOSE THIS DAY.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—OPENING DAY and PUBLIC JUDGING, Friday, JULY 7. By order, S. SIDNEY, Sec.

HYDE PARK in 1864, by HENRY BARRAUD, Esq., containing 220 Portraits of the Frequenters of Rotten-row, NOW ON VIEW, at 230, Regent-street (opposite Hanover-street). Admission 1s. Open from Ten till Six.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION IS NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 53, PALL-MALL (near St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. JAMES FAHEY, Sec.

STODARE.—EGYPTIAN HALL.—Theatre of Mystery.—The New and Marvellous Illusions—the INSTANTANEOUS GROWTH of FLOWER-TREES and the REAL INDIAN BASKET FEAT—as only performed by Colonel Stodare and the Indian Magicians, and introduced for the first time in this country, by Colonel Stodare, on Easter Monday, April 17, 1865, in his celebrated Entertainment of Magic and Ventriloquism. EVERY NIGHT, at Eight, Saturday included; and Special Day Representations on Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons, at Three.
Admission, 1s.; Area, 2s.; Stalls, 3s. Tickets at Mr. Mitchell's, 33, Old Bond-street; or at the Box-office, Egyptian Hall, from Eleven to Five.
"The sensation of the season."—Vide Punch, June 3, 1865.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, REGENT'S PARK. The LAST GENERAL EXHIBITION of PLANTS, FLOWERS, and FRUIT this Season, WEDNESDAY, JULY 5. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens, and of the Society's Clerk, Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall, on vouchers from Fellows of the Society, price 5s.; or on the day of exhibition, 7s. 6d. each.

SCIENCE AND ART DEPARTMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL ON EDUCATION.—The EXHIBITION of PORTRAIT MINIATURES at the SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM is NOW OPEN daily. On Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, from Ten a.m. to Ten p.m.; and on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from Ten a.m. to Six p.m.
By order of the Committee of Council on Education.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr. SOTHERN'S LAST NIGHT.—Notwithstanding the great success and attraction of BROTHER SAM, Mr. Buckstone's engagements and those of Mr. Sothern compel the announcement that the present week will be the last but two of the performance of the above-named popular comedy, as this Theatre will close for the season on Wednesday, July 19. This Evening, MONDAY, JUNE 26, and every Evening during the Week, to commence at Seven, with MY WIFE'S MOTHER. After which, at Eight, BROTHER SAM—Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Miss Snowdon, and Miss Nelly Moore; concluding with NO SONG NO SUPPER—Miss Louise Keeley.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Last Nights of the Season.—MONDAY, Tuesday, and Wednesday, THE AREA BELLE—Mr. J. L. Toole. THE HEN AND CHICKENS—Mrs. Stirling. ONE TOUCH OF NATURE—Mr. B. Webster and Miss H. Simms; and THE STEEPLECHASE—Mr. P. Bedford and J. L. Toole. Thursday, Benefit of Mr. J. L. Toole. Friday, a Variety of Entertainments. Saturday, Last Night of the Season, Annual Benefit of Mr. Benjamin Webster. Commence at Seven. MONDAY, JULY 3, First Night of the Summer Season. The celebrated American Comedian, Mr. John E. Owens, as Solon Shingle.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—GREAT ATTRACTION THIS DAY (Saturday)—THE GREAT ROSE SHOW of the Season, Special Display of GREAT FOUNTAINS, and Military and Orchestral Bands and Promenade. Season Tickets free; Payment at Doors, 5s.

GREAT FOUNTAINS and GREAT ROSE SHOW, THIS DAY (Saturday).

CRYSTAL PALACE.—NOTICE.—The only Shilling Days next Week, Tuesday and Thursday.

CRYSTAL PALACE. — HANDEL FESTIVAL.
NEXT MONDAY, JUNE 26 .. .. MESSIAH.
NEXT WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28 .. SELECTION.
NEXT FRIDAY, JUNE 30 .. .. ISRAEL.
The Orchestra (double the diameter of the dome of St. Paul's), entirely roofed over, and acoustically improved, will contain nearly FOUR THOUSAND PERFORMERS. The Performers, carefully selected from the Orchestras, Musical Institutions, and Cathedral Choirs throughout the country, and from various parts of the Continent, comprise all the principal Professors and Amateurs. It is confidently expected that this Festival will be by far the most complete and magnificent display ever witnessed.
The entire Musical Arrangements are under the direction of the Sacred Harmonic Society. Conductor—Mr. Costa.
PRINCIPAL VOCALISTS.—Mdlle. Adelina Patti, Mdme. Rudersdorff, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdme. Parepa, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Cummings, Mr. Weiss, Herr Schmid, and Mr. Santley. Organist—Mr. Brownsmith.
Stall Tickets, including admission (in sets for the three days) for numbered stalls, 3 guineas and 2½ guineas; stalls for single day, 25s. and 1 guinea; reserved tickets, including admission (in sets for the three days) in rows, numbered, 28s. 6d.; reserved single day ticket, ditto, 10s. 6d. The stalls and reserved tickets include admission. Admission tickets only—if bought before each day—5s.; by payment at the Palace on the day, 7s. 6d.
For particulars of Return Tickets, extending over three days of the Festival to holders of Festival tickets, see special bills issued by nearly every Railway Company.
Tickets at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, London, S.E.; or at No. 2, Exeter Hall, London, W.C. Cheques and post-office orders payable to George Grove.
Full details of the Festival and Block-plan of Reserved Seats, and Carte de Visite Photograph of Orchestra of Four Thousand Performers, may be had by application personally or by letter inclosing two stamps, at the Crystal Palace, or at Exeter Hall.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.—COUNTRY NOTICE.—RETURN TICKETS.—As, according to the notices issued by the principal railway companies, Extended Return Tickets will be issued to holders of Festival Tickets, parties desirous of availing themselves of these opportunities may secure Festival Tickets as above by return of post by forwarding remittances by Cheque or Post Office Order to No. 2, Exeter Hall, payable to George Grove. ROB. K. BOWLEY, General Manager, Crystal Palace.
Crystal Palace, June 22, 1865.
NOTE.—Intending visitors are referred to the railways in their several localities for exact information respecting Railway Tickets.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—HANDEL FESTIVAL.—The Official and only Correct Book of Words of the Festival, with introductory remarks, complete lists of the performers, and full particulars of the arrangements for admission at the several entrances, &c., at the Crystal Palace, Exeter Hall, and within the Palace on each day of performance, and at Messrs. Smith and Sons' Bookstalls at London Bridge and Victoria, price Half a Crown.
Copies will be forwarded by post, to any part of town or country, on receipt of Stamps or Post-office Order (payable to George Grove, at the Chief Office), for 2s. 8d. each copy.
The music, with programmes of each of the three days, will also be ready at the same time.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.—FIRST DAY, MESSIAH, MONDAY.—NOTICE.—The Oratorio will be preceded by the National Anthem, "God Save the Queen," which will be played at a Quarter before Three o'Clock precisely.
Visitors are respectfully requested to be in their places before that time.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.—MESSIAH. MONDAY NEXT.—Five-Shilling Admission Tickets may be bought at the Crystal Palace and at 2, Exeter Hall, up to Eight o'Clock on Saturday Evening. No guarantee can be given that the distant agencies can be kept supplied. Persons wishing to secure them should apply early in the day.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY, HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS.—SEVENTH CONCERT, MONDAY, JUNE 26. To commence at Half-past Eight o'Clock. Conductor, Professor Sterndale Bennett. Programme: Finale to Mendelssohn's "Loreley;" Beethoven's Symphony in A; Overtures to "Dinorah" and "Les Deux Journées;" Spohr's Concerto in E Minor; and Bach's Chaconne for the violin. Vocalists, Mdlle. Tietjens and Signor Agnesi; violinist, Herr Joachim. Tickets at Addison and Lucas's, 210, Regent-street.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—The CONCERT will Commence at Half-past Eight o'Clock on MONDAY NEXT.

LAST MONDAY POPULAR CONCERT of the SEASON, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The DIRECTOR'S BENEFIT, and Last Concert of the Season, on MONDAY EVENING, JULY 3. The programme will include selections from the popular works of all the great masters. Pianoforte, Mdme. Arabella Goddard and Mr. Charles Hallé; Violin, Herr Joachim (his last appearance in London this season) and Herr Straus: Second Violin, Herr L. Ries; Viola, Mr. H. Webb; Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Vocalists, Miss Banks and Mr. Sims Reeves. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets and Programmes at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s, 201, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s, 48, Cheapside; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

MUSICAL UNION.—JOACHIM, LAST TIME THIS SEASON.—TUESDAY, JUNE 27.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Grand Quintet in C, Beethoven; Piano Solos by Bach, Mendelssohn, and Chopin; Quartet in D, Mozart; Violin Solos; Preludium (Bach) and Abendlied (Schumann); Grand Trio, E minor, Piano, &c., Spohr—Pianist, Hallé; Violoncello, Piatti. Tickets at the usual places; and of Austin, at the Hall, Half a Guinea each. Members can pay for visitors at the Hall. To begin this day at a Quarter past Three. The Grand Septets of Beethoven and Hummel, with Lubeck, Pianist, on July 4.
J. ELLA, Director, 18, Hanover-square.

JULY 1.—APTOMMAS'S MORNING CONCERT, at the CONSERVATOIRE DE LA HARPE, 76, Harley-street, W., assisted by eminent artists. He will play Weber's "Concertstück," and several of his own (latest) compositions, including the Welsh Melodies. Tickets, Half a guinea.

C. C. C. CHRISTY MINSTRELS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY, EVERY EVENING at Eight, and Saturday Mornings at Three. New Ballads, Charming Part-Songs, Inimitable and Refined Comic Illustrations.—Stalls, 3s.; Second Seats, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.; a few Fauteuils, 5s. each. Tickets at Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's Hall, Piccadilly. Matthews Brothers and Beckett, Proprietors.

MDME. GRISI will SING, for the LAST TIME this Season (by kind permission of F. Gye, Esq.), at Signor Giuglini's Concert, on SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 1, at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS. Commence at Half-past Two o'Clock.

THE LONDON GLEE AND MADRIGAL UNION (Established 1859; Director, Mr. LAND), respectfully announce their LAST AFTERNOON GLEE and MADRIGAL CONCERT, on TUESDAY NEXT, JUNE 27, at Three o'Clock, at the DUDLEY GALLERY, EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. T. Oliphant, Esq., Literary Illustrator. Solo Pianist, Mr. Lindsay Sloper. Conductor, Mr. Land. Numbered Stalls 5s.; Unreserved, 3s.; Ticket to admit Three, 7s. 6d.; at Mr. Mitchell's Royal Library, Old Bond-street.

THURSDAY, JUNE 29.—MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR. St. James's Hall.—LAST SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT.—Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Mdme. Arabella Goddard, Signor Piatti. Tickets, 6s., 3s., 2s. and 1s, Addison and Lucas, 210, Regent-street; Hammond, 214, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, 48, Cheapside; Austin, 28, Piccadilly.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, in their NEW ENTERTAINMENT, with a few Musical Memoranda by Mr. John Parry, Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight. Wednesday and Saturday at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., and 5s.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY.—EVERY EVENING at Eight o'Clock (except Saturday): Saturday Afternoon at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED and (over 500 representations) MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY.—EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Box-office open Eleven to Five.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS, LORDSHIP-LANE, WOOD-GREEN.—Patron, her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen.—INAUGURATION CEREMONY and FESTIVAL, SATURDAY, JULY 8, 1865, under the presidency of the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, K.T.M.W., Grand Master, President of the Institution. A Special Grand Lodge will be open at One o'Clock, the arrangements for which will be superintended by the Grand Director of Ceremonies. Opening of the New Organ erected by Messrs. Gray and Davison; Presentation of Purses by Ladies; Presentation of Purses by "Lewises." Three o'Clock—A Déjeuner à la fourchette will be provided, the tickets for which will be (exclusive of wine) 7s. 6d. each for Gentlemen and 5s. each for Ladies. Wines will be supplied at a fixed tariff. Five o'Clock—Brother Coxwell will ascend in his balloon, he having in the kindest manner placed his services at the disposal of the Committee. Six o'Clock—Announcement in Dining Hall of result of the Festival. Seven o'Clock—Concert by Professional Brethren and Artistes, who have generously proffered their services, assisted by the Pupils of the Institution; Band of the First Life Guards, under the direction of Mr. Waterson; Band of the Royal Marines, under the direction of Mr. Winterbottom. Presentation Purses will be supplied on application. In addition to the regular trains from King's-cross to Wood-green, arrangements have been made with the Great Northern Railway Company for special trains to leave King's-cross at intervals as may be required, commencing at 11.30 a.m., and to return from Wood-green up to 11 p.m. Omnibuses leave the City for Wood-green frequently throughout the day.

MECHI TESTIMONIAL.
PRESIDENT OF THE COMMITTEE.
His Grace the Duke of Sutherland.
VICE-PRESIDENTS.
The Right Hon. the Earl of Essex.
The Right Hon. Lord Houghton.
The Right Hon. the Earl of Lonsdale.
TREASURERS.
Richard Garrett, Esq., Carlton Hall, Saxmundham, Suffolk.
George Moore, Esq., Bow-churchyard, London, E.C.
HON. SEC.—Donald Nicoll, Esq., Oaklands Hall Kilburn, N.W.
Gentlemen willing to join the Committee and to subscribe are requested to address to Donald Nicoll, Esq., "Mechi Testimonial Office," 55, Charing-cross, London, S.W.
The following bankers have consented to receive subscriptions:—London and County, London and Westminster, London and Joint-Stock, Agra and Masterman's, Union Bank of London, Imperial Bank, Messrs. Barnett, Hoares, and Co., Messrs. Coutts, Messrs. Drummond, Messrs. Brooks and Co.
Amount subscribed at the first meeting of the committee, £2000. Since then a number of subscriptions, varying in amount from one guinea to 100 guineas, have been received.
A list of subscriptions and of the names of the Committee will be published in future advertisements.

THE SALISBURY HOTEL, Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, will open on JUNE 24.
This is the most centrally situated and the quietest Hotel in London. It is fitted up with all the modern requirements, including a Ladies' Coffee Room, Baths on every floor, &c.
THOMAS HIGGS, Manager.

LANGHAM HOTEL, PORTLAND-PLACE. This commodious Hotel, "the Largest in London," is now open. It is situated on the most healthy site in the West-End, with all modern improvements, Suites of Apartments, Salle à Manger 100 ft. by 40 ft., elegant Ladies' Room, a spacious Gentlemen's Sitting and Writing Room, &c. Within a short drive of all the railway termini.
For terms to secure accomodation, address the manager
C. SCHUMANN.

EDUCATION.—Thrale House, Streatham Park, Streatham, Surrey, S.—First-class SCHOOL for YOUNG LADIES, conducted by Mrs. Charlton, assisted by resident French, German, and English Governesses and Visiting Masters of high repute. Terms and references upon application.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate Rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

STAMMERING.—Dr. HUNT begs to acquaint persons having children suffering from Stammering or other affections of the articulating organs that he has made special arrangements to RECEIVE JUVENILE CASES, who will in future receive a superior education in conjunction with his system for the treatment of the defect. A few Adult Pupils. Private Pupils received for defective speech only.
Ore House, near Hastings.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE. Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street). Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.—CALLAGHAN'S NEW 50s. GLASS, which has given such entire satisfaction during the recent races, will be found invaluable on this occasion. For general scenery and landscape it is also quite perfect. Price 50s., with sling case complete. Sent carriage-free to any part of the Kingdom on receipt of Post Office Order payable to Wm. Callaghan, 23A, New Bond-street (corner of Conduit-street).

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

THE RACES AND FETES.—LADIES will find the application of ROWLAND'S KALYDOR both cooling and refreshing to the face and skin; allaying all heat and irritability; removing eruptions, freckles, and discolourations; and rendering the skin soft, clear, and blooming. Price 4s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. per bottle. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers. Ask for "Rowland's Kalydor," and beware of spurious and pernicious articles under the name of "Kalydor."

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN and SIMEON MOSELY and SONS, 30, Berners-st., Oxford-st., and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Station). Established 1830. These teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet." Daily attendance at 15, Whitefriargate, Hull; 10, Norfolk-street, Sheffield; 4, East-parade, Leeds; and 14, St. Nicholas-st., Scarbro'. No connection with anyone of the same name.

LADIES NURSING.—ELAM'S NEW NIPPLE SHIELDS, for cracked or sore Nipples. Metallic ditto; Milk Receivers or Dress Preservers; Improved Breast Pumps; Enemas and Abdominal Belts.—196, Oxford-street.

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS give instant relief of Asthma, Consumption, Colds, Coughs, &c. Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box, of all Druggists.

DR. DE JONGH'S
(Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the most eminent medical men throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effectual remedy for CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS, is incomparably superior to every other variety.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.
DR. LETHEBY,
Medical Officer of Health to the City of London.
"It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has great therapeutic power; and, from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and unadulterated article."
DR. LAWRANCE.
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, feeling assured that I am recommending a genuine article, and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of this invaluable medicine is destroyed."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s.; labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHICH NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE, by respectable Chemists and Druggists.
Sole Consignees,
ANSAR, HARFORD and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

NEW BOOKS.

NEW EDITION OF WEST ON CHILDREN'S DISEASES.
Now ready, in 1 vol. 8vo, price 16s. cloth,
LECTURES ON THE DISEASES OF INFANCY AND CHILDHOOD. By CHARLES WEST, M.D., Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, and Physician to the Hospital for Sick Children. A New Edition, being the Fifth, revised and enlarged.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

NEW WORK BY THE AUTHOR OF "AMY HERBERT."
Now ready, in 2 vols. fcap., price 12s. 6d.,
PRINCIPLES of EDUCATION DRAWN from NATURE and REVELATION and APPLIED to FEMALE EDUCATION IN THE UPPER CLASSES. By the Author of "Amy Herbert."
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

THE NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET," &c.
FOURTH EDITION, at all Libraries, in 3 vols.,
ONLY A CLOD.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

CHEAP EDITION, Frontispiece and Vignette Titlepage, Price 6s.,
THE BADDINGTON PEERAGE.
By GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

THE POPULAR NEW NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.
CRUEL FORTUNE. 3 vols.
WHO WAS TO BLAME? 2 vols.
NAPOLEON III. AND HIS COURT. 1 vol.
CHARLOTTE THRALE. 3 vols.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., Publishers, 122, Fleet-street.

THE DAY OF REST.
This New Illustrated Sixpenny Monthly Magazine will contain, amongst other popular features, the following serials:—
1. THE HIDDEN SIN: a Novel.
2. TRAVELS AROUND JERUSALEM.
3. AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF AN ITALIAN DETECTIVE.
The New Part, price 6d., ready on June 29th. Illustrated.
London: WARD, LOCK, and TYLER, 158, Fleet-street.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK. Price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.—London: LONGMAN and Co.

LONDON.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.
PARIS.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.
KENT and SUSSEX.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.
Contain Maps, Plans, and numerous Wood Engravings.
One Shilling each.
W. and R. CHAMBERS, London and Edinburgh.

CHAMBERS'S JOURNAL.
An Original Romance, entitled the CLYFFARDS OF CLYFFE,
by the Author of "Lost Sir Massingberd," &c.,
will begin on July 1.

FAMILY HERALD, Part for JULY, price Sixpence, contains:—
Novels and Tales—
Mabel May. Chapters XVI. to XXIV.
My Own Story, Beginning at the Wrong End, The Closed Chamber, The Last of the Ringwoods, A Wife by Will, and other Tales.
"Its novels and tales are quite as well written as the best circulating-library stories."—Saturday Review.
Essays—
Vastness; or, Thoughts upon Bigness and Littleness.
"Wit and Humour."
Political Murder and Manslaughter.
Freedom of Opinion and John Stuart Mill.
"There is a well-considered essay every week upon some subject of an instructive or thoughtful character."—British Quarterly Review.
Correspondents—
Answers to.
"The Answers to Correspondents cannot be fictitious, a romance and a life history being embodied in almost each of them. The editor is the confidant and confessor in every station of life."—Saturday Review.
Together with Poetry, Family Matters, Statistics, Scientific and Useful Information, Varieties, Random Readings, &c.
London: W. STEVENS, 421, Strand.

Price 1s., Monthly,
THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE. Contents of No. 7, Vol. I., New Series (JULY):—Hearts Errant. By the Author of "Squire Rowley's Difficulties." Chaps. III., IV.—A Flemish Kermesse—Petronilla's Fear. A Tale of Corsica. Chaps. VI., VII.—Familiar Lines: "My Love she's but a Lassie yet." With full-page Illustration.—M. Thackeray.—"Getting our Daughters off our hands."—Ye Lay of ye Foxglove (Poetry).—The Irishman in Reality and Romance.—"In the Strand."—The Fashions.—The Englishwoman's Conversazione.—Commentaries on Croquet. By Captain Mayne Reid.—La Mode.—"For Valour." By Thomas Hood. Chaps. XIII., XIV.—Operas and Musical Entertainments.—What's in a Name?—Our Paris News-letter.—Music of the Month.—Answers to Correspondents.—Mildred's Wedding—Pages 473-488.
FASHIONS AND NEEDLEWORK.
A Coloured Fashion Plate.
A Sheet of Designs, containing information about Fashion, Dress, and Needlework.
The full-sized Pattern for cutting out a Bodice with Basque for Young Ladies.
A Coloured Pattern for a Knapsack Travelling Bag in Woolwork, and a Coloured Pattern for a "Mirella" Watch-pocket.
A large Coloured Fashion Plate.
Illustrations of a travelling toilling toilet—square pattern in darned netting—lampshade with photographs—passementerie, or gimp ornaments (12 illustrations)—green crape bonnet—bodice with basque—black silk bodice—seaside toilet—rice-straw bonnet—Grecian coiffure—empire coiffure—country toilet—music-case—needle-book—ornamental corks for wine-bottles—crochet cover for a bucket, &c.
A Specimen Number sent post-free for fourteen stamps.
London: S. O. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

TO INVENTORS.—The GENERAL PATENT COMPANY (Limited), 71, Fleet-street, London, obtains Patents for Inventions at moderate charges. Intending Patentees should procure the Company's "Handbook," issued gratis.
R. MARSDEN LATHAM, Sec.

PICTURE FRAMES for "HAPPINESS," given with this Paper. Handsome gilt frame, glass and back, 1s. 6d.; maple and gilt, 3s.; ornamented gold oval frame, 4s.—At GEO. REES, 57, Drury-lane; and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

THIRTY Charming COLOURED SCRAPS, printed in Oil Colours, something in the style of Baxter's celebrated pictures, are now sent post-free for 2s. 10d. in stamps. The subjects are as follow:—Going to Church, the Country Stile, Rustic Hospitality, the Morning Walk, Orphans at their Mother's Grave, the Believer's Vision, the Departure, the Rainbow, the Father's Benediction, Music Party, Grace before Meat, Family Devotion, the Cotter's Home, Baby's Bedtime, &c., altogether forming one of the cheapest sets for scrapbooks ever submitted to the public.—Address JOHN JERRARD, No. 172, Fleet-street, where the sets may be inspected.

THE TURNER PICTURES in the NATIONAL GALLERY PHOTOGRAPHED by THURSTON THOMPSON, mounted on fine cardboard, size of photo 14 in. by 10 in. The above on view, and catalogues to be had, at 22, Soho-square.—A. MARION, SON, and CO.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The PEOPLE'S PRINTING PRESS, from 25s. upwards, for Letterpress, Copperplate, and Lithographic Printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stampmaker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

PAUL BANSOM'S PRIZE-MEDAL SHILLING POCKET DIALS, with gold appendages, gilt case, &c., are reliable indicators of time. Securely parcelled for post, 14 stamps.—94, Brunswick-street, Hackney-road, London.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Six. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR. By S. GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps each. This beautiful Song, one of the leading favourites of the season, may be had in the key of C for mezzo-soprano, and in E flat for tenor. Also, as a Vocal Duet.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales. This celebrated Romance has already run through fourteen editions. Sent for 15 stamps.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR sent for 18 stamps. This is an elegant and effective Transcription for Piano of Stephen Glover's beautiful Melody.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

FRANZ ABT'S LA JOYEUSE GALOP, sent for 18 stamps. This Galop is dansante in the highest degree. The elegance of its melody, with its brilliant and sparkling passages, renders it one of the most effective and delightful morceaux de salon of the day.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-st.

LA MURSKA VALSE. This elegant and fascinating Valse, composed and dedicated to Mdlle. Ilma de Murska by C. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the Scots Fusilier Guards, is now published, embellished with a Portrait of the fair Prima Donna, from a photograph kindly furnished by herself. Sent for 24 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

WALTZ OF THE SEASON.—SOLDATEN LIEDER. By JOSEF GUNG'L. Price—Solo, 4s; Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 5s. This elegant and beautiful waltz was danced by Donato, with great success, at Covent Garden Theatre. Sent post-free at half price.—A. HAMMOND and Co., 214, Regent-street, publishers of all the new compositions of this celebrated dance-music writer.

HUTCHINGS and ROMER,
9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.
NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

Song	Composer	s. d.
Sweet Kilkenny Town (Answer to Katey's Letter)	Countess of Gifford 4s.	2 0 net.
A Daughter's Appeal	Gounod	2 6
Ocean King	G. B. Allen	3 0
Beautiful Sicily (Illustrated)	J. P. Knight	3 0
Swallow, Come Again	Claribel	3 0
The Fishermaiden's Prayer	Virginia Gabriel	3 0
Gathering Heartsease	Bessie Palmer	3 0
The Linden Vale	Gumbert	2 6
Ye Pretty Wild Birds	Gumbert	3 0
Far Away Wilt Thou Stray	Voss	2 6
Farewell Ye Woodland Scenes	Esser	2 6
Bard that on his Harp Expired (C and D)	Balfe	3 0
Inez of Castile	Wallerstein	2 6
May Blossoms	Linblad	2 6
Wake, Oh, Wake!	Styrian Song	3 0
Rosebud and the Dove	Hennes	3 0
Irish Maiden's Song	Osborne	3 6
Willie is Waiting for Me	Foster	2 6
Had You Ever a Cousin, Tom	Wass	2 6
Waste Not in Dreams	Barnard	3 0
The Lament	Irish Melody	2 6
Song of the Fairy	Gibsone	3 0
Since Jamie Went to Sea	Haydn	2 6
The Angel's Gift	Allen	2 6
Winds that Waft	Wallace	2 6
I've Waited for Thy Coming	Wallace	2 6
Katey's Letter (in E flat and G)	Lady Dufferin (Countess of Gifford)	3 0
The Ship-boy's Letter	Virginia Gabriel	3 0
Robin's Return	Ditto	3 0
The Lily of St. Goar	Claribel	3 0
Oh, Wilt Thou be my Bride, Kathleen?	Romer	2 6
There is a Name I never Breathe	Balfe	2 6
Thyri the Fair	Romer	3 0
Sweet Wee Bird	Gibsone	3 0
Good-morrow, Sweet Lass	Walstein	3 0
Time will tell	Walstein	3 0
Merry Blackbird's Song (in F & G)	Walstein	3 0
The Orphan's Prayer	Mdme. Sainton-Dolby	3 0
The Scotch Maiden's Dream	Frank Romer	2 6
An English Home	G. A. Macfarren	2 6
The English Girl's Song	Frank Romer	2 6
There's no reply: I'm here alone (in D flat and B flat)	Isola	3 0
O'er the Meadows	Boyton Smith	3 0
The Moor Night-wind	Eolen	3 0
Not Lost	John Barnett	3 0
In the Sweet May-time	M. W. Balfe	2 6
The Spell of thy Beauty (in A flat and F)	Hon. Alfred Stourton	2 6
Sandalphon	Frank Romer	2 6
The Ship-boy's Lullaby adapted by	Frank Romer	2 6
Merrily, merrily, over the Sea	W. V. Wallace	2 6

HUTCHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit-st., Regent-st., London, W.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW MUSIC.
THROUGH THE DAY. The New Sacred Song. Composed by Brinley Richards. 2s. 6d. Ditto, as a Four-part Song, 2s. 6d. Each free for 16 stamps; separate parts, 6d. each.
Mdme. LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON'S FAVOURITE SONGS:—"The Liquid Gem" (W. T. Wrighton); "Thee only I love" (F. Abt); "O ye Tears" (F. Abt). 2s. 6d.; each free for 16 stamps; and "Jenny of the Mill," 3s., free for 19 stamps.
Mdme. RUDERSDORFF'S NEW FAVOURITE SONG, "Ever Thine," Words by E. R., Music by Franz Abt. 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.
Mdlle. LIEBHARDT'S FAVOURITE SONGS:—"Good Morning," Music by Franz Abt, 2s. 6d.; free by post 16 stamps; and "The Cuckoo Song," 3s.; free by post 19 stamps.
New Burlington-street, London. Agents for India, Messrs. Burkinyoung, and Co., Calcutta.

TO THE HANDEL FESTIVAL VISITORS. Mr. W. E. EVANS, Inventor of the English Harmonium (vide "Times," Jan. 23, 1841), Inventor of the wind indicator, the pedal attachment, the self-acting sordine, the exhaust-valve, the pedal-note instantaneous speech movement, &c., begs to announce that his new patent invention, THE KNEE-ACTION PEDAL-NOTE, his latest improvement and most important addition to the Harmonium, is now being exhibited daily at his Harmonium Warehouses, 28, Market-place, Great Portland-street.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE FRÈRES. A Selection of Two Hundred lists of the newest descriptions. Æolian Harps, vibrating with the slightest breeze, 12s. to 25s. KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOTS, 56, Cheapside, and 22, Ludgate-hill.—Nicole's largest Musical Boxes at £1 per air; Snuffboxes, 14s. 6d. to 40s. each. Catalogues gratis and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

COUNTRY WALKS and SEASIDE RAMBLES rendered instructive and delightful.—STATHAM'S TELESCOPE and MICROSCOPE Combined (25s.) shows shipping and country scenery; also, animalculæ, insects, plants, seaweeds, &c. Sent anywhere for cash. Prospectus for stamp.—Statham, 111½, Strand, W.C.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, fiddle pattern, 7s. 4d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns recently finished, plain or highly ornamented.

Fiddle Pattern.	Oz.	£ s. d.	Queen's Pattern.	Oz.	£ s. d.
12 Table Spoons	30	11 0 0	12 Table Spoons	40	15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	9 7 6
12 Table Forks	30	11 0 0	12 Table Forks	40	15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	9 7 6
2 Gravy Spoons	10	3 13 4	2 Gravy Spoons	12	4 0 0
1 Soup Ladle	10	3 13 4	1 Soup Ladle	11	4 2 6
4 Sauce Ditto	10	3 18 4	4 Sauce Ditto	12	4 16 0
4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		1 0 0	4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		2 2 0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)		2 10 0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)		3 5 0
12 Tea Spoons	10	3 18 4	12 Tea Spoons	14	5 12 0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs		0 15 0	1 Pair Sugar Tongs		1 5 0

A pamphlet is published, with 300 Engravings, as a guide to the stock in the Show-rooms. It contains the weights and prices of silver spoons, forks, tea and coffee services and table plate, with particulars of ornamental plate for private use or presentation; also, of the best silver-plated manufactures, gold and silver watches, clocks, and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the British dominions.
For the use of committees, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of plate kept ready for presentation.

SPOONS and FORKS.—RICHARD and JOHN SLACK, manufacturers and electro-platers, solicit an inspection of their stock and prices. Every article warranted to have a strong coating of pure Silver over Slacks' nickel. The fact of 20 years' wear is ample proof of its durability. Table Spoons or Forks, 30s. and 38s. per dozen; Dessert, 20s. and 30s.; Tea, 12s. and 18s. Old goods replated equal to new. Orders above £2 carriage free. Catalogues, with 350 Engravings post-free.—Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand. Established 50 years.

DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES.—A large assortment of new and good patterns. Also a beautiful variety of every description of Cut Table Glass. The stock is well selected, and admirably suited for parties furnishing to choose from.
First-class quality, superior taste, low prices.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., Silversmiths, Cutlers, &c., pre-eminent for their
Electro-Silver Plate, for Dinner à la Russe,
Electro-Silver Plate suitable for Presentation,
Electro-Silver Christening, Wedding, and Birthday Presents,
Sterling Silver ditto ditto.
Sterling Silver Volunteer, Rifle, and other Prizes,
Electro-Silver ditto ditto,
Electro-Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Plated Spoons and Forks, guaranteed quality.
Sterling Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Silver Tea and Coffee Services,
Electro-Silver Side Dishes and Dish Covers,
Electro-Silver Breakfast, Luncheon, and Dinner Cruets,
Electro-Silver Egg Frames,
Electro-Silver Fish-eating Knives and Forks,
Electro-Silver Fish Carvers, in case,
Electro-Silver Dessert Knives and Forks, in cases,
Table Knives of unsurpassed excellence,
Canteen-Cases completely fitted for Officers,
Plate Chests for partial or entire Outfits.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory—The Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.
Illustrated Catalogues and priced list free on application.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Celebrated
DRESSING CASES } completely fitted with every article
DRESSING BAGS } of convenience and luxury.
DESPATCH BOXES, fitted with Cutlery and Stationery.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and at 71 and 72, Cornhill.

SECOND-HAND LOOKING-GLASSES, Console Tables, Girandoles, Picture-Frames, Window Cornices.—C. NOSOTTI has for immediate disposal several articles of the above description, which he has taken from his customers in exchange. They are modern in style, and all in good preservation, and to be disposed of at moderate prices, at Nosotti's, 398, 399, and 399A, Oxford-street, W., London.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, candlesticks, inkstands, obelisks, inlaid tables, &c., in Alabaster, Marble, Spar, &c.—J. TENNANT, 149, Strand, W.C.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c.
Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s.
Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents.
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders, promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormolu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures. D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C

THE NEW SHUTTER WARDROBES. Ladies should see these before deciding, at A. SEDLEY and CO.'S, Patentee of the Equilibrium Chairs so celebrated for comfort and economy, of which more than 3000 have been sold.—The Burlington Furniture Galleries, 38, Conduit-street, Bond-street, W.

SILVER FIR BED-ROOM FURNITURE, beautifully inlaid in imitation marqueterie, 25 guineas the full suite.—The BELGRAVE FURNISHING COMPANY, 12, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square, are manufacturing, and have on view, suites of this elegant and unique furniture, at the above truly economical price. Illustrations forwarded on application.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding. See our Illustrated Furniture Catalogue, 350 engravings, with prices 30 per cent less than any other house. The most unique and complete guide ever published. Gratis, from LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 73 and 75, Brompton-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carriage-free.

GILT DRAWING-ROOM SUITE, Louis XIV. style.—To be disposed of, a bargain, a magnificent suite of the above furniture, in the best condition, consisting of ten chairs (padded backs); a very pretty centre ottoman; 4 easy chairs, and a settee, finely upholstered and covered in rich silk; several marqueterie tables and cabinets, with two beautiful and very large chimneyglasses and console appertaining to the suite, are offered equally cheap.—On view at the BELGRAVE FURNISHING COMPANY'S, 12, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requring no calendering, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture-coverings, being durable, elegant, and inexpensive. HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, have all the new patterns.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the gentry to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception-rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, and SOFAS, best quality.—Upwards of 300 shapes constantly on view, or made to any shape.—T. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, W. An Illustrated Catalogue sent post-free.

GOOD TASTE NOT INCOMPATIBLE WITH ECONOMY.
UNIQUE and ELEGANT CABINET FURNITURE for Dining-room, Drawing-room, Bed-room, and Library.
CARPETS—FELT, KIDDER, BRUSSELS, VELVET, and TURKEY—adapted for cottage and mansion.
For nearly half a century the house has been famous for BLANKETS, SHEETINGS, and HOUSEHOLD LINENS.
BEDS and MATTRESSES of the best materials, manufactured on the premises, and under special supervision.
CURTAINS of every description in DAMASK, REP, and PEKIN CLOTHS.
LACE, and MUSLIN LENO CURTAINS for the Season.
SILKS, SHAWLS, MANTLES, and every variety of GENERAL and FANCY DRAPERY.
Estimates given. Contracts taken. Illustrated Catalogues free.
ATKINSON and CO., WESTMINSTER-BRIDGE-ROAD,
Nos. 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210.

MUSLIN, LACE, and LENO CURTAINS. The remainder of this season's Stock will be sold at a great reduction.—ATKINSON and CO., Nos. 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210, Westminster Bridge-road.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, invites inspection of his SHOW of IRON and BRASS BEDSTEADS, displayed in eight large rooms, where may be seen also entire suites of bed-room furniture in mahogany, fancy woods, polished and japanned deal. These are made at his manufactory, at 84, Newman-street, and each article is of guaranteed quality. The bedding supplied is all made on the premises, and warranted of the best materials. The prices of all are such as have tended to make the establishment the most distinguished in this country. Patent Iron Bedsteads, fitted with dovetail joints and patent sacking, from 12s. each. Ornamental Iron and Brass Bedsteads, from £1 4s. to £30. Baths and toilette ware, and every article of furnishing bed-rooms to be seen in endless variety. Descriptive Catalogues, with upwards of 600 Illustrations, to be had gratis and post-free.—39, Oxford-street; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard, London.

FURNISH your HOUSE with the best ARTICLES: they are the cheapest in the end.—DEANE and CO.'S priced FURNISHING LIST, gratis and post-free, enumerates the leading articles from all the various departments of their establishment, and is arranged to facilitate purchasers in the selection of goods. It comprises table cutlery, electro-plate lamps, baths, fenders, fireirons, iron bedsteads, bedding; Britannia metal, copper, tin, and brass goods; culinary utensils, turnery, brushes, mats, &c. Deane and Co., 46, King William-street, London Bridge.—Established A.D. 1700.

KITCHEN RANGES.—Purchasers will save Pounds by sending for the Best Illustrated Catalogue, just published, free by post.
BROWN BROTHERS, 43, Cranbourn-street, London, W.C.

WENHAM LAKE ICE for Town or Country. Refrigerators, Ice-cream Machines, Saltzogenes, Freezing Powders, and everything connected with freezing, of the most reliable character. Illustrated Price-lists. Order direct from THE WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 140, STRAND, W.C.

TOSELLI'S FREEZING-MACHINES produce Transparent Ice, Dessert Ices, &c., in six minutes, so simply and cleanly that Ladies can use them. Price from 15s. BROWN BROTHERS, 43, Cranbourn-st., W.C. Catalogue post-free.

NEW STYLE of CARRIAGE, to OPEN and CLOSE at pleasure. Invented and Patented by LAURIE and MARNER, Carriage and Harness Manufactory, Oxford-street, Union-street, and Tenterden-street, Hanover-square.

GARDEN VASES, FOUNTAINS, &c., of Artificial Stone; of great durability and of superior workmanship.—F. and G. ROSHER, Manufacturers, Queen's-road West, Chelsea, S.W. Illustrated Price-list free by post.

FOR WEDDING DRESSES. PETER ROBINSON invites special attention to this branch of his Silk Department, containing a magnificent collection of Moires Antiques, Satins, Plain and Fancy Silks, of every modern make, produced, to our order, by the most eminent manufacturers in Lyons, expressly for bridal costume.
Patterns free.—Peter Robinson, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

REAL INDIAN TUSSORES and RUMCHUNDAH CORAHS.
Just received, a perfectly new Stock of the above, recommended as the fashionable Dress for Morning and Seaside Costume.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR YOUNG LADIES. Beautifully bright, Checked, and Striped SILKS, in perfectly new Colours, made expressly to our order, price from £1 15s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

LYONS LEVANTINE FOULARDS of the most improved manufacture, the wear of which cannot be surpassed. The most fashionable article for the present season for ladies' morning suits, including great variety of design in black and coloured grounds.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR SUMMER. New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, from £2 19s. 6d. to 5 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE
RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALL THE CHOICE DESIGNS IN
NEW ORGANDIE MUSLINS, British, French, and Swiss Printing, 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d., 12s. 6d. to 35s. the extra Full Dress.
An immense variety of patterns post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF
LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS. Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new.
An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, at Reduced Prices, all the New Patterns in PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES, for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
An endless variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE
ARABIAN GLACÉS, for Ladies' Dresses and Jackets complete.
A most useful and desirable fabric either for Walking or Travelling Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A Choice Assortment of the
NEW PRINTED ARABIAN GLACÉS, in every variety of style, either in white or coloured grounds, from 14s. 6d. to 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

GINGHAMS and COLOURED LAWNS, for Ladies' travelling, morning, and seaside Dresses, 12s. 6d. the Dress, in plain colours, checks or stripes.
A large collection of Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A CAREFULLY SELECTED VARIETY OF
CHEAP SUMMER DRESSES. A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Also Striped, Checked, and Chéné ditto, 12s. 6d. to 18s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

WHITE MUSLIN ROBES. Now in great demand, Tamboured Dresses, 7s. 9d. each.
Cross-over Stripe, 6s. 6d. to 9s. 9d. the Full Dress.
Some very rich White Grenadine Robes, from 22s. 9d. to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

AN UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND for MANTLES in LIGHT FABRICS has led to a corresponding preparation. PETER ROBINSON is now in a position to offer for selection the largest Stock ever seen in one Establishment. They are marked at prices with a view to effect a clearance before the close of the season.
The Illustrated Manual of Fashion post-free on application.
Peter Robinson's, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

A LARGE NUMBER of SILK MANTLES of the Newest Shapes and very richest qualities have been recently purchased in Paris and are now being offered at very reduced prices at
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SEVERAL THOUSANDS TO SELECT FROM.
LACE SHAWLS and MANTLES, from 12s. 6d. to 25 guineas.
The Illustrated Manual of Fashion post-free on application.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

FAMILY MOURNING, MADE UP and Trimmed in the most correct and approved taste, may be obtained ready for instant wear, at the most reasonable prices,
at PETER ROBINSON'S
General Mourning Warehouse.
Goods sent for inspection "free of charge" (with dressmaker if desired) to all parts of England, and Patterns of the new Mourning Fabrics to all parts of the world.
256 to 262, Regent-street.
The largest Mourning Warehouse in the Kingdom.
Peter Robinson's Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free. Good useful Black Silks, from 35s. to 50s. the Dress.
Superior and most enduring qualities, from 3 to 6 guineas.
At PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—Paris Fashions.—New Shapes and great Novelties in Bonnets,
at PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street, W.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.
MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING. New Shapes, in elegant and graceful Novelties,
at PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

UNTEARABLE
WIRE-GROUND BLACK GRENADINES and BAREGES. The improved makes introduced by PETER ROBINSON, at the Mourning Establishment,
256 to 262, Regent-street,
excel all others for strength and beauty of finish.
May be obtained by the yard, or made up into Skirts.
Patterns free.
Peter Robinson's.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

BLACK SILKS.
Patterns free.
Ducapes and Glacés (Bright Imperial Black),
£1 11s. 6d. the Full Dress (14 yards).
Gros Grains, Drap de France, Drap de Lyon,
£2 5s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Gres de Venice, Gros d'Athens (reversible for mourning),
£2 2s. the Full Dress (14 yards).
Coloured Silks, Fancy Dresses, Mantles, and Shawls,
in the newest productions for this season.
F. CATER and COMPANY, Finsbury-square, E.C.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at Mrs. AXFORD'S, 51, Maddox-st., Bond-st., Milliner and Dressmaker. Wedding orders, outfits, and country orders punctually attended to. French Corsets, 17s. 6d. The small Crinoline, 10s. 6d.

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that their New Stock of SUMMER DRESSES is now replete with every Novelty suitable to the Season, and Patterns of all will be forwarded post-free to any part of the world.

SUMMER SILKS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street,
£1 5s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-st., London.

STRIPED SILKS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street,
£1 10s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street.

BROCHÉ SILKS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street,
£1 15s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street.

CHÉNÉ SILKS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street,
£2 2s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street.

WEDDING SILKS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street,
£2 2s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street.

FANCY DRESS DEPARTMENT.

Broché Wool Grenadines	10s. 6d.	the Full Dress.
Satin Cloths	12s. 6d.	"
Broché Chéné Grenadines	14s. 6d.	"
Chéné Poult de Soie	16s. 6d.	"
Broché Silk Grenadines	17s. 6d.	"
Last Season's best French Printed Muslins, Organdies, and Jaconets	3s. 11½d.	"

Patterns post-free.—Address to KING and CO., 243, Regent-street.

READY-MADE DRESS DEPARTMENT. French Lawn Dresses, with Jackets to match, £1 7s. 9d.
Arabian Glacé Alpaca, ditto, ditto, £1 7s. 9d.
A large variety of elegantly-trimmed White and Buff Alpaca Dresses and Jackets, from 31s. 6d.
Patterns and descriptions sent post-free.
Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

MANTLE and SHAWL DEPARTMENT. A large collection of the best designs in Lyons Glacé and Gros Grain Jackets and Mantles, commencing at 1 guinea.
Opera Mantles, of the newest fashion, 15s. 9d.
An immense stock of Spanish, Brussels, and Yak Lace Shawls, from 10s. 6d. to 5 guineas.
Spanish, Brussels, and Yak Mantles, commencing at 1 guinea.
KING and CO., 243, Regent-street, London.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
Patterns post-free.
RICH CHENE SILKS, wide width, £1 18s. 6d. the Dress of 13 yards; worth 50s.
Wide-width STRIPED SILKS, New Colours, £1 5s. 6d. the Dress of 12 yards.
The New Colours in FANCY CHECK SILKS, at £1 15s. 6d. the Dress of 14 yards, wide width.
These are worthy special attention.
Good wide-width BLACK GLACÉS, at 2s. 6d. and 2s. 11d. Also, GROS GRAINS and DUCAPES of the best manufacture, purchased previous to the late advance.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., Silkmercers, &c., 77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.
Close on Saturdays at Four o'Clock.

THE "ARIEL" MANTLE, SHAWL, and SWISS MANTILLA.—These elegant Novelties for the present Season can be purchased only of FARMER and ROGERS, 171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street. India, China, French, Paisley, Norwich, and Fancy Shawls, from 1 guinea to 200 guineas.

INDIA SHAWLS.—Large Consignments. FARMER and ROGERS request attention to a magnificent collection of CASHMERE SHAWLS just received direct from India; amongst them are some beautiful specimens, suitable for wedding presents.—171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street, W.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! Royal Corded Silks, all Colours, 45s. Full Dress. Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks, 25s. 6d. Foulards, 35s. 6d. and 39s. 6d. Silks for Young Ladies, neat and useful, 2s. 6d. yard.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

MOURNING! MOURNING! MOURNING! The Untearable Black Barèges, Tamataves, Grenadines, Muslins, Cords, Crape Laines, Albert Cords, and other useful fabrics for mourning, at moderate prices, commencing at 10s. 6d. the Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP'S New Mourning Rooms, 198, Regent-street.

MUSLINS! MUSLINS! MUSLINS! New Embroidered Muslins, 6s. 9d. and 8s. 9d. Full Dress.
Beautiful Organdis, 6s. 9d. to 12s 6d.,
and the new Grenadine Muslins (Washing), 10s. 6d.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S. Rich, bright, wide, and durable Glacé, Gros Grains, Ducapes, &c., from 1 to 2 guineas the Full Dress. Beautiful Black Corded and Figured Silks, unequalled at 39s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

SUMMER WEAR.—GAZE DE CHAMBERY, 5s. 0d. for twelve yards, or 5½d. per yard. These beautiful dresses are well adapted for the hot weather, and are now selling at BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street. Patterns free.

LADIES' JACKETS and SUITES. Our new Show-rooms are well-stocked with Garibaldi Jackets in Muslin and all fabrics from 3s. 11d. to 10s. 6d. each.
Ladies ready-made Suites and Dresses complete from 12s. 6d. to 2 guineas each.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

GLOVES! GLOVES! GLOVES!
Ladies' and Gentlemen's.
The best Alpine Summer Kid, 1s. 6d.; Grenoble, 2s.
Very best, 2s. 6d. Sample for 2 extra stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

ARABIAN GLACÉ ALPACAS, in White and all the fashionable and useful Colours, from 1s. the yard. The new Mexican Cloths, Silk Grenadines, Barèges, Balzarines, Mohairs, &c., from 8s. 9d. to 15s. 6d. Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

AS FINE as HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free, Invisible HAIR-NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair-Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

MESSRS. JAY,
MOURNING SILKMERCERS to Her Majesty the Queen,
H.R.H. the Princess of Wales,
H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge.
LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

PATTERNS IN BLACK SILKS.
MESSRS. JAY, having long adopted the custom of sending on order patterns of their Black Silks to any part of the kingdom, beg to assure their patrons and the general public that none but those of the best manufacture are ever issued from their establishment. They would, however, respectfully suggest that if customers, naming a definite price, would depend on a selection by the firm, their honour and credit would act as a guarantee against disappointment in the wear or colour of the material.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

TAFFETA D'ITALIE.—Messrs. JAY have imported this New Material for Black Dresses, which is as rich in texture as it is irresistible in substance. For durability in wear, proportionate economy in price, and richness in appearance, Taffeta d'Italie will stand unrivalled among new fabrics.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

AL FRESCO COSTUMES in NEUTRAL TINTS.—Messrs. JAY beg to solicit an inspection of some elegant SILK COSTUMES, which have been imported expressly for the present season. These new costumes are in very elegant taste, and not to be seen elsewhere.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
Nos. 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street,
JAYS'.

MESSRS. JAY beg to invite special attention to the DEEP MOURNING DEPARTMENT of their Establishment, consisting of every article suitable for First and Family Mourning, either made up and ready for immediate wear, or materials from the piece cut by the yard, according to the wishes of purchasers.
Silks, Crapes, &c., of the very best, most serviceable, and enduring qualities. JAYS'.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY (B.M. Grenadier Guards). The Waltz of the season, by the Composer of the celebrated "Guards' Waltz." Price 4s., solo or duet. Military Band, 15s.; Brass Band, 7s. 6d.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music from the last and greatest work of Meyerbeer is published by Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street, where the following are now to be had:—

The Opera complete, for Voice and Pianoforte	20s.
All the Vocal Music with French words.
The Overture for Pianoforte, Solo, 3s.; Duet	4s.
Grand Indian March	4s.
Religious March	3s.
Bouquet de Mélodies. By Cramer	5s.
Quadrille. By Coote	4s.
Waltz. By D. Godfrey	4s.
Favourite Airs in 3 Books. By W. H. Callcott. Each	5s.
Duets	Each 6s.
Grand Fantasia. Mdme. Oury	5s.
Marche Indienne. Brinley Richards	3s.
Mélodie Symphonique. Brinley Richards	3s.
Fantasia for Harmonium. L. Engel	3s.
Grand Duet, Harmonium and Pianoforte. L. Engel	4s.

The Italian and English versions are in the press, together with Pianoforte arrangements by Kuhe, and a brilliant Duet for Pianoforte, by G. A. Osborne.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. The favourite airs from Meyerbeer's Opera arranged for the Pianoforte, in 3 Books, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 5s. each; Duets, each 6s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ. On favourite melodies from Meyerbeer's successful Opera, arranged for the Pianoforte by D. GODFREY (B. M. Gren. Guards), Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE. On favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each.

No. 1. The Guards' Waltz.	No. 4. The Hunt Quadrille.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz.	No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Orpheus Galop.	No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS.

The Lost Star	Wallace	3s. 0d.
The Sails are Spread	Brinley Richards	2s. 6d.
The Cottage Window	G. Russell	2s. 6d.
Syr Tankarde	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
White-Wings	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
Again I wander	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
I will not wander	Schumann	2s. 6d.
My lost youth	Walter Maynard	2s. 6d.
Part with forgiveness	Florence	2s. 6d.
The Cloister'd Nun	Louis Emanuel	2s. 6d.
Cantilène (for two voices)	Gounod	2s. 6d.
In Youth's Season	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Versar nel mio cor	Gounod	2s. 0d.
Our Starry Home	Ascher	2s. 6d.
Only thee	Linley	2s. 6d.
The Life Clock	J. Barnett	2s. 6d.
A life of love with thee	J. Barnett	2s. 6d.
La Naïade	Gounod	2s. 6d.
The Child and the Nosegay	J. Barnett	3s. 0d.
Le Chant d'Eurycléo	Gounod	2s. 0d.
L'âme d'un ange	Gounod	2s. 6d.
La Rondinella	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Souvenir	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Les Champs	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Winter and Spring	Harold Thomas	2s. 6d.
Dreaming Eyes	Benedict	2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," including the Soldiers' Chorus, Valse, &c.; "The Guards' Waltz," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, thus rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 4s., post-free.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. Benedict's Favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S BROOKLET. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S GRAZIELLA. Romance Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on Favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE WALTZ, STRAUSS, 4s.
LA BELLE HELENE QUADRILLES, STRAUSS, 3s.
LA BELLE HELENE POLKA, STRAUSS, 3s.
LA BELLE HELENE, complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, 16s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. FAVARGER'S NEW PIECE.

DON GIOVANNI. Fantasia on Airs from Mozart's Grand Opera, for the Pianoforte. By RENE FAVARGER. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

J. F. BARNETT'S PASTORAL SCENE. A characteristic Piece for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 3s. each; or the six numbers in one volume, bound in cloth, 12s. Vol. II. is in the press. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WINTER AND SPRING. New Song. Poetry by H. F. Chorley; Music by Harold Thomas. Compass, D to F. Just Published. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, W.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA. 3s. Galop, 3s., on the universally popular tune, "Slap, Bang! here we are again." The most successful ever published. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere. Inimitably Illustrated. May had of every musicseller in the United Kingdom.
London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. The High Price of Music. All full-price Music of every publisher forwarded immediately on publication to any part of the kingdom on receipt of stamps to half the price. Catalogues gratis.
OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music is now ready, with French words. The Opera, complete, price 20s. The Italian and English versions are in the press. The following Pianoforte Arrangements are just published—
The Overture. 3s.
Ditto, as a Duet. 4s.
Callcott's Favourite Airs. 3 Books. 5s. each.
Ditto, as Duets. 6s. each.
Marche Religieuse. 3s.
Marche Indienne. 4s.
Brinley Richards's Marche Indienne. 3s.
Brinley Richards's Mélodie Symphonique. 3s.
Cramer's Bouquet. 5s.
Mdme. Oury's Fantasia. 5s.
Coote's Quadrille. 4s.
Godfrey's Waltz. 4s.
In the Press—
Réné Favarger's Fantasia.
Kuhe's Fantasia.
Rimbault's Six Gems.
Engel's Harmonium Fantasia.
Engel's Harmonium and Piano Duet.
Osborne's Grand Duet.
Various other Arrangements are in the Press.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

KUHE'S New Piece, LINDA DI CHAMOUNI. Fantasia on Donizetti's Opera, now so popular at both Opera houses. One of M. Kuhe's prettiest and most effective pieces. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MISS LAURA HARRIS'S NEW SONG. L'OROLOGIO. By ARDITI. Sung by Miss Harris, at the Author's concert and the Crystal Palace, with tremendous success. Rapturously encored. Arditi's greatest hit since "Il Bacio." Also in English, and for the Piano.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MDME. SHERRINGTON'S NEW SONG. THE MESSAGE OF LOVE. By GOUNOD. Valse Ariette. Price 3s. Also in English, and for the Piano.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. CLARIBEL'S new Song, composed for Mdme. Sainton-Dolby. Published this day by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. By BLUMENTHAL. New Song, sung at the Author's Concert, with unprecedented success, by Mdme. Sainton-Dolby.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. By BLUMENTHAL. This new and highly successful Song, arranged for the Pianoforte by the Author.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE. Old Scotch Ballad. Newly arranged by Mrs. CAMPBELL, of Drimnamuchloch.
"Willie's gane to Melvil Castle, boots and spurs, an a',
To bid farewell to the leddies fair, afore he gaed awa."
Price 2s. 6d. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

New Edition of

MARION'S SONG by CLARIBEL. This highly-popular Song will in future be published exclusively by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense success. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co.

HATTON'S MOST SUCCESSFUL NEW SONG.

FAIR AND FALSE. 2s. 6d. Post-free for sixteen stamps.
EWER and Co.'s Musical Library, 87, Regent-street, London.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

STATE BALL, Buckingham Palace.—Played by command, by Coote and Tinney's Band:—

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE	4s.
STRAUS'S MENESTREL VALSE	4s.
COOTE'S CADIZ QUADRILLE	4s.
FREWIN'S FAIRY FOOTSTEPS VALSE	4s.
COOTE'S NEW LANCERS	4s.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP	3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ALWAYS ENCORED,

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE, price 4s., on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. No dance programme complete without them.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! The great Christy Song. Price 2s. 6d. (Creating a perfect furore.)—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG,

THE WEEPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 3s., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A FIRST-RATE SENTIMENT.

PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE. Price 3s. This is one of Clifton's best songs.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.

Bob Simmons's Courtship	3s.
He, She, and the Postman	3s.
A Norrible Tale	3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE, price 3s., causes shouts of laughter.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MADAME OURY'S MASANIELLO. Mdme. OURY'S ORPHEE AUX ENFERS. New and popular Pieces, played by the Composer.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SWING SONG. By CH. FONTAINE. Second Edition of this popular Pianoforte Piece. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

PLAYED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S LARA QUADRILLE. COOTE'S LARA VALSES. Solo or Duet, 4s. each. Orchestra parts may be had.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SINGING BIRDS VALSE. J. P. CLARKE. Played by all the Regimental Bands with the greatest success. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW DANCE MUSIC BY

GASTON DE LILLE.

Les Boulevards. French popular Quadrille	4s.
"Tonnerre" Galop	3s.
Abergeldie Valse (with View of Abergeldie)	4s.

METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CONSTANCE QUADRILLE—F. WALLERSTEIN. Played at the balls of the nobility, the French and Austrian Embassies, &c. Price 4s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W

NEW MUSIC.

O MISTRESS MINE. By ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN. Also, The Willow Song; Orpheus and his Lute; and Sigh no More, Ladies.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ASCHER'S SOUVENIR THEATRAL. New and effective piece by this popular Composer. Price 4s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

BEN È RIDICOLO.—Italian Canzone by RANDEGGER. Sung by Mesdames Trebelli and Rudersdorff, and the principal Vocalists. In G for Soprano; in E for Contralto. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired, with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues of Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARMONIUMS at BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The 8-guinea Harmonium, in polished oak case, one stop. The 10-guinea or School Harmonium, also in oak case, has a powerful tone suitable for class-singing, &c. Harmoniums for churches or drawing-rooms, from 18 to 100 guineas. Any of the above may be had with Dawe's patent melody attachment, which gives a pure and defined melody as if produced by another instrument. Catalogues upon application.
24, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES at BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The Miniature, price 17 guineas; the check-action Pianette, price 25 guineas, in an elegant walnut case; the model Cottage Piano, price 35 guineas, &c. Catalogues upon application.
24, Holles-street, W.

MUSICAL BOXES.—BOOSEY and CO. beg to announce the arrival of a large supply of MUSICAL BOXES from the celebrated Nicole, of Geneva, made expressly to their order, and containing all the newest and most popular music of the day, including selections from "Faust," "Mirella," &c. Lists upon application.—24, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE, 14s. per Month. Seven octaves. No hire charged if purchased in six months. The most economical and judicious mode of obtaining a really good pianoforte is to hire one (with the option of purchasing it if approved) of the Manufacturers, OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, opposite Mdme. Tussaud's.

THE PARLOUR PIANOFORTE, 25 guineas. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, manufacture these very excellent Pianofortes with metallic plates, registered keyboard, full compass of seven octaves, and every recent improvement, and guarantee them, for tone, touch, and durability, to excel others usually sold at a much higher price. Drawings sent post-free.—Oetzmann and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

THE £5 DAY and ASTRONOMICAL TELESCOPE.—From F. Dundas, Esq., M.P., 21, Brunswick-square, Brighton, 13th October, 1864:—"Gentlemen,—Since my interview with you on the subject of the telescope I have heard from Lord Rosse, and will thank you to send one similar to that supplied to his Lordship."—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. N.B. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post. High-power pocket telescopes, opera, race, field, and general outdoor glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

POCKET BAROMETER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, all in one, the size of a watch, for telling the weather, the heights of mountains, direction of winds, and temperature of the air. Guaranteed for twelve months. Price £4 15s., sent free.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

SPECTACLES.—TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including Viscount Palmerston. They give extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision. The adaptation of spectacles to imperfect vision by experienced persons is, indeed, of vital importance. One of the Firm, who has had great experience and practice, attends to this branch only.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the RECONNOITERER GLASS, 10s. 10d., sent free.—This "Tourist's Favourite" distinctly shows small windows ten miles off, landscape at thirty miles, Jupiter's moons, &c.—The Marquis of Carmarthen: "The reconnoiterer is very good." Earl of Breadalbane: "I find it all you say, and wonderfully powerful for so very small a glass." Lord Garvagh: "Remarkably good." Rev. Lord Scarsdale "approves of it." Lord Gifford, of Ampney: "Most useful." Sir Digby Cayley: "It gives me complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good." Major Starkey, of Wrenbury Hall: "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £5 5s." Captain Sendey, Royal Small-arms Factory, Enfield: "I have found it effective at the 1000 yards' range." F. H. Fawkes, Esq., of Farnley: "I never before, although I have tried many, met a glass combining so much power for its size with so much clearness." The Field: "We have found it fully equal to others which had cost more than four times its price." Notes and Queries: "What tourist will now start without such an indispensable companion?" The celebrated "Hythe" Glass shows bullet-marks at 1200 yards, and men at 3½ miles. Price 31s. 6d. All the above, respectively bearing the registered trade marks, "Salom," "Reconnoiterer," and "Hythe," are only to be had direct from, and by written application to, SALOM and CO., 98, Prince's-street, Edinburgh.
No agents of any kind anywhere.

PRIVATE PICTURE GALLERY, 4, Queen Anne-street, Cavendish-square. The proprietor having lent this Gallery, without charge, to Artists to exhibit their Pictures, the Patrons of the Art are respectfully informed that the Gallery is now complete, and are earnestly invited to inspect it, admission being granted on presentation of address card.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—For FAMILY ARMS send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in Colours, 6s. Arms, Crest, and Family Motto, beautifully painted, 12s. Pedigrees traced. A valuable Index is now ready, which contains the arms, crests, and mottoes of nearly every family in the kingdom, the result of thirty years labour. "The Manual of Heraldry," 400 Engravings, 3s. 6d., post-free, by T. Culleton, Genealogist, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), W.C.

IF you want a MASSIVE GOLD SIGNET RING send to CULLETON'S; 18-carat, Hall-marked, engraved with crest; Ditto, large size, for arms, crest, and motto, all solid. Book Plates, Seals, and Dies engraved in the most elegant style of perfection. Livery Button Dies and Harness Crests, Monograms for Paper.—T. Culleton, Seal Engraver to the Queen, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), W.C.

NO CHARGE FOR ENGRAVING CREST and MOTTO, MONOGRAM, or ADDRESS, if an order be given for a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes to match, at 21s. all stamped free of charge. By T. CULLETON, Practical Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), W.C.

JUST PUBLISHED, the ARMS, CROWNS, and MONOGRAMS of the QUEEN, all the Royal Family, every Duke, Marquis, and Earl; the Monograms and Crests of Bishops, Barons, and British Commoners; the Crests and Monograms used by Regiments and British Navy. This extraordinary selection of arms and crests is printed in rich colours in relief, price 1s. each sheet; or 12 different sheets for 9s.—T. CULLETON, Compiler of Crests, 25, Cranbourn-street, London.

CULLETON'S PLATES FOR MARKING LINEN.—By means of this useful invention any kind of linen, silk, or stockings can be beautifully marked without any fear of its washing out. Initial-plate, 1s.; name, 2s. 6d.; set of movable numbers, 2s. 6d.; crest, 5s.; with directions, post-free for stamps. T. Culleton, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE. Established 25 years. For Family Arms send name and county. Sketch, 3s. 6d., or stamps. Arms painted and quartered and engraved on Seals, Rings, Dies, &c. Monograms designed. Pedigrees of Families, 21s.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, London, W.C.—Manual of Heraldry, 3s.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and PRESSES, Hatchments, Monumental Brasses, &c.; Diplomas and Votes of Thanks; Bookplates, Wedding and other Cards.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

BINDING the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—The Half-yearly Volumes bound in the appropriate Covers, with gilt edges, at 5s. each, if sent carriage-free with P. O. order, to LEIGHTON, SON, and HODGE, 13, Shoe-lane, London. The only binders authorised by the Proprietors.

---

120 SHEETS OF NOTE-PAPER for 6d.; 120 thick ditto for 1s.; 120 sheets ditto, black-bordered, for 1s.; 250 useful Envelopes for 9d.; 1000 extra large ditto for 4s. 6d.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

MONOGRAM, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES cut at half price, and remain the property of the customer. No charge for plain stamping; coloured stamping reduced to 1s. per 100. Writing-paper and Envelopes supplied to the public at wholesale prices.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, W.

BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, WEDDING PRESENTS, CHRISTENING PRESENTS.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PURSES, pocket-books, cigar-cases, card-cases, wallets, opera-glasses, scent-bottles (double and single); pencil-cases; fans, note-cases, &c., the largest Stock in London. N.B. Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon prepayment.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-st.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

---

500 DRESSING-CASES and DRESSING-BAGS, of the best manufacture, and fitted in the most complete manner for ladies or gentlemen. DESPATCH-BOXES, INKSTANDS, ENVELOPE-CASES, BOOK-SLIDES, RETICULES, PURSES, BLOTTING-BOOKS, &c. The public supplied at TRADE PRICES.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-st., London.

2s. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

CROQUET (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Prices 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 35s., 40s., and upwards, including Book of Rules. Warranted of seasoned woods, and sent carriage-paid to any railway station upon prepayment.—Parkins and Gotto, 25, Oxford-street, W.

CROQUET, THE FAVOURITE SET, Full Size, for 30s., including Book of Rules, in strong box. Sent carriage-paid to any railway station in England, upon receipt of P. O. order.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

LAWN GAMES at PARKINS and GOTTO'S consisting of Croquet (all sizes and prices); Bowls, 31s. 6d.; Jack's Alive, 14s.; Volunteer Handicap, 25s.; Ringolette, 16s. 6d.; Ring the Bell, 8s. 6d.; Aunt Sally, 12s. 6d.; Troco or Lawn Billiards, 14s.; Rondelle, 21s.; and many others. Orders over 20s. sent carriage-paid to any railway station in England.—Parkins and Gotto, 27 and 28, Oxford-street, W.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Mounted and Ormolu Suites for the Boudoir, Toilette, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in russia or morocco, of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at H. Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

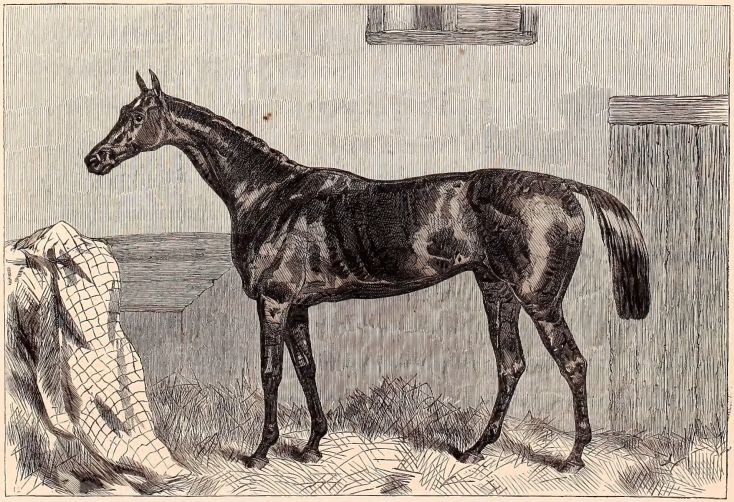
RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or plated fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Cigar Cases, and Purses. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in ormolu, walnut, and coromandel. Albums for monograms, crests, and postage-stamps.—At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art. Note-paper and envelopes stamped in colour relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

THE FIVE-SHILLING ILLUMINATING COLOUR BOX contains twelve superfine Colours, body, white, gold, aluminium, and brushes.—J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., London; and all Artists' Colourmen, &c.



THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to colour photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with twelve colours, all materials, specimen, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

ASCOT RACES: THE QUEEN'S CUP.

THE ASCOT CUP.

ELY, THE WINNER OF THE ASCOT CUP.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

It is now just one hundred and forty years ago since Pope, on going into the country, bade good-by to London thus pathetically:—

> Dear, S—d, distracting town, farewell!

The town is still dear enough, distracting enough, and probably equally deserves the other complimentary epithet; but Sir William Fraser has let us into the great secret that it is the dirtiest, sloppiest, dustiest, muddiest, most mewsen, worst broomed, cleansed, and worst sprinkled town in Europe. Not Cologne, that town of sewers and stinks, that unsavoury smelling place whose cleanlies contain martyrs' bones and whose streets are fanged with the teeth of sewer rats, exceeds London in badness of pavement. Thus, at least if we are to credit Sir William Fraser, who wishes many millions sterling created by Government to utterly vent and slay the parochial heptarchy which now obtains. Under this mild and benevolent despot our Parliamentary prophet believes that streets would be more drainably paved, and that probably granite and iron would not be dear. Sir William's is a comfortable picture, in the absence of any other topic, has been taken up by the pens of ready writers, and the mercy of the fashionable crossing and the terrible and utterly impassable nature of London streets has been commented on. That Sir William Fraser was making out a case against the world due in agony if his chariot rolled over new granite or a water-cart sprinkled a few drops on his pallium, his improvement must be made in paving, no doubt; but do our grumblers know that to repave the New-road alone would cost £120,000? and do they know how quickly, without constant traffic, the last few inches of the work will wear out? London is too full, too busy, too large, ever to be a model of spick-and-span neatness and trimness; but a cleaner city perhaps, if we take all things into consideration, never was seen or heard of. We cannot sweep off two millions of people in a small circle without a considerable mess and muddle. Some good may be done by the Fraser crusade. A sprinkling of cup by streets, and some different arrangement of the gas and water supply might be introduced.

The manner that Lord Palmerston is determined to leave public life has been contradicted, and again and again revived at clubs and dinner-tables. Who should know better than the boy, the genius of Mr. Punch, what the Premier intends to do? The rumour has, of course, reached Paris, and the Charivari becomes really funny about the matter. M. Paul Girard thereit represents a deputation from Tiverton waiting on the noble Premier, and begging him to still continue in office, and upon receiving an affirmative assurance thereon, bursting into enthusiastic shouts in favour of Lord Palmerston—shouts caught up by the cababy of Notting-row, and repeated by the echoes of woodland glumps in Kensington Gardens and Hyde Park. Full-mall fall upon each other's necks and kiss in the street; and "Alfred Tennyson, the Poet-Laureate, has delightful duty it is to celebrate the births and deaths in the Royal family, of which he has timely notice forwarded to him by Sir Charles Locock and the Court undertaker—is engaged on an ode commemorating the magnificent tenacity of office which the Premier displays. This ode will probably be sung or said by Mr. Whalley at the opening of the new Parliament." Come, now, is not that excellent and very neat fooling? We often reproach our French friends with their Bœotian ignorance of English manners and customs, but fresher and more good-humoured fun—fun made without local knowledge, and drawing—could not have been seen in the columns of Punch. Sing, Whalley! How pleased that persecuted gentleman will be to find that chief and supreme office duly understood and probably senseless—escapes the walls of St. Stephen's and penetrates that heart of civilised European society—Paris.

Business is where very bad, and the season of the year's present cæsus is, to the West-End tradesmen tell us—is a very bad one. One and all, we are preparing for elections. Literature betokens it in its announcements; such a book, for instance, as "How to Choose a Member," and we refer to a dainty leg that is a representative, nor do the celebrated works of Mr. Mill and Mr. Have, on Representative Government, lack purchasers. Everybody is at present exceedingly inanimate about the matter, with the exception of the Whigs and Radical admirers of the candidates, who are very warm and fidgety, and are bidding openly for votes and offering all sorts of bribing and corrupting influence in that candid way which only intoxicated madness can dare to do. In the City it is probable that the continued illness and consequent absence of Baron Lionel Rothschild will leave the election to look elsewhere; in Finsbury Mr. Cox will make a great fight, and will probably succeed: in Westminster Mr. W. H. Smith and Mr. Alfred Seale Hart Bill, the former celebrated beyond many candidates as a mild and reasonable Conservative, the latter very well effected as a Liberal, and therefore would gain two representatives who, upon all local and common subjects would act each other, may also set up their cards: exactly party questions could be opposed to each other. But the committee do not seem to have hit upon this excellent and "advanced thinking" begin to trouble for Mr. Mill. The truth seems to be that to the great body of the electors, and the wider the suffrage the truer this will be, mere literary reputation, especially of the higher sort—that, let us say, not of a novelist, but of a poet or political writer—is very much of a drawback. Macaulay failed, Mr. Wirgrove Cooke failed; Mr. Disraeli is celebrated not for what he wrote but for what he was; Lord Derby is remembered not Mr. Hughes, and ask what he has done, while they are quite familiar with Mr. Dombey and Mr. Bagstock, with Mr. Pecksniff and with Mr. "Tom Brown at Oxford" to a small greengrocery! Can the keeper of a Westminster lodging-house, the next Parliamentary candidate, read Mill upon Liberty? Would he quite agree with it if he read it?

And so Spiritualism is, in the person of Dr. J. B. Ferguson, about to hit us forcibly. At the Spiritual Lyceum, a place in Newcastle-street, formerly a dancing-saloon, but now opened for a free trade in Divinity, with a fresh coat of unlicensed Spirits, the Doctor of the Lyceum did present him with a testimonial and a "purse of gold." That last is a term of delicate value which our Transatlantic friends employed on this presentation was that the Doctor is going "from our midst," and his mission is to "lead the wounded and the dying, the bereaved, to them, to plead for justice and peace." Alas! the bodies of many of them are past healing now, but very many more may be cured that Ferguson may take heed. He was a great institution at the Davenport séances, and always a subject of mild wonder to the gentlemen of the Spiritual Lyceum, and pinched him in a dark séance, has heard the good Doctor thereafter expatiate on his being "under spirit influence." Ferguson is the founder of the Christian spiritual, ghostly, or religious advisor of President Johnson.

"Ho ho! Ho! years on occasional, and sometimes on continuous men as one of my parishioners. Him I know, and, knowing, have followed his somewhat lengthy history, and have always wished to put upon all the great questions the revolution has forced upon our people." But can we say that Ferguson has contributed to any true direct testimony that Johnson is the intimate and disciple of the wisest and boldest spiritualists. What can we say?

But Dr. J. B. Ferguson is more. Does anybody remember—does not everybody remember—M. Mark Tapley's Eden and the wonderful Scudder, the land-agent? He was a Yankee, and he had the most glorious ideas that way, too. "I trust to be able to show the British capitalist how permanent investments can be made under American soil!" As if the British capitalist did not know that! Shade of Sydney Smith, what this doctor! Ferguson's representative of investment is a good word. "Without indulging in any Utopian speculations on the more practical basis, we must first consider where to be the fairest and most fertile regions of that country." Labourers, artisans, and tenders will be considered in the immediate future, moral, social, and religious reforms, equal if not superior (sic) to any effected in the different days of colonisation," a very new spirit to the spirit of a different South—not Sidney, but Joseph. Are we to have a new religion in that fair region? At present, in America, the spiritual mechanic does not prosper, one having been arrested by the revenue officers for not taking out a license as a juggler. The Davenports have made an alliance with Mr. Guppy, the author of the celebrated work "Mary Jane," who accounts for all these rapping drawings and prophetic whisperings by a theory of "chemical fluids and phosphoric essence." Guppy has fitted up a chateau near Paris, and is going to convert the natives of Europe. Well, did not MM. Mesmer and Cagliostro once try to do the same? After this business, ladies and gentlemen adjourned, we are told, to the Lyceum Hall up stairs, where another meeting was held of a "sung and social character."

THE PRIZE PLATE OF ASCOT RACES.

THESE of the prizes run for at ASCOT RACES are represented among our illustrations this week.

The Ascot Gold Cup, value £500, given from the Ascot Race fund, in addition to a subscription of £20 each, was won, on the Thursday, by Mr. W. S. Cartwright's four-year-old horse Elly, whose pedigree and exploits we have recorded in another column. The cup is not, though styled a cup, is neither more nor less than an equestrian statuette of JOAN of Arc, designed by Mr. Harrison Weir, modelled by Mr. W. F. Spencer, and manufactured by Messrs. R. and S. Garrard, goldsmiths, to the Queen, by command. The event, the spirit of its design, and the beauty of its workmanship, are apparent at a glance.

The Ascot Stakes, value 300 sovs., was won by Mr. Merryman, but designed by Mr. W. Taylor, is a large and finely-chased Elizabethan tankard, with an equestrian group on the cover, representing the Champion's Challenge.

ASCOT RACES: THE ROYAL HUNT CUP.

The Royal Hunt Cup, designed by Mr. Archibald Barrett, and made by Messrs. Hunt and Roskell, New Bond-street, is an Etruscan ewer, with handle, lip, and cover, richly chased in the Renaissance style. The two sculptures in relief, one illustrative of Herne the Hunter, and the other of a subject from the old English ballad of "Chevy Chase."

> The Percy out of Northumberland,
> And a vowe to God mayd he,
> That he wolde hunte in the mountaines
> Off Chyvyat within days three
> In the despyte of Jesu Cryste,
> And all that ever with him be.

ELY, WINNER OF THE ASCOT CUP.

THERE are certain horses, whose gay style and game running, whether in victory or defeat, make them ever popular favourites, and Elly is most certainly one. Turtles were wont to look out for his sire, Kingston, as he came up to the post with that peculiar bird-by-gone, and with Nat, Job Marson, or Basham on his back, led by Harry Stebbing; and "the beautiful Elly" with his head high in air, was the idol of "Gentleman Jim," and Tom Oliver, father and son, and Mr. Cartwright at his side, is becoming quite a national fashion. Elly is a bay, with black legs, a very level top, and nearly fifteen three. His coat is not so full of white hairs as his sire's, but in many points he resembles him very well, and makes Kingston look more than ever a subject of regret as each Blenkiron Saturday comes round. His dam, The Bloomer, by Melbourne, also died some three years since, and was therefore unable to head that remarkable group of her progeny at the Treborgy show last winter, in which Elly (who won a premium), Fairwater, and two others, bore their part. Elly's career has been chequered. As a two-year-old he was rather dull and lost his maiden race. He was in no form when he made his maiden appearance at Winchester, and was beaten off by Moly Thewes, Dolly followed his Champagne victory, at Doncaster, where he gave Pilule de l'Air 2 lb. and beat her and two others by two lengths, in a canter. He had her on a pound more at Ascot, but Nat Flatman and Basham, not defeated by for third place, a long way from Coastguard, the winner. His last three appearances as a three-year-old were to beat Tomato by a head, in a good Triennial field, which included Rosicrucian and Barnaby; and, after running fourth in the Criterion Stakes (where Coastguard was behind him), he wound up a season, in which he had never been very fit, by just defeating Beatrix by a head over the D.M.

His trial with Fairwater made the stable think, as they well might, that his Derby chance was second to none; but his lot fell on a great year, and he was sixth at the finish, close in with Cambuscan. At Ascot he met Pilule de l'Air for the fourth time, and made matters even by beating her, in the Prince of Wales Stakes, in a canter; but he hadn't a chance with Blair Athol that week over the New Mile, "shin-sore and sensick" as the chestnut was said to be. Cambuscan and Ackworth were second and third to him at Stockbridge; then he had a walk over, and an easy task with Rarkforward, at Liverpool; and, when dead amiss, was fairly cut down by Breadalbane at Goodwood. He was all right and at York the next month, and, with Fairwater 3lb. and beating him by a short head, on the Tuesday, he was only third in the Great Yorkshire Stakes, where Blair Athol (7 lb. ex.) was seemingly "mapped" by The Miner. In the St. Leger he cut a very poor figure, and was most probably not persevered with, as victory was hopeless and penalties for second undesirable; but in the Doncaster Stakes he fairly cantered away from Coastguard and his field. He paid off Baragah for Goodwood in the Grand Duke Michael Stakes soon after at Newmarket, and repeated his previous year's performance with Tomato in the Triennial. This is, we believe, the first time that the same pair have run first and second twice in a stake of this kind, and their meeting again in the First October will be looked for with interest. Up to the end of the second season he had thus been in twenty-two races of which he won ten and walked over for and divided two more, thus bringing his winnings up to £7761.

During the present season he has started four times. He was beaten by Cambuscan for the Newmarket Biennial, and then dropped the contest down most summarily for the Bath Cup. Ascot found him hardly quite fit on the Thursday, but he was run off his head a mile on the slopes of his old friend Baragah in the Triennial. However, he was quite right and well on the Tuesday, and with his courage proved to be to rose the hill in his canter caused no little uneasiness to the layers of the 6 to 1 lot, and Stebbing improved to outstride him in the last few yards, and nothing but the unflinching gameness with which he answered Rosebery's "last appeal" saved the dead heat. In the second bout the General had no rest given him from end to end, and was not quite easy a mile from home. Still he followed on nearly to the beginning of the Grand Stand rails, where he shut up, and swerved across the course, and left Ely to canter in fully twelve lengths ahead. The dead heat was run off in half a second less than the race. This is the first cup that Ely has ever won, and, including his £300 value, his winnings amount to £1000 in stakes to his owner. He looks so sound and well that he needs no turf-bitten Joseph Ady to assure us that he will be a star of something in his stable for a season or two more, even if he does not emulate the example of Bizarre, Rosebery, The Hero, and Fisherman, by winning this great cup two years in succession.

MUSIC.

There was a magnificent performance of the "Huguenots" at Her Majesty's Theatre on Saturday last. The cast of the opera was magnificent, the principles of Mdlle. Titiens, Mr. Sims Reeves, Signor de Vaschi, Tiebelli as the Page, Joualin as Raoul, Rokitanski as Marcel, and Santley as Count de Nevers. Mdlle. Volckmann made her début before the English public on this occasion, and was completely successful, being eminently qualified, both by appearance and voice, to represent the part of the Huguenot soldier. This performance was one of the most crowded and fashionable audience of the season, every seat in every part of the house being occupied. Meyerbeer's "Dinorah" is about to be produced, with Mdme. Harriers Wippern in the character of Dinorah.

"Norma" was performed on the same evening at the Royal Italian Opera, with two débuts—Mdme. Galletti in the character of the heroine, and Signor Gardoni as Pollione. Both these performers were favourably received. Mdme. Galletti, though she lacks the tragic power and dramatic energy for the latter part, is a charming singer of the pure Italian school, and a pleasing and intelligent actress; and Signor Gardoni, with a fine tenor voice, is also quite Italian in style. We hope to see both of them in characters better suited to their powers. It is now announced that the successful "Africaine" will be produced in the course of next month.

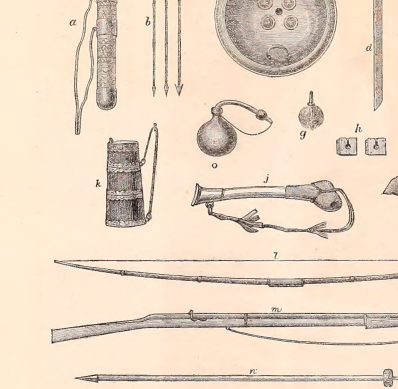
It is announced in the Paris journals that, by an Imperial decree, M. Auber, the Director of Conservatoire of Music, has been promoted to the grade of an officer of the Legion of Honour for the care he has bestowed on the new edition of the works of Meyerbeer.

At the matinée of the Musical Union on Tuesday last Mdme. Schumann made her farewell appearance for this season. We hope that the reception given to this most accomplished artist during her visit will induce her to spend a longer time. She played a selection of the finest pieces of her husband, Handel, Spohr, and Mendelssohn, and was applauded to the echo throughout. The other most interesting matinées of the Musical Union will take place on the 27th inst. and the 4th of July.

Handel's oratorio, "Israel in Egypt," was performed by the National Choral Society, at Exeter Hall, on Wednesday evening week, under the direction of Mr. W. Martin. The principal singers were Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Fanny Armytage, Miss Emily Wickes, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Signor Gardoni, and Signor Gliè. Upon this occasion Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Herr Joachim, and Mr. Cusins; and Mr. Benedict and Mr. Cusins were the conductors. The selection was at once ample and choice. Mr. Cusins played Weber's "Concertstück," Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso," and Mr. "Moralello," and (with Mdme. Schumann) an andante and variations by Robert Schumann for two pianos. In these pieces, which were warmly applauded, he showed himself to be one of the most accomplished pianists of the day. Two of his part-songs, "The Wanderer" and "The Sea Nymphs," were sung by Mr. Frederick Glee Union, and delighted the audience by their pure and graceful style. Another part-song, "Sweet Spring," composed by Mdme. Sainton "Sarabande and Bourée; and, after several other vocal and instrumental pieces, Mr. Cusins's splendid overture to "Ruy Blas" concluded the concert. The room was crowded to the doors.

Mr. Brinley Richards's concert, at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Saturday evening, was a very agreeable assemblage of rare excellence. Mr. Richards is a true Welshman, and some of the choicest music of the Principality was performed in a manner that called forth a storm of encore. Mr. Richards played his fantasia, "The Sea," on the concert-grand pianoforte, and subsequently "Pen Rhaw," "Ar hyd y nos," and "Ar lan y môr," and Lady Jane Ellis, Mr. Graffydd, a genuine national performer. It was curious as well as beautiful, and was loudly applauded. Mr. and Miss Brinley Richards played his fantasia, "The March of the Men of Harlech," and Miss Edith Wynne sang, in Welsh, the pretty ballad, "A Bird of Aberdovey." The most miscellaneous portion of the concert included selections from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," and on the day's programme will be found several five-part songs, one of which, "Through the Day," was sung by Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Santley, and was vehemently encored and a new scena, entitled "Lost hope," composed by him, and sung by Mr. Sims Reeves, was also vehemently encored with enthusiasm. The same compliment, moreover, was paid to another song of his, entitled "Good Night," and also to Mr. Santley's singing of Handel's grand and impressive composition. The whole performances were most warmly received by one of the most fashionable audiences we have seen in the Hanover-square Rooms.

The annual morning concert of Herr Wilhelm Ganz, the distinguished pianist and composer, given on Monday last in the picture-gallery of Dudley House, Park-lane, presented a most refined selection of vocal and instrumental music. The most remarkable performance of Herr Ganz himself was Beethoven's "Sonata Pathétique," which he played with finished execution and exquisite expression. He also played his own fantasia on Gounod's "Mirella," Osborne's grand duet on themes from "Faust," and several other pieces—showing himself a consummate master of his instrument. His beautiful song, "The Nightingale's Trill," which has been made so popular by the brilliant singing of Mdme. Parepa, was (that lady being unable to appear) sung by Mdlle. Enseguide and loudly encored. Altogether, the concert was most attractive, and gave great pleasure to the fashionable assemblage who filled the room.



A concert is about to be given, at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Saturday morning next, the 1st of July, for the benefit of Signor Giuglini, who, we lament to say, labours under disease from which there is no hope of his recovery. The most eminent artistes have generously come forward with their services on this occasion. The singers will be Mdme. Grisi (with the permission of Mr. Gye, for the last time this season), the Misses Pyne, Mdme. Parepa, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdme. Borger-Lascelles, Miss Banks, Mdlle. Baretta, Mdlle. Corsella, and Messrs. Harrison, Reichardt, Sobrè, Ambesetti, Perren, Ciabatta, Patey, Agnesi, and Delle-Sedie. Mdme. Arabella Goddard and Signor Piatti will also give their assistance; and the concert will be conducted by Messrs. Benedict, Pilotti, Mellon, and Vera. The public, we doubt not, will remember the claims of an artist who has so long been one of their greatest favourites.

THE THEATRES.

Business is languid at the West-End houses, and the stars of the profession begin to travel in an easterly direction. Thus we see that Mr. Charles Mathews is at the Surrey, and that Mr. Sothern has thither taken with him Mr. Leicester Buckingham's pleasant comedy of "Faces in the Fire." It is curious, however, that neither the reputation of the drama, which is considerable, nor that of the actor, which is unequal, has sufficed to fill the house, though the applause and applause were frequent, and evinced that those who were present could appreciate good acting and sound writing. It would seem, therefore, that summer exerts the same influence at both ends of the town, and indisposes people to suffer the inconvenience of crowded assemblies. They prefer, too, lighter entertainments to offer for a hot season—such as the Christy's Minstrels, who, at the Standard, attracted a comparatively large and enthusiastic audience. Its most successful song to some to record that Miss Meenken returned to Astley's on Monday, and that, accordingly, "Mazeppa" has been again performed. A word may be said in favour of Miss Lucette's precocious direction of Sadler's Wells, where, for a fortnight, the play of "The Orphans" has been performed so ably and with such scenic accessories that it ought to have commanded extensive patronage. A new farce, by Mr. J. M. Morton, entitled "Poste's Wedding," has been produced at the St. James's, where "Eleanor's Victory" still continues in the ascendant, and furnishes opportunity for Miss Herbert to display those graces of elegant acting which give refinement and elevation to the characters that she so beautifully embodies. This evening this gifted lady will take her benefit. The artistes at the Olympic have continued to amuse themselves with their appearance in the comedy of "Twelfth Night," and though they mangle a gleam of interpretation on the text they may prove suggestive to Shakespearean actors. Efforts at novelty or originality should not be discouraged, and we hoped that such a revival would have been more generally appreciated, if only for the new points which its representation, under such auspices, was likely to bring out. The Haymarket is to be placed for a time under the direction of Mr. Walter Montgomery. We may likewise mention that on next Tuesday morning, at Drury Lane, a complimentary benefit will be given to Mr. Leigh Murray, whose frequent indisposition has of late deprived the stage of one of the most elegant exponents of the modern drama. The performance is under the patronage of the Prince of Wales, and the entertainment promised is of the most attractive kind, including a scene written by Mr. Shirley Brooks, in which Mr. and Mrs. Keeley will appear, and Miss Bateman takes her farewell benefit, at the Adelphi, this evening.

THE WAR IN BHOOTAN.

THE Illustrations we have already published of the operations of our field column in Bhootan were contributed by an officer attached to the left column, which entered the hostile country, from the frontier station of Julpigoree, by way of the Bala Pass and Buxa Dooars, immediately to the north of Cooch Behar. The right column, having marched along the southern frontier of Bhootan, as far as Dewangiri, a fortress situated more than a hundred miles to the eastward of the Bala Pass, has acted quite independently; and we are now enabled, by the sketch engraved in this Number, to give an illustration of its successful attack upon Dewangiri, on the 2nd of April last. The attacking force (all under command of Brigadier Tombs, C.B. and V.C.) consisted of a part of the 55th Regiment of the a Ornamental quiver.

b Three feet of reed arrows, said to be poisoned.
c Shield.
d Long straight sword, the hilt ornamented with silver filigree work.
e Sword and scabbard.
f Dagger.
g Muzzle-stopper.
h Bullet-mould made out of soapstone.
i Steel head-piece, thickly quilted.
j "Tongue" mail coat of a human thigh-bone.
k Water-bottle, made of wood and horn with figured brass.
l Bamboo bow.
m Matchlock.
n Color pole.
o Powder-horn.

ARMS, ETC., TAKEN FROM THE BHOOTEAS AT THE STORMING OF DEWANGIRI, BHOOTAN.

Line, under Colonel Hume; two batteries of Royal Artillery (12-pounder howitzers and 9-in. mortars), under Captains Cordner and Smith; one company of Sappers, the 12th Regiment of Bengal Native Infantry (Lieutenant-Colonel Stevens), the 29th Sikhs (Lieutenant-Colonel Wroughton, C.B.), the 44th Native Infantry (Lieutenant-Colonel Richardson, C.B.), the Native Police, under Captain Macdonald; and the 14th Bengal Cavalry, under Major Murray. These troops were collected at Koomrechatta, and encamped about seven miles from the mouth of the Darranga Pass, leading to Dewangiri, and thirteen miles from that fortress itself. The leading column, under Lieutenant-Colonel Richardson, moved up the pass on the 1st of April. It was opposed by the Bhooteas for a short time at a strong stockade which they had erected, but they soon gave way, one man having been killed by a shell. The column halted for the night in the pass, about two miles from Dewangiri. It was joined, about eight o'clock in the morning, by the main column, under Colonel Hume, which had halted for the night at the mouth of the pass. The rear column, under Colonel Wroughton, moved up the pass in rear of the main column. The following is our correspondent's narrative of this day's work, in which he took an active part:—

"The advance was difficult, owing to the excessive steepness of the ground, and the enemy were found in force, posted on a high ridge, fortified with stockades or blockhouses, very strongly built of stones and trees, and loopholed (as shown in our Illustration), from which they opened fire on the advancing column with matchlocks and jingals, at about 700 yards. The No. 1 company of the 55th, in skirmishing order, reinforced later by part of No. 4 company, covered the advance, and the range and accuracy of their fusiliers soon drove the Bhootea inside their blockhouses, from the loopholes of which they still kept up a moderately-heavy and accurate fire. The howitzers and mortars came into action at about 600 yards, but the range was too great for very accurate practice. The ground was very unfavourable for artillery. The enemy's fire was well kept under by the skirmishers, who gradually crept up the hill, till between ten and eleven o'clock. The two stockades shown in the sketch were assaulted and taken by two columns of the 29th Sikhs, 12th Native Infantry, and the police. The Bhooteas were very strongly posted, and fought well, being heavy and powerful men; but their arms, matchlocks, bows and arrows, and swords were no match for our Enfields, or even the musket and bayonet of our native troops. The actual number of the enemy, the Tongoo Penlow, was present at the commencement of the action, but deserted his second in command, the Jugger Penlow, whom he left with about 500 men to defend the two stockades that we attacked, saying that he was going to defend another part of the position. The Jugger Penlow was killed, and about 250 of his men killed, wounded, and taken prisoners. One hundred and twenty bodies were counted. The casualties on our side were about seventy. The Tongoo retreated up the Dear River without attempting to defend any other part of the position, although there were eight other stockades on the ridge. The fort of Dewangiri was totally destroyed and evacuated on the 2nd. The weather being too wet for the troops to remain there longer without tents," the Brigadier-General seems to be generally commended for the excellent disposition of his plans, and for his personal activity in directing the assault on the occasion.

We have received from the same correspondent, Captain J. R. Hume, of the 55th Regiment, a drawing of some of the weapons taken from the Bhooteas at Dewangiri, amongst which is a curious mode of a human thigh-bone. Some illustrations of the personal appearance and costumes of this warlike people have already appeared in our pages, from the sketches which were sent in April by Captain Warren, R.A., after the affair in the Bala Pass. We now publish another of his sketches, representing three different classes of the native soldiery employed by the British Government of India in this campaign. The first is a soldier of the 19th Native Infantry Regiment, composed mostly of Pataus, from the neighbourhood of the Khyber Pass; and of Sikhs, from the Punjaub. The 20th Regiment, to which the second figure in our Illustration belongs, is similarly constituted. Both these fine dashing regiments—a detachment of the former under Captain Ruggles—distinguished themselves in the assault of the stockades in the Bala Pass. Their uniforms are well adapted for skirmishing, as they can with difficulty be seen among the jungle and brushwood covering the hillsides. The third figure—the Ghoorka—is shorter and stouter than either of the other two; but he is as nimble as a cat, belonging to a hardy race of mountaineers.

Archæology of the Month.

THE programmes of the two leading archæological congresses of the season are nearly completed. Each promises an abundance of novelty and interest in papers and discussions, its museum of local antiquities, and visits to places in the neighbourhood; and the proffered assistance of the local nobility, clergy, and gentry evinces an increased activity which must prove very gratifying to students of archæology, and attractive to visitors generally; since there cannot be a more efficient or pleasurable mode of studying any subject in hand than discussion investigations. The Archæological Institute meeting will commence, at Dorchester, on Tuesday, July 25, and continue for a week, under the presidency of Maryis Camden, K.G. Dr. Guest, Professor Willis, and Mr. C. Newton will, it is expected, take the chair, respectively, in the sections of history, architecture, and antiquities. Dorchester (with its early British walls, its Roman Amphitheatre, its Saxon churches, and battle-fields; its churches, with their curious monuments; and its manorial descents) is comparatively new ground for the archæologists. Prominent among the excursions will be a visit to Sherborne, where Professor Willis will give a memoir on the Minster. Blandford and Ribbesford, with visits to the abbey; and to the church next Sir Thomas Wyatt, the poet; and the Digbys, with curiously monumented and classic epitaphs; and the camp of Maiden Bower (about 60,000 lb., and given by Cardinal Wolsey, is said to be the largest bell in England ever cast or rung in a peal. The church, in its exalted architecture and magnificent, more resembles a cathedral than a parish church. Among the excursions will be one to Corfe Castle, one of the strongest fortresses in the kingdom, to be read by Mr. J. H. Parker. At the meeting of the institute on the 2nd inst. a series of admirable photographs of Corfe Castle and other places about to be visited at the approaching meeting were exhibited by Mr. F. M. Good.

The British Archæological Association will meet at Durham, from Monday, Aug. 21, to Saturday, the 26th, inclusive, under the presidency of the Lord Bishop of Durham. The reception will be at the castle. Mr. Gordon Hills will describe the massive grandeur of Durham Cathedral; Mr. Longstaffe, the earlier and later history of St. Cuthbert and the Ven. Bede. The Rev. Dr. Collingwood Bruce will describe the Roman wall and the antiquities of Newcastle-on-Tyne. Barnard Castle, many years the residence of the Duke of Gloucester (afterwards Richard III.), will be visited on the same day with Raby Castle, a magnificent remnant of the feudal ages, with its banqueting-room, where 700 knights were entertained at one time, the dishes being conveyed through numerous passages in the walls from the kitchen, which has three chimneys; the oven, now a wine-cellar, will hold a hogshead of wine in bottles. Raby is the seat of the noble president of the meeting. Papers are promised by Mr. Thomas Wright, Mr. Fairholt, Mr. Pettigrew, and Mr. Jeffery Gibson. Mr. Hodgson Hinde will give a paper on the progress of the Norman arms in Britain, with particular reference to the position of the new northern frontier at different periods. The district of the meeting is so rich in objects of historical and archæological interest that two or three supernumerary days are contemplated for excursions. We are glad to hear that the good citizens of Durham are subscribing liberally, and otherwise aiding the arrangements of the Association.

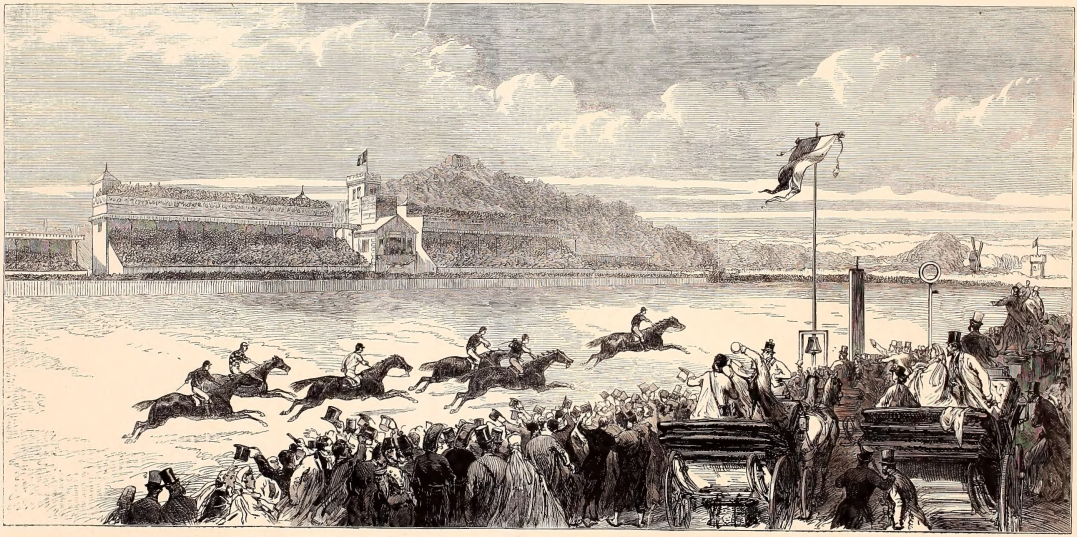
The great burial mound on Longton Wold, at 1 little more than two miles from Malton, in the East Riding of Yorkshire, was opened, last week, by the Rev. W. Greenwell, M.A., of Durham. The tumulus is not nearly 70 ft. in diameter, and has a perpendicular altitude of 7½ ft. We have not space for the details of the exploration. The deductions are that the tumulus contained the bodies of two distinct tribes of Britons, that it marked a transition of the tribes, and that it was used on the north, for numerous Anglo-Saxon deposits. In all, British and Saxon, there must have been considerably over a dozen interments; and it is a singular fact that the Saxon pottery was not found at all on the south and west sides, but exclusively, even profusely, on the north and east. Of the first tumulus the explorers and Mr. Greenwell has opened which contained unburnt British bodies; and it is calculated or inferred that the period represented from the primary long-haired male burial to the Saxon interments will be not less than 2000 years. The absence of flints is very remarkable, especially as flint implements abound on the wold adjoining. We hope to hear more of these important discoveries at the coming meeting of the Archæological Association at Durham.

The restoration of the London Guildhall is proceeding, but not to the extent of some archæologists, who maintain that it is unorthodox; while the anti-archæologists object that it is too costly. The city are very nearly baulked. The committee have just obtained funds for additional works, including £6000 for the repair of the four turrets and two pinnacles and the erection of a spire, which will be altogether a new feature, not a restoration; for in old views the tower is low, whereas the proposed spire will be lofty and will be the prominent new object in the view of the present metropolis. The City architect also considers necessary the restoration of the old tracery of the tracery under the windows; and the substitution of marble, purbeck, or serpentine for the present stone of the clustered columns. This latter is much objected to, as being altogether out of keeping with the date of the hall. Then it is proposed to erect a screen and hustings of carved oak at the east end of the hall; and at the west, corresponding with the carved "gallery of the minstrels' gallery; there are likewise recommended sixteen gasoliers of appropriate design, with a sun-burner under the louvre for lighting the hall at public entertainments. These repairs and alterations will cost £15,348, and have been voted by the committee; the report adds, somewhat naively, "and the Court, Com. and Finance Committee to provide the means." The motion was opposed by Mr. R. Fowler, M.P., who moved the postponement of the whole matter; but in vain. But the grant was carried in the Common Council by a majority of forty-five in a forty-six members, so that the sum of £39,300 has now been voted for the work. This would not be a large expenditure if it were confined to the hall only, except that, which is not promised by the details; and although some of the purposes for which the money may be used are not very suggestive of critical judgment, the Guildhall will never be saved by strangers as one of the state public buildings of the City; and it were better to ensure appreciation by attention to details, however minor than to leave architectural renown by disregard of the rules of art.

By-the-way, there is a coincidence connected with the Guildhall which may be interesting at this moment to note. On Sunday, June 18, Prince Arthur and the Prince Regent and the allied Sovereigns were entertained by the Corporation in the Guildhall; and on that day, precisely, fifty years ago, the battle of Waterloo was fought the memorable Battle of Waterloo.

The Archæological Institute meeting, on the 2nd inst., Sir Jervoise C. Jervoise, M.P., recalled attention to the subject of calcined flints found in detached heaps in the neighbourhood of Ilsworth, Hants, and used with great effect as "Early Recovery of Mankind," which showed that these heaps belonged to what had been called "Roman villages." He produced specimens of flint (7½ in. by 2 in.), found in one of those heaps, that might have been used as a "hand-pick" for cleaning the soil, and handed from prehistoric to modern times in various parts of the world; and concluded by suggesting the possibility that, after the process being now called to this curious subject, other facts would be ultimately elicited which would throw still more valuable light on the history of the early inhabitants of our island. Mr. Octavius Morgan, M.P., gave an account of the process by which the substance was crushed, china was made, and was of opinion that the calcined flints, or milk-stone, brought by Sir Jervoise was produced by similar means. At the same meeting Mr. Fairholt exhibited a beautiful miniature pony-ring, with the motto, "If love can merit, I shall inherit," found on his estate in Kent.

The Rev. Mr. Kell has lately obtained some curious specimens of ancient Roman workmanship, dug up from the site of an old Roman station near Andover, which Mr. Kell considers the site of Vindonis, though some antiquaries place it at Basingstoke and Silchester. Mr. Kell has also just discovered the site of a mediæval glass manufactory in Western Hampshire. By the above mention of Silchester we are reminded that the Duke of Wellington is now carrying on here some interesting excavations, under the superintendence of the Rev. J. G. Joyce; and beautiful plans and drawings of the houses already discovered, and the objects found, have recently been exhibited to the Society of Antiquaries.



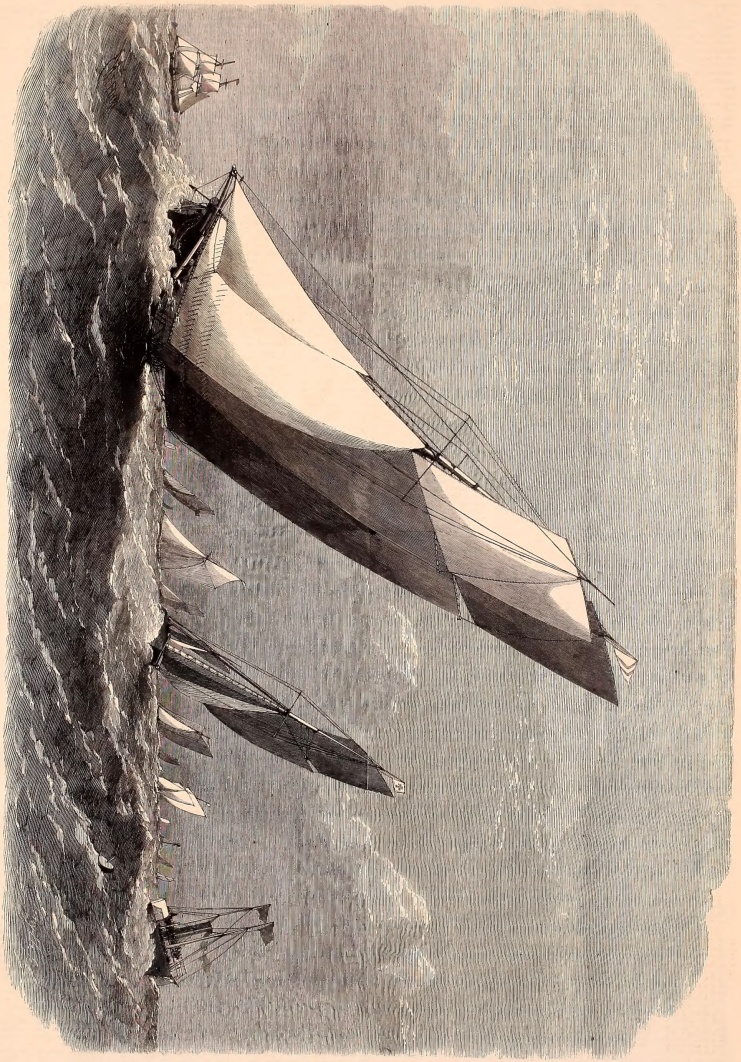
THE FRENCH DERBY DAY.

EVERYTHING conduced to making the Longchamps Races this year a grand success—the magnificent weather, the presence of the Emperor, just returned from his Algerian journey, and the fame of Gladiateur as the winner of the English Derby. The receipts for admission amounted this year to 127,000 francs against 81,000 francs in the previous one; and, besides those who had paid for their places as spectators, there was an immense crowd outside the barriers, whose appreciation of the races must have been, judging from the distance at which they were placed, of the most remote description. The scene presented by the course, however, was most picturesque; while the heights of Mont Valérien, crowned by its fort and barracks, the cascade of the Bois de Boulogne, and the woods and hills in the neighbourhood, formed a charming background in every direction; and this picture was completed by the elegant dresses of the ladies in the "tribunes," or in their magnificent carriages. The enthusiastic greeting which the Emperor received on descending to congratulate Count Lagrange upon his victory and to obtain a nearer view of his horse was composed, according to the Moniteur, of English "hurrahs" mixed with French "Vive l'Empereur's," although many of these latter exclamations, more or less correctly pronounced, are said to have come from English throats. Yet, in spite of all this, in spite of our native accent that greeted the car on every side, the scene was as different from an English race-course as it could possibly be. In the first place, the fact that the only views of the race were to be obtained by the payment of a franc was enough in itself to keep the assembly, in appearance, eminently genteel. Then there were no tumblers, no jugglers, no nigger minstrels, no gipsies, no thimbleriggers, no gambling-booths, and, with one or two exceptions, and these evidently among English parties, no hunches and no champagne. On the returning road there were no bunches, no pea-shooters, no false noses, no dolls. With the greater part of the beau-monde and the demi-monde present it seemed to be merely a Sunday afternoon's drive a little prolonged, but certainly not to such an extent as would let it interfere with their regular dinner-hour. The occasion brought out a few well-appointed drags, and some of the élite had four horses attached to their carriages instead of two. These features and the crowd largely increased were the only difference between the day of Longchamps Races and an ordinary Sunday which could be observed on the road. On the second day, which was the grand day, there were five races. The three first and the last were hardly of sufficient interest to be related here in detail. The judges were the Count Alfred de Nouilles and M. de Geoffroi, and the starter, the Baron de Lauvlochetz. Of the 122 horses originally inscribed for the Grand Prix, six only came to the post. These were magnificently started, without the slightest fuss or fretting; indeed, the course behind them was hardly clear. They ran almost in a line past the stands, Gontran trying hard for the lead. At the mill Tournalet took the lead. Nearly two lengths behind was Vertugadin, the others in a compact group. Gladiateur, running a waiting race, kept always in the rear. At the hill Vertugadin passed Tournalet. At the last turning Todleben seemed beaten; and Mandarin, Gontran, and Gladiateur advanced on Tournalet, Vertugadin still keeping the lead. It was not until reaching the distance-post that Gladiateur, passing the rest like an arrow, won as he liked in four lengths. They finished in the following order:—First came Gladiateur; then Vertugadin, two lengths behind; then Tournalet, who preceded by the same interval Gontran; after which came Todleben and Mandarin, bringing up the rear nearly in a line.

The "Grand Prix" consists of 100,000f. (£4000)—half given by the city of Paris and half by the five great railway companies having stations in Paris. Besides this there is a work of art offered by the Emperor, this year's being a silver shield representing a hunt in the reign of Louis XV. It is the work of MM. Marrell (father and son), and has been greatly admired.

In the evening there was a banquet at the Café Anglais, offered by the committee of the race and some of the committee of the French Jockey Club to the Duke of Beaufort and some of the English friends who had accompanied his Grace from London, as well as to Count Lagrange, the owner of Gladiateur.

We give two illustrations of the scenes on the Longchamps racecourse. The Engraving on our front page represents the Imperial party in the Grand Stand accepting the tumultuous acclamations of the crowd. The other Illustration shows Gladiateur winning the great race of the second day.



GLADIATEUR WINNING THE GRAND PRIX DE PARIS AT THE LONGCHAMPS RACES.

OCEAN RACE OF THE ROYAL THAMES YACHT CLUB.

THE result of the ocean race of schooners, cutters, and yawls belonging to the Royal Thames Yacht Club, on Monday week, was briefly reported in our last. We now give an Illustration. The race was from Sheerness to Harwich. Fifteen vessels started—viz., the Alarm, schooner, 248 tons, owned by Mr. G. Duppa; the New Moon, lugger, 209, Lord Willoughby d'Eresby; the Pearl, yawl, 164, Mr. J. S. Abbot Dunbar; Albertine, schooner, 155, Lord Londesborough; Xantha, yawl, 135, Lord A. Paget (com.); Whirlwind, yawl, 77, Mr. Alfred Cox; Brunette, yawl, 70, Mr. Norman Watney; Marina, cutter, 65, Mr. John C. Morice; Night Thought, cutter, 61, Mr. John D. Lee; Volante, cutter, 60, Mr. Herbert C. Mandslay; Surf, cutter, 54, Mr. J. Tempest; Christabel, cutter 52 Mr. Arthur C. Kinnaird Goulden Vanitee, cutter, 52, Mr. H. P. Metcalfe; Vindex, cutter, 45, Mr. Andrew Duncan; Reverie, schooner, 41, Mr. Julian Courtauld.

The prizes were (value) £100 and £50 for the first and second boats, irrespective of rig, and the conditions of the race as follow:—To sail with the usual fittings in ordinary seagoing trim; vessels to carry all their boats; a pilot, but no extra hands allowed; no limitation as to friends or canvas; no time allowances; to scher in line between the Nore Light and a flag-boat moored on the edge of the Cunt Sand in a line by Minster Church; to take stations by five o'clock; to sail from Sheerness round the Kentish Knock Light-vessel to Harwich. The preparatory signal having been hoisted, that to start was given at twenty minutes before eight o'clock. All lay with their heads up the river, the Reverie nearest the Nore and the Alarm to the flag-boat. All were undressed, and did not start, as last year, with part of their sails up. There was a stiff breeze from N., with a little E. in it, and a reach to the West Knock Buoy; a dead heat thence to fetch the Knock Light. They started from and weighed their own anchors, the Marina having very much the best of it; she had her canvas sheeted out first and canted smartly, going away at a clipping pace, followed by the Xantha yawl and Volante, which were also active. The Alarm and New Moon would appear to the uninitiated to have been slow, but they took very long to get their anchors, and the Alarm had swung before she began to set her sails, jib, as usual, first, then mainsail and trysail. The lugger set her lug-sail with great alacrity, and the Volante soon ran by the Xantha, going second; the Goulden Vanitee was fourth, but soon after right out of the race; then came Christabel, Whirlwind, New Moon, Alarm, Reverie, Night Thought, and Vindex, which did not take part in the race. The Marina spanked away and set a large square-headed top-sail, and the lugger for some time kept ahead of the Alarm. The fleet did not maintain their positions as above long; the Goulden Vanitee fell astern, the lugger gave way to Mr. Duppa's boat, and the Night Thought drew on the leaders, and, as they opened the Swale, the Alarm was running well through her boats; the Whirlwind set a jibheaded topsail, and the New Moon, as the breeze sprang up into nearly half a gale, seemed to justify the report that she had beaten the packet over from Calais to Dover; there was not, however, half enough wind for her, and while the Marina, Volante, Xantha, and the other cutters were standing well out to sea for the Alexandra Passage, she hugged the Cant Sand, apparently for the other channel. Night Thought had a reef down on the mainsail; Marina led by 300 yards, Volante, on her lee quarter shaking up every now and then, and the Xantha third, ahead of the Christabel, to leeward. Then came on the Night Thought fourth; next the Alarm, Reverie; next the Whirlwind, Brunette, &c. Thus they breasted the West Buoy of the Oaze, the Marina a quarter of a mile ahead at 7h. 34m. 30s. The race was now very exciting; all being fairly dressed, ran merrily for the Alexandra Passage, except the New Moon: she went to the starboard hand of the buoy, and held on for the Prince's Channel. The race was very exciting; the first six or seven boats were very close, and they sailed well together till abreast of the Mouse, reached at 7h. 49m. 30s.; here the Marina still held a commanding lead. The boats were now running free to fetch the Prince's Light. The wind continued, and there was a disagreeable rolling sea, and which had the usual effect with the fresh-water sailors who accompanied them. Eventually they reached over to Harwich much scattered, where they arrived in the following order and times:—

THE OCEAN MATCH OF THE ROYAL THAMES YACHT CLUB: THE YACHTS BETWEEN THE KENTISH KNOCK AND SUNK LIGHT-SHIPS.—SEE TRANSCRIBED PAGE.

	H.	M.	S.		H.	M.	S.
Alarm	4	24	36	Christabel	5	0	0
Xantha	4	40	10	Volante	5	4	10
New Moon	4	58	10	Marina	6	0	0

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

Special probate of the will and two codicils of the Most Hon. Frances Anne Vane, Dowager Marchioness of Londonderry, was granted by her Majesty's Court of Probate to the acting executor and trustee, William C. Clayton, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn; a power being reserved to the other executors and trustees—viz., Earl Vane (the son); Major-General Thomas Wood, of Littleton; and G. W. Pierrepoint Bentinck, Esq., M.P. The will is dated the 6th of July, 1864, and has no reference to the estates in Ireland. The personalty was sworn under £400,000. Her Ladyship was the only daughter and heir of the late Sir Henry Vane Tempest, Bart., and married, in 1819 (as second wife), Charles William, third Marquis of Londonderry, K.G., who died in 1854, by whom she had issue three sons and four daughters; one son and daughter died. Her Ladyship's valuable jewels are set forth in two schedules accompanying the will—one containing specific bequests of these costly personal ornaments to her daughters and other members of her family, describing distinctly the article and the person to whom it is bequeathed. The other portion of her jewellery, together with all presentations from the Sovereigns of Russia, Sweden, and Prussia, and the embassy service of plate, and racing cups (except the Antrim cup) are to go to the possessor of her residences. She also further bequeaths to her daughters, Frances Duchess of Marlborough, Alexandrina Countess of Portarlington, and Lady Adelaide Law each £500 immediate. To Lady Susan Vane, widow of her late son, Lord Adolphus Vane, an annuity of £500; and to her grandson Francis, on attaining twenty-one, the sum of £10,000. To her son Lord Ernest Vane Tempest, £30,000; and he is appointed residuary legatee. To her daughter Lady Adelaide Law a further legacy of £12,000. These three last-mentioned sums are not to be paid till the expiration of twenty-one years, unless the trustees see it desirable to do so earlier; the interest to be charged on the residuary estate. To her executors, £500 each. There are liberal annuities to the servants. All legacies to be paid free of succession and legacy duty. The income arising from the Holdernesse House and estate to be held in trust for her eldest son and issue, and to accumulate at compound interest for a period of twenty-one years. Also, the trustees are to retain from the dues and income of the Seaham Harbour, Durham, and the colliery and other estates, the yearly sum of £14,000 to accumulate at compound interest for the like period of twenty-one years, and to be held in like manner.

The will of the Most Rev. Nicholas Wiseman, the late Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, was proved in the principal registry, on the 14th inst., by the executors, the Very Rev. William Thompson, of Eske Lande, Durham; the Very Rev. Francis Searle, of York-place, Marylebone; and Henry R. Bagshawe, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn. The personalty was sworn under £2000. The will is dated Oct. 30, 1861, and a codicil Aug. 14, 1862, and bear his signature, "N. Card. Wiseman," and are attested by J. V. Harting, 24, Lincoln's-inn-fields, and one of the Cardinal's servants. By the will, he leaves the whole of his estate and effects to his executors for their own absolute use. By the codicil, he bequeaths all his copyright in works published by him, and all unpublished MSS. and correspondence, whether public or private and not relating to the administration of his diocese, to the Very Rev. Dr. Manning and the Very Rev. W. Thompson, upon trust, to dispose of the same, and hold the proceeds to be applied as he might by any writing direct (which he failed to do in a testamentary character). To all his servants he leaves one year's wages.

The will of Admiral Sir James Stirling has been proved in the London court. The executors and trustees therein appointed are his brother-in-law, the Rev. Albert Mangles, M.A.; his son, Captain Frederick H. Stirling, R.N.; and his sons-in-law, James A. Guthrie and William T. Grant Thorold, Esqrs. The personalty was sworn under £9000. The gallant Admiral was late Commander-in-Chief on the India and China stations, and had been Governor of Western Australia and a Lord of the Admiralty. Sir James executed his will Jan. 7, 1864, and died on April 22 last, aged seventy-four. He directs that the income arising from his real and personal estates shall be paid to his relict, Lady Stirling (daughter of the late James Mangles, Esq., M.P.), for her life; her ladyship supporting his three unmarried daughters and paying an annuity of £80 to his son Andrew. Upon the decease of his relict, the whole of the property is to be equally divided amongst his seven children.

The will of James Wentworth Buller, Esq., M.P., late of Downes, Devon, was proved in the London court by the executors, Sir John Thomas Buller Duckworth, Bart., and James Howard Buller, Esq., the son. The personalty was sworn under £35,000. The testator, who died at the age of sixty-five, was the only son of the late James Buller, Esq., and Anne, daughter of the late Right Rev. W. Buller, Bishop of Exeter (cousins), and married, in 1831, Charlotte, daughter of the late Lord M. H. Howard; she died in 1855, having had issue eight children. The testator, under power of settlement on marriage, apportions to each of his younger children the sum of £6500, appointing his eldest son residuary legatee of both real and personal estate, nominating as guardians to his minor children his two executors together with the Dowager Countess Carnarvon and the Countess of Suffolk.

The Queen has approved of Mr. W. H. F. Gurley as Consul at Quebec for the United States of America.

A Canada paper states that there are twice as many Jews in New York as there are in all Palestine.

A petroleum bed is reported to have been discovered in London, Canada West.

Pulmonic consumption is said to be more prevalent in Vienna than in any other city of Europe.

The finance and revenue accounts of the Government of India for the year 1863-4 have been issued, together with the estimate of revenue, expenditure, and cash balances for 1864-5. The total revenues and receipts of all the presidencies and provinces of India in the year 1863-4 amounted to £44,613,032. The estimated revenues and receipts for the year 1864-5 is £46,284,106; and of the expenditure, £46,547,483, thus showing an excess of expenditure over income of £263,377.

A daily packet service having been established between Stralsund in Prussia, and Malmoe in Sweden, a notice has been issued stating that all letters addressed to Sweden, and not specially directed to be sent by any other route, will in future be forwarded viâ Stralsund. In exception, however, to this arrangement, letters for Gothenburg and Uddevalla will continue to be forwarded, as a rule, during summer, by the Swedish mail-packets leaving Hull every Saturday. Letters for Norway will continue to be forwarded by the route of Hamburg, and will be liable to the same rates of postage as at present. Unpaid letters will be charged with an additional rate of 2d. when not exceeding half an ounce in weight.

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE BRITISH INSTITUTION.

DECEASED BRITISH ARTISTS.

Having last week reviewed the works of the "old masters" of the Continental schools, it remains to notice the pictures by deceased painters of our own school. One of the earlier of our English painters, Dobson, was, however, included in the preceding article, because his style is closely imitative of Vandyke's; and we wished, in examining the Flemish painter's works, also to trace his influence upon his assistants, copyists, and followers. It has already been said that we believe that influence to have been not for good on English portrait-painting. What it produced, in the hands of Vandyke's most popular follower, in the days of the Restoration, and under the auspices of a Court such as that of Charles II., is but faintly indicated in the portrait of "Anne, Countess of Southesk" (98). Sir Peter Lely's artificiality and meretriciousness are more conspicuous at Hampton Court and in other collections of Royal mistresses. But there is a remarkable picture here of earlier date than Vandyke's advent to this country. We allude to "The Cook Maid" (167), a large work painted by Sir Nathaniel Bacon, a younger son of Queen Elizabeth's Lord Keeper and half brother to the great philosopher. It represents, on the scale of life, a young woman seated in front of a large dresser covered with dead game, of which a swan is the most prominent object. A fowler is dimly seen in the background, and there are some live poultry in the foreground. It has been supposed that the woman is a portrait of the young second wife of the painter's father; that the title is a play upon her maiden name of Cooke; and that the subject was suggested by her domestic and culinary habits. The subject, however, is a common one among Dutch painters; and the sound and vigorous execution of the work was evidently derived from studies of the Dutch and Flemish painters rather than from Italian practice, although this excellent artist travelled into Italy expressly for his improvement in painting. Sir Nathaniel was certainly the best English painter of his time. His works are little known and not numerous, but some are preserved at Culford (where he lived), at Gorhambury, and by various branches of his illustrious family, among whom must, of course, be numbered Lord Verulam, the exhibitor of the work under notice.

Coming to the great galaxy of English painters of the time of Reynolds, we find the principal luminaries shining with no uncertain lustre. Sir Joshua himself is represented in two of the choicest works of his prime (about 1775)—the "Nymph and Child" (97) or Venus and Cupid; and the "Cottina" (101), the portrait of Lady Gertrude Fitzpatrick when a child; both contributed by the Right Hon. J. W. Fitzpatrick. The first of these is the picture that was selected by the Earl of Upper Ossory agreeably to Reynolds's will, which directed that this nobleman should have the first choice of a picture from those by the painter himself remaining at his death; Lord Palmerston, having the second choice, selected the "Infant Academy." The Nymph and Child is remarkable chiefly for its breadth and free handling, its rich creamy impasto, its glowing Titanesque glazings, and sound condition. Equally sound, pure, and masterly, though with less display of technical qualities, is the "Cottina;" and it is, besides, one of the happiest examples of that rare faculty of seizing the subtle traits of childish expression and character which the old childless bachelor painter possessed in an unrivalled degree. It is impossible for words to express the mingling archness and shyness in the sweetly innocent expression of the prim little maiden in this charming picture. Most of the remaining examples of Reynolds are in his earlier, colder, drier, more precise, and comparatively thin manner. Among the earliest are the heads of the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Cadogan (120, 121), painted not long after Reynolds's first settlement in London, and upwards of twenty years before the first-named works. A portrait group, interesting as one of the few works by Reynolds on a small scale, but a very poor example of his powers some few years later, is called in the catalogue "Earl Cadogan," &c. (147), but is probably correctly identified by a contemporary as the picture painted for Horace Walpole (as mentioned in one of his letters to George Montague at the close of 1761), representing his friends George Selwyn, the second Lord Edgcumbe, and George James Williams. A heavy portrait of the Marquis of Rockingham (139); "Lady Charlotte Fitzwilliam" (116), painted on her marriage to Lord Dundas—refined, but bluish-grey even in the glazings of the flesh, the warmer hues having doubtless fled; and a portrait of Lord Fitzwilliam, all three painted about the year 1764, exemplify the painter's middle or transition style. A full-length of the "Countess of Eglinton Playing the Harp" (118), though belonging to a more mature period, is a little cold and mannered, while the dress was apparently painted by one of the master's assistants in drapery. The pleasing group of "Mrs. Boone and her Daughter the late Lady Drummond" (143), in addition to its own proper claim to notice, acquires some adventitious interest in this exhibition from the Boone family being also represented at different ages by Reynolds's great rivals Gainsborough and Romney, as if to show the fickleness of fashionable patronage. Gainsborough's portrait of Miss Boone is, however, only an average work, calling for no particular remark. The most important examples of the artist are a fine full-length group of "The Misses Gainsborough" (155), albeit a little ungainly in the proportions; a full-length of "George IV. when Prince of Wales" (154) standing beside his horse, a graceful and gentlemanly portrait of the Prince before he had lost his figure, complexion, and some other things; and a portrait of Lady Margaret Fordyce (148), delightfully pure and sweet. The "Girl with Pitcher" (161) is an inferior replica of the picture in the International Exhibition, which we engraved. A "Woody Landscape with Cattle and Figures" (142) has a powerful but arbitrary effect of light and shade, and the execution throughout is extremely mannered. A hasty and impatient slightness of execution that rests satisfied with conveying general impressions of things in a way too obviously conventional, and too little suggestive of their true forms and character to rank as a high artistic style—a slightness that might be appropiate in water colours, but does not secure some of the distinctive qualities of oil painting—is, indeed, the great drawback in the works of a painter who was endowed with a finer artistic faculty than, perhaps, any of his contemporaries, and who, notwithstanding, is still one of the most captivating painters of any school. A charge of haste and slightness must also be brought against Romney. His method, however, as far as he carried it, was very sound and simple, and there is largeness of style in his brushwork. As a draughtsman, he had greater power and certainty than either Reynolds or Gainsborough; while, regarded as a sketcher, he may be compared to any master, ancient or modern—see the "Study for a Picture of Titania" (146). The "St. Cecilia" (141), for which sat the Lady Hamilton of whom the artist was so enamoured and whom he has so often painted, is really little more than a sketch. At all events, it affords evidence of having been painted almost at once, or alla prima, with "virgin tints," and with scarcely any of the superficial glazings and "hatchings" of Reynolds and Gainsborough. As such, it is a wonderful tour-de-force. But it has that which taints much that Romney has left; this "St. Cecilia" is not quite what the patron saint of music should, before all things, be—perfectly pure and unaffected. The other examples of the painter are of less than average merit. The elder child in the Boone group (137) is introduced most awkwardly.

There is a famous conversation piece, painted by Hogarth in 1735, the year of the "Rake's Progress," comprising members of the Western family, with Mr. Hatsell, the Rector of Rivenhall (150), sent by Sir Thomas Western. It is an interesting illustration of domestic life in England early in the last century, and the painting may be compared with some of the best Dutch painters. Also by Hogarth, a full length of Mr. Western (son of the squire in the former) in his academical dress; and a very spirited small full-length of the favourite dancer from Vienna, Eva Maria Violetta, afterwards Mrs. Garrick (126). A half-length by Copley (122) is not a good example. Hopper's portrait of the first Mrs. Arbuthnot will compare advantageously with Lawrence's more flimsy and attitudinising portrait of the second wife. But Lawrence is seen to unusual advantage in his head of the Duke of Wellington (169). For delicacy and truth, and aerial quality of light and shade, Wilkie never did anything better than the little picture of his best time called "The Errand Boy" (152); a boy on a white pony, pulled up in a village roadway, feeling in his pocket for the article he has been commissioned to procure from the neighbouring town, while two women, with a child, stand expectant at their cottage door.

In landscape and some other departments there are noteworthy works. Of several Wilsons, we may single out as among the best a "Distant View of Moor Park" (144), and a small "Landscape and Figures" (124). But all are remarkable for space and light, while the reminiscence of Claude, which two or three of them evoke, is to their advantage as Claude is illustrated here. By Old Crome, the long-unappreciated painter of Norwich, there is a little sea-piece of a market or ferry boat leaving the shore, distinguished by luminousness and a most masterly execution. By J. Stark, another little-known painter, there is a "Woody Landscape, with Cattle and Figures" (157), which has some of the best qualities of Dutch landscape. P. Nasmyth's successful and more direct imitation of the Dutch masters (an imitation to which many of our early painters were condemned by the taste of the patrons of their time), is exhibited in his admirable "Yarmouth Jetty" (129), the more interesting because Nasmyth is comparatively seldom seen in marine pieces. By Morland there are a "Scene at an Inn Door," and other examples of his easy, unaffected pencil. A "River View—Moonlight," (158), by Turner, has an unusual Rembrandtesque character. "Carnarvon Castle—Sunset" (138), treated to resemble a "classical" landscape composition, will present Copley Fielding in a new and ambitious aspect to many persons, but one by which the painter's reputation will not gain. By James Ward there are two very remarkable pictures, showing the range of his power beyond the special limits of animal-painting, in which he is almost unrivalled in the English school. The one is a scene which was doubtless witnessed by the artist himself, or he could hardly have represented it with so vivid and terrible a semblance of reality. It is the grim Yorkshire ravine of Gwmdale Scaur in a thunderstorm, herds of cattle and deer having collected, according to their wont on the approach of a storm, under the crags. The black thunder-clouds rolling along the crests overhead have thrown the ravine into deep ominous shadow, through which the herds and rocks are faintly seen, except one master white bull in the foreground, and the distant ledges of limestone, which are lit by faint blue reflections from a flash of lightning that, bursting from the cumuli immediately above them, make the clouds, by contrast, look almost as ponderous as the rocks themselves. There may be some little exaggeration here, and the impasto is too uniformly solid; but this is a work of true genius. A picture of a tiger disturbed over a half-devoured carcass of a young antelope by the approach of a prowling lion is very remarkable for its conception of the savage feline nature and for vigorous execution; but we have seen the painter to greater advantage as regards truth of character and anatomical form in some of those numerous and admirable studies of the more familiar animals which he has left behind. One cannot meet David Roberts among the deceased masters (represented by a sketch of the interior of St. Jacques, Antwerp) without a certain shock and feeling of regret.

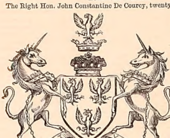
EXHIBITION OF MINIATURES AT SOUTH KENSINGTON.

This loan exhibition, which hitherto we have only had space to announce, is one of extraordinarily varied, and in some respects unique, interest. Never before were assembled in one collection three thousand and eighty-one miniatures on ivory, in enamel, oil and water colours, chalk and pencil, by all the principal miniature-painters from Holbein down to those now living. And the average quality of this great collection is surprisingly high. The miniatures are exhibited in cases in one of the new galleries, and nearly all are placed perpendicularly against the walls, so as to be seen with comfort. The instructiveness of the display would, however, have been greatly increased if the miniatures had been arranged chronologically and those ascribed to each artist grouped together, and if many of the inferior duplicates of the same person, and many weak and doubtful examples by the several painters, had been excluded. The objections of collectors to having their treasures separated, and other difficulties, seem, however, to have prevented this.

The interest of a collection of this kind is twofold, historic and artistic. Miniatures are often the only representations of the famous or infamous of a former age which have descended to us; and, to show how historically interesting are some of these delicate and minute paintings, we propose to select a few samples, hoping to have another opportunity for a few observations on miniature-painting itself—a branch of art in which English artists excelled long before they obtained distinction in any other, and which, we trust, is only temporarily eclipsed by the mechanical nondescript productions—possessing neither the beauty of art nor the approximate truth of science—of coloured photography.

Here, then, among several repetitions, is a remarkable unfinished portrait of Queen Elizabeth's handsome Earl of Essex (1818), from which Houbraken executed the fine engraving included in Birch's "Illustrious Heads." Here is the portrait of Charles I. (1064) set in the King's hair dipped in blood on the scaffold, and which belonged to John Winckley, who, with the Earl of Derwentwater, was executed at Lancashire Castle after the rising of 1715. This heirloom of the Shelleys has, engraved on the back, the names of the family who rose again for the Stuarts in 1745; and it is said that the Dowager Lady Shelley, to whom the relic was bequeathed by her father—a Winckley of Brockholes or Lancaster—remembers to have worn it, when a child, on some Jacobite anniversary, about 1790. Another interesting miniature of Charles (2240), belonging to Sir Philip Egerton, represents the King wearing a full beard, which he is said to have allowed to grow during the last few months of his life. On the reverse is a miniature of the Bishop of London (Juxon), who administered to the King the last sacrament and attended him on the scaffold. Then there is a large and fine miniature, by Cooper, of Charles II. in the robes of the Garter, together with numerous "Jacobite relics" which it was the fashion of the friends of the Stuarts to wear about the person; portraits of the Old Pretender and his wife, Maria Clementina Sobieski; and of the young Chevalier, the Countess of Albany, and Cardinal York—the three last by Sir Robert Strange; by whom, also, there are miniatures of his wife and children; his wife's father, Mr. William Lumsden, who was "out in the '45;" and, as if to show how Sir Robert, in common with Cooper, Dobson, Lely, and many more veered with the times, there is a portrait of George III., taken when the Jacobite painter had become a favourite engraver at Court. Samuel Cooper, one of whose portraits of Charles II. we have just mentioned, is best known by his miniatures of Cromwell. One of the best (373) is contributed by Lord De Grey and Ripon, and came from the collection of the Pallavicini, at Genoa, who were connected with Cromwell's family. Other not less authentic portraits of the Protector are that left by Sir Joshua Reynolds to Burke, and those belonging to Mr. Holford and Mr. John Berners. There is also the miniature, after Cooper, in enamel, of Cromwell (351), presented by him to his daughter, Bridget Cromwell, on her marriage with General Ireton. Another of the many very interesting copies is that, by Vertue, of the portrait of Edward IV. and his son, afterwards Edward V. (1833), preserved in one of the Lambeth Palace MSS., and said to be the only portrait of the boy King extant. Returning to original works, we have here the miniature of Lady Hamilton taken from the neck of Nelson after his death; and an extremely fine enamel of Nelson by Bone. Side by side, in the same case, will be found Napoleon I. and the Duke of Wellington, by the same painter, Isabey; and two admirable miniatures of Louis Napoleon and the Empress Eugénie, contributed by Lord Cowley, to whom they were presented in commemoration of the Congress of Paris in 1856. By Cosway there are memorials of the unfortunate, and, on one side, ill-requited attachment of Mrs. Fitzherbert and George IV. when Prince of Wales—portraits of both, miniatures of her eye and his, together with their wedding-ring, with the name George Augustus Frederick engraved on the inner side. The Queen contributes a large case of miniatures, containing portraits of her Majesty, the late Prince Consort, and all the living members of the Royal family, with, however, the solitary exceptions of the Prince and Princess of Wales.

It is right to mention that the following are among the most liberal contributors, either for number or rare quality, or both combined—viz., the Dukes of Buccleuch (selections from his unrivalled miniature gallery), Devonshire, and Marlborough; Lords Derby, Spencer, Shaftesbury, Cremorne, and Boston; Messrs. Holford, John Jones, Charles Polhin, John Berners, and J. Heywood Hawkins; the Countess of Caledon, and the Duc d'Aumale.



OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE BISHOP OF CHESTER.

The Right Rev. John Graham, D.D., thirtieth Bishop of Chester, and Clerk of the Closet to the Queen, who died, on the 15th inst., at the Episcopal Palace, Chester, after an illness which had lasted some time, was the son of John Graham, Esq., of Durham, and was born in 1794. He was educated at Durham School, and Christ's College, Cambridge, where he graduated with high distinction, in 1816, as Fourth Wrangler and Chancellor's Medalist, proceeding M.A. in 1819; B.D., 1829; and D.D. in 1831. He was ordained Deacon and Priest in 1818. After having been Fellow of his college from 1816 to 1830, he was, in the latter year, elected Master of Christ's. He was subsequently made Prebendary of Lincoln, in 1834, and Rector of Willingham, Cambridgeshire, in 1843; he was also Chaplain to the late Prince Consort. He was consecrated Bishop of Chester in 1848. Dr. Graham was one of the leaders of the Liberal party in Cambridge, and he was much liked by all classes, including those opposed to him in politics. He very seldom spoke in the House of Lords, and the only elaborate speech his Lordship appears to have there made was on the 7th of June, 1855, on the Cambridge University Reform Act. The Right Rev. Prelate was one of the Commissioners under that Act, but dissented from his colleagues about the transference of the powers of the Heads of Houses to the Legislative Council. His Lordship married, in 1833, Mary, daughter of the Rev. Robert Porteus. The bishopric of Chester was anciently part of the diocese of Litchfield, one of whose Bishops, removing the seat of his see to Chester, in 1075, caused his successors to be frequently styled Bishops of Chester; but it was not erected into a distinct bishopric until the reign of Henry VII., who translated Dr. John Bird to this newly made see, as its first Bishop, from Bangor, in 1541.

LORD KINGSALE.

The Right Hon. John Constantine De Courcy, twenty-ninth Lord Kingsale, Baron Courcy of Courcy, and Baron of Ringrone, and premier Baron, in the Peerage of Ireland, who died at his town house, 13, Eaton-square, on the 15th inst., was the elder son of John Stapleton, twenty-eighth Lord Kingsale, by his wife, Sarah, second daughter of Joseph Chadder, Esq., of Postlemouth, Devon. He was born Nov. 5, 1827, and married, March 1, 1855, Adelaide, only daughter of Joshua Proctor Brown-Westhead, Esq., of Lea Castle, Worcestershire, by whom he leaves an only child, Adelaide Constance Rohesia, now in her tenth year. He succeeded to the ancient honours of the family on the death of his father, Jan. 7, 1847. As he has himself died without male issue, these honours devolve on his only brother, Michael Conrad, now thirtieth Lord Kingsale, who was born in December, 1828. The family of Courcy, Lords Kingsale, claims regal descent, and alliance with most of the Royal houses of Europe, paternally through the Dukes of Lorraine, and maternally through the ducal house of Normandy. The immediate ancestor of the Lords Kingsale was Richard de Courcy, a distinguished companion-in-arms of the Conqueror, who richly rewarded him after the Battle of Hastings. This Richard's great-great-grandson, Sir John de Courcy, a famous warrior, having been successful champion for King John, in a dispute between that monarch and Philip Augustus, King of France, in 1204, and having not only shown his prowess on the occasion, but also his strength in cleaving a massive helmet with a single blow, King John granted, on his request, to him and his descendants, the privilege of remaining covered in the presence of the Sovereign, an hereditary right exercised to this day by the Lords Kingsale, the nobleman whose death we are recording having himself asserted and maintained it at a levée not very long since. This Sir John de Courcy's son Miles was created Lord Kingsale in 1181 by Henry III., and the title has descended through an eminent line of nobles for near seven centuries down to the present time, and is the premier barony of Ireland.

VISCOUNT CRANBORNE.

James Emilius William Evelyn, Viscount Cranborne, who died on the 14th inst., after a slight illness, was the eldest son of the present Sir James Brownlow William Gascoyne-Cecil, K.G., second Marquis and eighth Earl of Salisbury, by his first wife, Frances Mary, daughter and heiress of Bamber Gascoyne, Esq. He was born on Oct. 29, 1821, and had from his birth suffered the sad infliction of blindness. He was not married, and by his demise his next brother, Lord Robert Arthur Talbot Cecil, M.P. for Stamford, becomes heir apparent to the marquisate of Salisbury: he married, in 1857, Georgina, eldest daughter of the late Sir Edward Hall Alderson, a Baron of the Exchequer, and has three sons and two daughters. The remains of the lamented Viscount Cranborne were interred, on the 20th inst., in the family vault in Hatfield Church.

LORD CHARLES FITZROY.

The Right Hon. Lord Charles Fitzroy, P.C., a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Army, who died at Elm Lodge, near Hampton, on the 17th inst., after an illness of a few hours, was the second son of Sir George Henry Fitzroy, K.G., fourth Duke of Grafton, by his wife, Charlotte Maria (by her second marriage Duchess of Gloucester), daughter of James, second Earl of Waldegrave. He was born Feb. 28, 1791, and was educated at Eton. He entered the British Army in 1809, and was at the Battle of Corunna, and served in the Walcheren expedition with the Guards. In 1811 he joined Lord Hill's Staff, and was present at the siege and capture of Badajos, and the Battles of Vittoria, Pyrenees, Nivelle, Nive, Orthes, Toulouse, and Waterloo. He received the war medal, with nine clasps. He also served two years with the Army of Occupation in France. He was Lieutenant-Colonel of the 26th Foot, but retired in 1819. He represented Thetford in Parliament from 1818 to 1831, and Bury St. Edmunds from 1832 to 1847. He was Vice-Chancellor of the Household from 1835 to 1839, and was made a Privy Councillor in 1835. He married, Oct. 25, 1825, Lady Anne Cavendish, elder daughter of George Augustus Henry, first Earl of Burlington, and aunt of William, present Duke of Devonshire; and had (with two daughters, of whom the elder, Elizabeth-Mary, is the wife of Henry Lee Steere, Esq.) two sons, of whom the elder, Captain Cavendish Charles Fitzroy, 68th Foot, served with distinction in the Crimea, and married Mary, eldest daughter of the late Lumsden Strange, Esq., Judge of the Sudder Court, Madras.

THE HON. LADY DASHWOOD.

The Hon. Elizabeth Lady Dashwood, who died at Torquay, on the 12th inst., aged ninety-one, was the second daughter of John, twenty-sixth Lord Kingsale, by his wife (whom he married above 100 years ago) Susan, daughter of Conway Blennerhasset, Esq., of Castle Conway, in the county of Kerry, and was great aunt of the Lord Kingsale just deceased and of the present Lord Kingsale. Her Ladyship was married, in 1799, to Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Dashwood, R.N., K.C.B., K.G.T.S., who died in 1847.

SIR F. C. LASCELLES WRAXALL, BART.

Sir Frederick Charles Lascelles Wraxall, third Baronet, of Wraxall, in the county of Somerset, an author, editor, and essayist of note, whose death occurred on the 11th inst., at Vienna, was son of Colonel Charles Edward Wraxall, R.A., by his wife, Ellen-Cecilia, daughter of John Madden, Esq., of Richmond, Surrey, and was grandson of the historian, Sir Nathaniel William Wraxall, the first Baronet. He was born in 1828, and married, in 1852, Mary Anne, daughter of J. Herring, Esq. He succeeded to the baronetcy, May 2, 1863, on the demise of his uncle, Sir William Wraxall, the second Baronet. He was educated at St. Mary Hall, Oxford, and was formerly Assistant Commissary General in the Turkish Contingent. He was a diligent and talented writer, and his contributions to literature were numerous and popular. He at one time was editor of the Welcome Guest, and he also edited the late Sir James Outram's "Persian and Indian Despatches." Among his other works were "Camp Life" and "Life on the Sea."

GEORGE WINGROVE COOKE, ESQ.

George Wingrove Cooke, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and a Tithe and Copyhold Commissioner, who died suddenly, on the 18th inst., at his residence, 25, Cheyne-walk, Chelsea, was a man of considerable natural talent and practical energy. He was born in 1812, and was called to the English Bar in Michaelmas Term, 1835. He was chiefly known in the legal profession by his able works on tithes and copyholds. He was, a few years back, appointed a Commissioner of the Copyhold, Inclosure, and Tithe Commission, and he proved himself a most valuable and useful official. Mr. Cooke, however, won his highest reputation as a general author. In that line, his very earliest works were, perhaps, his best—viz., "The Life of Lord Bolingbroke," "The History of Party," and "The Life of Lord Shaftesbury." "The History of Party" deserves, indeed, to be a lasting and a standard work, from the lucid and useful information which it affords, and which cannot be had elsewhere. Mr. Cooke's last production of importance and popular interest was his letters written as special correspondent of the Times in China.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

I. H. T.—Attention to a few simple rules would save Problem contributors much vexation and disappointment. Firstly, they should invariably use a diagram, and on this they should not draw representations of the pieces, nor stick such representations, but should describe the pieces by their initials, as Black K, or B K, for Black King, &c. They should always write their name over the diagram, and never fail to write the solution on the back of the problem. Further; when sending more than one position, they should carefully number the diagrams.

P. BUCKHURST.—You are altogether wrong in both cases, as you will find on studying the position carefully.

D. C. L.—We shall have much pleasure in doing as you suggest whenever the arrangements of the Paper will permit.

R. S., Malines.—The examiners are not in fault. If they get your signature to a correct solution in time for the list it is inserted. Your best course is to retain your solutions and compare them yourself with those of the authors. This sensible plan will save all parties a dea' of trouble.

M. Y., Tarraville, Victoria.—In the first position, as you describe it, there are two or three pieces on the same square; and the Black King, at starting, stands in check of a White Pawn! The second position is not deformed by such blunders, but it is much too simple to be called a problem.

C. SLATER, Burnley.—No. 1 admits of an easy solution by 1. P takes P (ch); 2. Q to Q R 2nd, and mate next move. In No. 2 White may play 3. B takes Q, with the same result as the move you give.

J. STRACEY, Edinburgh.—The game is very steadily played, and the end is interesting; especially if it prove that Black's sacrifice at move 24 was sound.

M. P.—Try 1. R to K 8th (ch), then exchange Queens, and finally mate with the Bishop.

E. K.—We are not aware that any country but England has offered handsome prizes to be played for at chess by foreigners. Certainly no other, if it has done so, was ever guilty of the eccentric generosity of providing such prizes and then of paying the expenses of those foreigners who entered to compete for them. The idea is so intrinsically absurd that we trust all subscribers to a British chess tournament will in future stipulate that their money shall be devoted only to the legitimate purposes for which it is given.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NO. 1111, by D. M., R. A., F. B. S., W. P. T., Conrad, Viator; R. S., of Malines; Q. E. D., Box and Cox, L. S. D., Felix, Semper idem, Violet, D. C. L., M. P., Rifleman, Milesian, E. M., Cumbrian, W. P. W., R. B. K., Iota; T. Q., of Hampstead; Ernest, Geraldine, H. C. F., W. S. E., Cantab., Enoch Arden, C. M., Queen, The Trio, Amateur, Rook, Edward, A Sailor, B. T. W., Manfred and Man Friday, H. E. N., Old Joe, The "Marquis," Rajah, A Clerk, Peterkin, Sam, Vanguard, H. H. T., Stanley, Water Baby, Lex, Patty, G. R., Silas, I. M. S., A. H. S., Von G., Sydenham, Charley, D. D., Alpine Stock, Carlo, Hereward, R. F. B., H. D. M., S. S. C., Oliver, John Willis, G. W. B., Clarissa, Derevon, Boz, F. C. S., A Schoolboy, Phantom, Pedagogue, Lionel, Ebury, G. B. E., Pedro, T. H., Arthur, C. F. W., Percy, S. E. K., V. P., T. C. D., F. N., W. E. O., Fanny, I. F. M., H. I., Alexander, B. B., Julio, A. M., C. F. M., Trial, Dr. Pangloss, Berliner, W. P., Marian are correct. All others are wrong.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1111.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. K to Q Kt 4th	R to K B sq, or B to Q sq, or (a)	3. R to Q sq (ch)	B to Q 6th
2. P to Q B 4th	K takes Kt	4. R takes B (ch)	K takes R
		5. R to Q 2nd. Mate.
(a) 1.	K takes Kt	2. R to Q 2nd (ch)	B to Q 6th
		3. R takes B. Mate.

(He may also play 1. B to Q 6th, or B to K B 6th, but mate can then be given more speedily.)

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1112.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. R to K 2nd	K to Kt 5th	3. One of the Kts gives mate.
2. R to K Kt 3rd(ch)	Any move

PROBLEM NO. 1113.

By MR. G. H. MACKENZIE.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

M. Coste has communicated to the Academy of Sciences at Paris an account of his examination of the marine phenomenon termed "mer de lait," or "sea of milk," which he observed on Sept. 4 last in the Atlantic Ocean. The sea appeared like a vast plain covered with snow. On examining a bucketful of the water, he found the whiteness to be due to myriads of small animals, varying from half a centimetre to a centimetre in length, which were in continual motion, ascending and descending, and giving great brilliancy to the water. Some of the animals resembled worms; others had no determinate shape. They were of a jelly-like consistency, disappearing when pressed between the fingers. Treated with alcohol, they died instantly and sank to the bottom of the vase; and nitric acid dissolved them completely. Suriray names these animals "Noctiluca miliaris."

At a recent meeting of the Geological Society a note, by M. Lartet, was read respecting a hoof-phalange of the Ovibos moschatus, found by himself and the late Mr. H. Christy at the Gorge d'Enfer, and presented to the society. With it were found remains of the cave bear and cat, the reindeer and aurochs, as well as worked flints, differing from those discovered in the Dordogne caves. The Gorge d'Enfer is the most southerly point at which the Ovibos has been found; but Messrs. Lartet and Christy came upon remains of the reindeer as far south as the northern slope of the Pyrenees. The reading of this note was followed by that of papers on fossils by Messrs. Salter and Woodward.

Mr. G. J. Symons (in the Proceedings of the British Meteorological Society) gives an excellent report of the behaviour of his watch-aneroid barometer, during a journey to Scotland, many geological rambles, sea voyages to the Orkneys, and other parts. Although it has travelled fully 20,000 miles, he has not found it to vary more than a hundreth or two, and it has not cost a sixpence for repairs, after a protecting plate was added to it. Mr. Glaisher (the editor of the Proceedings), in commenting on Mr. Symons's note, says that all new watch-sized barometers which have passed through his hands have acted badly; but others which have been made more than a year have behaved as well as Mr. Symons's. He refers to some of the sources of error, and states that Mr. Browning is working with the view of bringing these instruments to greater perfection.

Dr. H. Gibbons having remarked that in California the springs and streams frequently rise some time before the winter rains, and having been led to examine into the circumstances and consider the cause, has printed a note on the subject in the American Journal of Science. He says that one mile from the foot of the hills, towards the bay of San Francisco, the country road is crossed by a small winter stream, never more than 6 ft. wide, which became perfectly dry early in August. The channel of the stream is not more than 2 ft in depth. In the latter part of August Dr. Gibbons was surprised to find in it a small pool of water at the side of the road. On Sept. 4 the wet space extended some 50 ft.; on Oct. 9 it had become a continuous running stream, discharging five or six gallons per minute; and this happened without a drop of rain. There is no great difficulty, Dr. Gibbons apprehends, in solving the phenomena. The water which falls in the winter and spring penetrates the earth and finds an impervious bed not far beneath the surface. This bed being more or less inclined, the water, of course, gravitates laterally till it finds vent in the form of a spring. In the long days of summer, when the sun s fifteen hours above the horizon and almost vertical, and when the atmosphere is very arid, evaporation is so rapid as to exhaust the supply at the springs and cause them to disappear, or, at least, to diminish the supply and carry off entirely the water from the bed of the stream in the intervals of the springs. As the season advances the days become shorter, and the power of the sun also diminishes. Evaporation becomes proportionately slower, and at length it is so retarded as not to carry off the percolations of the springs, and the rings first reappear, and then the streams.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Our Faithful Ally, the Nizam. By Captain Hastings Fraser. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) It is sincerely to be hoped and there is no small reason to believe that Captain Fraser underrates the interest taken by Englishmen, whether their views be practical and in the direction of rupees, or theoretical and in the direction of evangelisation, in Indian politics. There is scarcely an English family, one would imagine, which has not some stake, whether it be in the form of railway shares or the scarcely less important shape of a kinsman, or a kinswoman, or a friend, or an acquaintance, in India; and to them, if we do not estimate human nature too highly, Indian politics must be at least as interesting as entomology; and books on entomological science command numerous readers. We feel, therefore, tolerably confident that Captain Fraser's book will receive, not perhaps so much attention as it deserves, but yet no small notice. It is, in a manner, a tribute of gratitude to a line of princes, of whom the first was Asuph Jah. Of the great rivers of India, south of the Ganges, the first is the Mahanuddy; next comes the lordly Godavery; and next to that the Kistnah, on one of the tributaries of which is situated Hyderabad, the capital of the Nizams, of whom the first ascended the musnud in 1713, as Viceroy of the Imperial dominions in the Deccan, when Farokshir, son of Azim Shah, obtained the throne of Delhi. The present Nizam, who mounted to the musnud in May, 1857, is Afzul-oo-Dowlah, Knight of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India. In the awful days of the Indian mutiny he was "among the faithless, faithful still;" at a time when "the least show of vacillation on his part would have sufficed to set the whole of Southern India in a blaze," he remained stanch; and England, in the hour of her dire necessity, had not so many friends that she could afford to despise the Nizam. Probably his friendship was based upon selfish motives; but there are occasions when it is ungrateful to inquire into motives, and Captain Fraser says well that "a sense of justice to the Nizam's Government seemed to demand . . . some . . . recognition of the faithfulness of his Highness to the British alliance." Captain Fraser has added to his chief matter some details "concerning the cultivation of cotton in the Valley of Berar," several explanatory appendices, and a useful glossary.

The Romance of London. By John Timbs, F.S.A. (Richard Bentley.) The indefatigable prince of compilers has once more plied his industrious scissors to good purpose, and has produced three volumes full of such matter as most pleasantly beguiles a rainy day, an odd half hour, or a period of the "blues." The first volume contains Historic Sketches (that is to say, sketches of London places of historic interest), Remarkable Duels, Notorious Highwaymen, and Rogueries, Crimes, and Punishments; the second, Rogueries, Crimes, and Punishments (continued), Love and Marriage, Supernatural Stories, and Sights and Shows and Public Amusements; and the third, Sights and Shows and Public Amusements (continued), Strange Adventures and Catastrophes, Remarkable Persons, and Miscellaneous (information, we suppose). It cannot be said that many of the anecdotes related are not stale, and it can be said that, if the compiler had not confined himself to three volumes, a considerable addition might have been made without exhausting the stock—taking in modern events—of London romance; but since the days of Richardson and Clarissa Harlowe few persons fill more than three volumes with any kind—however prosy—of romance; and Mr. Timbs has the credit of having condensed into his three volumes a "parlous" amount of the gossip which men greedily devour.

The Great Schools of England. By Howard Staunton. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) It is not well to predict, but if this sturdy volume do not become popular, at least one humble individual will be mightily surprised. The book cannot fail to be interesting to all fathers and mothers, and it appeals to the sympathies of everyone who has been a boy and has been educated at a public school; for even those who have been brought up at small public schools are glad—for purposes of comparison, of disparagement, of self-congratulation, or the like—to know all they can learn about the great public schools; and those who never attended any sort of public school are prompted by feelings of envy or contempt, or something better or worse, to a similar yearning. The schools treated of with—so far as our personal recollection in one instance is a trustworthy guide—unusual accuracy of detail are, in order, Eton, Winchester, Westminster, St. Paul's, Merchant Taylors', Charterhouse, Harrow, Rugby, Shrewsbury, Christ's Hospital, and, more briefly dealt with, Cheltenham College, Marlborough College, Rossall School, Wellington College, and Dulwich College. The author's chief purpose is prefaced by an introduction, in which he says much that we do, and much that we do not, echo with respect to educational methods: we consider the idea of attaching degradation to a boy's flogging is ridiculous; it would be quite as easy, if not easier, to show that the infliction of impositions is degrading. Flogging stirs the blood and calls forth some of the heroic endurance; any cur can bear the painless drudgery of impositions. The introduction is followed by a summary of the "General Recommendations of her Majesty's Commissioners appointed to inquire into the Revenues and Management of certain Colleges and Schools." The book has attached to it a copious index, and is adorned by twenty excellent illustrations. Let it not, moreover, be supposed that, though much care has evidently been bestowed upon detail, dry detail is the volume's only recommendation. Good store of anecdote, amusing and pathetic, has been provided; and the exquisite letters (pp. 431, 432) written to the famous poet, soldier, and gentleman, Sir Philip Sydney, by his father and mother, when the future "Scipio, Cicero, and Petrarch of his time" was a boy at Shrewsbury, are wonderfully moving, and worthy of the attention of every father, every mother, and every son.

Spring and Autumn. By the Author of "Morning Clouds." (Longmans.) A touching, graceful, truthful story (in one volume) of people who loved each other tenderly and yet did each other irreparable harm. For such things are; and there is nothing more fraught with woe to mankind than the abominable habit of "meaning everything for the best;" those who indulge that bad habit nine times out of ten bring about irremediable mischief. Nevertheless, Cyril, for love of whom poor Isabel sank into an early grave and dutiful Maida acted unrighteously, and who, after the fashion of the world, married fat Mrs. Angelina Jones, the West India planter's rich widow, with two children, deserved to be tied up to the capstan of his own ship and treated to a taste of the cat-o'-nine-tails.

A Selection from the Works of Frederick Locker. With Illustrations by Richard Doyle. (Edward Moxon and Co.) A very pretty specimen of "Moxon's Miniature Poets." The contents are a collection of lyrics of all degrees, chiefly the higher, of merit. Their principal characteristics are humour, pathos, and clever versification; some are simply and truly exquisite; a few have a slangy savour which is unpleasant; and several appear to be written in not very successful imitation of Hood.

Grasp Your Nettle. By E. Lynn Linton. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) A very readable and wonderfully vivacious three-volume novel. It abounds with excellent sketches of character, striking tableaux, pretty domestic scenes, piquant dialogue, the warmth of passion, sober sense, and playful satire; and it teaches, if we have read it to understanding, the wholesome doctrine that one should face difficulties, not flee from them—grasp one's worldly nettle manfully (in which case it will be harmless), not touch it gently and nervously (in which case it will assuredly sting). The loving, trusting, courageous Aura is a portrait which does honour to the author's conception and to womankind; but we fail to see any particular virtue or attribute in Trelawney which should have given him favour in her sight. "Handsome, clean-cut, capable hands, with the generous palm and the sinewy wrist," are all very well; but to us they seem suggestive rather of a capability of what pugilists would call "punishing" than of any higher quality; and, in other respects, we can quite understand how the good people of Clive Vale came to consider him a curmudgeon. That he should lack moral courage was, of course, necessary for the author's purpose of contrasting, to the elevation of woman, Aura with Jasper, and showing that man is not nearly so ready as woman to grasp the moral nettle. For, be it known that, had Mr. Jasper Trelawney Carthew, in the first instance, grasped his nettle to the extent of squeezing out the truth about news which declared him a widower, and free to marry again, Aura would have had no nettle to grasp; not a page of the novel we are speaking of, in all likelihood, would have been written; and the public would have lost a chance of being charmed, enlightened, and amused.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

MISS CAREW. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS, Author of "Barbara's History." 3 vols.
ALEC FORBES OF HOWGLEN. By GEORGE MACDONALD, M.A. 3 vols.
VIOLET OSBORNE. By LADY EMILY PONSONBY.
A FAITHFUL WOMAN. By Author of Cousin Geoffrey.
ROSE AYLMER'S HOME. 3 vols.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

INTERESTING NEW WORKS.

THE LIFE OF JOSIAH WEDGWOOD; from his Private Correspondence and Family Papers. By ELIZA METEYARD. Dedicated to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone. Vol. I., 8vo, with upwards of 100 Illustrations. 21s.
ADVENTURES AMONG THE DYAKS OF BORNEO. By F. BOYLE, F.R.G.S. 8vo. With Illustrations. 15s.
BRIGAND LIFE IN ITALY. By Count MAFFEI. "Two volumes of interesting research."—Times.
YACHTING ROUND THE WEST OF ENGLAND. By the Rev. A. G. L. ESTRANGE, R.T.Y.C. 8vo. Illustrated. 15s.
IMPRESSIONS OF LIFE AT HOME AND ABROAD. By Lord EUSTACE CECIL. 8vo. 14s.
HISTORIC PICTURES. By BAILLIE COCHRANE, M.P. "Two entertaining volumes."—Times.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

NEW BOOKS THIS DAY at all the Libraries:—
1. SELVAGGIO: A Story of Italian Country Life. By the Author of "Mary Powell. 1 vol. 8s.
2. THE GAYWORTHYS. A Story of American Country Life. 2 vols., post 8vo. 16s.
3. THE GREAT SCHOOLS OF ENGLAND. By HOWARD STAUNTON. With Illustrations. 8vo. 12s.
4. HELEN FELTON'S QUESTION. By AGNES WYLDE. 1 vol. 8s.
5. SIR FELIX FOY, BART. A Novel. By DUTTON COOK. 3 vols. 24s.
6. LIFE IN ALGERIA. By Mrs. GEORGE ALBERT ROGERS. 8vo. 12s.
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Milton House Ludgate-hill.

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT. Illuminated by W. and G. AUDSLEY, Architects. Chromo-lithographed by W. R. TYMMS. With an Illustration in the most perfect style of Chromo-lithography, after the picture by Charles Rolt.
The Work contains "The Sermon on the Mount," St. Matthew, chapters v., vi., vii. It is a series of twenty-seven full-page Illuminations, gorgeously executed in gold and colours, all of which are entirely different in design and treatment; with an Illustration from a picture painted expressly for the Work by one of the first artists of the day. The size of the Work is 22 in. by 17½ in.
Artists' Proofs, on finest extra thick paper, bound in full morocco, superbly gilt, £6 6s., published at £12 12s.
Proofs on finest extra thick paper, bound in extra cloth, richly gilt, £4 14s. 6d., published at £10 10s.
General Copies, on thick paper, bound in extra cloth, gilt, £3 13s. 6d., published at £8 8s.
Warranted perfect in every respect, and precisely the same as when issued by the publishers, and equally as good as if the full price were paid.
N.B. Sent carriage-free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of a remittance for the amount.
London: S. and J. GILBERT, 4, Copthall-buildings (back of the Bank of England), E.C.

Ninth Edition, with 26 Plates, price 1s., postage-free,
STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process of Diaphanie; easily performed by any person, at small cost.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

New Edition, with Drawings in Colour, price 2s. 6d.; post-free, 2s. 10d.,
A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON LANDSCAPE PAINTING AND SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHASE, M.W.C.I. Edited by the Rev. J. Harris, M.A.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS, Modern and Gothic (Handbooks of), by VICTOR TOUCHE.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of DIFFERENT PERIODS, for the Use of Illuminators and Decorators, by F. G. WOOD.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 6d., postage-free,
PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY; an Easy Method of Colouring Photographs (producing a beautifully enamelled appearance), which may be practised by any person unaccustomed to drawing and ignorant of art. By M. C. C.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Fifth Edition, with 12 Diagrams printed in colours, price 2s.,
PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Draperies, Backgrounds, &c. A guide to Painting in Water Colours; to which is added Instructions for Painting in Oil Colours. By A. N. RINTOUL.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., W.

This day, price 1s.,
ON HAY-FEVER, HAY-ASTHMA, OR SUMMER CATARRH. By W. ABBOTTS SMITH, M.D., M.R.C.P. Lond., Physician to the Metropolitan Free Hospital and to the Finsbury Dispensary, late Senior Physician to the City Dispensary, &c.—London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

BY NEWMAN HALL, LL.B.
THE SAVIOUR'S BIBLE: A Plea for the Old Testament. 32mo. 3d.
London: JAMES NISBET and Co., Berners-street; John Snow, Paternoster-row; and all Booksellers.

BAGSTER'S CHURCH SERVICES. Convenient in Form, and Durably Bound.
At all the principal Booksellers'; and at 15, Paternoster-row, London

---

WHAT WILL THIS COST TO PRINT? is a question often occurring to literary men, public characters, and persons of benevolent intentions. An immediate answer to the inquiry may be obtained. A Specimen Book of Types and information for authors sent, on application, by RICHARD BARRETT, 13, Mark-lane, London.

SCRAPS for SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c. A large Assortments, comprising Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, Birds, &c. Specimen Sheets from 1s.
WM. BARNARD, 59, Connaught-terrace, London, W.

THE NEW DERBY RACE-GLASS, price 50s., with sling-case complete. Will show distinctly the entire race, from "the start" to "the coming in." Guaranteed the cheapest and best glass (a new model) ever offered to the public. Sent carriage-free to any part of the kingdom. Post-office orders payable to WILLIAM CALLAGHAN, Optician, 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street).

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—OPERA GLASSES, in every variety of form and mounting, matchless for their great magnifying power and sharpness of definition. At CALLAGHAN'S, No. 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street), sole agent for the celebrated opera and field glasses by Voigtländer, Vienna.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. One hundred thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.C.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING MACHINES.—Prize Medal 1862.—These machines, made by the original Patentees and Introducers of the Invention, stand foremost and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with exceeding rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is without cord or ridge, and the thread cannot be pulled out.—66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES, for ornamenting Chimney-glasses. 18 stamps per set of 72 slips. Tissue for Stove Aprons, 8 stamps per packet; 6 for 40 stamps.—R. PETERS, Tovil, Maidstone.

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.
MONTHLY FAMILY TICKETS are now issued by the SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY from Charing-cross and London Bridge, or Reading, to Boulogne, Calais, Dover, Folkestone, Ramsgate, Margate, Deal, Canterbury, and Tunbridge Wells.
For fares, &c., see programmes and time-books.

SATURDAY to MONDAY at the SEASIDE, &c.—SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.
Cheap Saturday to Monday Return Tickets are now issued from Charing-cross and London Bridge, every Saturday, by certain trains, to Ramsgate, Margate, Hastings, St. Leonards, Tunbridge Wells, Dover, Folkestone, Herne Bay, Canterbury, Deal, &c.
Weekly Return Tickets to Boulogne.
For time of trains, fares, &c., see programmes and time-books.

SUNDAY and MONDAY EXCURSIONS. SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.
CHEAP EXCURSIONS every SUNDAY and MONDAY from Charing-cross and London Bridge to Ramsgate, Margate, Canterbury, Deal, and Sandwich at 7.35 a.m.; to Dover, Folkestone, Hythe, and Shorncliffe at 8.20 a.m.
On SUNDAYS only to Hastings and St. Leonards at 8.10 a.m.
On MONDAYS only to Whitstable Harbour and Herne Bay at 7.35 a.m.

FARES THERE AND BACK.

	Third class.	Second class.
To Whitstable and Herne Bay	2s. 6d.	4s. 6d.
To the other stations named	3s. 6d.	5s. 6d.

CHEAP FARES also to Gravesend, Stroud, Chatham, and Sheerness every Sunday.
Children under Twelve half price. Tickets available for the day only and by the Excursion-trains.
C. W. EBORALL, General Manager.

FOUR POUNDS TEN SHILLINGS PER CENT DEBENTURE STOCK.—The GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY are now ISSUING this Stock. Applications to be made to J. B. OWEN, Secretary.
Bishopsgate Terminus, June 13, 1865.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and much superior to low-priced Sherry. One guinea per dozen. Excellent Clarets, 18s. and 24s. per dozen. Terms cash. Three dozen, rail paid.—W. D. WATSON, Wine Merchant, 73, Great Russell-st. (corner of Bloomsbury-sq.), London, W.C.—Established 1841.

PORT and SHERRY, 12s. per Dozen; Claret and Sauterne, 10s. per Dozen.—VICTORIA WINE COMPANY, 63, Lower Thames-street, E.C. Two samples sent for 12 stamps.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

PALE SHERRY at 36s. per Dozen, fit for a gentleman's table. Bottles and Cases included. Terms, Cash. Post Orders payable Piccadilly.
Samples sent free of charge.
CHARLES WARD and SON
(Established upwards of a century), 1, Chapel-street West, Mayfair, W., London.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH BREWINGS of the above Ale are now being SUPPLIED in the finest condition, in Bottles and in Casks, by FINDLATER, MACKIE, and CO., 33, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

TONIC BITTERS.
WATER'S QUININE WINE,
the most palatable and wholesome Bitter in existence;
an Efficient Tonic,
an unequalled stomachic, and a gentle stimulant.
Sold by Grocers, Italian Warehousemen, Wine Merchants, Confectioners, and others, at 30s. a dozen.
Manufactured by Waters and Williams,
2, Martin's-lane, Cannon-street, London.
Wholesale Agents, E. Lewis and Co., Worcester.

PEPSINE.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE, Morson's Pepsine Lozenges, are perfectly palatable forms for administering this popular remedy for weak digestion. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 31, 33, and 124, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C. Pepsine Wine, in bottles, at 3s., 5s., and 10s. each; lozenges, in boxes, at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each.

SUMMER DRINKS.—Soda Water, 2s. per dozen; Lemonade, Gingerade, and Orangeade, 1s. 9d. and 2s. 3d.; Seltzer, Potash, Magnesia, 7s. Packages 2s. per dozen, same price allowed on return. Agents wanted where none are appointed. T. P. WOOD, Jun., Chesterfield.

THE TEA ESTABLISHMENT, 4 and 5, King William-street, City, E.C.
Reduction of 6d. per lb. in the Tea Duty.
The PRICES of ALL OUR TEAS are this day REDUCED 6D. PER POUND.
Our Customers should order Tea at 6d. per pound less than the price previously paid.
We hope to give Improved Quality at the Reduced Prices.
June 1, 1865.
RIDGWAY and COMPANY.

THE ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, awarded to any English Manufacturers of CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
Prize Medals, 1851, 1853, 1855, and 1862.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, IN PACKETS SECURED IN TINFOIL.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of GENERAL CONSUMPTION.
It is equally adapted for invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly RECOMMENDED BY MEDICAL MEN.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic practitioners, and the medical profession generally, recommend COCOA as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of homœopathy was first introduced into this country there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach: the nut was either supplied in the crude state or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice.
J. EPPS, of London, Homœopathic Chemist, was induced, in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through, as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach.
For general use, Epps's Cocoa is distinguished as an invigorating, grateful breakfast beverage, with delicious aroma.
Dr. Hassall, in his work, "Food and its Adulterations," says:—"Cocoa contains a great variety of important nutritive principles—every ingredient necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, cocoa stands very much higher than either coffee or tea."
Directions—Two teaspoonfuls of the powder in a breakfast-cup filled up with boiling water or milk. Tin-lined ¼ lb., ½ lb., and 1 lb. labelled packets, sold by Grocers, Confectioners, and Chemists.
Each packet is labelled "J. Epps, Homœopathic Chemist, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; 48, Threadneedle-street; Manufactory, 398, Euston-road."
Epps's Homœopathic Medicines.—Caution.—The medicines supplied by Agents are secured by a band over the cork, bearing James Epps's signature, without which none are genuine. They can be had direct by post.

MENIER'S FRENCH CHOCOLATE defies all honest competition. The healthiest and most delicious aliment for breakfast. Unadulterated; highly nutritious. Annual consumption exceeds 4,000,000 lb. Menier, 23, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden; and sold retail by all respectable houses.

THE ONLY PRIZE-MEDAL CORN FLOUR.
MAIZENA.
Reported by the Jury "Exceedingly excellent for food." Costs no more than inferior articles.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER. Recommended by the Analyst in the "Lancet" for making Bread without Yeast, and for Pastry. Sold everywhere.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.
COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W.—Supported by Voluntary Contributions.—Two Hundred and Ten Beds are now occupied. Liberal and Continuous SUPPORT IS REQUIRED to meet the current expenses of this Charity.
PHILIP ROSE, Hon. Sec.; HENRY DOBBIN, Sec.

LADIES' SCHOOL, 40 and 50 Guineas Yearly for Board and Education—Laundress, Seat in Church, Musical Pieces, Drawing Materials, and use of Books included. No extras. Masters attend daily. References, H. S., Mr. LIMBERD'S, 344, Strand, W.C.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837, under Royal Patronage), 17, Waterloo-place, London, S.W.
ARTHUR R. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

LONDON and RYDER, Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, and Diamond Workers, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street), have NOW ON VIEW a new and recherché Stock of first-class JEWELLERY, in best possible taste, of original design, and sterling quality, as wedding souvenirs.
London and Ryder, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street). Prize Medal at the International Exhibition for "General good taste and merit." A large variety of Diamond Ornaments. A liberal discount for cash always deducted.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair. Solid Gold Lockets, for Hair, from 5s. each; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Alberts, from 25s. each, &c. Illustrated Catalogues sent free.
213, Regent-street, London.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

FOR FETES AND FLOWER SHOWS. PARASOLS and SUNSHADES.—W. and J. SANGSTER respectfully solicit inspection of their extensive assortment of Sunshades and Parasols, prepared expressly for these occasions, of the newest and most elegant designs.—140, Regent-street; 75, Cheapside.
N.B. Parasols adapted for presents and fêtes in great variety, at 140, Regent-street.

NICHOLSON and CO., Silkmercers, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, beg to announce that their stock is now replete with new Summer Silks. Messrs. N. and Co. have also bought in Lyons several lots of last year's patterns at about half their original prices. 300 Patterns post-free. Established 22 years. No connection with any other firm.

---

300 PATTERNS POST-FREE. Messrs. NICHOLSON beg to state that they have greatly improved the system of sending Patterns of SILKS, &c., by post. They now undertake to forward, post-free, 300 Patterns of Silks, each piece 3½ in. by 2½ in. in size, comprising every colour and design now fashionable in London and Paris, and representing a stock of £20,000 in value.
Nicholson's, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. Coloured Glacés, 30 shades, from 1s. 4½d. per yard. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. Checks and Stripes, from 1 guinea a Dress. Reversible. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

FOULARDS EXTRAORDINARY. A large parcel of these fashionable Silks, beautiful patterns, at £1 5s. 6d. the Dress. Samples free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. Moire Antiques, Corded Silks, Chené and Broché Silks, from 2 guineas. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S BLACK SILKS. Black Glacés, Gros Grains, Drap de Lyon, Drap de Paris, &c., from 1 guinea a Dress. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN WELL DRESSED?—Boys' Knickerbocker Suits in Cloth, from 15s. 9d. Useful School Suits, from 12s. 9d. Patterns of the Cloths, directions for measurement, and 45 Engravings of New Dresses, post-free.—NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

SALE OF FRENCH ORGANDIE MUSLINS, ETC., MUCH UNDER PRICE.
GRANT and GASK beg to announce the Sale of one of the largest and most important purchases ever completed of the finest new FRENCH ORGANDIE MUSLINS, Percale Robes, beautiful Organdie Muslin Robes, with Shawls, to match, &c., the whole of which will be sold extremely cheap—viz., from one fourth to one half less than the customary prices.
Upwards of 800 Pieces very fine French Organdie Muslins, all at 8½d. per yard. Upwards of 1000 Pieces of Ditto, the finest and choicest patterns produced, from 8½d. to 12½d. per yard.
French Percale Robes, with Jackets, for Morning and Seaside Wear, at 12s. 9d. each, in beautiful new designs.
And the whole of the richest Organdie Muslin Robes, with Shawls to match, at 1 guinea, being just half the former price.
Patterns forwarded to the country.
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

FANCY SILKS.—Patterns forwarded of new and beautiful Fancy Silks, from 2½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards. Any length cut. Odd Dress Lengths of rich Silks, from 2 guineas Full Dress, very cheap.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FOULARD SILKS.—A Great Variety of New French Foulard Silks, best quality, from 28s. 6d. the Full Dress. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FRENCH KID GLOVES.—CALVAT'S BEST PARIS KID GLOVES, at 2s. 6d. per pair, usual price 3s. 3d. Sample pair by post.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSES, by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 119, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Yachting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys, for Ladies' Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make at moderate prices. A stock always on hand of Chemises, Nightdresses, Petticoats, Mourning Robes, &c. Price-books by post. Address "Ladies' Department," WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

INDIA OUTFITS and WEDDING TROUSSEAUX. Newest styles, best work, and moderate prices. Price-books by post.—WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6½d. the yard, made of bright Italian silk, with the guarantee for durability of eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster-bridge, S.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage paid on parcels of £5 and upwards, Single and Double Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Tickings, Huckaback and Diaper Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Lawn and Cambric Handkerchiefs.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

VERY IMPORTANT TO TAILORS. PLATT'S TWEEDS, the very best article that can be made for gentlemen's Riding Trousers, are now ready, and can only be had of James Platt and Co., 78, St. Martin's-lane, W.C. Patterns sent free. 5 per cent allowed for cash. On and after July 1 all parcels will be prepaid.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now open).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, £2 4s. 6d.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.
Patterns free.
A large assortment of New Patterns, £2 5s. 6d. for 14 yards.
Black Gros Grains, Black Gros de Suez.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

MUSLINS and GRENADINES.
Printed and Striped Muslins. Patterns free.
Now and last season's Grenadines, Black and Coloured.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW TRANSPARENT CIRCULAR MANTLES,
in Striped and Checked Materials, 18s. 6d.
Grenadines, Wool and Silk—a variety of Fancy Materials.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips,
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

FORD'S NEW JACKETS FOR LADIES, at 76, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon, London, W., comprise a large number of beautifully braided patterns in Silk, Cashmere, Cloth, and Velvet, at various prices, all of which are arranged in sizes to fit ladies without delay.

FORD'S GUINEA JACKETS, to wear open or closed, beautifully braided; materials silk, cashmere, and fine cloth; are especially worthy of notice. Ford's New Jacket Rooms exhibit the largest and cheapest stock in Europe.
T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).

FORD'S GLACÉ SILK SKIRTS, in various styles, ready for immediate wear. A full, handsome Skirt for 3½ guineas; also, Seaside Dresses, with Jacket, complete, 2½ guineas.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RICH SILK MANTLES display the best taste and newest designs of the Season, in Glacé and Gros Grain Silk, from 38s. 6d. to 10 guineas. The New Grenadine Bernouses, Lace, and other thin textures, from 14s. 6d. to 3 guineas. Carriage Wraps, Waterproof Cloaks, warranted to resist rain, from 21s.—Thomas Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).

FORD'S RIDING HABITS, of superior make and style, price 3 to 8 guineas; Little Girls' Habits, 2 guineas; Ladies' Riding Trousers, chamois leather and cloth, 21s. per pair. Patterns and Illustrations free.
Thomas Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).

LADIES' RIDING HABITS.—CAUTION. FORD and GLOVER, Habit-makers to the Queen, the Princess of Wales, and the Empress of the French, inform the public that they have no connection with any Firm advertising or trading in the name of Ford. Established 30 years, at 10, Holles-street, Cavendish-square, London, W.

THE Celebrated SHREWSBURY WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS, JACKETS, and Gentlemen's OVERCOATS. Patterns post-free.
I. E. and W. PHILLIPS, 37, High-street, Shrewsbury.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques, in White, Black, and all the New Colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.—Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square, W.

SEWELL and CO. have an unequalled display of FRENCH CHINTZES, from 1s. to 1s. 6d. per yard. Also of the much-admired Cretonne Chintz, from 2s. 3d. per yard.
Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square.

SANSFLECTUM CRINOLINES, 17s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA or WAVED JUPONS, 18s. 6d.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

THOMSON'S PRIZE MEDAL.
15s. 6d.
Illustrations post-free.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

RHUMPOOR CHUDDAH SHAWLS. LEWIS and ALLENBY have bought, at the India sale which has just taken place, some very choice lots of these shawls, in good qualities and large sizes. Also, some very good and cheap Decca Shawls.
193, 195, and 197, Regent-street; 61 to 65, Conduit-street.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL have returned from Paris with their Elegant GUINEA BONNET, in Tulle, Crape, French Straws, &c.—Show-rooms (no shop), 61 Regent-street (four doors from Swan and Edgar's).

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.
CAPPER and WATERS, 26, Regent-street, London, S.W.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE. WAUGH and SON, Carpet Manufacturers, beg respectfully to acquaint the nobility, clergy, and gentry that their Show-rooms contain a choice assortment of Axminster, Velvet-pile, Brussels, and other CARPETS, in designs of Alhambra, Greek, Mediæval, and other styles, for reception-rooms, dining-rooms, halls, staircases, &c., and of superior fabrics, by which their reputation has been established. Tasteful designs for Bed-room Carpets of a cheaper description. Silk Damasks, Reps, Cretonne Chintzes, and other materials for window curtains and portières. Gilt Cornices, Looking-glasses, and other gilt decorations of elegant designs.—3 and 4, Goodge-street, and 65 and 66, Tottenham-court-road. Entrance in Goodge-street.

TOILET VINEGAR.—VINAIGRE DE TOILETTE DE JEAN VINCENT BULLY.—This celebrated article may be obtained of all Chemists and Perfumers in the United Kingdom. Its well-known superiority over Eau de Cologne has obtained for it a universal reputation. Its hygienic properties render it invaluable as a disinfectant and an exquisite adjunct to the ball-room. A small quantity poured into the water before washing neutralises any impurities and renders the skin white and soft. In the bath it is remarkable, invigorates the body, and imparts to it a most agreeable perfume. It is an admirable lotion for the mouth, preserving the gums and teeth. To smokers it is invaluable, imparting a delicious perfume to the breath. In hot countries and the Colonies this production is invaluable. Sole wholesale Agents, R. HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C., London.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-street; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomachic Disorders of every kind and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

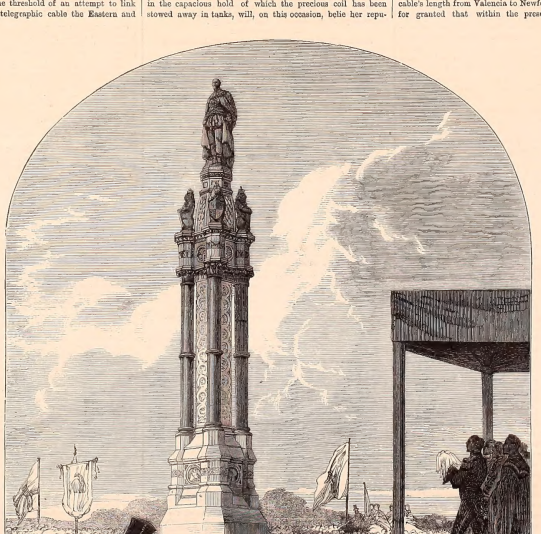
WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property, &c. Highest price given. Ladies and gentlemen waited on. Address Mr. or Mrs. D. DAVIS, 46, Marylebone-lane, Oxford-street, W. Parcels being sent, Post-office orders remitted. Established 1800.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, JUNE 24, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1322.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, JULY 1, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE



THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH CABLE.

ONCE more we are upon the threshold of an attempt to link together by means of the telegraphic cable the Eastern and Western hemispheres. That it may issue in permanent success will be the universal wish on both sides of the Atlantic. The experiment made seven years ago has demonstrated the feasibility of the undertaking, for it will be hard indeed if the ground which science won science cannot find means to retain. The compliments exchanged between our gracious Sovereign and the President of the United States, albeit so soon followed by an irremovable obstruction in the line by which they were conveyed, were regarded then as the first fruits of an enterprise destined to unite in closest amity the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race. That promise was premature. One cannot say that it was without significance—for, like the dove sent forth from the ark which returned to Noah with an olive leaf, so the first message transmitted from the Old to the New World by means of an electric wire was a prophecy that in due time the ocean should practically cease to separate Europe from America. Believing in that "sure word," scientific men have studied with praiseworthy assiduity and perseverance all the conditions of complete success, and, with one exception only, are confident of a favourable result. That exception relates to the weather during the period of laying the cable. Nautical experience has selected what is supposed to be the most auspicious fortnight in the year, and they whose knowledge is best grounded and most reliable assure us that the probabilities of accomplishing the much-desired object reach very near to moral certainty. We shall assume, then, that the Great Eastern, in the capacious hold of which the precious coil has been stowed away in tanks, will, on this occasion, belie her reputation for singular ill-fortune, and will safely "pay out" the cable's length from Valencia to Newfoundland. We shall take for granted that within the present month regular telegraphic communication will be established between the two hemispheres, and that shortly afterwards the London journals will commence a daily summary of the New York news of the day before. We know well enough—and if we did not there are many ready to tell us—that

> There's many a slip
> 'Twixt the cup and the lip;

but we mean to disregard it, and to brave the reproach which matter-of-fact people may deem due to an unauthorised attempt to interpret the future. We wish to indulge in dreams which we are strongly encouraged to believe will, not long hence, be converted into realities; to reason upon a basis which, as everybody must be aware, is as yet hypothetical; to give rein to our thoughts from a starting-point which possibly may never exist. In this matter, however, as in others, we merely act upon the highest attainable evidence; for, unless—which there is not the shadow of a reason for suspecting—we have been greatly misled by the most competent judges, there are more solid grounds for concluding that the cable will be safely laid than that it will not.

What a prospect opens to this generation through that presupposed event! What a cloudland, gorgeous and unsubstantial, it appears in the distance, yet how real, material, palpable, will it prove when we are encircled by, and grow familiar with, its marvellous phenomena! For instantaneous communication between America and Europe means, of course, in its ultimate development, instantaneous communication all the world over. And so we shall have daily before our eyes a bird's-eye view of human affairs over the entire surface of the globe, and shall be able to study all nations, as day by day they are making contemporaneous pages of history. They who feel an interest in it may pursue this thought into the yet distant ages of the future. All peoples of all climes, of all stages and varieties of civilisation, of all forms of social economy, political government, and religious culture, virtually in presence of each other, and observant of each other's mutual bearing—why, what can arise out of this but a rapid assimilation of central ideas, and a modification of the lower by the higher types of mutual organisation? We witness at present but the initiatory stage of the process, and yet the changes it has introduced are wonderful—wonderful even beyond the possibility of conception by our forefathers. But we should fail in our duty if we failed to realise the vast moral results which must inevitably grow out of intimate contact between mind and mind in every region of the earth. We are unable to imagine the different ways in which a simultaneous knowledge of the same current facts will operate in elevating the general condition, and moulding the more prominent features, of humanity; but we are warranted in the belief that its tendency will be beneficent, its influence ameliorative, its formative virtue progressive and ever upward, and its effects in unison with the hopes of those who rejoice to believe in "a good time coming." What was the origin of our race is a problem which sinks into comparative insignificance beside the infinitely more interesting question of what its destiny is tending. The discoveries and applications of science, happily, point in a direction consonant with the instinctive yearnings of our hearts; and every new invention of world-wide importance gives us fresh reason for adopting as the motto of the entire human family the word "Excelsior!"

INAUGURATION OF THE BERKSHIRE MONUMENT TO THE LATE PRINCE CONSORT, AT ABINGDON.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

Leaving, however, this widest sphere of speculation, let us restrict our thoughts to the more immediate relations of England and America likely to follow upon the establishment of telegraphic communication between them. No one doubts for a moment that it will powerfully conduce to international amity, and will be the best possible guarantee for the preservation of peace. War between civilised nations, and still more between nations allied in blood, in language, and in religion, is seldom the first thought or desire of either when misunderstandings arise. Events hurry on, and are precipitated headlong like a flash of lightning, to set the passions of the public suddenly ablaze. The green wood of material interests underlies the more inflammable elements of our nature, and the fire beneath it needs to be fanned and fed by the breath of false reports and misrepresentations, and exaggerations, for a considerable while before national wrath gets kindled. Where the interval between a fancied offence and the true explanation is narrowed to a few hours, the danger of conflict will seem left for the play of unworthy suspicions. The spark is trampled out before it takes hold upon what is most combustible in the popular temper—for ignorance and misappreheusion of each other's motives are the fruitful conditions of quarrel between nations as between individuals.

Peace, however, is but a negative quality, although an invaluable one. There is a more positive result of instantaneous intercommunication to be considered. Not only will it carry on large commercial transactions with a distant country are, perhaps, the only persons competent to estimate the uncertainty, the hazard, oftentimes the loss, arising from doing trade upon data liable to change between the time when the state of the market is known and a purchase is ordered or a consignment is made, and the time when the goods arrive at their destination. The interval of a fortnight or even less is occasionally sufficient to change the whole aspect of mercantile undertakings—and the knowledge which is gained by a subsequent mail might, if possessed a few days earlier, have saved many a merchant not merely from torturing anxieties but from sudden bankruptcy. The consequence of which it is true, will not entirely obviate this disadvantage, but it will at any rate diminish it by one half. Values will still fluctuate during the period required for the transit of merchandise, but need not be subject to such changes, as now, during the interval which must elapse between the giving and receiving of orders. This is but one illustration of the commercial benefit to be anticipated from the extension of telegraphic intercourse; the simplest and most intelligible one. Hundreds of a like bearing might be named. The general effect, however, will undoubtedly be a large increase of trade intercourse between the two countries—a greater amount, at much less risk, and with much less of that wear and tear of the spirits which suspense so inevitably entails.

Out of increased commerce springs increased amity. People whose mutual interests demand frequent exercise towards one another of considerate courtesy, and unobtrusive kindness, come to honour, get to respect one another, to appreciate one another's excellences, and to esteem one another's characters; let these friendships be multiplied—as they will be by the rapid telegraphic cable—and the ties which will bind the two nations together will be multiplied in the same proportion. Through the medium of these ties and of others, the prevailing sentiment of the two peoples will be more and more assimilated; and the influence of each upon the other, in accordance with an infallible moral law, will be raised, refined, and sublimated. In this way the telegraph will become a disciplinarian, whose training, because unsuspected, will be the more felt. The novel appliance, as between England and America, will come into play just in time. The civil war is closed: the storm of slavery is sealed. There remains nothing which need divide the one country from the other in feeling. The interests of both are the same: the heart of both may be one. May Heaven grant a propitious season for that part of the experiment which is still uncertain, and may the consequences of success be more important, politically, socially, commercially, morally, and religiously, than the most imaginative among us is able to conceive!

THE BERKSHIRE MONUMENT TO THE LATE PRINCE CONSORT

THE monument erected to the memory of Prince Albert at the county town of Abingdon, in the spacious recreation-ground, known as Albert Park, was opened on Thursday week by the Earl of Abingdon, Lord High Steward of the borough and Lord Lieutenant of Berks. The day was fine, the town decorated, the church bells rang, and all was gaiety; bands of music parading the streets and flags floating gaily from the roofs of the town. At half-past one o'clock the Lord Lieutenant, accompanied by Colonel Loyd Lindsay, V.C.; Major Sir Paul Edmund Thomas, Bart., Deputy-Lieutenant; Mr. Hall (Mayor of Aldermian Payne) and other members of the Corporation, the rifle corps, the Orders of Odd Fellows and Foresters, national school children, and several bands of music formed in procession and walked to the park, where Mr. Bishop, Clerk of the Peace, read the address, which presented an address to the Lord Lieutenant, who replied in suitable terms and was greatly cheered. The Rev. W. A. Strange, D.D., offered up prayer, and then, after cheers had been given for the Queen and Royal family, the procession returned to the council chamber, where a large and sumptuous luncheon and a considerable number of toasts was drunk with much enthusiasm. The design of this monument reflects much credit on the ability of the architect, Mr. Gibbs, of Oxford, to whom, among other important works, were intrusted the restoration of the famous Dorchester Abbey Church, and the building, recently, for the late Sir George Cornewall Lewis, at New Radnor, an illustration of which appeared in our Journal (vol. xxxvi., page 61) a few years ago. This Albert monument at Abingdon stands upon a commanding site at the upper side of Albert Park, and can be seen for some miles round. The following description will assist the reader fully to comprehend the design:—The total height is 48 ft., and the width is 14 ft. at the base, which is of Portland stone, and consists, in general, fine stone and red Mansfield stone, the statue and medallions being of Portland stone. The words "Berks" and "Abingdon" and letters on the side facing Abingdon, and the monogram "V.R." on the angles. The central shaft is richly ornamented with national emblems, the arms of Abingdon, and other devices. Above the carved capitals of the shaft are four figures, representing the four parts of the Queen and the late Prince, quartered, in gold and colours. Between these are panels, filled with shields bearing the arms of Berks, those of the borough of Abingdon, those of Lord Lieutenant, and others, all in heraldic colours. This portion of the memorial is rich in detail and very effective. Above the lions is the pedestal on which the statue of the late Royal Highness stands; it is 7 ft. 6 in. high.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor, accompanied by an aide-de-camp, drove out on Thursday week in the Bois de Boulogne, and afterwards in the Champs Elysées in the Bois, and thence down the Boulevards to the Champs Elysées. The Prince Imperial rode on horseback, preceded by a troop of Imperial Hussars quartered, in front of the Porte St. Martin and the Porte St. Denis. On Monday the Emperor and Empress drove in an open carriage to the Bois de Vincennes, crossing the Faubourg St. Antoine (the turbulent seat of old revolution), where they were immensely cheered. The Prince Imperial rode three or four paces in front, dressed in regard the mural paintings executed by M. Masson, under the arcades of the Cour d'Honneur of the Louvre, which, although not quite so Chaclesengne are finished, and they decorate the eastern wing of the building, which will be ready for the reception of the Court.

Two pages of Tuesday morning's Moniteur are filled by the Algerian reports, and contain the official announcement of the fall of Laghouat during his visit to the colony.

The new Turkish Ambassador, his Excellency Safvet Pacha, gave a magnificent entertainment yesterday at the Embassy, Avenue de l'Impératrice, to the Ministers, Emi Cowley, M. Mon (the Spanish Ambassador), the Duc de Bassano, and the first and second Presidents of the Commission of the muveyance of the Sultan's accession to the throne.

The King of Greece has returned to Athens from his visit to Paris. Once Paris has also arrived there.

Marshal Canrobert has been appointed to succeed Marshal Magnan in the command of the army of Paris. General Montauban, better known as Count Palikao, succeeds Gen. Uhrich in the command of Lyons, and Gen. Uhrich, that of Lille will not, it is thought, be filled up for the present.

The Corps Législatif witnessed, yesterday week, the rare occurrence of a Government defeat. The carriage tax for 1866 was rejected. Previously to the vote being taken, M. Fould, who was supported by the Government, owing, no doubt, to its comparative unimportance. On Saturday last the Senate passed the Budget for 1866 by 124 votes to 11 votes; and on Monday the extraordinary Budget was passed by 127 to 10 votes.

The Government has sustained a check at the election for Carcassonne. Fernand, the Government candidate, has been rejected, and the Corps Législatif was returned by a large majority over the nominee of the Government.

M. Bethmont and Didier, members of the French Corps Législatif, have written a joint note to the papers denying the accuracy of the report of the Emperor's intention to abolish the Corps Législatif. They admit that there was an altercation, after which each party retained true friendship for the other. They also declare their unanimous anxiety of opinion that nothing insulting had been said on either side and that the matter should go no further.

An Imperial decree was issued on Thursday dissolving the Municipal Councils, and ordering the elections to take place in the month of July. The Marquis de Lavalette, Minister of the Interior, has published a circular to the prefects, in which he says that candidates have to be decided at these elections, he recommends to the prefects that the electors should be allowed to manifest their choice spontaneously. Any pressure will be considered as an unpermitted persons attempt to alter the character of the elections by imparting political questions.

Thomas Hodgkin, M.D., a well-known Quaker, died at Tours, 1834, died last week, in his seventy-first year.

The opinion Nationale has received a first warning for an attack upon a speech delivered in the Chamber, on Wednesday week, by the Secretary of State for Algeria.

At Paris a cricket-match was played last week between the local club, composed of Englishmen, and the members of the Emperor's 2nd Regiment of Foot, who went over for the purpose of making the match, and who had been duly exercised in its game. The Emperor and Empress were present, and the latter expressed a wish that the Prince Imperial should learn the game.

The cholera is reported to be quite over. The company published a sort of mercury for all who choose to return to their allegiance, and the result is said to be that 1,000 persons have already a thousand of the rebel Autocrats had lost their arms and promised to take the oath of allegiance.

SPAIN.

Marshal O'Donnell, once more the Prime Minister of Spain, has announced a spirited and progressive policy. His Government has decided, he told the Spanish Congress yesterday week, upon opening up the kingdom of Italy and doing its best to preserve amicable relations with all foreign Powers. A general amnesty is granted for the offences against the press law, and a new and more liberal measure for the regulation of the press is to be introduced. The Government intends, furthermore, to bring in a bill to diminish the qualification for the suffrage. The Rector and Professors of the Madrid University, who were dismissed some time ago, in the great dissatisfaction of the public, are to be restored. In fact, O'Donnell seems to reverse the policy of his predecessor, Narvaez.

The Duke of Sesto has been appointed Governor of Madrid.

In the Congress, on Tuesday, the Minister for Foreign Affairs brought forward the bill authorising the Government to ratify the treaty of commerce with France.

ITALY.

The King distributed the prizes to the winners in the national shooting-match on the 25th ult.

A Royal decree has been published appointing the members of the new Council of State.

The new treaty of commerce between Italy and Switzerland was signed at Florence yesterday week.

Signor Vegezzi has presented to Cardinal Antonelli the reply of the Italian Government, rejecting the conditions proposed by the Pope for the settlement of the question of the Bishops. These conditions were that the Royal exequatur and the oath of allegiance be abolished in Italy in the new bishops; that no reduction or diminution shall take place in the existing dioceses; and that the bishops be allowed full liberty in the management of their seminaries, to the exclusion of all Government authority. Yesterday week Signor Vegezzi had a farewell audience of the Pope, and on Monday he left Rome.

A subscription, limited to twenty centimes for each subscriber, has been opened in Italy to present Garibaldi a gold medal, bearing this inscription:—"To Garibaldi, the Italians." Italy, from the popes be not forgotten. At Turin there are already 20,000 subscribers.

A railway accident occurred at Corsico. Two trains filled with workmen ran into one another, killing two persons and injuring eleven others. Five waggons and a locomotive were destroyed.

AUSTRIA.

There is a Ministerial crisis at Vienna, and many rumours are afloat regarding the resignation of the Cabinet.

The Emperor has left for Ischl.

On the 24th ult. the loan of 12,000,000*l.* was passed by the Upper House of the Reichsrath on Wednesday. The Minister of Finance has concluded a provisional arrangement with the Creditanstalt and MM. Rothschild and Herr von Wodianer for the payment of this debt.

In the Lower House of the Reichsrath, yesterday week, Count Auersperg exposed the financial demands of the Government. Herr von Schmerling, Minister of State, who then addressed the House, admitted that the loss was a deficit of the budgets for 1863 and 1864, but stated that considerable reductions had been made in all branches of the Administration, and that in the war budget, for which ninety-five million florins were considered sufficient by the Government, income tax from the Hungarian and Italian peace would not be distributed in Europe, since on all great questions it was perfectly assured, in the principal countries, and that the Minister, "is decidedly predominant with the Government. One great object is to augment the public revenue by economising more than 200 millions florins have been made for pardon from those who are in the exempted classes of the lenient regulations.

The Confederate Governor of Louisiana has been arrested at Mobile. President Johnson has issued a proclamation appointing Judge Sharkey Provisional Governor for the reorganisation of the Mississippi. This proclamation is similar to that in its instructions and provisions to that issued appointing Mr. Holden Governor of North Carolina. Another proclamation has been issued in the name of the President, otherwise, domestic and foreign trade restrictions in the country east of the Mississippi after July 1. It also proclaims that armed rebellion has ceased in the Southern States, and imposes and imposes appropriate penalties for treason attached to an insurrectionary State and its inhabitants, from the 1st of January.

Missouri has adopted a new State Constitution.

General Halleck has addressed a letter to Mr. Stanton justifying his action towards General Sherman and throwing the responsibility for his movements upon himself.

Evidence has been brought forward at the conspiracy trials proving that Mr. Booth's diary was written on the night of 25/26th April. Joseph Thompson. It is reported that Wood has been arrested.

Mr. Alan Muirhead, one of the editors of the New York Daily News, and recently of one of the Richmond papers, was arrested on the 14th ult., and sent to Fortress Monroe.

General Lee has applied for his farewell address to his troops on May 30. He declared that he at first refused to surrender upon the last remnant of the army of Northern Virginia contained 8,000 men still honourable terms were secured for soldiers and civilians alike; but, finding that the Confederacy had lost the forces he had under him had abandoned their cause, and that he was a commander without an army and a people without a country.

According to the Times correspondent, expulsion and beating of negroes for attempting to obtain the direct rate are of daily occurrence in Philadelphia and New York. On Saturday, the 10th ult., a party of nearly 200 soldiers attacked a settlement of negroes in Washington, where these people had been collected, destroyed their furniture and appropriated whatever of value could be found. The negroes endeavoured to defend themselves, in which firearms were used upon both sides, and several persons injured. The riot was only quelled by police. The Tribune reports that in Washington the greatest ill-will against the negroes exists, and that they are denied their rights in the courts and elsewhere, while in Jamaica the schools which had been opened for the freedmen have been closed on account of the disorganised and intimidation of the black children by the whites. A letter from Philadelphia says:—"The feeling between the soldiers and negroes in all parts of the country is intense, very little provocation is necessary to cause a riot anywhere. The Irish are the particular enemies of the blacks, and fire flies whenever they come together."

A delegation from the negroes in Kentucky have applied to the Bureau of Freedmen in Washington for advice and assistance in obtaining work and the means of support. They represent that the rebels in Kentucky are more enraged, in which firearms were used upon both sides, and several persons injured. The riot was only quelled by police. The Tribune reports that in Washington the greatest ill-will against the negroes exists, and that they are denied their rights in the courts and elsewhere, while in Jamaica the schools which had been opened for the freedmen have been closed on account of the disorganised and intimidation of the black children by the whites. A letter from Philadelphia says:—"The feeling between the soldiers and negroes in all parts of the country is intense, very little provocation is necessary to cause a riot anywhere. The Irish are the particular enemies of the blacks, and fire flies whenever they come together."

A delegation from the negroes in Kentucky have applied to the Bureau of Freedmen in Washington for advice and assistance in obtaining work and the means of support. They represent that the rebels in Kentucky are more enraged, in which firearms were used They have also waited upon President Johnson and petitioned that martial law in Kentucky may be continued; and General Palmer granted powers sufficient for their protection. Both requests are reported to have been refused.

Four companies of coloured troops, after having embarked aboard transports at Fort Monroe for Texas, objected to proceed on their passage. Their officers were threatened to fire on their officers. All were then landed, disarmed, and re-imbarked. Orders have been sent to Fort Point to arrest the mutinous coloured troops.

The government storehouses at Chattanooga, containing a quarter of a million of rations, have been destroyed by an explosion.

A treaty has been concluded with the Government of Honduras, and granting to Mr. Squier the right of constructing an interoceanic railway across the territory of the latter State, and its freedom to the American Government. The United States; the Federal Government, in consideration, agrees to protect this enterprise from interruption or seizure on the part of others.

The ram Missouri, stated to be the last of the Confederate fleet in the Western rivers, was surrendered, with her officers and crew, to the Federal commander, W. E. Fitzhugh, at Alexandria, on the Red River, Louisiana, on the 3rd ult.

CHINA.

The Imperial troops at Hankow have continued. The Taepings have evacuated Mien-Yang.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

Severe gales and floods have taken place in Australia. The shipments of gold at Melbourne during the week of the last mail were 67,700 ounces.

Military affairs in New Zealand remain unchanged. A split has taken place between the Governor, the Minister, and General Cameron.

M. Wiertz, a well-known painter of the Belgian school, died recently, carried off by an attack of erysipelas.

The Queen of Madagascar, according to a letter received in Europe, began to wear crinoline. She inaugurated the new fashion at a religious ceremony in which she took part on the 15th of April, last year's Christmas. The novelty seems to have been favourably received by the population, but only the princesses of the Royal family have worn a petticoat hooped it. The Queen has, however, made one exception, in favour of the wife of her Prime Minister.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

Both Houses of Convocation of the Province of Canterbury assembled, on Wednesday, at Westminster, for the dispatch of business.

The Rev. Dr. Jacobson has been appointed to the bishopric of Chester.

Archdeacon Waring laid the foundation-stone of an enlarged new church at Forden, near Welshpool, in place of the old one, on the 14th ult.

The monument to Richard Hooker, in Bishopsbourne Church, has been removed from the north to the south wall, to make room for an organ.

The foundation-stone of St. Peter's Mission Church, Limehouse, was laid, yesterday week, by Lord Radstock.

The Rev. Dr. Machray, D.D., was consecrated, last Saturday, in the chapel of Lambeth Palace, to the bishopric of Rupert's Land, rendered vacant by the resignation of Dr. David Anderson, now Incumbent of Clifton.

St. Katherine's Church, Northampton, was reopened, yesterday week, after a restoration which includes the cutting down of the pews and the replacing of the old pulpit and desk by new ones.

On the 17th ult., the foundation-stone of a mission chapel, dedicated to St. Alban, was laid by the Rev. Alan Greenwell, M.A., Incumbent of the newly-formed district of St. James, Haydock, Chester.

A training college, recently established at Peterborough, was formally dedicated, on Wednesday week, by the Bishop, and a sermon was preached in the cathedral by the Archbishop of York.

Horsepools Chapel, Painswick, has been consecrated, the Bishop of Gloucester preaching the sermon. Mr. T. M. Croome, lord of the manor, gave the site and burying-ground.

Christ Church, Cockermouth, was consecrated, on Tuesday week, by the Bishop of Carlisle. The church has been erected mainly by the means, and entirely through the exertions, of the Rev. Herbert Paxley, Incumbent of All Saints', Cockermouth.

The foundation-stone of a new church at Wendy, in the place of the old one, the foundations of which have given way, was laid, on Thursday week, by Archdeacon Emery. This good work has been brought about by the energy of the Curate, the Rev. C. H. Crosse.

A festival of parochial choirs was held at Stoke-on-Trent, on the 20th ult., the day of the Queen's accession. The singers came from twenty-one parishes, and numbered nearly 400. The music was chosen from the choral manuals of the Lichfield Choral Association. The singing at both services was remarkably steady and vigorous.

The parish church of St. Helen's, Lancashire, after considerable alterations and improvements, has been re-opened. Some time since the organ had been moved from a loft above the altar to the side, and now the entire east end has been filled by a new window, the gift of Richard Fildes, Esq., of St. Helen's.

The following is the list of preachers for the month of July at the special services in Westminster Abbey:—July 2nd, the Bishop of London: 9th, the Rev. A. B. Evans, D.D., Rector of St. Mary-le-Strand and lecturer at St. Andrew's, Marylebone; 16th, the Rev. Emilius Bayley, Rector of St. George's, Bloomsbury; 23rd, the Dean of Canterbury; 30th, the Rev. G. H. Curteis, Principal of the Theological College at Lichfield.

The restoration of the parish church of Ogbourne St. George having been effected, the re-opening took place on Wednesday week, the Bishop of Salisbury being present at the ceremony. The edifice has been thoroughly restored and beautified. The credit of the work is due to Messrs. T. A. and J. H. Gale, the churchwardens. A large addition has been made to the burial-ground by King's College, Cambridge.

The following preferments and appointments have recently taken place:—Rev. E. Woolnough to be Archdeacon of Chester; Rev. J. H. Austen to be Rector of Farrant Keynston, Dorset; Rev. C. T. Rust to be Rector of Heigham, Norwich; Rev. W. H. Elliot, Vicar of Sockburn, Durham, to be Perpetual Curate of High Wouch, York, by dispensation of the Archbishop of Canterbury; Rev. P. E. Pratt, Curate of Ross, to be Perpetual Curate of Minsterley.

There are, it appears by a return issued last Saturday, thirty-eight colonial Bishops, with salaries varying from £50 up to £2500. The £50 Bishop is Dr. Thomas, Bishop of Goulburn (New South Wales), and his munificent income is said to be derived from the Colonial Bishoprics Fund, and from the interest on a sum returned blank invested in the colony. The Prelate who has £2500 a year is Dr. Parry, of Barbadoes, whose income is entirely derived from the Consolidated Fund.

The annual examination of the girls' school belonging to the Clergy Orphan Corporation was held at St. John's-wood, on Thursday week, and was attended by a large number of visitors, among whom were the Archbishop of Canterbury (who presided) and the Bishop of Lichfield. The examination comprised the following subjects:—Holy Scripture; Greek, Roman, and English History; Latin, French, and German exercises; and concluded with instrumental and vocal music. The pupils acquitted themselves most creditably, and showed, by their intelligent and ready answers, that they were receiving a sound and liberal education.

The annual meeting of the Friend of the Clergy Corporation was held, on Tuesday, at the office, 4, St. Martin's-place, Trafalgar-square—the Rev. Mr. Lusignan in the chair. Mr. Bramall, the secretary, read the report, which stated that, during the past year, six ladies had been elected as pensioners upon the fund, making 101 ladies pensioners at the present time, of whom forty-seven were receiving £40 per annum; forty-four, £35; and ten, £30. The total income of the year, including a balance of £1000, £2661 donations, and £1298 legacies, has been £5960; and the expenditure, including 3625 in pensions, had been £4610.

Testimonials have recently been presented to clergymen as follows:—The Rev. W. Fearnsides, on his resigning the curacy of St. John's Bradford—a handsome timepiece, with a purse containing £120, from the congregation; and a writing-desk and inkstand, together with a copy of Smith's "Dictionary of the Bible," from the teachers and scholars of the Sunday-schools. The Rev. W. R. Villiers, on resigning the incumbency of Shireshead—a silver claret-jug and sugar-basin, valued at twenty-eight guineas, from the congregation. The Rev. Dr. Pratt, Incumbent of St. James's, Cruden—an elegant Princess of Wales phaeton, pony, harness, and carriage appendages, from the congregation, as a mark of their respect and esteem on the completion of his forty years' ministrations among them. The Rev. D. S. Govett, on his resigning the curacy of Hellerdon—a handsome silver coffee-pot, with an elegant silver mustard-pot and spoon. The list of contributors contains 120 names. This is the third substantial testimonial received by Mr. Govett since entering upon his cure two years and a half ago. The school children also presented the rev. gentleman with a silver knife. The Rev. C. Basset, Curate of St. Mary's, North-end, Fulham—a purse of sovereigns and an address illuminated on vellum, from the parishioners. The Rev. J. Pickford, M.A.—a silver pocket communion-service, by the parishioners of Sherington, Bucks, on his resignation of that curacy.—Guardian.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—Mr. W. H. Coxe, assistant in the department of Oriental antiquities in the British Museum, has been appointed to the professorship of Sanscrit at King's College.

The prizes obtained at the Midsummer examination of the pupils of the Manchester Grammar School were distributed in the old school, on Tuesday, by the Dean of Manchester. There was a large attendance of the friends and relatives of the pupils. The chairman stated that great success had attended the working of the school during the past year.

The Rev. Arthur Calvert, M.A., late fellow of St. John's, has been appointed to the head mastership of Crediton Grammar School, Devon.

Mr. J. B. Lee, B.A., late scholar of Exeter, has been elected to the assistant classical mastership in Bedford School.

The annual speech-day of St. Thomas Charter-house Middle-class School was held on Wednesday, at the school-room, Goswell-street, under the presidency of Lord Lyttelton, who distributed the various prizes. The first stone of the present building was laid about twelve years ago by the Marquis of Lansdowne, then president of the council, and the building was opened in the following year by his successor, Earl Granville. So far this school has been an undoubted success, for under the management of the present Head Master, the Rev. William Jewitt, M.A., the number of its boys has increased to 300.

Mr. Gale, electrician, of Plymouth, has discovered a process by which powder can be rendered non-explosive and its combustible properties restored when required in five minutes.

The shop of Messrs. Mecking, upholsterers, in Holborn, was entirely destroyed by fire on Sunday night, and the loss is estimated at £30,000. Between thirty and forty were sleeping on the premises, but all escaped, the Royal Society's fire-escapes being promptly in attendance. Messrs. Meckings' business comprised eight houses, but the destruction was confined to the two upper floors and the roofs, though considerable damage was inflicted on all the lower floors, both by fire and water. Fourteen neighbouring houses were injured.

The award of prizes to the students of the school-frigate Conway, at Liverpool, who have distinguished themselves in the recent examinations was made, on Wednesday, on the quarterdeck of the Conway, by Admiral Sir Frederick Grey, K.C.B. The Mayor of Liverpool presided; and there were also present Admiral Eden, Admiral Evans; Messrs. Laird, M.P.; J. C. Ewart, M.P., a number of Liverpool merchants and shipowners, as well as several naval and scientific men, and a large concourse of ladies. It was stated during the proceedings that the average number of boys on board the Conway this year was 123; that twenty-three boys had obtained cadetships in the Royal Navy since the establishment of the school; and that not one Conway boy had failed to pass his Navy examination.

THE LEEDS BANKRUPTCY COURT INQUIRY.

THE Select Committee appointed by the House of Commons to inquire into the alleged irregularities in connection with the Leeds Bankruptcy Court have issued their report.

With regard to the first subject of their inquiry—the circumstances of Mr. Wilde's resignation of the office of Registrar in the District Court of Leeds—the Committee report :—

Your Committee cannot but regret extremely that such a letter as that of the 26th of June should have been written by the Chief Registrar, not merely on account of the impropriety of its terms, but because the suggestion of retirement probably induced Mr. Wilde to apply at once for a pension, and thus frustrated the Lord Chancellor's declared intention of having the charges against Mr. Wilde publicly heard in court. Mr. Wilde pressed your Committee to enter upon a further investigation of these charges; but, as there appeared to your Committee to be no ground whatever for any suspicion that there had been any improper motive for preferring the charges against Mr. Wilde; and as, moreover, the reports and documents (including Mr. Wilde's own explanatory statement) clearly supported those charges, at least to such a degree as to justify the Lord Chancellor in calling upon Mr. Wilde to answer them in open court; and further, as Mr. Wilde had himself chosen to retire on a pension rather than submit to a public inquiry into his conduct, your Committee refused to prolong an investigation which, whatever its result might have been, must have been far less satisfactory in its nature than that which Mr. Wilde had declined.

On the second head of inquiry—the granting a pension to Mr. Wilde—the Committee report that the haste and want of caution necessarily give rise to a suspicion that a vacancy in the office is the object sought rather than justice to the officer or the public. In this instance, however, the Committee consider that no improper motives are to be imputed to the Lord Chancellor.

With regard to the third head of inquiry—Mr. Welch's appointment—the Committee are satisfied that no imputation can fairly be made against the Lord Chancellor, but they call attention to "some remarkable evidence touching this part of their inquiry." This evidence relates to money transactions between Mr. Welch and the Hon. R. Bethell, and the charge made by the Rev. R. Harding, Vicar of St. Ann's, Wandsworth, that the Hon. R. Bethell was to use his influence with his father to secure an appointment for Mr. Welch, Mr. Welch paying £500 down and £1000 on securing the appointment. The charge is denied by Mr. Welch and the Hon. R. Bethell. The Committee say :—

Mr. Harding's statement, if true, discloses a corrupt bargain between the three parties; if false, it is a gross attempt at extortion. One or other of these conclusions would be established by a judicial investigation of the facts of the case; but as each of them involves the liability to a charge of a highly penal character, your Committee, not having the opportunity of examining witnesses upon oath or of bringing the persons inculpated to a formal trial, purposely abstain from expressing any opinion as to which of the two views above mentioned ought to be adopted. They consider it their duty to observe, that the indisputable facts are such as to render it essential to the public interest that the case should, as soon as possible, be made the subject of legal investigation.

On the fourth and last head of inquiry—whether Mr. Welch was to resign his appointment at Leeds in favour of Mr. Bethell, and receive another appointment in London—the Committee say :—

In the month of May, 1864, the Lord Chancellor, on being informed that his son was deeply indebted, compelled him to resign his office of registrar in the Court of Bankruptcy. Mr. Bethell shortly afterwards went abroad with his family, and remained abroad during the summer and autumn. Towards the close of the year he returned to England, having formed a plan for making some arrangement with his creditors, and hoping to be reconciled to his father. Applications were made to the Lord Chancellor to induce him to relent in favour of his son and give him some appointment. The Lord Chancellor was asked to appoint him to the office of clerk at the table of the House of Lords, which he peremptorily refused to do. He was asked by Mr. Miller to give his son the appointment of registrar in bankruptcy in London vacated by Mr. Slingsby Bethell, and Mr. Miller, in the hope that his request would be granted, but without any authority from the Lord Chancellor, prepared an order appointing Mr. Bethell to that office. The Lord Chancellor refused to make the appointment; but, upon a suggestion being made either by Mr. Skirrow (an intimate friend of the Lord Chancellor and a trustee of Mr. Bethell's marriage settlement) or by Mrs. Bethell herself, that Mr. Bethell might be appointed to an office in the country, the Lord Chancellor appears, on Feb. 22, 1865, at an interview with Mr. Skirrow, to have held out some expectation that he would consider the matter if Mr. Bethell could obtain a release from all his creditors. Up to that day he had peremptorily refused to entertain the subject. Mr. Skirrow's view was in favour of an office at Bristol, as being in the neighbourhood of Mrs. Bethell's relations. Later in the same day Mr. Bethell called on Mr. Skirrow, at Staple Inn, and probably then understood from him that there was some probability of his receiving an appointment in the country. Mr. Welch was then introduced to Mr. Skirrow by Mr. Bethell, and some remarks passed which show that Mr. Bethell expected to obtain the office at Leeds, and Mr. Welch hoped to be transferred to London. Mr. Bethell went to Leeds on the following day; saw Mr. Welch, at his office, on the 24th; and it is clear that it was generally understood, in the Bankruptcy Court at Leeds, that Mr. Bethell was shortly to be appointed registrar there and that Mr. Welch was to be transferred elsewhere.

In the meanwhile, Mr. Miller had been informed of the plan, and in full expectation that it would be carried into effect, prepared two orders of appointment, one of Mr. Welch to the London registrarship, the other of Mr. Bethell to that at Leeds. He says that Mr. Skirrow gave him the information upon which he relied; but this Mr. Skirrow positively denies. Mr. Miller further states that he prepared the order before mentioned appointing Mr. Bethell to the London registrarship, and the two orders last mentioned, without the knowledge of the Lord Chancellor, and that they were the only appointments ever prepared by him without the Lord Chancellor's sanction. The Lord Chancellor also states that he did not hear of these orders being prepared before this inquiry took place.

On Sunday, the 26th, the Lord Chancellor, from some information which he had received as to his son's conduct at Paris, determined not to appoint his son to any office; he sent for Mr. Skirrow, and declared his decision.

On Monday, the 27th, Mr. Miller was about to present the two appointments to the Lord Chancellor for signature. Mr. Skirrow saw him, and advised him not to do so, mentioning what had occurred on the previous day. Mr. Miller did not show the appointments, but mentioned the subject to the Lord Chancellor, who said that he would make no appointment.

It appears to your Committee that Mr. Skirrow acted simply as a friend of the Lord Chancellor's family. No improper motive has been suggested for the part which Mr. Miller took, although his conduct in preparing the appointments without the sanction or even knowledge of the Lord Chancellor was highly reprehensible. Mr. Bethell and Mr. Welch were undoubtedly desirous of promoting the arrangement for their own interests; but the Lord Chancellor appears to have had no knowledge of the plan beyond the suggestion made to him by Mr. Skirrow and Mrs. Bethell, and no knowledge whatever of what had been done in expectation of its completion until some time after he had finally refused to make any appointment in favour of his son.

The Committee say, in conclusion :—

Your Committee, in performance of the duty intrusted to them, went fully into all the circumstances which seemed to bear on any portion of the subject-matter. In their report, however, they have confined their observations to those points which they consider most material. They must be allowed to observe, in conclusion, that while the facts which they believe to be established by the evidence acquit the Lord Chancellor from all charge except that of haste and want of caution in granting a pension to Mr. Wilde; and although some of the questions asked in your honourable house, which led to the appointment of this Committee, were founded on information which was not thoroughly accurate, yet the general impression created by the sudden retirement of Mr. Wilde, and the pecuniary transactions which took place between Mr. Bethell and Mr. Welch, coupled with the representations made by Mr. Bethell on his visit to Leeds, were calculated to excite the gravest suspicions; and your Committee are of opinion that the inquiry which they have conducted was, for this reason, highly desirable for the public interests.

The third and last of the series of ironclads which Messrs. Napier were commissioned to execute on behalf of the Turkish Government was launched from the yard of that enterprising firm, at Govan, on Monday. The Orkhan is, like her sister vessels, a screw ram; and her length over all is 300 ft.; her extreme breadth, 56 ft.; her depth, moulded, 37 ft.; her tonnage, 4200 o.m.; and her draught of water, 24 ft. 9 in. The armament is to consist of sixteen 150-pounder guns each on the main or fighting deck, one of the same calibre on the upper deck; and another, which is to carry a 300 lb. ball.

The centenary of the Sherborne, Dorchester, and Taunton Journal, established in 1765, and which was, within the recollection of many persons now living, the only newspaper in the West of England, was celebrated, yesterday week, by a dinner in the Townhall of Sherborne—Mr. H. D. Seymour, M.P. for Poole, in the chair. A testimonial, consisting of a silver inkstand and a purse of £234, with an address inscribed on vellum, were presented to Mr. Louis Ruegg, the proprietor and editor, who has been connected with the paper twenty-five years.

Wednesday was quite a festival at the Asylum for Fatherless Children, at Reedham, near Croydon. The friends of the institution mustered to the number of nearly 500, among whom it was pleasant to observe several old pupils testifying the attraction by which they are drawn to their pleasant early home. The proceedings commenced by an examination of the pupils, which gave evidence of careful instruction and judicious training. In the intervals of the examination the pupils sang sundry songs; and, after the infant school had been examined, to the great satisfaction of all present, the prizes were distributed, among which were two given to the boy and girl who were best liked by their companions.

THE FLIGHT OF MR. JEFFERSON DAVIS INTO GEORGIA.

OUR Special Artist and Correspondent who was lately employed in the service of this Journal at the head-quarters' camp of the Confederate Army in Virginia has furnished us with an Illustration of almost the final scene in the history of the Southern secession. After the surrender of General Lee's army and the abandonment of Petersburg and Richmond, in the first week of April, our Artist went to join the army of General Joseph Johnston, and saw the last shot of the war fired; he then attended the journey of the fallen President, Mr. Jefferson Davis, a distance of 700 miles, to the neighbourhood of Macon, in Georgia, and did not leave the party until it was disbanded, by Mr. Davis's request, two days before his capture. The sketch from which our present Engraving is made was taken by our Artist five days before the capture of Mr. Davis, when passing over the Georgia Ridge, a range of wooded hills forming the boundary line of the State of South Carolina. Mr. Davis is the central figure of the three horsemen riding in front; General Bragg is on his right hand, and Mr. Benjamin, his Secretary of State, on the left; behind Mr. Davis, and on his right hand, is General Breckenridge; next whom is Mr. Regan, the Postmaster-General; the rest of the party are the staff of Mr. Davis and the Kentucky soldiers of his escort. Two or three loiterers by the roadside, in the right-hand corner of our Engraving, seem to be watching the passage of the fugitives with sentiments of deep compassion and regret.

Our Special Artist has returned to this country, bringing with him a series of sketches illustrative of the latest scenes in the history of the Confederate Government. These we shall engrave for early publication.

ROYAL LONDON YACHT CLUB MATCH.

THE first-class cutter match of this club for two prizes, the first value seventy guineas and the second value £10, was resailed on Tuesday week, having been undecided on the 5th ult., when there was not wind enough to finish the match. The course prescribed was from Erith round the Nore and to return; the boats were ordered by the committee to round the Nore and sail the match out irrespective of time. The following contended:—The Vindex (45 tons), owner, Mr. Andrew Duncan; Glance (35 tons), owner, Mr. J. Johnson; Volante (59 tons), owner, Mr. Herbert C. Maudslay; Niobe (41 tons), Mr. W. Gordon. No steam-boat accompanied the match, but good quarters were kindly offered in other boats. The Niobe had the extreme leeward position on the north shore, but all in the set of the tide, and the Vindex had the southward station to windward. At 11·57·50 the gun to start was fired on board the Violet schooner (Commodore), and they made a short board to the north, wind being at S.W. and by S. and a dead beat to the Nore. All were very smart, Niobe and Volante especially. Volante tried to go by to windward, but Niobe was too sharp, and came out on the tack first. Volante was very sharp, and had first jib hoisted; and although Vindex was smart with lower sails, yet she was bad at starting. They went about, and Niobe led well, then Volante, Glance to leeward, apparently liking the gentle breeze, Niobe up topsail to leeward, Glance also. Wind S.W., and very little of it; Volante and Niobe tacked together, and the latter got right away, well ahead of all the others, to Mucking. Volante and Glance close together, Volante in irons. Glance tried to get on Niobe's weather, but failed to go by, and Volante closed with Glance. It were needless further to describe the race to the Chapman, than to remark that the Niobe, as the breeze freshened, went right away from the other boats. Volante, Glance, and Vindex, as soon as the latter had recovered, sailed in close company, and executed a series of manœuvres; one after the other they endeavoured to get to windward, but Volante held her own. At the Chapman Niobe was ahead a mile and a half to windward. Then came Volante, leading Glance by 200 yards, and Vindex was under Glance's lee beam. Soon after passing Old Haven the wind shifted and increased, taking Niobe farther to the front. In Long Reach the Niobe had shifted her big topsail for a smaller one, striking one and setting the other in the same tack. Just before Leigh the Vindex had the Glance in the toils, and went third to the Volante. They rounded the Nore on the dregs of the ebb, the sternmost boats having great difficulty in fetching it. It was a fair wind back with a reach or two towards Gravesend. All manner of sails were piled up to run up home, Niobe hoisting a studdingsail and large topsail, which was repeatedly shifted; Volante had a large topsail and square sail; Vindex, square sail and square topsail; Glance was far astern, with all sorts of sails set. The Volante at one time drew on the Niobe, but the wind kept changing; and, after a very tedious journey, they arrived at Erith as under:—

		H.	M.	S.
Niobe	.. ..	9	7	10
Volante	.. ..	9	27	5

Vindex and Glance some distance astern. Niobe thus won by twenty minutes without her time allowance of nine minutes from the Volante, which took the second prize.

The monument at Logierait to the late Duke of Athole is to take the form of a Celtic cross, and, with the pediment, will be 56 ft. high.

The Canterbury Savings Bank, an institution which has for many years enjoyed the confidence of the labouring classes of East Kent, suspended on Tuesday. The deposits amount to not less than from £140,000 to £150,000. The bank has been closed, it is said, in consequence of the defalcations of the actuary and secretary, Mr. S. Greaves, who has for many years been held in great esteem by most of the gentlemen of position and influence in East Kent. Depositors, it is said, will be paid in full, with interest.

An election riot took place, on Monday night, at Nottingham. Messrs. Morley and Paget were to have addressed the inhabitants in an open-air meeting, and great preparations were made by their friends for their reception. The working classes, however, are in favour of Sir Robert Clifton, and they drove off Messrs. Morley and Paget's supporters, took possession of the hustings, broke it to pieces, and paraded the streets with the broken splinters. Several persons were injured, and the military were telegraphed for from Sheffield.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR JULY.

THE summer modes are now quite settled in many important points. All through the season, which began on the 21st ult., the whole of the dress—corsage, skirt, and pardessus—should be alike in colour and material, and the entire toilet passably simple, with as few ornaments as possible. This simplicity is really the distinguishing characteristic of the fashions at the present moment, but as an indication of a return to moderation in dress it is not worthy of much reliance.

The taste for scarves seems about to revive, and has particularly received encouragement from the Empress Eugénie, who appeared at the late great race for the Grand Prix de Paris at Longchamps in a magnificent cloth-of-gold scarf presented to her Majesty by the Emperor on his return from Algeria. Some of the scarves already worn are very elegant; they may be either plain, of the same material as the dress, or striped, and edged with ruching or lace. A muslin scarf over a taffety robe is extremely becoming, as well as a very agreeable toilet for hot weather; moreover, the shawl and the burnous, especially the former, are almost of necessity put aside during the months of June, July, and August.

One change of consequence has been adopted by many of the Parisiennes élégantes, and that is the abandonment of under jupons of a colour different to that of the dress. A serious return to white appears to be generally resolved upon; but having been decided somewhat suddenly, the jupon blanc may not yet strictly be considered as de rigueur.

For morning or for evening toilet the styles of coiffure are varied. For the evening, ringlets, frizzled hair, and plaits raised very high upon the top of the head, are perfectly admissible; but the volume of the capillary ornament is not very extensive. For morning, the plait may lie down in front en couronne, or the bands be slightly waved. A ringlet or two, behind the plaits, and falling on the neck, may also be worn in the day.

Patronage is still shared to an equal extent by the chapeau empire and the chapeau fanchon; both are elegant in their way, and the selection of the one or of the other should be made to depend more upon the style of the face of the intending wearer, than upon the special merits of either of the rival bonnets.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Fig. 1. Dress for the Seaside or for a Watering-place.—Pearl-grey linos robe, copiously trimmed round the skirt and round the casaque with black passementerie ornaments. The stripes and the small unattached balls completing the trimming are in black velvet. Round straw hat edged with black velvet and provided with a large rose, a black feather, and a bow behind in white tulle.

CUTTER-MATCH OF THE ROYAL LONDON YACHT CLUB: THE START FROM ERITH.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

Fig. 2. Dress for a Morning Visit.—Dark violet foulard robe, with black stripes. There is a deep black silk ruching round the skirt and round the edge of the black silk casaque, which is also similarly trimmed at the cuffs and shoulders. Pink tulle chapeau, with pink ribbons in the guise of a bavolet, and a garland of plaited black ribbon passing round the chapeau and descending behind to the waist, where it is terminated by a pink bow.

Fig. 3. Walking Dress.—Light blue taffety robe, trimmed with passementerie ornaments of the same colour, but a shade darker. Casaque to match. The chapeau empire is in white tulle, and the veil also. A few violet flowers decorate the front of the bonnet.

Fig. 4. Another Walking Dress.—Robe of dark orange-coloured foulard, trimmed with elegant black guipure. The casaque of this dress is ornamented in a similar manner. White lace chapeau fanchon, furnished in front with a torsade of green velvet, several small flowers, and two aigrettes with light green shoots.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR JULY.

FLIGHT OF PRESIDENT JEFF. DAVIS AND HIS MINISTERS OVER THE GEORGIA BORDER, FIVE DAYS BEFORE HIS CAPTURE.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE P. 626.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 8.

SUNDAY, July 2.—Third Sunday after Trinity. Visitation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. First of the Dog Days. Meeting of the National Vaccinator Association for the spreading of Vaccination, 1809.
MONDAY, 3.—Sun Dials entered. London in triumph, 1553. Birth of Henry Gottlieb, the orator, 1750.
TUESDAY, 4.—Translation of St. Martin. Death of Samuel Richardson, novelist, 1761. Declaration of Independence by the United States of North America, 1776. Oxford Act.
WEDNESDAY, 5.—Death of Sir Robert Strange, the "prince of British line engravers." Algiers taken by the French, 1830.
THURSDAY, 6.—Old Midsummer Day. Birth of John Flaxman, sculptor, 1755. Death of Sir Henry Rosbury Jenkins, judge, 1815. Meeting of Congress of Mexico, term, 1829.
FRIDAY, 7.—St. Thomas Aforkett this relics enshrined, 1220. Death of Prince Edward I. of England, 1307. Maximilian's intermediate at Naples, 1847.
SATURDAY, 8.—Death of the orator Demosthenes, B.C. 322. Death of Sir Edward Parry, Arctic voyager, 1855. Oxford Term ends. Full Moon, 6h. 37m. p.m.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 8.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. h. m.	A. h. m.	N. h. m.	I. h. m.	N. h. m.	G. h. m.	U. h. m.
1 0	2 0	3 0	4 0	5 0	6 0	7 0
0 12	1 12	2 12	3 12	4 12	5 12	6 12

MARRIAGES.

At Prée, Shropshire, F. N. Toosey, Esq., of Canterbury, New Zealand, to Lady Louisa, widow of Colonel the Hon. G. Barker.
At Sheffield, Yorkshire, J. S. Christie, Esq., of Newton House, Lanarkshire, to the Hon. Charlotte Butler, daughter of the late Hon. Henry Butler, and sister to the present Viscount Mountgarret.
At Dalkey, Dublin, R. J. Saunderson, Esq., of Castle Saunderson, to the Hon. Louisa Emily de Ridegen, daughter of the late, and Lord and Lady Viscount Farnham Boyne, Kerry.
On the 30th ult., at St. Margaret's, Barrowter, by the Rev. Charles Prinsell, vicar of the parish, assisted by the Rev. Cornwall Hamley, Gardner Prinsell, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, Barrister-at-law, nephew of the Rev. Horace Jeffery, late incumbent of Christ Church, Hoxton, to Frances Agnes Jane, William Minchin, of Greenhill, in the county of Tipperary, Ireland. No cards.
On the 26th ult., by special licence, at Kingstown, near Dublin, by the Rev. Charles Ferrell, Curate of Leeson, Nugent Kenny, Esq., of Corrocloo Park, in the county of Galway, to Elizabeth Jane, daughter of Hercules Brewer, only surviving child and heiress of the late Colonel Sir John Kingsmill, of Hermitage Park, Louth, and last child of the late Lady Dacre, by her 4th daughter and heiress of the late Sir Robert Kingsmill, Bart., of Sydmonton, Park, Hants.

DEATHS.

At Prée, Lady J. Somerset.
At Cheltham-street, Bromley Lady Tyrwhitt.
At Hyrneyside, the Earl of Perthshire, aged 73.
At the Hon. Mrs. Kelson, eldest daughter of the late Lord Lyndhurst, aged 58.
At Brough Hall, Yorkshire, Sir Tatton Sykes, Bart., aged 63.
At Stonerille, Newmarket, Caroline, wife of the Hon. A. Smith, Esq.
At the Palace, Penan, the Right Rev. Thomas Vowler Short, Lord Bishop, aged 64.
At Ebenrie Park, Dublin, Captain Browne, nephew of General Sir H. Browne, K.C.B., and also of Mrs. Hemans, the poetess.
At Yeldham, Sarah, relict of the late Rev. Sir Richard Rev. T. Masson, in her 78th year.
On the 23rd ult., at the Cabaret Hotel, Charles-street, Grosvenor-square, John Nanney, Esq., of Mansynonds, Merionethshire, aged 91.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 10′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 24 feet.

June	DAILY MEANS OF							THERMOMETER		WIND.		RAIN in 24 hours, ending 10 A.M.
	Atmospheric Pressure.	Dew Point.	Humidity.	Solar Radiation.	Terrestrial Radiation.	Solar Minus Terrestrial.	Amount of Cloud.	Maximum in the Sun.	Minimum on the Grass.	General Direction.	Resultant Velocity.
	Inches.	°	°	°	°	°	Tenths.	°	°		Miles.	Ins.
21	29·795	49·4	57	0·46	0	0·46	6	84·6	43·6	S.W.	127	·000
22	29·886	54·6	53·2	·43	0	0·43	7·8	78·4	NE. to E.		142	·000
23	29·889	48·9	48·9	·45	0	0·45	7·2	80·8	N.N.E.		193	·000
24	29·749	49·4	42·9	·48	5	0·43	7·7	79·7	N. to NNW.		217	·000
25	29·...	...	...	...	...	...	...	82·...	...		...	·000
26	29·715	52·6	54·9	·22	10	0·12	6·5	64·1	W.		154	·000
27	29·768	42·3	54·9	·87	0	0·87	2·7	84·2	SW. to		89	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer corrected (Inches)	29·795	29·886	29·889	29·749	29·715	29·768	29·778
Temperature of Evaporation	49·0°	50·0°	49·0°	47·0°	52·0°	47·0°	47·0°
Direction of Wind	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	W.	S.W.	S.W.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JULY 1, 1855.

WHEN we next publish England will be without a Parliament. The recently-fixed day is not the 31st of May, 1859, is to be dispersed on the 6th of July, 1855. So much for a long story, and, in many respects, not a discreditable one. The Parliament began by an unmistakable proof of its loyalty to Liberal principles, for it turned out the Conservatives by the first vote it had been summoned. It proved its attachment to true Liberalism by pursuing a system of reform and progress so steadily that there was no subsequent need for an appeal to the people, and it has died of Constitutional old age and by the calm course of natural decay—exhaustion. It has earned no nickname, and it has deserved none. There was a Parliament once called the "Addle" Parliament. It did nothing except offer a remonstrance to the King—nothing whatever in the way of legislation. Radical persons are in the habit of attributing to all Parliaments in which there is no fierce conflict and which pass no great measures a consanguinity with the "Addle" Parliament; but nothing can be more absurd than to complain that the machinery of the State has been brought into such good working order that it does not shake or groan, and does not often want new flywheels and shafts. When the accounts of the firm which is about to expire shall be made up to the end and placed in the hands of the historical accountant, we believe that, "errors excepted," there will be very good entries to insert in the national ledger. But it is not now our business to anticipate the balance-sheet. The sixth and longest of Queen Victoria's Parliaments dies within a week, and we do but register the event.

The Speech from the Throne, at the beginning of this session, was almost unusually dreary. Dost is to say, unreasonable people complained that there was nothing to make an excitement about. We were not quarrelling with anybody, so that there were no apprehensions of bloodshed and new taxes; we had no domestic disturbances; we had no treaties to denounce; the Queen had no domestic enemies against whom she required extraordinary powers; there was no distress calling for large and exceptional sacrifices; and, in fact, the Queen had nothing to tell us. We were simply informed that the Schleswig-Holstein War was ended by treaty; that the American War continued; that we had had difficulties in Japan, which were arranged; that there were disturbances in New Zealand; that a treaty had been signed with Canada had been signed with Chile (a Blootan) was tranquil; and that there had been a terrible cyclone at Calcutta. The Ministers have, doubtless, looked back to these paragraphs, and we may be told in Hansard when the documents are still pending for the solution of the Schleswig-Holstein question; that the American War is, happily, at an end, and that the Queen hopes that conciliation and wise administration will re-unite the two countries, whose prosperity will be more satisfactory to us; that the New Zealand difficulties are disappearing as the natives discover their true interest to be in friendship with us; that representations of Canada have been here, and that the Queen hopes to ratify the treaty with Chile on completion. It will hardly be the thing to allude to the drawing closer the French alliance by means of the turf victory, yet a neat allusion might not be impossible to social intercourse and the opportunity Forest Ridge being something towards bringing together the two great peoples.

We were told at the opening of the Session that, in the way of domestic legislation, Parliament would have to attend to several points. The first was the Queen's Colleges in the north. We have heard a great deal about these; a site has been selected; and, if we leave on record our opinion that it is not the best, and that London might have erected a magnificent temple of learning on the banks of the Thames, we are bound to add, for the information of an impartial if indignant posterity, that we believe our legislators did the best they could. This is not an age of reverence for antiquities, though they are more easily made than modern ones. The Lord Chancellor of Parliament who could detect the most delightful lecture upon the architecture of great cities, and show how "conscientiously" the Middle Age architects worked, would assuredly go down to the next generation as a fool. Such a man should be in Houndsditch, if their being there would please a constituency or be more convenient to himself. It would have cost a great deal of money to put the Courts where they should have been, and to build a new Temple of Justice in a fit place. Perhaps, had the bill been thrown over, we might not have carried another for years. The aggregate apology does not come to much, but posterity must accept it. Whether it will, we have to congratulate ourselves on the subject. Then there was a recommendation about revision of the Statutes. It is only within the last few days that a measure for this purpose has been laid before the Lords, but we presume to know that, whereas the laws are now in fifty volumes, they may be condensed into twelve. It is, perhaps, as well that a measure which must be left to the discretion of those who have undertaken it should not be pressed to completion. We are at a time when general debate upon the matter is impossible—the Speech will probably treat the recommendation as complied with. An equitable jurisdiction for the County Courts was pointed at as a necessity, and we have had debates on the bill by which it is proposed to add that feature to the tribunals of "rough justice." The most important measure which the Session has seen was recommended at the outset, and in the course of a few days passed through the Commons and is done that which will be remembered for many a year, and especially when we come up to the certain battle for the bill for abolishing settlement altogether and declaring that where the poor are there shall they be. We have also told the paupers whose must be reformed. There has been no great fulfilment of the promise implied; but there has been movement. Then there are some matters which were not promised—the relief to the conscience on the oper by the "quaint" Mohammedan may, perhaps, be noted; and even the reduction of taxation may deserve a word. Even without the aid of one or two of those wonderful discoveries which it is the fortune of Ministers of the Crown to announce, and the conclusion of a treaty with his Highness the Boshkoku of Zulamongola for the free navigation of the Tonnini Gulf, there are very good materials for the speech in which the Ministers of Queen Victoria shall announce to her long Parliament that it is a thing of the past.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Windsor Castle, in perfect health and spirits.

On Thursday week her Majesty accompanied by Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice, went to Frogmore House, and returned to the castle to luncheon. Later in the day the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, walked and drove in the castle grounds. Princess Louisa's walk was subsequently attended by Lady Caroline Barrington and Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. D. De Ros, left Buckingham Palace and visited the Institute of Painters in Water Colours and the Society of Painters in Water Colours. The Princesses afterwards returned to Windsor Castle. The Princesses Louisa and Helena remained at the castle from London, and were presented to the Queen by Baron Stockmar. Their Royal Highnesses afterwards visited the Princess of Turn and Taxis, drove to Virginia Water. Princess Helena afterwards accompanied the Queen and Prince Leopold to Frogmore, whence they returned to London.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the castle grounds. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louisa, walked and drove in the vicinity of the castle. Princess Helena rode in the Home Park.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by the members of the Royal family, went to Frogmore House. Her Majesty afterwards walked and drove in the castle grounds. Later in the day the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by the Duchess of Roxburghe, drove out. The Judge-Advocate-General had an audience of her Majesty. Earl Howe arrived at the castle, and had the honour of dining with the Queen.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Hon. and Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor officiated.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, drove in the castle grounds. Prince Leopold, attended by Mr. Bell, drove to Eaghet Park. The Duke and Duchess de Brabant, attended by Countess de Grünne, Count de Launoy, and M. Brewer, arrived at the castle on a visit to the Queen. Princess Helena, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess, took a drive.

On Tuesday the Queen walked and drove in the castle grounds. Major-General Grey, C.B., had the honour of an audience of her Majesty. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, and Lieutenant-Colonel H. Cavendish, went to London. Their Royal Highnesses honoured the Archbishop of Canterbury with their company at luncheon at Lambeth Palace, and afterwards visited the Great Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. In the evening the Princesses attended the State ball given at Buckingham Palace, an account of which is given below. The Duke and Duchess de Brabant left the castle, proceeded to Buckingham Palace, and were present at the ball.

Wednesday was the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Queen's coronation. The day was celebrated at Windsor and in the metropolis with the customary honours; and at Chatham, Woolwich, and Portsmouth the day was observed generally as a holiday, and salutes were fired from Fort Victoria and Hilsea. The Queen, accompanied by Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice, visited Frogmore. Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, and Colonel the Hon. D. De Ros, left Buckingham Palace at a quarter before eleven o'clock, and honoured Mr. Thorneycroft with a visit at his studio; and also visited the Horticultural Gardens, South Kensington. Their Royal Highnesses afterwards returned to Windsor Castle. The Queen received addresses of congratulation upon the birth of the infant Princes of the Peace and Princess of Wales. The Right Hon. Sir G. Grey arrived at the castle and had an audience of the Queen. Viscount Sydney also had an audience of her Majesty. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold, entered the Windsor Park shortly after three o'clock. Her Majesty was attended by the Duchess of Wellington, the Duchess of Roxburghe, Lady Caroline Barrington, Lady Augusta Stanley, Viscount Sydney, the Right Hon. Sir G. Grey, Colonel the Hon. C. Grey, Lieutenant-Colonel Cavendish, Lord Charles Fitzroy, Colonel the Hon. D. De Ros, and the Rev. Dr. Wellesley. The Queen received addresses as the City address was first introduced, and presented its address. Her Majesty having received the address answer, the Lord Mayor and the mover and seconder of the address were presented to her Majesty by Sir George Grey, and had the honour of kissing her Majesty's hand. The deputation from the Court of Lieutenancy was next introduced, with the same ceremony, and presented their address. The mover and seconder of the address had the honour of kissing her Majesty's hand. The deputation from the city of Edinburgh was then introduced, and presented their address, and returned in procession to the castle. The Lord Provost and the mover and seconder of the address having been presented to her Majesty by Sir George Grey, and having had the honour of kissing her Majesty's hand, the deputation retired. The deputation proceeded severally to their full dress. Luncheon was served for the deputations in the dining-room.

The Queen was in London on Thursday at three o'clock.

It is stated that the Queen has accepted an invitation to pass some days with the King and Queen of the Belgians at their palace near to Coburg, in the market-place of which town the monument to the Prince Consort will be inaugurated on the anniversary of the Prince's birth, Saturday, the 26th inst., because of the English Court.

The Queen has appointed the Right Rev. Henry, Lord Bishop of Worcester, to be Clerk of the Closet in Ordinary to her Majesty, in the room of the Right Rev. John, Lord Bishop of Chester, deceased.

STATE BALL AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

By command of the Queen a state ball was given on Tuesday evening, at Buckingham Palace. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Barrington, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, and Lieutenant-Colonel Cavendish, arrived at the palace, early in the day, from Windsor Castle. The Duke and Duchess de Brabant, attended by Countess de Grünne, Count de Launoy, and M. Brewer, also arrived at the palace from Windsor Castle.

The Band of the Household Brigade, trumpeters of the Life Guards, and attended by the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and Mr. C. F. Arbuthnot, arrived at the palace, at seven, from Marlborough House. The Duke of Cambridge was present

The Queen's guests at the ball at the palace were the Duke who on duty in the palace, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson. A guard of honour of the Coldstream Guards was mounted in the interior of the palace.

The Prince of Wales, accompanied by Princesses Helena and Louisa, the Duke of Cambridge, and the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, conducted by Viscount Sydney and attended by the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, entered the ball-room shortly after ten o'clock.

Princess Helena wore a dress of silver-spangled tulle over rich white glacé; trimmed with pearl and diamonds; a wreath of necklace and bracelets to match; diamond ornaments: Victoria and Albert order, and order of St. Isabel.

Princess Louisa wore a similar dress, trimmed with strawberry blossoms. Head-dress, wreath of strawberry blossoms and diamonds; diamond ornaments, and Victoria and Albert order.

The Duchess de Brabant were a white taffeta dress, trimmed with blonde lace and diamonds; head-dress, diamond stars, surmounted by plumes, with diamonds; a girdle of diamonds, and diamond ornaments; order of San Carlos of Spain.

Dancing was commenced upon the entrance of the Royal family to the ball-room. The first quadrille (conducted by M. Wallerstein) was in attendance. Among those who had the honour of receiving invitations were the Duke and Duchess of Leuchtenberg, the Prince and Princess of Turn and Taxis, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess Bernadotte, Count of Turn and Taxis, the Duke of Teck, the Count and Countess Gleichen, the members of the Corps Diplomatique, and the Ministers and their respective families, and about 1400 members of the aristocracy.

ARRIVAL OF THE QUEEN OF THE NETHERLANDS.

The Queen of the Netherlands, attended by Madame von Pabst, Baroness von Rappard Baudwyck, and Baron Weckherlin, arrived in London, on Tuesday, from the Hague, and proceeded to Claridge's Hotel. Her Majesty and the Duke and Duchess de Brabant visited her Majesty shortly after her arrival.

On Wednesday the Queen visited the South Kensington Museum, and, on her return, called upon Countess Cowley. Later in the day her Majesty visited the Princess of Wales at Marlborough House, and also the Countess of Westmoreland. In the evening the Queen dined with the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, at which party was invited to meet her Majesty. Various members of the Corps Diplomatique and of the aristocracy entered their names in the Queen's visiting-book at the hotel.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Princess of Wales and Royal Prince are in perfect health.

On Thursday week the Prince of Wales visited the galleries of the Society of Painters in Water Colours and of the Institute of Painters in Water Colours. The Royal visitor was attended the House of Lords, and afterwards, accompanied by the Duchess de Brabant, drove out. In the evening the Prince went to the Opera, to the Duke and Duchess de Brabant. The following were invited to meet their Royal Highnesses:—The Prussian Ambassador and the Duke of Argyll, the Duke and Marchioness of Abercorn, Earl and Lady Constance Grosvenor, the Earl of Westmoreland, the Countess of Macclesfield, Viscount and Viscountess Strafford de Redcliffe, Viscount Royston, Lord Stuart, Lord Clarence Paget, Lieutenant-General the Right Hon. J. and Lady Alice Peel, the Right Hon. B. and Mrs. Disraeli, Sir J. Drummond Hay, Sir Rowland Hill, Colonel and Lady Emily Kingscote, the Rev. H. M. and Mrs. Birch, Countess Grünne, Count de Launoy and M. Brewer (in attendance on the Duke and Duchess de Brabant), Mr. G. Brewer (in attendance on the Prince of Wales), Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, The Prince of Liechtenstein was prevented joining the party. The Austrian Consul-General, Count Crenneville, and Mr. D. Godfrey, was in attendance.

Yesterday week the Prince was present at a divisional field day of the household troops, at Wormwood-scrubbs. In the evening his Royal Highness, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, went to Twickenham and dined with the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale, at Orleans House.

On Saturday last the Prince and Princess, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, drove out. In the evening the Prince honoured the Duke and Duchess of Manchester with his company at dinner, at their residence in Stanhope-street.

On Sunday the Prince attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. J. C. Haden, the Rev. T. Helmore, and the Hon. and Rev. A. F. Phipps were the officiating clergymen.

On Monday the Prince attended the House of Lords. The Princess, attended by the Countess of Macclesfield, drove out. Prince Arthur visited their Royal Highnesses at Marlborough House.

On Tuesday the Prince, attended by the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, was present at the Harveian oration delivered by Dr. Acland at the Royal College of Physicians. The Prince visited the Queen of the Netherlands, at Claridge's Hotel. His Royal Highness afterwards rode out. The Princess, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, took a drive.

On Wednesday the Prince presided at a meeting of the governors of the Wellington College, held at the New Palace at Westminster. His Royal Highness, attended by the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, was present in the afternoon at Mr. Alfred Wigan's "Reading," at Apsley House. The Prince afterwards rode out. The Princess, attended by the Countess of Macclesfield, took a drive. The Queen of the Netherlands visited their Royal Highnesses at Marlborough House. In the evening the Prince honoured Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone with his company at a ball, at their residence, on Carlton House-terrace.

On Thursday the Prince and the Duke of Cambridge reviewed the roops composing the household brigade in Hyde Park.

His Royal Highness the Duke and her Imperial Highness the Duchess de Brabant left town on Thursday, en route for Brussels.

The Duke and Duchess de Montpensier, who will shortly arrive in England, have taken Marble Hill, Twickenham, where they will reside until after the accouchement of the Countess de Paris.

His Highness Mustapha Fezil Pacha has returned to Claridge's Hotel from Ireland.

The Prussian Ambassador and Countess Bernstorff returned to town on Monday from Tunbridge Wells.

His Excellency Sir Andrew Buchanan and the Hon. Lady Buchanan have arrived from the Embassy at St. Petersburg, on a visit to Mr. and the Hon. Mrs. Rashleigh, Hill-street, Berkeley-square.

The Duke of Hamilton has arrived at his residence in Arlington-street from Paris.

Louisa Marchioness of Waterford has left Farrance's Hotel for Ford-Castle, near Coldstream, N.B.

Earl and Countess Craven and Lady Emily Craven left town on Wednesday for Coombe Abbey, Warwickshire.

The Earl of Rosslyn and Lady Harriet St. Clair have left Claridge's Hotel for Dysart House, N.B.

Viscount Hamilton, M.P., has left Chesterfield House, Mayfair, for Baron's Court, Ireland.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Duke and Duchess d'Aumale entertained the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, Princess Marguerite d'Orleans, and a distinguished circle at dinner, yesterday week, at Orleans House, Twickenham. The Duchess d'Aumale afterwards gave a grand ball, which was attended by Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess of Dornberg, the Duke and Duchess de Chartres, the Count and Countess de Paris, the Prince of Teck, Prince Mustapha, M. Sakakini, Matet Bey, Djela Bey, Lassmi Bey, Dr. Gardey, Prince Ysenberg, the Duke de Granada, the Marquis and Marchioness of St. Germano, Marquis Balbi, the Marquis de Fortunato, the Marquis de Caso Irajo, various members of the Corps Diplomatique, and by a large number of the aristocracy.

The Duke and Duchess de Chartres received a select party at dinner, yesterday week, at Morgan House, Ham.

The Count and Countess de Paris received a distinguished company at dinner, on Sunday evening, at York House, Twickenham.

His Excellency the Turkish Ambassador and Mdme. Musurus gave a grand full-dress banquet, on Monday evening, at the Turkish Embassy, in Bryanston-square, in celebration of the accession to the throne of the Grand Sultan (Abdul Aziz Khan) of the Ottoman empire.

The Archbishop of York and Mrs. Thomson received a select party at dinner, on Saturday evening last, at their residence in Portman-square.

The Archbishop of Armagh and Mrs. Beresford had a dinner-party, on Saturday evening last, at their residence in Prince's-gardens.

The Duchess of Manchester had a dancing-party, on Monday evening, at her residence in Great Stanhope-street.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde entertained a select party at dinner, on Saturday evening last, at their residence in Stratton-street,

The Marquis and Marchioness of Donegall entertained a large party at dinner, on Monday evening, at their residence in Grosvenor-square.

The Marchioness of Westminster had an afternoon party, on Wednesday, at Grosvenor House.

The Countess of Derby had an assembly, on Wednesday evening, at the family mansion in St. James's-square. Previously to the evening party the noble Earl and Countess received a distinguished company at dinner.

Earl and Countess Amherst received a select circle at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at the family residence in Grosvenor-square.

The Earl and Countess of Stradbroke entertained a large party at dinner, on Wednesday evening, in Belgrave-square.

The Countess of Airlie had an afternoon party, on Saturday last, at Airlie Lodge, Campden-hill, Kensington.

The Countess of Gifford gave her second morning party on Wednesday, at her residence, Dufferin Lodge, Highgate.

The Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue and Frances Countess Waldegrave received the Count and Countess de Paris and a select circle, on Saturday last, at Strawberry Hill.

Viscountess Palmerston had an assembly, on Saturday evening, at Cambridge House, Piccadilly. The reunion was honoured by the presence of the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke and Duchess de Brabant, nearly four hundred members of the aristocracy, and many members of the House of Commons.

Viscount and Viscountess Sydney had a select party at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at their residence in Cleveland-square.

Viscountess Ashbrook gave her first ball this season, on Monday night, at the temporary residence of the family in Belgrave-square.

Baroness Windsor gave her second dancing-party for the season, on Monday night, at her residence in Grosvenor-street.

The Bishop of London and Mrs. Tait entertained a select party at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at Fulham Palace.

General Sir William and Lady Gomm had a select party, on Tuesday afternoon, at their house in Spring-gardens. The full band of the Coldstream Guards was in attendance.

Lady Marian Alford had a distinguished party, on Saturday last, at Ashridge Castle, Herts. The visitors numbered about one hundred. The band of the Grenadier Guards was in attendance.

Captain and Lady Edith Abney Hastings entertained a distinguished company at dinner, on Wednesday, at their residence, Grosvenor-place Houses.

Lord and Lady Otho Fitzgerald had a dinner-party, on Tuesday evening, at their mansion on Carlton House-terrace.

Lady Bolton's ball at Willis's Rooms, on Wednesday night, was attended by nearly 400 visitors of rank.

Mrs. Gladstone had a dancing-party, on Wednesday night, at the Chancellor of the Exchequer's private mansion on Carlton House-terrace. The Prince of Wales, the Count de Paris, and a distinguished company were present.

The Right Hon. the Speaker gave his sessional dinner to the principal clerks and officers of the House of Commons on Wednesday evening.

Miss Burdett Coutts gave her fifth afternoon party, on Saturday last, at Holly Lodge, Highgate. A very numerous company responded to the invitations. The full band of the Coldstream Guards was in attendance.

The anniversary dinner of the Cambridge Athenæum Club took place at the London Tavern on Saturday last—the Earl of Powis in the chair.

The Royal grand Caledonian fancy-dress ball, for the benefit of the Roya Caledonian Asylum and the Royal Scottish Hospital, took place, yesterday week, at Willis's Rooms.

The Council of Legal Education have elected Thomas Collett Sandars, reader on constitutional law and legal history, in place of the late W. G. Phillimore, Q.C.

Mr. James Spence, Professor of Surgery in the University of Edinburgh, has been appointed Surgeon in Ordinary to the Queen, in room of the late Dr. David Maclagan.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The statue of the late Sir Charles Barry, by Mr. J. H. Foley, R.A., is in course of being erected in the new palace at Westminster.

On Tuesday evening her Majesty's Judges were entertained at dinner by the Sheriffs of London (Alderman Dakin and Alderman Besley), at the Trafalgar, Greenwich.

The Hon. F. H. Morse, United States Consul-General in London, will preside at the banquet to celebrate the anniversary of American Independence, appointed to take place, on Tuesday next, July 4, in Willis's Rooms.

An African elephant has been added to the extensive collection of living animals belonging to the Zoological Society of London. The animal is a young male, supposed to be five or six years old, and was obtained by the Zoological Society from the Jardin des Plantes, Paris, in exchange for an Indian rhinoceros.

On Wednesday morning the parochial authorities of St. Matthew, Bethnal-green, offered rewards, amounting to twenty-nine guineas, for the apprehension of the fathers and mothers of nearly a hundred children, who have been deserted and left chargeable to the funds of the parish. The whole of the children are now in the workhouse at Victoria Park.

The scientific and general meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society took place on Tuesday—Lord Henry Gordon Lennox, M.P., in the chair—when a few new Fellows were elected, including the Dowager Lady Suffield, &c. There was a very interesting exhibition of new and rare plants, which were commented on by the Rev. Joshua Dix; and Mr. G. F. Wilson, Mr. James Bateman, and Major Trevor Clarke, each gave a short lecture.

An exhibition representing the industrial resources of the working classes of Tottenham, Edmonton, and Enfield, was opened, last Saturday, at the drill-hall of the 33rd Middlesex Volunteers, Park-lane, Tottenham. The hall in which the exhibition is being held is tastefully and appropriately decorated with flags, banners, mottoes, &c., and the arrangement of the articles on view evinces much good taste and judgment. There was a large and fashionable audience at the opening ceremony. R. N. Fowler, Esq., J.P., presided; and was supported, among others, by Viscount Enfield, M.P.; the Vicar of Tottenham, Messrs. W. Leaf, G. Coles, J. A. Jaques, W. B. Poole, E. Clarke Pulley, May, G. R. Johnson, C. Jayne, and C. Widows.

The annual meeting of the Society for Improving the Condition of the Labouring Classes was held, on Tuesday, at Willis's Rooms. The Earl of Shaftesbury presided. The report gave an interesting sketch of the origin, progress, and present position of the various buildings connected with the society. The funds received in the year from all sources for the general purposes of the society amounted to £6399, leaving a balance at banker's and cash in hand of £287. The real property, &c., of the society (valued at cost) is £44,561; and the general liabilities, £21,789. The report and resolutions in support of the society were unanimously adopted. Amongst the speakers were the Rev. Canon Conway, Sir Walter Stirling, the Rev. Mr. Owen, Mr. William J. Maxwell, and the Rev. Mr. Bayley.

The annual dinner of the Law Amendment Society and the Social Science Association, now incorporated, took place last Saturday at the Ship Tavern, Greenwich. About eighty noblemen and gentlemen were present, among whom were the Earl of Harrowby, Lord Denman, Sir John Shaw Lefevre; Sir Fitzroy Kelly, Q.C., M.P.; Mr. Locke, Q.C., M.P.; Mr. Shaw Lefevre, M.P.; Mr. Charles Neate, M.P.; Mr. Serjeant Burke; Mr. Daniel, Q.C.; Dr. Waddilow, Dr. Pankhurst, Dr. Zimmermann, Mr. R. R. Torrens, Mr. Joseph Parkes, Mr. Hastings, Mr. Hawes, Mr. Charles Clark, and Baron Le Gros, and some other distinguished foreigners. The chair was taken by Lord Brougham, the venerable president of the society. The loyal and other toasts were most cordially received, and the health of Lord Brougham himself was drunk with the utmost enthusiasm. The entertainment was altogether a brilliant affair.

The annual festival of the Society of Friends of Foreigners in Distress was held at the London Tavern last week. Lord Cranworth, who presided, was supported by several distinguished foreigners and a company of about 150 gentlemen. This society has distinguished itself among the charitable institutions of the metropolis by affording help to those who, from their ignorance of the language, habits, and customs of this country, know not where to turn when they fall into distress. The institution consists of a pension and relief society, and an almshouse, providing comfortable abodes for twenty-four inmates, free of any charge. During the past year eighty-four pensioners each received 5s.; and ten, who had occupied a respectable position, but had fallen into distress, received a pension of 7s. 6d. per week. Sick allowances had been made in 273 instances, and £1189 has been expended in alleviating the wants of 2474 families or individuals. There was remarkable distress last winter among the foreign poor in the metropolis, and the society's resources were taxed to the utmost. The chief recipients of the charity were French and Italians. The subscriptions of the evening amounted to more than £2200.

Two Acts of Parliament have been issued, entitled "The Courts of Justice Building" and "The Courts of Justice Concentration Site," under which the new Palace of Justice will be reared. A sum of money has been voted to commence operations. By the first Act the money required from time to time for carrying into effect the purposes of the statutes is to be defrayed, in the first instance, out of money to be provided by Parliament. The whole advances to be made by the Paymaster-General are not to exceed £1,000,000. The Act provides for the repayment of this sum, and for the appointment of persons to carry out the objects intended. The property in certain offices is to be transferred. The new palace is to contain accommodation for the courts and offices required for law and equity, as well as the Probate and Divorce Courts, and the Court of Admiralty. There are twenty-three sections in the first statute and twenty-six in the other. The limit for the compulsory purchase of land is five years. Compensation is to be given to occupiers and tenants, and to be determined in the usual manner. The "New Palace of Justice," it is anticipated, will be begun as soon as the preliminary matters are arranged.

The births of 1949 children—1022 boys and 927 girls—were registered in London last week. In the corresponding weeks of ten years—1855-64—the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 1930. The deaths registered in London during last week were 1359; and in consequence of an increased mortality of children they exhibit a considerable increase on those of previous weeks. The average number for the twenty-fifth week of the year—viz., the corresponding week in ten years, 1855-64—is, with a correction for increase of population, 1177. The deaths from diarrhœa rose to 187, a number which is double that of the previous week. There were 42 deaths from scarlatina. There were 56 from whooping-cough. The deaths from heart disease rose from 54 in the previous week to 72 last week. Five fatal carriage accidents were returned.——Last week the births registered in London and ten other large towns of the United Kingdom were 4000; the deaths registered 2674. In Liverpool the births were 384, the deaths 275; in Manchester—births 220, deaths 227; in Salford—births 70, deaths 61; in Birmingham—births 236, deaths 119; in Leeds—births 273, deaths 123; in Bristol—births 121, deaths 67; in Hull—births 74, deaths 40; in Edinburgh—births 123, deaths 79; in Glasgow—births 363, deaths 213; and in Dublin—births 187, deaths 113. The rate of mortality last week was 24 per 1000 in London, 24 in Edinburgh, and 19 in Dublin; 30 in Liverpool, 33 in Manchester, 29 in Salford, 19 in Birmingham, 29 in Leeds, 22 in Bristol, 20 in Hull, and 26 in Glasgow.

The Metropolitan Board of Works has ordered the following changes in the names of public thoroughfares:—The names of Lancaster-terrace and Upper Hyde Park-gardens, Bayswater, to be abolished, and the whole line of thoroughfare to be called Lancaster-gate. Queen's-road and Queen's-terrace, Regent's Park, to be called Regent's Park-road. The subsidiary names in High-street and Hill-street, Peckham, to be abolished. The name of Providence-street and the subsidiary names in South-street, Walworth, to be abolished, and the whole line of thoroughfare to be called South-street. Caroline-street, Regent's Park, to be called Carlow-street. Edward-street, Regent's Park, to be called Redhill-street. Arthur-street, Kentish Town, to be called Healey-street. Providence-place, Bermondsey, to be called Mellick's-place. Upper John-street and Lower John-street, St. George's-in-the-East, to be called Blakesley-street. Claremont-place, Kensington, to be called Peel-street. Trafalgar-place, Field-place, Salisbury-place, Paragon-place, Dudfield-place, Salisbury-terrace, Hawksbury-place, Little Field's-place, and Lower Salisbury-place, Walworth, to be called Rodney-road. Winter-place and Radnor-terrace, Shoreditch, to be called Brownlow-road. The subsidiary names in Broke-road, Shoreditch, to be abolished. The subsidiary names in Shrubland-road, Dalston, to be abolished. The subsidiary names in Ball's-pond-road, Islington, to be abolished. There being two courts in the Strand named Angel-court, the one on the north side, near St. Mary's Church, is to be called Alliance-court.

The annual meeting and distribution of prizes to the students of the Female School of Art took place last Saturday, at the Museum of Geology, Jermyn-street. In the absence of Earl Granville, Lord President of the Privy Council of Education, the Hon. J. Bruce, vice-president of the council, occupied the chair. Mr. Harding read the report, which said that the present number of students on the books was 117, as compared with eighty-nine last year. On the 1st of March 115 drawings and paintings were sent to South Kensington in competition for some medals; medals were awarded, and three distinguished by honourable mention. Several of the students have obtained appointments as teachers in schools, others for executing designs and drawings for house decoration. The bazaar held in June last year, at which the Princess of Wales presided, produced a sum of £2412. A portion of this sum had to be paid to complete the final purchase of the premises. It is the intention of her Majesty to give a medal to be competed for annually by the students, and £10 towards the establishment of a Queen's scholarship. The chairman said he had heard the report read with great pleasure. It afforded them evidence of the success of the school, a success which was linked with a great national object—the diffusion throughout the country of art, of taste in our manufactures, and even in dress. He then presented the prizes, consisting of medals, and books, and cards, to the successful candidates. Mr. R. Westmacott, R.A., and the Rev. E. Bayley, Rector of St. George's, Bloomsbury, addressed the students.

STAG-HUNTING.—THE ROYAL HOUNDS.

STAG-HUNTING has in all ages and in all countries been considered as a sport of the noblest kind—we allude to that of the wild stag, which affords infinitely more excitement than the tame, uncarting system of the present day. In bygone times large tracts of land and immense forests were given up as chases, in which the antlered monarch might roam at large. The arbitrary manner of making Royal forests was as follows:—"The King sent out his commission under the great seal of England, directed to certain discreet persons, for the view, perambulation, meeting, and bounding of the place he minded to be a forest; which being returned to the chancery, proclamation was made throughout all the shire where the ground lay, that none should hunt or chase any manner of wild beasts in that precinct without the King's special license; after which he appointed ordinances and officers fit for the preservation of the vert (i.e. everything which bears green leaves) and venison." The above conditions being fulfilled, it became a forest by matter of record. The Norman Kings punished those who killed any beasts of the forest with the greatest severity. William I. caused the eyes of those to be pulled out who took either a buck or a boar; while his no less brutal son Rufus would hang a man for taking a doe. Henry I. drew no distinction between killing a man or a buck, both were punishable by death; and to destroy game out of a Royal preserve called down from that humane monarch either loss of limb or forfeiture of goods. Henry II. amended the tyrannical code, instituting imprisonment for the offence; but his son, Richard I., revived the savage laws of the first William for punishing those convicted of poaching in the Royal domains, but which he eventually changed to expatriation. The New Forest, Hampshire, was formed by the destruction, it is stated, of twenty-two parish churches and many villages and manors to the extent of thirty miles; and to this Royal depredation many attributed the misfortunes that befel several of the Princes in that forest. It was there that Richard, brother of Henry I., was killed by a soldier; Rufus by Tyrrell, and Henry, the nephew of Robert, the eldest son of the Conqueror, was hung in the boughs of the trees. At one period there were sixty-nine Royal forests in England; but these scenes of desolation and tyranny have been gradually contracted. Art, science, commerce, and agriculture, have spread themselves over those wide-extended tracts; and the savage quadrupeds of those days, like the more ferocious monarchs, have long been swept from the face of the earth.

The stag, in the present cultivated state of this country, is no longer found in his original wild state, but is kept in parks among the fallow deer. In the Highlands of Scotland the red deer still abound, and rove abroad over their native wilds untrammelled by park fences. Of the fallow deer we will merely remark that there are two varieties, both of which are of foreign extraction. We allude to the spotted kind, said to have been imported from Bengal; and those of a dark-brown colour, which came from Norway, were introduced by James I. into Scotland, and afterwards removed to the then celebrated chases of Enfield and Epping. An historical fact connected with a buck may not be uninteresting, and it will give an additional proof of the tyranny of our ancient monarchs. When Edward IV. was hunting in the park of Thomas Burdett, Esq., of Arrow, Warwickshire, he killed a store of deer, and amongst the rest a white buck. When Burdett heard of this he said that he wished the horns in the belly of him who counselled the King to kill it; for which words he was beheaded at Tyburn. Many years ago, a stag was hunted from Whinfield Park, in the county of Westmorland, when the whole pack, with the exception of two fox-hounds bred by Lord Thanet, were thrown out; the stag went away to Annan, in Scotland, a distance of forty-six miles, followed by these two hounds. Upon returning to the park the poor animal made a last effort, and, gathering his strength together, leapt the wall—and died as soon as he had accomplished it. One of the hounds attempted to follow, but expired; the other was found dead about half a mile from the spot.

With respect to deer, they ought not to be hunted until they are three years old; and they should be kept on good corn, beans, and clover. The paddocks should be dry and well sheltered from the weather, with a hovel in one corner, from which a door ought to be made to correspond with the opening in the deer-cart, and into which the stag can be driven without any trouble. In a grass country deer may be hunted once a fortnight; but in a flinty one it will be as well to save their legs by turning them out only once a month. The night before they are hunted the muzzle must be put on, prison allowance being strictly essential—that is, little food and a small quantity of water. The horns of the stag should be sawed off before the hunting season commences, in order to prevent mischief to men and the hounds.

We now turn to her Majesty's stag-hounds and the present Royal establishment. With regard to the hounds, the pack was originally purchased from the fourth Duke of Richmond, in 1813; since which period, especially during the last ten years, they have had new blood infused into them by being crossed with hounds from the packs of the Dukes of Grafton and Rutland, the Earl of Yarborough, Sir R. Sutton, Lord Leconfield, Mr. Assheton Smith, and Mr. Foljambe. The average number of working hounds is about fifty couples. The management of the stud is faultless, and the stable itself is the perfection of neatness and in every respect kept in beautiful order. The usual number of horses kept for the men varies from twenty to twenty-two, and for the master from six to eight; and when we consider the distances they have to go, and the length of the runs, it reflects no little credit upon the stud-groom that the work is done, and well done, by comparatively so small a number of horses.

Mr. Charles Davis, the huntsman, commenced his career, under George III., by riding the second horse of the equerry in waiting. As a huntsman, both in the kennel and the field, there are few that come up to Davis: he possesses judgment, quickness, patience, ability, forbearance, and good temper; indeed, the two latter virtues are pre-eminently conspicuous in his character, and are often put to the test—to wit, upon Easter Monday, at Maidenhead thicket, and other days at Salt-hill, when the field consists principally of horse dealers of the very lowest grade, who hunt to sell their horses, and who care little whether they sacrifice the whole pack so long as they find themselves in the first flight. In addition to the above, Cockney sportsmen on runaway hacks, graziers, farmers, butchers' boys, with a fair sprinkling of military and hunting men, form the mounted division, while hundreds of idle men and boys constitute the pedestrian group. No sooner is the deer uncarted than away start some two or three dozen flying roadsters, riding over the hounds, the only thing they do ride over, galloping in every direction, hallooing and shouting like a tribe of Ojibbeway Indians; and the moment the hounds are laid on such a charge of cavalry and infantry takes place, that it requires the patience of a man like Davis to settle down at all to his work. As a rider, both for hand and seat, her Majesty's huntsman is first rate. The whippers-in also possess patience and good temper, and do their work in a masterly manner.

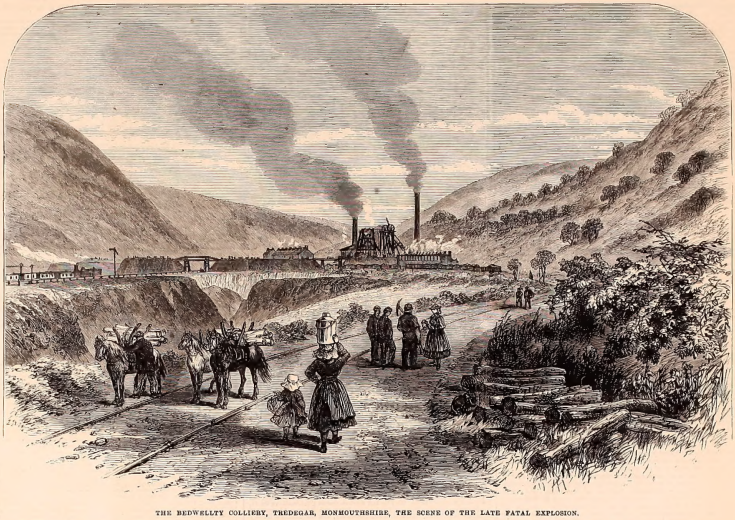
Happy are we to be able to record that the Prince of Wales seems extremely fond of hunting. Perhaps his Royal Highness inherits the love of it from his great-grandfather, George III. Superior to the little acts and meannesses of Court sycophancy, he knew how to enter into and enjoy British sports and pastimes without derogating, in the slightest degree, from the dignity of Majesty, and by so doing set an example to many a proud noble how to behave towards an inferior with genuine affability, condescension, and politeness. George III. was a patron of the chase—"the sport of British Kings"—and, as such, was a loss to the hunting world; for no Monarch since his time up to the accession of our present gracious Sovereign has taken the slightest interest in the chase.

A movement has been set on foot at Malton to erect a monument in commemoration of the late Earl of Carlisle. The proposition has found warm supporters, and a committee has been appointed to carry it out.

On Tuesday the eighth annual meeting of the Cotton Supply Association was held in the Townhall, Manchester—Mr. J. Cheetham, M.P., in the chair. The report of the secretary, including several supplementary reports from various quarters of the globe relative to the progress of cotton culture, was read to the meeting. Disappointment was expressed at the small results hitherto attending the culture of cotton in India; but the committee congratulated their constituents on the close of the American War and the prospects it opened up. The receipts for the year amounted to £6121, and the expenditure to £5337.

"LUGANO," BY W. COLLINGWOOD SMITH, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.

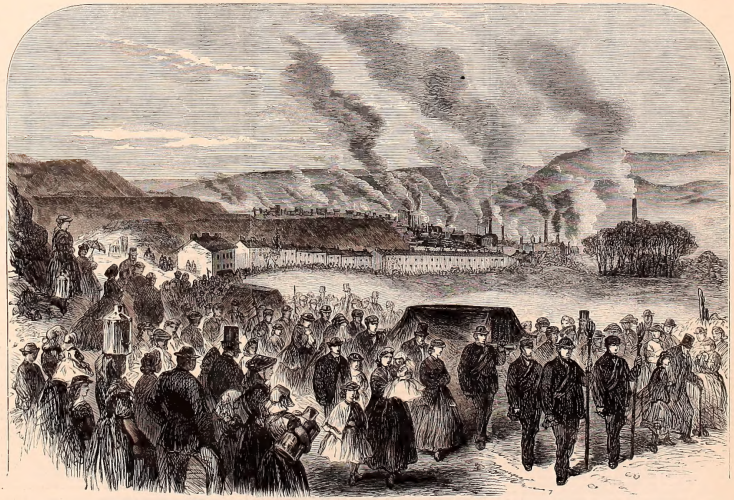
"LUGANO."



THE drawing we engrave is one of the largest and most noticeable in the Exhibition of the (Old) Water-colour Society; and, like all Mr. W. Collingwood Smith's works, the subject is interesting: the scene is most picturesque, the point of view well shown.

Lugano, the chief town of the canton Ternin—or, as it is called by the Italian inhabitants, Ticino—is, as it deserves to be, a favourite resort for artists. It is most charmingly situated on the margin of the lake to which it gives its name, the Lago Lugano, one of the most beautiful of the group of lakes which lie at the feet of the Alps along the north of Italy. Abrupt rocks, the outworks, as it were, of the snowy fastnesses of the southern Alps, and richly-wooded hills, clothed chiefly with the luxuriant vine, rise on every side from the lake; and are, together with the many market, fishing, and pleasure boats, reflected with marvellous vividness in the broad mirror round which those rocks and hills gather, screening it from the ruffling winds. The natural beauties of the scenery are not a little enhanced by the mansions, villas, and terraces which, even from a distance, sparkle like a diadem as they cluster along the brow of the dark blue lake, or glisten like gems among the deeper, fuller green of the groves and gardens dotted about the neighbouring slopes.

Enjoying an Italian climate, and being on one of the great high roads between Switzerland and Italy, Lugano has a very thriving trade, and the population (upwards of 5000) is rapidly increasing. Some of the Lugano merchants have large mansions; and the town contains, besides several manufactories, a hospital, a theatre, a college, and some fine churches and religious houses, including the Cathedral of San Lorenzo, which commands a very fine view. The white tower on the left of the drawing is that of the Church of Santa Maria degli Angeli, which contains a remarkable fresco, by Luini, of the Crucifixion. The Monte Salvadore soars 2000 feet above this white tower at its foot, and the visitor who may be induced to toil up its steep sides will be rewarded by a panoramic view of great extent and of rare and surpassing beauty. At the northern extremity of the lake is the town of Porlezza, whence a lovely drive over the hills will bring Como within view. Those tourists who can arrange to visit Lugano in October will, at the annual fair then held, have an opportunity of seeing a greater variety of costume from the neighbouring villages, Italian and Swiss, than can easily be met with elsewhere. Much political excitement, often ending in open feuds, invariably adds to the animation of a most picturesque and remarkable scene.



THE COLLIERY EXPLOSION AT TREDEGAR.

THE lamentable disaster which happened on Friday week, at the Tredegar Collieries, near Newport, in Monmouthshire, where twenty-six men and boys were killed by an explosion of gas, has already been reported. Our Illustrations give a view of the scene around the mouth of the New Bedwelty pit, in which the explosion took place; and, secondly, a view of the funeral procession which conveyed to their last resting-place the bodies of those who had perished. It seems that, on the morning of the explosion, the "fireman," as he is called, whose duty is to see that the mine is free from inflammable vapours, went down as usual to examine the working-places, and discovered gas in a cross-heading in the back workings, where a man named David Jones and his son worked. The accumulation of gas was by no means large, but the fireman thought it advisable to put the danger-signal up. The colliery is worked entirely by naked lights, but if gas were discovered in any place safety-lamps would be provided for the men in the immediate neighbourhood. This rule was adopted in the present instance, and David Jones and his son were provided with lamps, and they went down with the lamps on the morning of the explosion. It was their duty to test the gas first, and if it in the least increased it was their duty to leave the place at once and report to the fireman or overman. These were their instructions in ordinary circumstances; but when a danger-signal was up, as on the morning of the explosion, they ought not to have commenced working until the gas had been cleared, under the direction of either the fireman or overman. It is feared that this important regulation was not attended to, and that, the gas getting too strong, fire was communicated from the lamp, and the explosion followed: for about half-past ten o'clock a sudden rumbling noise was heard by the men at the top of the pit, and it was discovered that the gas had fired. Fortunately, the effects of the explosion did not reach the bottom of the shaft, so that no time was lost before examining the colliery in order to see what were the results of the explosion. Gangs were immediately formed for the purpose, and it was discovered that the gas had fired in the "dook workings." Forty-nine men and boys were at work in this section of the colliery, and by dint of extraordinary exertion on the part of the exploring parties a good many were got out, who would probably have fallen a prey to the fatal choke or after-damp, had they not been found out. As has been stated, the mouth of the bonk the scene became quite heartrending, for, the news having reached Tredegar, which is about a mile and a half from the colliery, crowds soon gathered around the top of the pit. Mothers were seen in tears for news, wives for their husbands, children for their fathers, and fathers deploring the loss of sons upon whom in their old age they depended for support. Other instances might be named where the effects of the most harrowing character, by the explosion, have been seen and were killed, in another two brothers, and in a third a father and son. The colliery is the property of the Tredegar Iron Company, the partners in which are Messrs. Forman, Fothergill, and Homfray, and it has recently undergone important improvements. It is generally believed that the partners will make provision for the maintenance of the bereaved, and consequently there will be no necessity for a public subscription.

THE BEDWELLTY COLLIERY, TREDEGAR, MONMOUTHSHIRE, THE SCENE OF THE LATE FATAL EXPLOSION.

FUNERAL OF THE COLLIERS KILLED BY THE LATE EXPLOSION AT TREDEGAR.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

A RETRENCHMENT Par very recently, in a public assembly, declared that it was no part of the province of the House of Lords to dictate the policy of the country, but to sit still and register the edicts of the and a great deal more, which resolved itself into this—that their Lordships' business was, when they did not positively oppose, to support, the Ters have been carrying out this part of their function pretty well since or less successfully, for the last few years, and the Opposition, reluctant, perhaps, to part with a Parliament of which he was the King, and to which, during the whole of that time, he was undutiful to him from the moment it was capable of action, he may be attributed has been wondering what they have to do for the next to the House of Commons are being put to an expense of hundreds of pounds, they prudently, for the present, refrain. It is a predeterminate air of being independent of any eventuality of the election in what may turn the tide of affairs, and the Conservatives that "shall be hereafter"—some of whom are Conservatives—Lord Derby put on a high-pressure demonstration against the Bill when it came it out. There was little of incident in the appearance of things or in the debate itself. To be sure, the Duke of Somerset was very lively with the figures of many Peers, and was sonorous until ten o'clock with scenes. Even Earl Russell, who this time wanted, when he said he made them, was not particularly lively himself, and nodded (let this be remembered when answers on doubtful points of foreign policy are to be heard in the House of Commons) in a way everyone knew what was to be the result the interest was insight, and the more exciting circumstances connected with the debate on the Bill ment used by Lord Derby at the close of his speech, which was to the effect that it could not concern the people of the country much what he was on the confines of the grave.

As to the House of Commons, its appearance has been like that of the sky on a day of uncertain weather—fitful and irregular, sometimes clear, at considerable intervals, but more often with cloud dwindling down to Mr. Heaussey, who is the most decided representative of the stay-in-the-House system. The mention of this gentleman takes a recollection of him in the Conservative escapades for which he is famous, in the negative sense of that word. Never lately without notice, and with a view to opposition only, he has endeavoured to bring Mr. Magnire into an equivocal position before the people of Dublin, by the notice that Mr. Maguire has for some years been, we had almost said, boring the House about Irish terms of which he is the author and a Committee to inquire into the subject, of which he was chairman. This Committee underwent unexpected changes, and at the last appearance of which Mr. Hennessy suddenly, and at a least-expected moment, brought it before the House in a manner to insinuate that the cause of many light had been brought to bear upon the principal Parliamentary champion. Happening on this and a subsequent occasion, when that line course was taken, to be in the House, Mr. Maguire rushed into the house, and, palpably conscious of his injury sought to be heard. But Mr. Hennessy had seemed very much to be intended, implicitly disclaimed the indirect charge against him, which explained away the whole of the agrarian activity peculiar to Mr. Hennessy, and which Dr. Watts has characterised in more celebrated lines when he says that Satan finds some as regularly as cooking medicines. Perhaps the volatile member for King's County may be congratulated on having obtained the repeal of the Seven years' Imprisonment Act, one of the clauses of which—that condemning to imprisonment "Irish gentlemen with nothing to do"—appears to have been always in his mind since the time of his Parliamentary education.

In the tedium and fidgety condition of the House, as may well be supposed, the proceedings have been varied, being carried on in short paroxysms, with, as a rapidly, that, if the Government should have a special incident, each incident has been so small and so feeling as not worth evidence as it flew. The greatest of these was the Bankrupt Bill hurried: everybody has acted and spoken quickly, as if by taking that business to progress would be increasing the pace at which Parliament has recently creamed but one solemn debate. There had been a morning sitting, and the House met for the evening at six o'clock. Just before that hour there was, as it were, marching in of the members like a procession, a far greater number of members than might have been supposed to be present at a time when "Derby" was not on the Bill by the several of wigs and the average attendance is fifteen. The reason was not very obvious, when it was found that Mr. Walcott had only given notice of a "question" with regard to the course which her Majesty's Government proposed to take in connection with whose the Select Committee on the Lords Bankruptcy Court affair had considered—because that implied that Government had something to be realised to the words to be had placed on the paper, and it was natural that the reply would be as brief and as vague as possible. Probably this was what Mr. Lowndes imagined when he rose to put the interrogatories of his nature could not resist the opportunity which was afforded him, and on him was the unexpected responsibility of the Session; the leaders on both sides in presence, and the whole audience in the state of open-mouthed curiosity which follows the reception of any strong talk, the subject being a Lord Chancellor. The moment was too tempting to be resisted, and Mr. Lowndes, Longfield, confirming the Speaker's objection by moving the adjournment of the House, opened the following speech, which was in the question sense—nay, solemn—in its nature so treated. It was dealt with in a speech of pointed bitterness and sarcasm, and contained the episodes of the kind of speeches which at one time it was sought to import into the courts of law in England, by an Irish barrister, in cases of breach of contract of marriage, where the lady was particularly excellent and the honour inconsequent and vapid: in fact, the style and manner were just that of the cross-examiner. Mr. Lowndes is, nowadays and until now, most people have been accustomed to consider a cartoonist rather than a paper, but he has shown that his early obligations to an accuse who contrived so to present his case as to make it unfavourable to the taste of those who sat on it. It was obvious that the Attorney-General was under the influence of contending feelings, when he rose to reply but the most pervading was, perhaps, that of indignation at and contempt of the exhibition, he had just witnessed, and which he described in no measured but very fitting terms. It is rarely that a speech produces such an effect on the House as that of Sir Roundell Palmer, and evidence of the great forensic influence which he has acquired over that assembly was afforded in the circumstance that when he concluded there was a pause, and an indication of a feeling that all had been said. But, if, as was remarked, there had been a little scheme, from an electioneering point of view, to damage Ministers in the person of the Lord Chancellor, it was terribly disconcerted by the mode in which the matter had been initiated; and when the Attorney-General sat down the House quietly but steadily emptied. Mr. Gathorne Hardy saw that a mule had been made, and did little to revive the discussion, which might have ended after Mr. Egerton, in a straightforward way, had vindicated the Committee from the insinuations which had been made against it; but the Lord Advocate must needs rise and say, lumberingly and coldly, what the Chancellor of the Exchequer had put forcibly and manly, and then gave an opportunity to Viscount Cranborne to show that the sarcastic power and gentlemanly feeling Lord Robert Cecil had served the change of name which the noble Lord the member for Stamford has undergone. It is to be observed that Mr. Lowndes, who had looked mischievous in the early part of the sitting, and who, it was thought, had, if he had not brought in, at least given notice of the meeting of the Chancellor," have spoken, put on his hat when the Attorney-General had finished, and left the House, and Lord Cranborne did not get out at a moment when he could do so without being noticed. Lord Palmerston, however, missed the Chancellor's speaking, and speaking a few words of plain English to Mr. Longfield; and they were like these which which the elder Pitt once threatened Murray—they were diggers.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—SATURDAY.

The House met for the transaction of a number of private bills.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:—Winchcomb Heath and Broadway Junction Railway; Bridgwater Railway; Lydney Docks (Cheshire to Minsterley), Glossop New North Road, &c.; Carmarthenshire Railway; Rainhill Trading Estates; Wrexham, Mold, and Connah's Quay Railway (Vice Valley Branch); Stonehouse and Nailsworth Railway; Tottenham and Hampstead Junction Railway; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway (Wath Railway); Chesterfield Canal Navigation; Bristol and Exeter Railway, Bridge Street Improvement; Bristol Docks Consolidation; Swansea Improvement and Railway Companies; Bristol Port Railway and Pier; Cambrian Railways; Ely Tithe Commutation; Wolverhampton Waterworks; Rhondda and Swansea Bay Railway and Dock; Penarth Harbour, Dock, and Railway; Southwark Improvement; Metropolitan Consolidated Commutation (Compensation Allowances).

The following private bills were read a second time and passed:—Duke of Bridgewater's Estate, Dunfermline Bonds, Wolverhampton and Walsall Railway, Mid Wales Railway (Llanidloes and Newtown), Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railways, West London Wharves and Warehouses; Wrexham, Mold, and Connah's Quay Railway (Additional Powers); Leeds Estates, Perth General Railway Station; Scottish Central, &c., Railways' Consolidation and Mortgage Debenture Stock; Caledonian Railway Lines; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway (Purchases, &c.); Great Northern Railway (Additional Powers); Caledonian, Dumbarton, and Whitehill Railway, Eastern and Western Yorkshire Union Railway; and Bristol and Exeter Railway (Additional Powers).

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

Sir A. W. Hallett, Bart., Buckinghamshire, took the oaths and his seat for Liskeard, in place of Mr. R. B. Osborne.

On the motion for the House resolving itself into Committee on Bankruptcy Bill, Sir Hugh Cairns introduced the subject of the training and discipline of the Irish constabulary. Mr. Whiteside, Dublin University, and Colonel Greville-Nugent said as but the Speaker had to interfere and declare the rules of debate were being infringed. Eventually the House went into Committee.

The House went into Committee on the Clerical Subscription Bill, after Mr. Hadfield had withdrawn certain amendments. Mr. Newdegate, Warwickshire, after some discussion, the various clauses were agreed to, and the House resumed.

The report on the Bankruptcy Bill, Lords' Amendments, was brought up and was discharged.

The Lords' amendments were made to the Inland Revenue Bill, County Courts (Equity Jurisdiction) Bill, and to the Bankruptcy Consolidation Bill.

The following bills were read a second time:—The Admiralty Acts Repeal, the Admiralty Court Act, and the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act Repeal (Lamberton).

The Tramways Acts Continuance Bill and the Colonial Docks Loan Bill passed through Committee.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:—The Indemnity, the Colonial Governors (Retiring Pensions), the Compound Spirits Warehousing, the Public Works Loan Commissioners (Additional Powers), Metropolitan Sewage Bills.—Kidwelly and Llanelly Canal and Tramroad, West Cornwall Railway, and Worcester Improvement Bills.

The Lords' amendments to the Public-house Closing Act and to the Mortgage Debenture Bill were agreed to.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—TUESDAY.

Earl Granville and their Government, having taken into consideration the terms of private treaties with the Court of Spain, a Royal Commission would be observed on the 4th of July. The Government believed that at this period there would be no necessity for the presence of a British squadron in the world, mostly them in prolonging the Session.

The Lord Advocate's Government (No. 6) Bill was reported, with amendments.

The following bills were read a second time:—The Peace Preservation (Ireland) Act Continuance, the Public Health Act (Duties of Clerks), the Metropolis), the Turnpike Trusts (Arrangements), the Army Regulation Act, and the Expiring Laws Continuance Bill.—Inclosure Commissioners and Public Audit, and the Inland Revenue, the Indemnity, and the Compound Spirits Bills.

The following bills passed through Committee:—The Prisons, the Salmon Fishery Act Amendment, the Newry, Armagh, and Portadown Railway Abolition Act Amendment, the Rochdale Canal, the Naval Discipline Act Continuance, and the Expiring Laws Continuance Bill.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:—The Army Regulation (Ireland) Act Amendment, the Navy and Marines (Wills), Poor Act Relief and Loan Commissioners (No. 3), Naval and Military Pay and Pensions, Harbours Transfer, the National Gallery (Dublin), and the Lord Dunboyne Peerage.

The following private bills were read a third time and passed:—Blisbarg and Glasgow Railway, Ely Tithe Commutation, Bristol and Exeter Railway, Rithway Railway, Alexandria (Newport) Docks, Strathspey Railway, Aboyne and Braemar Railway, Great Northern Railway (Additional Powers), Great Western's Bridge; London, Chatham, and Dover, and Whitehaven Junction Railway; Caledonian Railway (Dalmuir and Motherwell and Dunbridge Railway; Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway (Additional Railways), West York-shire Railway, Caledonian Railway (Bangsbur Junction); London, Chatham, and Dover Railway (No. 2); Tontine, Merton, and Winchelsea Extension Railway; Bishops Castle Railway (Deviations), &c.; and Leeds New Railway Station.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

The Criminal Subscription Bill and the Turnpike Acts Continuance Bill, as amended, were agreed to.

The Lunacy Inquiry, Derrynane, &c., Fisheries Bill, which originated in the Lords, was read a second time without opposition.

The Consolidated Fund (Appropriation) Bill, the Expiring Laws Continuance Bill, the Poor-Law Board Continuance Bill, and the West Cornwall Railway Bill were read a third time and passed.

Lord Palmerston, in answer to Mr. C. Forster, said that the prorogation would take place on Thursday next, the 6th of July.

Colonel Wilson Patten moved a series of resolutions in respect to the court of referees for private bills. He said the court had worked most satisfactorily, and the object of the resolutions was to extend its powers. He proposed that the number of members of the courts should be paid. A long discussion followed, and eventually the resolutions were modified so as to make them simply order the continuance of the services of referees next Session.

MR. LEWIS'S BANKRUPTCY COURT.

Mr. Lowndes moved for the production of the report of the Committee on the Lords Bankruptcy Court, and observed that twice within three months a distinguished member of the Government had declared that the report of the Committee was to be made into the exhibition of the patronage of the Crown, and had in consequence been allowed officials to be pushed from their places in order to make room for new appointments. The Lord Chancellor, gentlemen, like, brought, went into the circumstances of the inquiry before the Select Committee, and the investigations which had been made by Mr. Lewis. Mr. Welch, and the Rev. G. Harding, in reference to the disposition of the sugar-basin of Lord Chancellor Cranworth. The Lord Chancellor, in the course his speaks in the most unmeasured terms, accusing the noble and learned Lord of having, in the House of Commons, made a statement to counteract the effect of Mr. Welch's plans for which Mr. Welch had paid money to Mr. Lewis. Mr. Lewis, in his evidence, had stated that he was not aware that Mr. Welch was Mr. Lewis's solicitor, and that he was not aware that the Edmonds sensible had become matter of public notoriety. He expressed his surprise that the noble and learned Lord was under these circumstances, still Lord Chancellor. He inquired what steps the Government proposed to take in consequence of the report against the parties implicated by it. Had the person for Mr. Welch been recalled, had Mr. Welch and Mr. Miller been dismissed? Lord Cranworth had had the Lord Chancellor been asked to retire on a pension.

The Attorney-General protested against this motion as prematurely made, before the evidence taken by the Select Committee was in the hands of the House. He had no doubt that the report of the Committee would be laid before the House, and he agreed with Mr. Lowndes that it was best to be taken by the Lord Chancellor was no party to the alleged corrupt arrangements between his son and the other parties concerned in them. The Lord Chancellor had not been informed from communication, either personally or by letter, with his son-a way was he aware that his son was to be employed to receive retainers over as his father. The appointment of Mr. Welch by the Lord Chancellor was made on grounds which were entirely creditable to the corrupt transaction in which his son engaged, and he was influenced by no corrupt motive whatever, and that was the case with Mr. Miller. Government had carefully abstained from appointments on any other grounds than those of the most unimpeachable character. The Lord Chancellor would, he was sure, have taken all care not to be influenced by Mr. Welch's position. The Government had determined to lay the evidence taken by the Committee before the law officers of the Crown, to decide whether the persons implicated could be subjected to criminal prosecution, and Mr. Welch would be dismissed from any public employment; and as to Mr. Miller, the Committee did not implicate him in any corrupt transaction.

An animated discussion followed, in which Lord Robert Cecil censured, who expressed the pain and indignation with which he had listened to Mr. Bankrupt's speech. He had a perfect right of any party to attack individuals of another; yet, he must say, that such persons had always had fair play in the House of Commons. He thought the House had been influenced by Mr. Lowndes's remarks against the course being taken by the evidence. He was grieved at the latter part of the speech of the Attorney-General, in which the charges made against the Lord Chancellor should be considered of the manner in which the matter had been brought under discussion without notice to the Lord Chancellor. He regretted that his son, member had taken a course so unusual in the house.

The subject then dropped.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—WEDNESDAY.

The House met at one o'clock for the dispatch of private business.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:—Accrington Railway, and Lincolnshire Railway (Extension), &c., and the Regalia Bills.

The following bills were read a second time and passed:—Great Twelgarr's Estate, Lord Rolle's Estate, Skipton and Wharfedale Railway, Tunbridge Wells Water, Liverpool Improvements, &c. (Amendment), Bristol Docks, County Central Station and Southam Junction Railway; Dumfries, Lockerbie, and Hawick Railway (Deviations), Dumfries, Lockerbie, and Hawick Railway (Muirkirk Branches), Caledonian Railway (Cleland and Midland Railway Branches), Caledonian Railway (Motherwell and Wishaw Railway Amalgamation), Glasgow and South Western, Maybole, and Girvan, &c., Railway Companies, Glasgow and South Western Railway (Additional Powers), and South Western Railway (Additional Powers), Greenock Police and Improvements, Hyndland Railway, Glasgow Bridges, Blackwall Railway, Caledonian Railway (Caledon Borough Improvement; and Worcester, Dean Forest, and Monmouth Railway.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—WEDNESDAY.

The Tees Navigation Orders Bill and the Bank Notes Issue (Scotland) Bill were withdrawn.

The Lords' amendments to the Inland Revenue Bill were agreed to.

Mr. Hibbert withdrew the Capital Punishments within Gaols Bill.

The Clerical Subscription Bill, the Turnpike Acts Continuance Bill, the Colonial Docks Loans Bill, and the Marriages (Lunchone) Bill were read a third time and passed.

The Lords' amendments to the Prisons (Scotland) Act Amendment Bill were considered and agreed to.—The Procurators (Scotland) Bill, Bankruptcy Amendment, General Post-Office (Additional Site), Small Dwellers (Ireland) Act (Valuation), and Bankruptcy Consolidation Bills passed.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—THURSDAY.

Their Lordships met at four o'clock, when the Commons were summoned to hear the Royal Assent given by Commission to the Consolidated Fund (Appropriation for Expenses), Docks and Extensions, Drainage and Improvement of Land Acts (Ireland) Amendment, Public Works Loan Commissioners (Advances) (Ireland) (Revised Order Confirmation) (No. 2), Pheasants (Ireland), Oxford University Statutes, Bankruptcy Consolidation, Bankruptcy Amendment, Bankruptcy Commissioners' Salaries, Bankruptcy Amendment, Lord Harrowe Orders Confirmation, Colonial Laws Validity, Defence Act (1860) (Amendment), Sewage Utilisation, Exchequer Bills, Public Works Loan Commissioners (Superannuation Allowance), War Department Treasury (Stores), Constabulary Force (Ireland) Act Amendment, Militia Pay and Pensions, Militia Ballots Suspension Continuation (No. 2), Naval and Marine Pay and Pension, National Gallery (Dublin), Mortgage Debenture, Lunacy Inquiry, Derrynane, &c., Lunatic Asylum (Ireland), &c., Amendment, Public-houses Closing Act (1864) Amendment, Tuesday Order Confirmation, Public Health Act (Duties of Clerks), Metropolis Sewage Bills, Kingston Harbour, Colonial Marriages Validity, and about a hundred private bills.

The following bills were read a second time and passed:—Carriers Act Amendment, Poor-Law (Appropriation), Expiring Laws Continuance, Poor-Law Board Continuance, Inland Revenue, Indemnity, Compound Spirits Warehousing Bills.—Public Works Loan Commissioners (Advances) (Ireland) Act Amendment, Poor-Law Amendment, Parish Property Regulation, Militia Pay and Pensions, Navy and Marines (Property of Deceased), Reddish Vicarage, Navy and Marines (Property of Deceased), and Dover Docks.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

The Admiralty, &c., Acts Repeal, the Dockyards Ports Regulation, the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act Repeal, and Inclosure General Bills severally passed through Committee.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.

The House went into Committee, and

Sir C. Wood moved, in a speech of some length, moved the following resolutions:—

1. That the total net revenues of the territories and departments under the immediate control of the Government of India for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £37,715,000 sterling, and the charges thereof, for the same period, other than military charges, amounted to £9,148,116 sterling.

2. That the total net revenues of the Bengal Presidency, including the Straits Settlements, for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £12,027,716 sterling, and the charges thereof, for the same period, other than military charges, amounted to £2,716,000 sterling.

3. That the total net revenues of the North-Western Provinces, for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £4,847,055 sterling, and the charges thereof, for the same period, other than military charges, amounted to £1,483,393 sterling.

4. That the total net revenues of the Punjaub, for the year ended the 29th day of April, 1864, amounted to £2,715,163 sterling, and the charges thereof, for the same period, other than military charges, amounted to £1,010,990 sterling.

5. That the total net revenues of the territories and departments under the immediate control of the Government of India, of the Bengal Presidency, of the North-Western Provinces, and of the Punjaub, together, for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £57,251,774 sterling; and the charges thereupon, including the military charges, amounted to £15,358,499 sterling; leaving a surplus available for the general charges of India, of £41,893,275 sterling.

6. That the total net revenues of the Madras Presidency (Part St. George), for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £5,973,713 sterling; and the net charges thereof, including the military charges, to £3,761,000 sterling; leaving a surplus available in the above Presidency, for the general charges of India, of £2,212,713 sterling.

7. That the total net revenues of the Bombay Presidency, for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £6,441,851 sterling, and the net charges thereof, for the same period, amounted to £5,386,361 sterling, leaving a surplus available in the above Presidency, for the general charges of India, of £1,055,490 sterling.

8. That the total net revenues of the several Presidencies, for the year ended the 30th of April, 1864, amounted to £35,636,898 sterling, and the charges thereof amounted to £26,018,388 sterling, leaving a surplus revenue of £9,618,510 sterling.

9. That the interest on the registered debt of India, paid in the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £3,093,250 sterling, and the charges defrayed in England, on account of the Indian territory, in the same period, including interest on debt incurred in England and guaranteed interest on the capital of railway and other companies, after deducting net traffic receipts of railways, amounted to £6,446,913 sterling, leaving a surplus of Indian income for the year ended as aforesaid, after defraying the above interest and charges, of £78,347 sterling.

Mr. H. SEYMOUR viewed the statement just made as one of such importance that it deserved the most serious consideration. The subject could not be properly disposed of until the documents relating to it had been laid before the House and thoroughly investigated. Those documents would disclose the progress of public works and of irrigation. They would also show the effect of the general taxation of India. The condition of the Talookdars, ryots, and other cultivators of the soil, ought also to be considered. It was necessary that the Government should ascertain how India could be defended in the most efficient manner by the smallest number of men. The mortality amongst the Europeans had been enormous, and he strongly advocated that the chief seat of authority should be transferred from Calcutta to Bombay, as it was more healthy, gave better shipping accommodation, and was in every way more advantageous to the British interests than Calcutta. There were two things which they ought to do in order to secure the prosperity of India, and they were, first, to respect the customs which at present existed, and, secondly, to protect the religion of the natives. He hoped that the Government would not attempt to promote a kind of parochial system in that vast territory. He deprecated the Government giving any encouragement to interference with the religion of the natives, and pointed to Ireland as an example, where such a policy had engendered the most bitter feelings of hatred.

Mr. VANSITTART entered into a statement in order to show that the number of European troops in India had been reduced to a minimum.

Mr. BUXTON urged that more European troops were necessary in order to preserve our supremacy in India.

Mr. BAZLEY condemned the practice of delaying the financial statement of a country containing about 150,000,000 of inhabitants until the last week or so of the Session, when it was impossible to discuss the subject properly.

(There were only about half a dozen members present during the greater part of this debate.)

After some brief observations from Colonel Sykes, Mr. W. Ewart, and Mr. Kinnaird, Sir C. WOOD replied.

The resolutions were then agreed to.

THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.

ALL the preparations connected with the departure of this great expedition are complete. Every facility has been given by the Government to ensure, as far as possible, its success, the resources of the dockyard at Sheerness having been placed at the disposal of the promoters of the undertaking by the Admiralty.

On Thursday week the directors gave an entertainment on board the Great Eastern, in the hold of which the telegraph cable lies coiled. The Lords of the Admiralty and her Majesty's Ministers were the guests of the day; but the company included also many members of the aristocracy. The novelty of the day was the transmission of short messages through the entire length of the cable. The first of these, "Success to the expedition," was spelt out in something under three minutes, after passing through the 2223 nautical miles of cable, stored in the big ship. Mr. J. Pender, M.P., the chairman of the company presided, in the grand saloon; and, after giving the toasts of "The Queen" and "The President of the United States," proposed the "Health of her Majesty's Ministers." The Duke of Somerset, after returning thanks, proposed "Success to the undertaking;" and the chairman then gave "The American Minister, Mr. Adams," congratulating all present on the friendly relations existing between this country and the United States, and alluding with feeling to the good friendship, delicacy, judgment, and tact Mr. Adams had invariably displayed in every circumstance connected with this country in which his diplomatic talents had been called into play. After a suitable response, the party broke up, and the remainder of the afternoon was devoted to the inspection of the ship, and to the examination of charts and maps giving the soundings of her approaching voyage, sanguine predictions of the complete success of the enterprise being uttered on all sides.

The Great Eastern left her moorings at Saltpan Reach, near Chatham, on Saturday last, for the Nore. Steam was got up on board at an early hour on Saturday morning; and, notwithstanding that the machinery of the Great Eastern has not been brought into use for considerably more than twelve months, the engines worked with remarkable speed and regularity, while they were stopped and started within a very few seconds after the word was passed. At half-past twelve the order was given for starting the Great Eastern, and she immediately began moving down the Channel towards Garrison Point and the Nore Light. The spot selected for her was about five miles below the Nore Light, where there is a depth of at least seven fathoms at low tides. By direction of the Government, the Porcupine, surveying-steamer, had been previously engaged in making a survey of the channel from the Medway to the Nore, and marking out the route by buoys and beats, so as to prevent the possibility of any untoward occurrence. On the Great Eastern passing the various vessels of war in harbour, the crews crowded the rigging and saluted the steamer with loud cheers. On board the Formidable, 84, flagship of Vice-Admiral Sir C. Talbot, Commander-in-Chief, the marines presented arms; while on board the Cumberland, 70, the band, as the Great Eastern steamed past, played alternately "Rule Britannia" and "Hail, Columbia." The paddle-wheels made about six revolutions per minute, and the screw rather more, and this speed was maintained until the harbour was cleared. On rounding Garrison Point a large concourse of spectators vociferously cheered as the Great Eastern passed. Accompanying the steamer were the Vivid, Locust, and Sheerness, Admiralty steamers, with three private steamers, the Porcupine standing about half a mile in advance to show the way to be taken. At a few minutes after two the anchorage-ground below the Nore and the Mouse Lights was reached, and the Great Eastern brought up, the whole of the operations connected with her removal from her old to her new anchorage having been effected without the least accident. Here she remains at anchor for a few days for the adjustment of her compasses, and to receive on board the remainder of her coals and stores.

The Great Eastern has in her about 7000 tons of cable, or, including the iron tanks which contain it and the water in which it is sunk, about 9000 tons in all. In addition to this she has 7000 tons of coal on board, and 1500 tons more to take in. Her total weight, including engines, will then be rather over 21,000 tons, a stupendous mass for any ship to carry, but well within the capacity of the Great Eastern, of which the tonnage is 24,000.

Before the following spring tides set in, which will be towards the end of next week, the Great Eastern will start for Valencia. She will be met there by the two ships of war, the Terrible and the Sphinx, appointed to convey her. Both these vessels are being fitted with the best apparatus for deep-sea soundings; with buoys and means for buoying the end of the cable, if it should become necessary; and with Bollen's night-light naval signals, with which the Great Eastern is likewise to be supplied. To avoid all chance of accident, the big ship will not approach the Irish coast nearer than twenty or twenty-five miles, and her stay off Valencia will be limited to the time occupied in making a splice with the massive shore end, which, for a length of twenty-five miles from the coast, will be laid previous to her arrival. This monstrous shore end, which is the heaviest and strongest piece of cable ever made, will be laid from the head of a sheltered inlet near Cahirciveen out to the distance we have stated, where the end will be buoyed and watched by the ships of war till the Great Eastern herself comes up. Some idea of the strength and solidity of this great end may be guessed by the fact that its weight per mile is very little short of half the weight of an ordinary railway metal. For the shore end of Newfoundland only three miles are required, and this short length will be sent in the Great Eastern. When once the splice is made from the great cable-ship to the English shore end—an operation which will consume about five hours—the work of laying the cable will begin. By that time every mile of the cable in the three tanks will have been joined up, and at a stated hour, morning and evening, a series of signals will be sent through the cable to the land at Valencia, and thence to London, giving the latitude and longitude of the great ship, the state of the weather, and the number of miles paid out. The cable will be first taken out from the forward tank, next from that midships, and lastly from that astern; and, if all goes well, the vessel should arrive with nearly 500 miles of cable in her still unused—an excess which is most wisely allowed, in case of accident. Since the paying-out apparatus has been in work its action has been faultless.

Messrs. Canning, Clifford, and Temple have absolute charge of all the details connected with the submergence. Mr. De Sauty is in charge of the electrical condition of the cable for the makers; Mr. Varley goes to represent the Atlantic Company; and Professor Thomson as scientific adviser and referee. These gentlemen, however, are only the chiefs of the various large departmental staff which will be on board.

If all go well, both as to course and rate of steaming, telegraphic communication with the United States may be looked for about the 20th inst.

A few days ago a large body of "bottle-nose" whales entered Broad Bay, in the island of Lewis. A number of boats were manned, and went in pursuit, and in a short time the fishermen beached ninety-three whales.

The summer fête and entertainment to the inmates of the Earlswood Asylum for Idiots was given on Thursday week, in the grounds of the asylum, in the presence of a numerous and fashionable company.

There was a serious collision between Orangemen and Ribbonmen at Annaghmore, in the county of Armagh, yesterday week. The Protestants were fired upon, and several received gunshot wounds, the injuries sustained by one man being considered dangerous.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

ASCOT was followed by Hampton, where Whitechapel takes the lead and has it all its own way, while St. James's retires into quiet but dignified privacy till Stockbridge. It was at Hampton, on the Thursday, that the brave old Caller Ou won her third Queen's Plate this year, and that, too, after winning a like trophy at Liverpool on the first day of Mr. Topham's meeting. Her double victory within the week gave her an immense lift in the betting for the Northumberland Plate. The public would stand nothing else, in fact, although good judges held aloof and acted with great caution. And they were right, as the Northumberland Plate running proved, for the hitherto almost invincible Caller Ou died away under the weight when fairly collared by a young'un; and though Challoner did all he could to squeeze one other effort out of the old mare it was no use, and he saw victory snatched out of his hands by a neck.

This week it has been a war between North and South—but a friendly one. The series of Hampshire meetings has been quite a bumper for the most insatiable of southern sportsmen, while the great and popular gathering on the banks of the Tyne has afforded the denizens of those coaly regions full scope for the development of their sporting instincts. And well have both racecourses been patronised, for never before in the annals of racing did such countless multitudes flock into Newcastle, nor did the beautiful course at Stockbridge present so charmingly gay and fashionable an appearance as during the current week. Bibury and Stockbridge are justly celebrated for bringing out youngsters of promise, and it was at the former that The Duke was first presented and created such a favourable impression by the style in which he won the Sixth Stockbridge Biennial. The followers of John Day's stable were so fond of him that they made a rush at once to get on him for the Derby; and even after his defeat by Liddington, in the July following, he was reinstated in public favour after the North of England Biennial at York. Robin Hood, the winner this year, though not engaged in the Derby himself, has had the satisfaction of knowing that if he were King Hal's chance of wearing the blue ribbon would be a remote one. Indeed, such a case of cutting down was paralleled by the easy beating Young Monarque gave Lord Portsmouth's Whalebone, with Wells up. Count Lagrange is likely to be formidable in next year's Two Thousand with two such flyers as Young Monarque and Auguste, the latter said to be one of the most promising two-year-olds ever seen, and backed already for the Derby for heaps of money. The racing at Newcastle, with the exception of the Northumberland Plate, calls for no remark. The winner, as a two-year-old, displayed form equal to anything of his year. He won the Garbutt Nursery Handicap, beating a field of eleven, to all of whom, with one single exception, he gave weight away. But his crowning performance was his clever head victory over Lion in the Easby Stakes, at Richmond, although conceding 10 lb. to the son of Windhound. If any form could beat Caller Ou at reasonable weights, Brown Bread ought. But we question if even the grand scion of Stockwell and Haricot would have succumbed to the youthful son of Weatherbit had she not been "run off her legs" the previous week, to say nothing of the serious drawback of "vanning" and railway travelling almost every other day. Age tells its tale everywhere, on man and beast; and Caller Ou cannot hold out for ever, like Cleopatra, whom "age could not wither." Dean Close will be on his mettle next week, for the Carlisle Meeting takes place on the 4th and 5th of July. We regret, however, that the metropolitan "division"—not of police, but of turf speculators—will not have the benefit of his warm fulminations, for they will be "assisting" at the more congenial Newmarket July Meeting.

This has been a great week in cricket. The display at Lord's, on Monday and Tuesday stands alone in the annals of the willow. Oxford met Cambridge and defeated her, after two days of as fine cricket as could be wished, with 114 runs to spare. The dark blue have now two matches on hand to the good, and Cambridge will have to come out with a stronger team if she hopes to turn the tide of fortune while the sister University is represented by such tremendous hitters. Cambridge has lost two giants in the Hon. C. G. Lyttelton and Mr. Daniel, and the void caused by their retirement was painfully felt during the two days. Nottingham and Surrey played their annual match at Nottingham on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday last. On the concluding day Surrey headed Nottingham in the first innings by 43 runs; Jackson's fine bowling in their second had them all out for 81, leaving Nottingham with 125 to get, which, thanks to the fine batting of R. Daft and Bignall, they did, and won, with eight wickets to go down.

A mile swimming-race took place in the Thames, between Hammersmith and Putney, on Monday evening, for a gold medal presented by Sir W. Fraser, Bart., M.P. Sixteen youths contended for the prize, which was won by Henry Moore, aged eighteen.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE RACES.—TUESDAY.

Trial Stakes.—Walcot, 1. Penhill, 2. Honesty, 3.
North Derby.—Oppressor, 1. Exceller, 2. Strong Beer, 3.
Members' Plate.—Windham, 1. The Clown, 2. Wangle Eye, 3.
Hunters Stakes.—Extra Number, 1. First Whip, 2. Lady Middleton, 3.
Selling Stakes.—Reviver, 1. Jack's Alive, 2. Sweetness, 3.
Tyro Stakes.—Blue Riband, 1. Vulture, 2. Bob Chambers, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Black Diamond Handicap Plate.—Wangle Eye, 1. Madras, 2. Well Done, 3.
Grand Stand Stakes.—Blue Riband, 1. Vulture, 2. Limber Magna, 3.
Northumberland Plate.—Brown Bread, 1. Caller Ou, 2. Macbeth, 3.
Commercial Visitors' Stakes.—Eola, 1. Itch f., 2. Midwife, 3.
Her Majesty's Plate.—Cathedral, 1. Oppressor, 2. Dux, 3.

THURSDAY.

Tyne Handicap.—Cranmore, 1. Huntsman's Daughter, 2. Nothing More, 3.
Hunters' Stakes.—Bon Resipol, 1. Oustwick, 2. First Whip, 3.
Gold Cup Stakes.—Clown, 1. Curtain Lecture, 2. Brindisi, 3.
Corporation Plate.—Dead Heat between Windham and Harry Brailsford. Alice, 3.

ODIHAM RACES.—TUESDAY.

Hurstborne Stakes.—The Squire, 1. Novice, 2. Lecturer, 3.
South-Western Railway Plate.—Thor, 1. Viper, 2. Virtuous, 3.
Dogmersfield Park Stakes.—The Squire, 1. Sweet Anne, 2. Opposition, 3.
Odiham Handicap.—Surney, 1. Basquine, 2. Harkaway, 3.
Manor Plate Handicap.—Medicis, 1. Thais, 2. Crytheia, 3.
Stewards' Stakes.—Chicken Hazard, 1. Professor Anderson, 2. Colytto c., 3.
Greywell Hill Stakes.—Troublesome, 1. Idle Girl, 2.

BIBURY CLUB (STOCKBRIDGE).—WEDNESDAY.

Handicap Sweepstakes of 5 sovs.—Jassy, 1. St. Vincent, 2. Cedric, 3.
Bibury Stakes.—Harcourt, 1. Columbia, 2. Tippler, 3.
Champagne Stakes.—Young Monarque, 1. Whalebone, 2. Stockbridge, 3.
Plate of 50 sovs.—Menace, 1. Troublesome, 2. Sweet Anne, 3.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Gem of the Sea, 1. Dawdle, 2. Lytham, 3.
Seventh Biennial Stakes.—Robin Hood, 1. King Hal, 2. Langham, 3.
Handicap Plate.—The Beadle, 1. Harcourt, 2. Guardsman, 3.
Sweepstakes of 5 sovs.—Roarer, 1. Overstone, 2. Warwick, 3.

STOCKBRIDGE RACES.—THURSDAY.

Andover Stakes.—Beadle, 1. Columbia, 2.
Stockbridge Cup.—Attache, 1. Attraction, 2. Scarbro', 3.
Sweepstakes.—Roarer 1. Overstone, 2. Birague, 3.
Visitors' Plate.—Imógene, 1. Lady Egidia, 2. Filbert, 3.
Mottisfont Stakes.—Doralice colt, 1. Duke of York, 2. Rose Cheri, 3
Sixth Biennial.—Sydmonton, 1. Audax, 2. Attache, 3.
Beaufort Handicap.—Scheldt, 1. Monk, 2. A. D. Wagner, 3.

FONTAINEBLEAU RACES.—JUNE 25.

Prix de l'Empereur.—Le Dieu Mars, 1. Touriste, 2. Allegrotto, 3.
L'Express.—Betty, 1. Anisette, 2. Moggueule, 3.
The Cup.—Tancrède, 1. Lalla Rookh, 2. Beatrix, 3.
Prix de la Société d'Encouragement.—Jarnicoton, 1. Gaulois, 2.
Prix de Fontainebleau.—Vautour, 1. Vera Cruz, 2. Sultan, 3.

ANGERS RACES.—JUNE 15 AND 18.

Prix Biennial.—Souverain, 1. Estrella, 2. Melanie, 2.
Prix de la Ville.—Françoise de Rimini, 1. Mirliflor, 2.
Prix Imperial.—Bayard walked over.
Prix Departmental.—Constellation walked over.
Steeplechase—Prix de Haras.—Vixen, 1. Dame Blanche, 2.
Prix Special.—Quaker, 1. Françoise de Rimini, 2. Joli Cœur, 3.
Prix de l'Empereur.—Souverain, 1. Pont Aux Filles, 2.
Steeplechase of 40 sovs.—La Chatte, 1. Labede, 2. Y. Mastrillo, 3.

BOURGES RACES.—JUNE 19 AND 20.

Prix de l'Empereur.—Argences, 1. Anglo Saxon, 2.
Prix du Centre.—Vaucresson, 1. Tambour de Basque, 2. Doge, 3.
Prix de la Société.—Tambour de Basque, 1. Seducteur, 2.
Prix des Haras.—Quaker, 1. Argences, 2.
Prix de la Ville.—Jean Sans Peur, 1. Roger Bontemps, 2. Canotière, 3.
Prix de Jacques-Cœur.—Eva, 1. The Doge, 2. Fontanges, 3.

RENNES (BRITTANY) RACES.—JUNE 19 AND 21.

Prix de Haras of 200 sovs.—Semiramis, 1. Beau Soleil, 2.
Prix de l'Empereur.—Blainville, 1. Evrecy, 2. Destinée, 3.
Prix de Haras of 40 sovs.—Beauregard, 1. Orthos, 2.
Prix de la Ville.—Y. Mastrillo, 1. Labede, 2.
Prix de la Société.—Fol Espoir, 1. Pekin, 2.
Hunters Stakes Steeplechase.—Hazard, 1.

The annual exhibition and award of prizes in connection with the Prince Consort's Windsor Association has, it is understood, been fixed by her Majesty to take place on the 11th inst. The Prince of Wales is expected to distribute the prizes.

A fire broke out on Thursday morning in the neighbourhood of the Strand, causing the destruction of a large number of rare and valuable books, stored on the premises occupied by Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson, and Hodge, of Wellington-street.

During July the morning stars will be Venus (in Taurus) and, till near the end of the month, Mercury (in Gemini, Cancer, and Leo). On the 15th Venus will rise at 2h. 1m. a.m.; Mars (in Leo) will pass the meridian at 2h. 41m. p.m.; Jupiter (in Scorpio) will rise at 5h. 48m. p.m.; Saturn (in Virgo) will pass the meridian at 5h. 58m. p.m.; and Uranus (in Gemini) will pass the meridian at 10h. 32m. a.m. The Moon's changes will be—First Quarter, July 1, at 1h. 40m. a.m.; Full Moon, July 8, at 8h. 27m. p.m.; Last Quarter, July 15, at 4h. 26m. p.m.; New Moon, July 22, at 6h. 29m. p.m.; First Quarter, July 30, at 7h. 9m. p.m. The constellations Cygnus, Aquila, and Sagittarius will be on the meridian near midnight about the middle of the month.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, JUNE 23.

BANKRUPTS.

T. ARMISTEAD, Norwood, shipping merchant.—J. M. LUCK, Tottenham-court-road, wine merchant.—T. R. FISHER, Chiswell-street, City, law stationer.—J. STEVENS, Blythe-terrace, Hammersmith, builder.—W. ROBERTSON, Carlton-road, Kilburn, oilman.—J. T. GREENWOOD, High-street, Kingsland, dairyman.—A. BENABO, Cannon-street-road, St. George's-in-the-East, general dealer.—J. W. PHILLIPSON, Goswell-street, printer.—G. MILLER, Desborough-place, Harrow-road, licensed victualler.—W. BLINKO, Mill-hill-terrace, Acton, cattle-salesman.—E. EVANS, Croydon, furniture-dealer.—J. LIGHTFOOT, Brentford, glasscutter.—E. T. EDGINGTON, Store-street, Caledonian-road, and New Market-terrace King's-cross, corndealer.—M. SHIELD, Victoria-street, Westminster, railway contractor.—D. M. ALLAN, Keppel-street, Chelsea, house decorator.—C. M. L. DILLON, Dover-street, Piccadilly.—M. BENHAM, jun., Eynsford, butcher.—R. DAWES, Abbey-road, St. John's-wood, schoolmaster.—A. SMITH, Calvert-road, Battersea Park, retailer of beer.—Hon. R. BETHELL, Stanmore, barrister.—J. C. WEBB, Portland-street, Soho, pipemaker.—J. WAUTHIER, Greenwood-road, Dalston, inventor of motive power.—J. U. JOSSLYN, King's-road, Chelsea, warehouseman.—S. SMYTH, Grafton-street, Fitzroy-square, photographic artist.—S. JONES, Old-street, St. Luke's, upholsterer.—W. BROOKS, Downham-market, Norfolk.—H. J. JAMESON, Aldgate, auctioneer.—C. T. HICKS, Tooley-street, ale merchant.—J. J. BENNETT, Blandford Forum, draper.—W. J. FIELD, Southampton, wine merchant.—J. HOOK, Hemel Hempstead, bricklayer.—H. REDFERN, Nottingham, plumber.—J. CROSHER, Nottingham, grocer.—W. SULLY, Weston-super-Mare, builder.—F. BRITTEN, Doynton, builder.—A. M. JAMES, Bath, clothier.—E. COCKROFT and T. ROBERTSHAW, Bradford, worsted manufacturer.—J. NELSON, Ossett, cloth manufacturer.—H. HAIGH, Halifax, wool-stapler.—W. N. TOLLERTON, Lincoln, photographic artist.—E. AMES, Waen Rhyddil.—T. JONES, Northop, timber merchant.—W. SMITH, Manchester agent.—A. SHELLARD, Monmouth.—E. HUMPHREYS, Wrexham, railway contractor.—S. WALKER, Wolverhampton, warehouseman.—J. JEAVONS, Bilston, miner.—T. CLINTON, Wolverhampton, haydealer.—A. HILL, Shaw Crompton.—J. GROVES, Evesham, innkeeper.—T. PETERS, Cullompton, basketmaker.—S. CHAMPITT, St. Thomas the Apostle, Devon, linendraper.—M. HALL, Ford, mason.—J. J. CHAFFEY, Ventnor, tobacconist.—J. COLEY, Kidderminster, tinman.—A. HASSON, Halifax.—A. SAWYER, Bradford, wool-dealer.—O. MARSDEN, Cleckheaton, tailor.—W. MEEK, Huddersfield, general provision-dealer.—G. HANSON, Rotherham, publican.—C. FRENCH, Rotherham, tailor.—C. CROOK, Egerton, stonemason.—W. W. WILKINSON, Kingston-on-Hull, cordwainer.—W. GREENHAM, Hentsridge, tailor.—A. TRENAN, Mansfield, painter.—E. GRIFFITHS, Maesteg, contractor.—A. EDWARDS, Wells.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

Right Hon. D. S. ERSKINE, Harrow-on-the-Hill.—W. FINLAYSON, Nairn, seed merchant.—W. LAMBERT, Glasgow, potato merchant.

TUESDAY, JUNE 27.

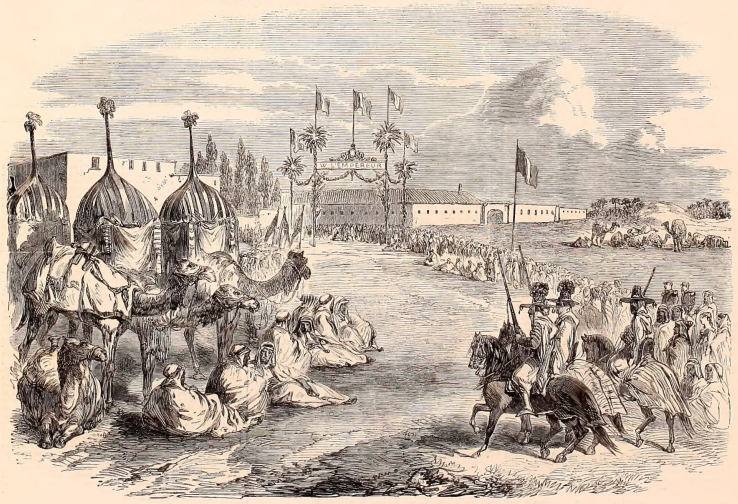
BANKRUPTS.

F. A. HOPE, Doddington, tailor.—J. SIBUN, New Brompton, victualler.—R. C. DUKE, Bucklersbury, iron merchant.—H. B. ELCOCK, Richmond-road, commission agent.—F. BROOKS, Bromley, builder.—J. C. RING and J. WAINMAN, Kennington Park, builders.—D. O'FLYNN, Croydon, carman.—G. HAMILTON, Walmer, bootmaker.—C. BECKWITH, Great Portland-street, tobacconist.—J. HUDSON, Rochester, grocer.—J. JOYCE, St. John's-wood, tea-grocer.—R. F. M. CHASE, University-street, merchant.—J. A. PEARSON, Ewell, saddler.—J. WOODROFFE, jun., Ewell, bootmaker.—C. BLERIOT, Coventry-street, licensed victualler.—J. HART, Goodman's-yard, victualler.—J. B. HUGHES, Croydon, corn merchant.—G. MOTION, Walbrook, wine merchant.—J. W. SMITH, Rotherhithe, licensed victualler.—A. M'MILLAN, Ball's-pond-road, tailor.—N. J. COBB, Brighton, soda-water manufacturer.—H. BALLARD, Bethnal-green-road.—W. LEECH, Shad Thames, victualler.—L. B. PEARSE, Hanley-road, granite merchant.—J. BUTLER, Boughton Malherbe, dealer in wood.—J. DE P. GARNUCHOT, Villiers-street, publisher.—B. FOXLEY, Orford-road, baker.—J. H. CORRY, Crutched-friars, tea merchant.—F. TROUBAT, Eastcheap, wine importer.—R. K. PHILP, Islington, author.—R. S. DELL, Hughenden, farmer.—W. G. CHURCH, Bromley, builder.—H. WEBB, Kingsland-road, cabinetmaker.—J. FLOOD, Paddington, house agent.—J. ADLER, Hammersmith, coachbuilder.—J. B. JONES, Marylebone-lane, draper.—F. N. READE, Isleworth, Lieutenant in the 21st Fusiliers.—J. R. GUY, Kingston-on-Hull, cabinetmaker.—W. GREEN, Fulham, builder.—T. MANNING, Clodock, farmer.—H. J. MORGAN, Shrewsbury, grocer.—T. CROSS, Penn, iron manufacturer.—W. E. HALL, Tipton, ale-dealer.—J. TOY, Bristol, lead-smelter.—E. REED, Scarborough, whitesmith.—T. LEAKE, Maltby, farmer.—W. BISHOP, Sheffield, coaldealer.—J. CUNLIFFE and F. PIGGOTT, Blackburn, cotton manufacturers.—C. R. BREACH, Liverpool, merchant.—T. HINDLE, Everton, licensed victualler.—S. THOMSON, Liverpool, engineer.—D. W. SHERWOOD, Stockton-on-Tees, ironmonger.—J. JEWITT, Prudhoe, cattle-dealer.—W. YOUNG and H. PROUD, Sunderland, drapers.—W. BROOKS, Oldswinford, licensed victualler.—E. SUTCLIFFE, Calverley, cloth manufacturer.—J. FURZE, Roseland, butcher.—W. F. FULFORD, Nuneaton, hairdresser.—T. HITCHCOCK, Shiffnal, tailor.—S. DIXON, Accrington, publican.—C. THORNEYCROFT, Shiffnal, victualler.—J. and J. WATSON, Batley, joiners.—H. STEVENS, Penzance.—A. SMITH, Sheerness, fishmonger.—J. WOOL, Martock, hay dealer.—J. MELVEY, Newcastle-on-Tyne, fruiterer.—T. PRIOR, Manchester, commission agent.—P. DOOLEY, Liverpool, bootmaker.—W. G. GRAY, Liverpool and Manchester, attorney.—G. L. EYRE, Levenshulme, belt maker.—J. CONLON, Manchester, glass paper manufacturer.—T. MARSH, Middle Rasen, joiner.—W. JOHNSON, Fulstow, victualler.—W. WALL, East Retford, staymaker.—R. T. DAILS, Goole, shipbroker.—C. H. ORGAN, Chatham, refreshment-house keeper.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

A. WALLACE, Glasgow and Renfrew, grain merchant.—A. MORGAN, Airdrie, Lanarkshire, grocer.

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO ALGERIA.



WE conclude in this week's publication the series of Illustrations of the late visit of the Emperor Napoleon to the French provinces in Africa. Our last week's Number contained several views taken at different places on the road from Constantine to Biskara, in the eastern part of the Algerine territory. The oasis of Biskara is distant but a few miles from the Col de Sfa, whence the traveller looks southward across the vast expanse of the Sahara desert. Biskara, a town founded by the Romans, and called "Ad Piscinam," which has been corrupted into its modern name, is the capital of the Arab country of Zab; it was conquered by the Duc d'Aumale, in 1844. The fort of St. Germain is the principal feature of the French quarter of the town, but the Arab houses or hovels, built of mud, with their floors below the level of the adjoining ground, would scarcely be habitable if it were not for the extreme dryness of the climate, rain being most unfrequent in that locality. The oasis of Biskara, wherever the soil can be irrigated with water from the mountain streams which flow that way, is marvellously fertile, and abounds with palms and date trees. Our Special Artist has given us a sketch of some of the Arab people of Biskara waiting the arrival of the Emperor at the entrance to their town. In the foreground are two or three of the chiefs on horseback, wearing their huge straw hats ornamented with black ostrich-feathers, and holding their long muskets in their hands. On the left hand are several camels, laden with a sort of palanquin, or litter, in which the Arab ladies, wives of these gallant cavaliers, are securely inclosed, so that they may view the passage of the Frenchmen without being stared at in return. The women of lower rank, as we observe, are not veiled, but wear a large turban on their heads, the end of it falling over their shoulders, and they carry their young children on their backs. A triumphal arch, with a French inscription, supported by flags and other decorations, is erected not far from the gate of the town. On his return from Biskara to Batna the Emperor went to inspect the ruins of Lambessa, of which we gave an Illustration last week. He then proceeded to Philippeville, and embarked at Stora, the port of Philippeville, where the squadron of ironclads was drawn up, as shown in one of our Engravings, in order to receive his Majesty. The scenery of this place, full of the freshest verdure, and open to the cool sea-breeze, must have been a pleasant change after the hurried journey from the borders of the desert. The Emperor and his suite, having been conveyed by sea to Bona, stayed a few hours in that important town, where the usual preparations had been made for the celebration of his Majesty's presence. Our Artist's sketch shows, in the background, one of the triumphal arches, erected by the Maltese residents at Bona; and, in the middle of the view, the Grand Mosque, or Djama-el-Bey, adorned with banners and festoons. In the foreground of this Engraving, the different groups of people, gaily dressed in the costumes of their several nations, are worthy of particular notice—a Jewish family standing in the centre, apart from the others; a few Europeans in the right-hand corner, and some Arabs riding away to the left. Bona stands on the site of the ancient town of Hippo, once the residence of the Numidian Kings, and, under the Roman Emperors, the birthplace

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO ALGERIA.

LANDING OF THE EMPEROR AT BOUGIAH.

of St. Augustine. It is an important market for corn, wool, hides, and the local manufactures of cloth and tapestry, but its harbour is choked up with mud. The town is surrounded by a wall thirty feet high, with four gates, and is further defended by a strong fort or citadel at the top of the neighbouring hill. The Illustration above gives a view of the town of Bougiah, where the Emperor landed on the 7th ult., on his voyage from Bona, immediately before his return to France. The barge in which his Majesty was conveyed from the ship to the shore is seen at the right-hand corner of our Engraving. The name of Bougiah, diminished to Bougie by the French, has thus become the common appellation of wax candles, on account of wax of the choicest quality being imported from this district. It is situated about a hundred miles eastward of Algiers, on a very picturesque and agreeable part of the coast, but there is no harbour, and the landing is only possible in calm weather. The groves of orange and fig trees which surround the ancient ramparts of this town, overlooked by the fortress on the neighbouring mountain, make a very pleasing scene.

THE ARABS WAITING THE EMPEROR'S ARRIVAL AT BUSKARA.

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO ALGERIA.

THE IRON-CLAD SQUADRON DRAWN UP TO RECEIVE THE EMPEROR AT STORA.

THE GRAND MOSQUE AT BONA, DECORATED IN HONOUR OF THE EMPEROR.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, June 26.—A very limited supply of English wheat was on sale in our market to-day, and most kinds were taken off slowly, at 1s. per quarter more money. Foreign wheats were in improved request, and the turn dearer. Barley sold steadily, at an advance in the quotations of 1s. per quarter. No change took place in the value of malt. The oat trade was firm, at 1s. per quarter advance. Both beans and peas were quite as dear as last week. The flour trade was steady, on rather higher terms.

June 28.—The amount of business transacted in all kinds of produce to-day was only moderate; nevertheless, Monday's prices were well supported.

English.—Wheat, 40s. to 50s.; barley, 21s. to 29s.; oats, 17s. to 26s.; rye, 26s. to 28s.; beans, 35s. to 40s.; peas, 36s. to 40s. per quarter. Town-made flour, 37s. to 40s.; country marks, 27s. to 33s. per 280 lb. French flour, 30s. to 33s. per sack; American, 21s. to 26s. per barrel.

Arrivals.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 980; malt, 720; oats, 50; flour, 1030. Foreign: Wheat, 5820; barley, 320; oats, 20,280; flour, 160 sacks.

Seeds.—All agricultural seeds are a dull inquiry, and the quotations rule next to nominal. Cakes move off steadily, and prices have an upward tendency.

Linseed, English, sowing, 68s. to 70s.; Calcutta, 54s. to 55s.; hempseed, 44s. to 46s. per quarter; tares, 9s. to 10s. per bushel; white mustard seed, 10s. to 12s.; brown ditto, 10s. to 11s. per bushel; coriander, 21s. to 24s. per cwt.; red clover seed, 65s. to 90s.; white ditto, 62s. to 75s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5½d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 41s. 3d.; barley, 27s. 5d.; oats, 21s. 3d. per quarter.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 51,039; barley, 571; oats, 1756 quarters.

Tea.—Scarcely any change has taken place in the quotations. The market, however, is steady.

Sugar.—Most raw qualities are a slow inquiry at about last week's currency. Refined goods move off slowly, at 42s. 6d. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—There is a steady demand for all kinds of coffee, and late rates are fully supported.

Rice.—This market is steady, at extreme quotations.

Provisions.—Prices of butter are on the advance, with a good consumptive demand. Friesland is worth 114s. to 116s. per cwt. Same rule about stationary; but the inquiry for them is by no means active. Bacon sells freely, at extreme rates. All other provisions are firm.

Tallow.—The demand is steady, and P.Y.C., on the spot, is worth 42s. per cwt. The stock consists of 30,857 casks, against 43,611 ditto last year. Rough fat, 2s. 1½d. per 8lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is offering at 32s. 6d.; rape, 42s. to 45s.; fine palm, 37s. 6d. French turpentine, 53s. per cwt.

Spirits.—Rum is steady, at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 7d. for proof Leewards and 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d. for Demerara. Brandy is a slow sale. British spirits 11s. 8d. per gallon.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 10s. to £5 15s.; clover, £5 10s. to £6 15s.; and straw, £1 6s. to £1 13s. per load. New meadow, £1 to £5 per load.

Coals.—Gosforth, 15s. 9d.; Haugh Hall, 17s.; Kelloe, 16s. 6d. South Kelloe, 17s.; South Hetton, 17s. 9d.; and Hartlepool, 17s. 6d per ton.

Hops.—The plantation accounts being favourable, the demand is heavy, at about previous quotations.

Wool.—The public sales have been brought to a close. The market is steady, at full prices.

Potatoes.—Old potatoes are dull, at from 60s. to 110s. per ton. New qualities are selling at from 6s. to 10s. per cwt.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, June 29).—There was a full average supply of beasts on sale in our market to-day, yet all breeds moved off steadily, at quite Monday's currency. The top figure was 5s. per 8 lb. Sheep—the show of which was good—were in improved demand, at full prices. The best Downs and half-breds sold at 5s. 10d. per 8 lb. We have to report a steady inquiry for lambs, at late rates—viz., from 6s. to 7s. 4d. per 8 lb. The demand for calves was in a sluggish state. Prices, however, were supported. In pigs and milch cows very little was doing.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 3s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 4d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 8d.; prime Scots, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 0d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 6d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 8d. to 5s. 0d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 6d.; prime Southdown ditto, 5s. 8d. to 5s. 10d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 6d.; prime small ditto, 4s. 8d. to 5s. 0d.; large hogs, 3s. 8d. to 4s. 2d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 3d. to 4s. 8d.; lambs, 6s. 0d. to 7s. 4d.; suckling calves, 19s. to 21s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 25s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1520; cows, 140; sheep and lambs, 13,330; calves, 1120; pigs, 380. Foreign: Beasts, 970; sheep and lambs, 4800; calves, 910.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—These markets are rather scantily supplied with meat, which moves off slowly, at late rates.

ROBERT HERBERT.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

CONSIDERABLE inactivity has prevailed in the market for Home Stocks during the whole of the week. The purchases on account of the public have been very limited. On the whole, however, prices have been fairly supported. In the Unfunded Debt, next to nothing has been passing.

There has been rather an active inquiry for accommodation, both at the Bank of England and in Lombard-street. Although the supply of capital is ample, very little paper is now discounted under the Bank rate. The best bills may be quoted as follow:—

Thirty days' bills	3	per cent.
Sixty days' bills	3	"
Three months' bills	3¼	"
Four months' bills	3½	"
Six months' bills	4¼	"

About £600,000 in bullion has come to hand, and several parcels of gold have been disposed of to the Bank of England. The demand for bullion, for export, has not increased, owing to the favourable state of the exchanges.

The demand for American Securities has been heavy, at drooping prices. United States 5-20 Bonds have fallen to 70½ 71; and Erie Shares, 53 to ½. Illinois Central have been done at 83½ to 84.

On Monday the operations in the Stock Exchange were much restricted. Consols, for Money, were 89⅞ ⅞; Ditto, for Account, 89⅞; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89 to ¼; Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem.; India Five per Cents, 104½ to ⅞; Ditto Bonds, 17s. to 21s. prem.; Bank Stock was 247 to 249; Rupee Paper, 101½ to 102½, and 108½ to 109½. On Tuesday, Consols, for Transfer, left off at 89⅞ 90; Ditto, for July, 90; Bank Stock, 247 to 219; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89 to ½; India Five per Cents, 104½ ⅞; Rupee Paper, 101½ to 102½ and 109 to 110; India Bonds, 17s. to 21s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 1s. to 4s. prem. On Wednesday, Consols, for Money, were 89⅞ ⅞; Ditto, for Account, 89⅞ 90; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89 to ½; India Bonds, 17s. to 21s. prem; Exchequer Bills, 1s. to 4s. prem. On Thursday, Consols sold at 89⅞ 90, both for Money and Account; Reduced and New Three per Cents realised 89 to 89½; Exchequer Bills, par to 4s. prem.; and New Five per Cents, 103½.

The Market for Foreign Securities has continued heavy, and prices have had a downward tendency. The principal changes from last week are confined to Mexican and Turkish Securities. Brazilian Five per Cents have realised 99⅞; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 95½; Ditto, 1864, 93⅞; Greek, 20⅞; Mexican Three per Cents, 25¼; Ditto, 1864, 24½; Moorish, 96½; Portuguese Three per Cents, 49; Russian Five per Cents, 92; Ditto, 1862, 91½; Ditto, 1864, 94; Ditto, Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 87½; Ditto, Three per Cents, 67½; Spanish Three per Cents, 48⅞; Ditto, Deferred, 40⅞; Ditto, Passive, 30⅞; Ditto, Certificates, 15; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 1854, 93⅞; Ditto, 1858, 73½; Ditto, 1862, 74½; Ditto, 1865, 47½; Ditto, Consolidés, 49½; and Italian Five per Cents, 66½. Turkish Scrip has marked 3½ to 2½ dis.

In the value of Joint-stock Bank Shares a slight reduction has taken place. Agra and United Service have sold at 119; Alliance, 30; Anglo-Egyptian, 12⅞; Australasia, 74; Ditto, New, 73; Bank of British Columbia 16⅞; British and Californian, 4½; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 26; Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China, 48½; English Joint-stock, 12½; English and Swedish, 16; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 19; Imperial, 29½; Imperial Ottoman, 16⅞; Land Mortgage of India, 4½; London Chartered of Australia, 23⅞ ex div.; London Joint-stock, 51; London and South African, 18½; London and South-Western, 29⅞; London and Westminster, 98½; Metropolitan and Provincial, 15½; Scinde, Punjaub, and Delhi, 6⅞; South Australia, 36½; Union of Australia, 55½; and Union of London, 54.

Colonial Government Securities have been in fair demand. Canada Six per Cents have realised 99; Ditto Five per Cents, 86; Mauritius Six per Cents, 108½; Ditto, 1895, 107; New South Wales Five per Cents, 93; Queensland Six per Cents, 106½; and Victoria Six per Cents, 110.

The Miscellaneous Market has ruled inactive. Atlantic Telegraph Company's Shares have sold at 6½; Berlin Waterworks, 10⅞; City of Milan Improvements, 9; Crédit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 9; Crystal Palace, 40; East Indian Financial, 4½; Electric Telegraph, 121; Fore-street Warehouse, 10½; General Credit, 6; Hudson's Bay, 16½; Joint-stock Discount, 9; London Financial, 22⅞; Madras Irrigation and Canal, 9⅞; National Discount, 15⅞; National Provincial Marine, 1⅞; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 75⅞; Royal Mail Steam, 108; Société Financial d'Egypte, 6⅞; Trust and Loan Company of Upper Canada, 5.

The dealings in the Railway Share Market have been very moderate, at slightly depressed quotations. The "calls" for July amount to £935,350. Annexed are Thursday's official closing prices:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Great Eastern, 49⅞; Great Northern, 132; Great Western, 69½; London and Blackwall, 93; London, Chatham, and Dover, Metropolitan Extension, 55; London and North-Western, 123½; London and South-Western, 99½; Metropolitan, 142½; Metropolitan District, 105½; North-Eastern—Berwick, 112; North London, 121⅞.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 104½; East Indian, 104⅞; Grand Trunk of Canada, 1st Preference, 61½; Great Indian Peninsula, 105½; Scinde, 101½.

Foreign.—Belgian Eastern Junction, 1½; Ottoman, 9⅞; San Paulo, 18; South Austrian and Lombardo-Venetian, 19½.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending June 28 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

An increase of circulation of	£421,033
An increase of public deposits of	903,691
An increase of other deposits of	57,622
An increase of securities of	1,285,739
An increase of bullion of	112,756
An increase of rest of	10,149
A decrease of reserve of	308,631

The total circulation is £21,577,585. Public deposits amount to £10,487,584; private ditto to £13,721,188; and securities to £32,613,160. The stock of bullion is £16,407,665; and the reserve of notes and coin, £9,531,821.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr. SOTHERN'S LAST NIGHT.—Notwithstanding the great success and attraction of BROTHER SAM, Mr. Buckstone's engagements and those of Mr. Sothern compel the announcement that the present week will be the last but two of the performance of the above-named popular comedy, as this Theatre will close for the season on Wednesday, July 19. This Evening, MONDAY, JULY 3, and every Evening during the Week, to commence at Seven, with MY WIFE'S MOTHER. After which, at Eight, BROTHER SAM—Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Miss Snowdon, and Miss Nelly Moore; concluding with NO SONG NO SUPPER—Miss Louise Keeley.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—First Night of the Summer Season.—MONDAY, and during the Week, THE PRETTY HORSEBREAKER—Mr. J. L. Toole; at Eight, SOLON SHINGLE—Solon, Mr. J. E. Owens, the celebrated American Comedian, supported by Messrs. R. Phillips, Billington, &c.; and THROUGH FIRE AND WATER—Mr. J. L. Toole, P. Belford, &c. Commence at Seven.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—MONDAY TO FRIDAY—GREAT SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS. No extra charge. One Shilling.
Monday—Display of all the Great Fountains, and Excursion of the Loyal United Friends.
Tuesday—Great Meeting of the Metropolitan Charity Schools.
Wednesday—Annual Fête of the German Gymnastic Society.
Thursday and Friday—Archery Fête, at which Prizes to a large amount will be competed for by ladies and gentlemen.
There has seldom been a week so full of the most popular and pleasing fêtes as this.
Saturday—Grand Opera Concert. Admission Five Shillings; or by Half a Crown tickets purchased beforehand at the Palace, 2 Exeter Hall, and of the usual agents. Guinea Season Tickets free.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—MONDAY—ALL THE GREAT FOUNTAINS.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—TUESDAY—GREAT MEETING OF CHARITY SCHOOLS.

GERMAN GYMNASTIC FETE, WEDNESDAY NEXT.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—ANNUAL ARCHERY MEETING, Next Thursday and Friday. One Shilling.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—7th JULY.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—OPENING DAY and PUBLIC JUDGING, Friday, JULY 7. Admission, Half a Crown. Saturday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, 8, 10, 11, 12, and 13, One Shilling.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—Blood Stallions, Roadsters, Stallions, Hunters, Cover and Park Hacks, Ladies' Horses, weight-carrying Cobs, pairs of Ponies in double harness, and Racing Trotters in single harness.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—Public Judging-day, Hunters jumped for the Judges, Friday, July 7. Admission, 2s. 6d.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—Parade of Prize Horses every day.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—Three Hundred and Sixty-five Horses.

HORSE SHOW.—AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—Private Boxes, 5s; Reserve Seats, 2s. 6d.; Seats in the Orchestra, 1s.

MADAME TUSSAUD'S EXHIBITION. Established 30 years at the BAZAAR, BAKER-STREET. The Exhibition has been entirely re-embellished. The ancient Court dresses of the most costly description have been renewed. Modern Court dresses of the most splendid description, probably never equalled, are now on view. Open from 11 a.m. till 10 p.m. Admittance, 1s. Extra rooms, 6d.

SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The SIXTY-FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION IS NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 5, PALL-MALL EAST (close to the National Gallery), from Nine till Dusk. Admittance, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. GEORGE A. FRIPP, Secretary.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION IS NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 53, PALL-MALL (near St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. JAMES FAHEY, Sec.

HYDE PARK in 1864, by HENRY BARRAUD, Esq., containing 220 Portraits of the Frequenters of Rotten-row, NOW ON VIEW, at 230, Regent-street (opposite Hanover-street). Admission 1s. Open from Ten till Six.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY.—EVERY EVENING at Eight o'Clock (except Saturday); Saturday Afternoon at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED and (over 500 representations) MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY.—EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Box-office open Eleven to Five.

MUSICAL UNION.—GRAND and LAST MATINEE, TUESDAY, JULY 4. Septet E flat (entire), Beethoven; Berceuse and Polonaise, pianoforte, Lübeck; Songs, Schubert and Mendelssohn—vocalist, Herr Hauser; Scherzo and Trio, from Quintet in G, Spohr; "God Preserve the Emperor," from Quartet, Haydn; Swedish Song, "Harmonious Blacksmith" (original song), and Ave Maria; Gounod, with violoncello obbligato (Piatti)—vocalist, Mdlle. Enequist; Grand Septet in D minor, Hummel; Piano Solos, Impromptu, Lübeck. Executants—Straus, Piatti, Ries,* Webb,* Hann,* Pratten,* Barrett,* Lazarus,* Hutchins,* Harper,* and Howell* (* from Costa's band). Pianist—Herr Lübeck, expressly for this Matinée. Tickets, Half a Guinea each, to be had of Cramer and Co., Chappell and Co., Ollivier and Co., Ashdown and Parry, and Austin, at St James's Hall. Members can pay for visitors at the hall. Doors will open at Half-past Two; Concert to begin at Three. No free admissions will be given for this Matinée.
JNO. ELLA, Director, 18, Hanover-square.
A copy of the "Harmonious Blacksmith," its history, the original French melody, and words, will be presented to every visitor to this Matinée.

SIMS REEVES, ARABELLA GODDARD, SHERRINGTON, SANTLEY, GARDONI, TREBELLI, &c. Mr. DESMOND RYAN'S Grand Annual Concert, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, on FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 7, at which the most distinguished artists in London will appear, in addition to the most eminent vocalists of Her Majesty's Theatre (by permission of J. H. Mapleson, Esq.). Vocalists—Mdme. Harriers Wippern Miss Laura Harris, Mdme. Sherrington, Miss Edmonds, Miss Fanny Armytage, Mdlle. Florence Lancia, Miss Marian Wheatley, Miss Florence de Courcy, Mrs. Francis Talfourd, Mdlle. Enequist, Mdlles. Georgi, and Mdme. Trebelli; Signor Bettini, Herr Reichardt, Signor Gardoni, Signor Ciabatta, Mr. Weiss, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Sims Reeves. The London Choral Union, under the direction of Mr. C. J. Hargitt. Instrumentalists—Pianoforte, Mdme. Arabella Goddard; violin, Herr Straus; violoncello, Signor Piatti. Conductors—Mr. Benedict, Signor Randegger, Mr. Frank Mori, Mr. Osborne, Mr. Aguilar, Mr. Carter, M. Emile Berger, Mr. M. W. Balfe, and Signor Arditi. To commence at Eight o'Clock. Sofa Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Reserved, 7s. 6d.; Balcony, 5s. Tickets, 3s., 2s., 1s., to be had at Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall, Piccadilly; and of all the principal Musicsellers.

LAST MONDAY POPULAR CONCERT of the SEASON, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The DIRECTOR'S BENEFIT, and Last Concert of the Season, on MONDAY EVENING NEXT, JULY 3. The programme will include selections from the popular works of all the great masters. Pianoforte, Mdme. Arabella Goddard and Mr. Charles Hallé; Violin, Herr Joachim (his last appearance in London this season) and Herr Strauss; Second Violin, Herr L. Ries; Viola, Mr. H. Webb; Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Vocalists, Miss Banks and Mr. Sims Reeves. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets and Programmes at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s, 201, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s, 48, Cheapside; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

C. C. C. CHRISTY MINSTRELS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY, EVERY EVENING at Eight, and Saturday Mornings at Three. New Ballads, Charming Part-Songs, Inimitable and Refined Comic Illustrations.—Stalls, 3s.; Second Seats, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.; a few Fauteuils, 5s. each. Tickets at Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's Hall, Piccadilly. Matthews Brothers and Beckett, Proprietors.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, REGENT'S PARK. The LAST GENERAL EXHIBITION of PLANTS, FLOWERS, and FRUIT this Season, WEDNESDAY NEXT, JULY 5. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens, and of the Society's Clerk, Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall, on vouchers from Fellows of the Society, price 5s.; or on the day of exhibition, 7s. 6d. each. Gates open at Two o'Clock.

MR. C. T. NEWCOMBE'S EXHIBITION of PHOTOGRAPHS OF BRITISH SCENERY, at 135, Fenchurch-street, will Open on MONDAY, JULY 3. It comprises about 300 Views of London, Windsor, Eton, Harrow, Warwick, Kenilworth, Stratford-on-Avon, the Isle of Wight, Netley, Tintern, Raglan, Chepstow, Tenby, Neath, St. Davids, Aaoh, Ludlow, Betty's-y-Coed and district, Sussex, &c. Open from Ten till Five. Admission by presentation of card.

STODARE.—EGYPTIAN HALL.—Theatre of Mystery.—The New and Marvellous Illusions—the INSTANTANEOUS GROWTH of FLOWER-TREES and the REAL INDIAN BASKET FEAT—as only performed by Colonel Stodare and the Indian Magicians, and introduced for the first time in this country, by Colonel Stodare, on Easter Monday, April 17, 1865, in his celebrated Entertainment of Magic and Ventriloquism. EVERY NIGHT, at Eight, Saturday included; and Special Day Representations on Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons, at Three.
Admission, 1s.; Area, 2s.; Stalls, 3s. Tickets at Mr. Mitchell's, 33, Old Bond-street; or at the Box-office, Egyptian Hall, from Eleven to Five.
"The sensation of the season."—Vide Punch, June 3, 1865.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, in their NEW ENTERTAINMENT, with a few Musical Memoranda by Mr. John Parry, Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight. Wednesday and Saturday at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., and 5s.

SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—The EXHIBITION of PORTRAIT MINIATURES is NOW OPEN daily. On Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, from Ten a.m. to Ten p.m.; and on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from Ten a.m to Six p.m.
By order of the Committee of Council on Education.

DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, 1865.
Under the special patronage of her Majesty
THE QUEEN.
THE EXHIBITION IS OPEN EVERY WEEK DAY.
Admission, One Shilling;
On Saturdays, Two Shillings and Sixpence.
RAILWAY ARRANGEMENTS.
Return Tickets, available for one month, are issued between London and the principal railway stations in England and Scotland and Dublin, at an abatement of fifteen per cent below the ordinary return ticket rate, the holder being entitled to purchase at the same time, at the railway station, a ticket giving him admission six times to the Exhibition for 4s. 6d., being twenty-five per cent under the ordinary rate.
Excursion Trains will be organised to run fortnightly, or oftener if necessary, at very moderate fares (not exceeding 21s.), from London to Dublin and back, and from other places in like proportion. The Ticket will be good for a fortnight; and at the same time the holder will be entitled to obtain, at the same Railway Station, for One Shilling, a Ticket giving him admission twice to the Exhibition.
On the Irish Railways, also, Excursion Tickets will be issued at greatly reduced fares, affording unusual facilities for visiting the celebrated scenery of the country.
21st June. HENRY PARKINSON, Sec. and Comptroller.

FREE CHURCH FOR 8000 POOR PEOPLE.
ST. SAVIOUR'S, HOXTON.—The foundation-stone of this church was laid on Saturday last, and the works are in rapid progress. There is still a deficiency of about £1200 required to pay all anticipated expenditure. Donations will be thankfully received at the Bank of London, Threadneedle-street, in the joint names of G. I. Göschen, Esq., M.P.; P. Cazenove, Esq.; and the Rev. I. T. Jeffcock; by the Rev. T. J. Rowsell, St. Margaret's Rectory, Finsbury-square; by the Rev. T. Hugo, All Saint's, Bishopsgate; or the Incumbent, 5, De Beauvoir-road, N.

MADEIRA.—HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, Brompton. The Committee of Management have the pleasure to announce that, through the kindness of some friends in Madeira, they are prepared to afford 20 male patients the privilege of passing the ensuing winter in that salubrious climate. The expenses of the patients out and home will be paid by the Hospital, and they will be received and provided for at Madeira by a local committee, presided over by Captain Erskine, her Majesty's Consul. Suitable cases will be selected by the Medical Committee, subject to the approval of the Committee of Management.
CONTRIBUTIONS are requested, as the arrangements organised in the island lead to the hope that, if the proposed experiment prove successful, it may be continued, and permanently extend the benefits of this charity.
PHILIP ROSE, Hon. Sec.
HENRY DOBBIN, Sec.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate Rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

PALE SHERRY at 36s. per Dozen, fit for a gentleman's table. Bottles and Cases included. Terms, Cash. Post Orders payable Piccadilly.
Samples sent free of charge.
CHARLES WARD and SON
(Established upwards of a century), 1, Chapel-street West, Mayfair, W., London.

PORT and SHERRY, 12s. per Dozen; Claret and Sauterne, 10s. per Dozen.—VICTORIA WINE COMPANY, 63, Lower Thames-street, E.C. Two samples sent for 12 stamps.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH BREWINGS of the above Ale are now being SUPPLIED in the finest condition, in Bottles and in Casks, by FINDLATER, MACKIE, and CO., 33, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
pronounced by Connoisseurs
"THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE."
None genuine without name on wrapper, label, bottle, and stopper.
Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Barclay and Sons, and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.

ORIGINAL AND SUPERIOR ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES, SAUCES, PICKLES, &c., pure and good, as supplied by JOHN BURGESS and SONS for more than a Hundred years.—107, Strand (corner of Savoy-steps), London.

PEPSINE.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE, Morson's Pepsine Lozenges, are perfectly palatable forms for administering this popular remedy for weak digestion. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 31, 33, and 124, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C. Pepsine Wine, in bottles, at 3s., 5s., and 10s. each; lozenges, in boxes, at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each.

SUMMER DRINKS.—Soda Water, 2s. per dozen; Lemonade, Gingerade, and Orangeade, 1s. 9d. and 2s. 3d.; Seltzer, Potash, Magnesia, 2s. Packages 2s. per dozen, same price allowed on return. Agents wanted where none are appointed. T. P. WOOD, Jun., Chesterfield.

The Duty being Reduced,
HORNIMAN'S TEA is EIGHTPENCE CHEAPER.—Agents: Confectioners in London, Chemists, &c., in every Town. As protection against imitations, genuine packets are signed "Horniman and Co."

THE ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, awarded to any English Manufacturers of CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by
J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
Prize Medals, 1851, 1853, 1855, and 1862.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA,
IN PACKETS SECURED IN TINFOIL.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of
GENERAL CONSUMPTION.
It is equally adapted for invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly RECOMMENDED BY MEDICAL MEN.

HEALTH IN THE FAMILY.—Very Choice, Nourishing, and Pure Diet.—FISON'S PEARL SEMOULE is very delicate for invalids; invaluable for children. Infants will thrive amazingly upon it, and often when everything else fails. Sold by Grocers, &c.—Agents, HICKS BROTHERS, E.C. Works, Ipswich.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.
COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman 26, Cannon-street, London.

COLMANS' No. 1 INDIGO BLUE is the best article Manufactured for Laundry purposes.
26, Cannon-street, London.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

NEW BOOKS.

NEW BOOKS THIS DAY at all the Libraries, Booksellers', and Railway Stalls:—
1. THE GREAT SCHOOLS OF ENGLAND. By HOWARD STAUNTON. With Illustrations. 8vo. 12s.
2. SELVAGGIO: A Story of Italian Country Life. By the Author of "Mary Powell." 1 vol. 8s.
3. THE GAYWORTHYS. A Story of American Country Life. 2 vols., post 8vo. 16s.
4. HELEN FELTON'S QUESTION. By AGNES WYLDE. 1 vol. 8s.
5. SIR FELIX FOY, BART. A Novel. By DUTTON COOK. 3 vols. 21s.
6. LIFE IN ALGERIA. By Mrs. GEORGE ALBERT ROGERS. 8vo. 12s.
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Milton House Ludgate-hill.

THE NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET," &c.
FOURTH EDITION, at all Libraries, in 3 vols.,
ONLY A CLOD.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

CHEAP EDITION, Frontispiece and Vignette Titlepage, Price 6s.,
THE BADDINGTON PEERAGE.
By GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

THE POPULAR NEW NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.
CRUEL FORTUNE. 3 vols.
WHO WAS TO BLAME? 2 vols.
NAPOLEON III. AND HIS COURT. 1 vol.
CHARLOTTE THRALE. 3 vols.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., Publishers, 122, Fleet-street.

THE DAY OF REST.
This New Illustrated Sixpenny Monthly Magazine contains, amongst other popular features, the following serials:—
1. THE HIDDEN SIN: a Novel.
2. TRAVELS AROUND JERUSALEM.
3. AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF AN ITALIAN DETECTIVE.
The New Part, price 6d., ready this day. Illustrated.
London: WARD, LOCK, and TYLER, 158, Fleet-street.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.
MISS CAREW. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS, Author of "Barbara's History." 3 vols.
ALEC FORBES OF HOWGLEN. By GEORGE MACDONALD, M.A. 3 vols.
ROSE AYLMER'S HOME. 3 vols.
"A very pleasant, clever, natural tale."—Messenger.
LONDON PILGRIMS. 3 vols.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

JUST PUBLISHED, price 2s., 100 CHESS GAMES between Mr. J. F. EMMETT and Mr. VIVIAN FENTON.—TRUBNER and CO., 60, Paternoster-row.

Ninth Edition, with 26 Plates, price 1s., postage-free,
STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process of Diaphanie; easily performed by any person, at small cost.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

New Edition, with Drawings in Colour, price 2s. 6d.; post-free, 2s. 10d.,
A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON LANDSCAPE PAINTING AND SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHASE, M.W.C.I. Edited by the Rev. J. Harris, M.A.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS, Modern and Gothic (Handbooks of), by VICTOR TOUCHE.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of DIFFERENT PERIODS, for the Use of Illuminators and Decorators, by F. C. WOOD.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 6d., postage-free,
PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY; an Easy Method of Colouring Photographs (producing a beautifully enamelled appearance), which may be practised by any person unaccustomed to drawing and ignorant of art. By M. C. C.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Fifth Edition, with 12 Diagrams printed in colours, price 2s.,
PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Draperies, Backgrounds, &c. A guide to Painting in Water Colours; to which is added Instructions for Painting in Oil Colours. By A. N. RINTOUL.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., W.

Second Edition, price 1s.,
ON HAY-FEVER, HAY-ASTHMA, OR SUMMER CATARRH. By W. ABBOTTS SMITH, M.D., M.R.C.P. Lond., Physician to the Metropolitan Free Hospital and to the Finsbury Dispensary, late Senior Physician to the City Dispensary, &c.—London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

CHAMBERS'S JOURNAL.
The July Part contains the conclusion of
LADY FLAVIA.

CHAMBERS'S JOURNAL.
July Part contains:

The Lighthouse on the Skerve Mhoil.	Josiah Wedgwood.
The Art of Memory.	Two Fashionable Diviners.
In the Western World.	My Three Sewing-Machines.
Poem—Flowers from Home.	Rabbiting.
The Dodger Family.	Poem—Fairy Rings.
Linguistic Laziness.	A Star for a Night.
Artemus Ward.	Drops and Bubbles.
The Stock Exchange.	Pen and Sceptre.
Sealed Up.	The Month: Science and Arts.
	Poem—Resigned.

Conclusion of Lady Flavia.

Price 1s., Monthly,
THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE. Contents of No. 7, Vol. I., New Series (JULY):—Hearts Errant. By the Author of "Squire Rowley's Difficulties." Chaps. III., IV.—A Flemish Kermesse.—Petronilla's Fear. A Tale of Corsica. Chaps. VI., VII.—Familiar Lines: "My Love she's but a Lassie yet." With full-page Illustration.—M. Thackeray.—"Getting our Daughters off our hands."—Ye Lay of ye Foxglove (Poetry).—The Irishman in Reality and Romance.—"In the Strand."—The Fashions.—The Englishwoman's Conversazione.—Commentaries on Croquet. By Captain Mayne Reid.—La Mode.—"For Valour." By Thomas Hood. Chaps. XIII., XIV.—Operas and Musical Entertainments.—What's in a Name?—Our Paris News-letter.—Music of the Month.—Answers to Correspondents.—Mildred's Wedding—Pages 173-188.
FASHIONS AND NEEDLEWORK.
A Coloured Fashion Plate.
A Sheet of Designs, containing information about Fashion, Dress, and Needlework.
The full-sized Pattern for cutting out a Bodice with Basque for Young Ladies.
A Coloured Pattern for a Knapsack Travelling Bag in Woolwork, and a Coloured Pattern for a "Mirella" Watch-pocket.
A large Coloured Fashion Plate.
Illustrations of a travelling toilling toilet—square pattern in darned netting—lampshade with photographs—passementerie, or gimp ornaments (12 illustrations)—green crape bonnet—bodice with basque—black silk bodice—seaside toilet—rice-straw bonnet—Grecian coiffure—empire coiffure—country toilet—music-case—needle-book—ornamental corks for wine-bottles—crochet cover for a bucket, &c.
A Specimen Number sent post-free for fourteen stamps.
London: S. O. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

Now ready,
THE LAND OF ISRAEL;
A
JOURNAL OF TRAVELS IN PALESTINE, undertaken with special reference to its physical character.
By H. B. TRISTRAM, M.A., F.L.S.
672 pages, 8vo, handsomely bound in cloth boards, with 2 Maps and 65 Illustrations, price One Guinea.
London: SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE. Sold at the Depositories—77, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields; 4, Royal Exchange; 48, Piccadilly; and by all Booksellers.

BY NEWMAN HALL, LL.B.
THE SAVIOUR'S BIBLE: A Plea for the Old Testament. 32mo. 3d.
London: JAMES NISBET and CO., Berners-street; John Snow, Paternoster-row; and all Booksellers.

BAGSTER'S POLYGLOT BIBLES.
In Bagster's flexible bindings.
At all the principal Booksellers'; and at 15, Paternoster-row, London.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The PEOPLE'S PRINTING-PRESS, from 25s. upwards, for letterpress, copperplate, or lithographic printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps, each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stampmaker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

NEW MUSIC.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LATEST LIST.
THE FAVOURITE SONGS OF THE SEASON.
N.B. All at half the marked price in stamps, with one stamp additional for postage.
EVER THINE (Abt). Song by Mdme. Rudersdorff. 2s. 6d.
OH, YE TEARS (Abt). Song by Mdme. Sherrington. 2s. 6d.
THE VOICE OF NIGHT (Abt). 2s. 6d.
JENNY OF THE MILL (Lodae). 3s.
SEAWEEDS. Music and Words (Gitana). 2s. 6d.
THE BONNIE BIRD (Abt). 2s. 6d.
KATHLEEN AROON (Abt). 2s. 6d.
THE LIQUID GEM (Wrighton). 2s. 6d.
THE CUCKOO SONG. Sung by Mdlle. Liebhart (Abt). 3s.
THE DAY, ITS LAST GOOD NIGHT (Miss Lindsay). 2s. 6d.
ALL, ALL AROUND IS STILL (Miss Lindsay). 2s. 6d.
NOW READY, Fourth Edition of HAMILTON'S CATECHISM OF THE ORGAN, revised and much enlarged by Joseph Warren, with a description of nearly 250 Organs. 18mo, 350 pages, price, bound in cloth, 5s.; free by post for 54 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street, W.; all Musicsellers and Booksellers. Agents for India, Messrs. Burkinyoung, and Co., Calcutta.

LA MURSKA VALSE. This elegant and fascinating Valse, composed and dedicated to Mdlle. Ilma de Murska by C. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the Scots Fusilier Guards, is now published, embellished with a Portrait of the fair Prima Donna, from a photograph kindly furnished by herself. Sent for 24 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales. This celebrated Romance has already run through fourteen editions. Sent for 15 stamps.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

WALTZ OF THE SEASON.—SOLDATEN LIEDER. By JOSEF GUNG'L. Price—Solo, 4s; Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 5s. This elegant and beautiful waltz was danced by Donato, with great success, at Covent Garden Theatre. Sent post-free at half price.—A. HAMMOND and CO., 214, Regent-street, publishers of all the new compositions of this celebrated dance-music writer.

THE MESSAGE, as Sung by Sims Reeves, and also arranged for the pianoforte by the Composer (BLUMENTHAL) price 4s. each, are published by DUNCAN DAVISON, 244, Regent-street.

TO THE HANDEL FESTIVAL VISITORS. Mr. W. E. EVANS, Inventor of the English Harmonium (vide "Times," Jan. 23, 1844), begs to announce that Lieutenant Colonel Ralph Smyth's new patent invention, THE KNEE-ACTION PEDAL-NOTE, with W. E. Evans's improvements, the most important addition to the Harmonium, is now being exhibited daily at his Harmonium Warehouses, 2B, Market-place, Great Portland-street.

MUSICAL-BOX DÉPOTS, 22, Ludgate-hill, and 56, Cheapside.—Nicole's largest Musical Boxes, at £1 per air; Snuff-boxes, 14s. 6d. to 40s. each. Catalogues gratis and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and prices gratis and postage-free.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power to continue going whilst being wound, recommended for accuracy and durability.

PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.

	£	s	d
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	4	14	6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped	6	6	0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes	8	8	0

Silver Watches, in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.
GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.

	£	s	d
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled	11	11	0
Ditto, with richly-engraved case	13	13	0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes	14	14	0

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.

	£	s	d
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, seconds, and capped	13	13	0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance	19	19	0

Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.
List of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

PAUL BANSOM'S PRIZE-MEDAL SHILLING POCKET-DIALS, with gold appendages, gilt case, &c., are reliable indicators of time. Securely parcelled for post, 14 stamps.—91, Brunswick-street, Hackney-road, London.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by a NEW TELESCOPE for £5, which will also distinguish the features of a man four miles, and time by a church clock ten miles. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post. S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. High-power Pocket Telescopes, Opera, Race, Field, and general Outdoor Glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

REGISTERED ACHROMATIC AND TINTED SPECTACLE LENSES.—Messrs. SOLOMONS, Opticians, beg to inform persons in the Country that the uncertainty and risk experienced in accurately suiting the sight without personal attendance are entirely obviated by their new arrangement, which gives the exact optical condition of the eye, so that the defects can be remedied by the proper adaptation of spectacles. Particulars and testimonials from the principal Ophthalmic Hospitals post-free.—39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS. The £5 Set of Magic, Microscopic, and Phanta Apparatus comprises a 3½ in. improved Achromatic Lantern, producing 12 ft. figures; a microscope, throwing upon a screen animalculæ; ten slides, containing forty subjects; eight movable comic slides; one panorama, with shipping in motion; one photograph; and one chromotrope, with view and revolving watermill. S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE NEW DERBY RACE-GLASS, price 50s., with sling-case complete. Will show distinctly the entire race, from "the start" to "the coming in." Guaranteed the cheapest and best glass (a new model) ever offered to the public. Sent carriage-free to any part of the kingdom. Post-office orders payable to WILLIAM CALLAGHAN, Optician, 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street).

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—OPERA GLASSES, in every variety of form and mounting, matchless for their great magnifying power and sharpness of definition. At CALLAGHAN'S, No. 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street), sole agent for the celebrated opera and field glasses by Voigtländer, Vienna.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE. Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street). Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the RECONNOITERER GLASS, 10s. 10d., sent free.—This "Tourist's Favourite" distinctly shows small windows ten miles off, landscape at thirty miles, Jupiter's moons, &c.—The Marquis of Carmarthen: "The reconnoiterer is very good." Earl of Breadalbane: "I find it all you say, and wonderfully powerful for so very small a glass." Lord Garvagh: "Remarkably good." Rev. Lord Scarsdale "approves of it." Lord Gifford, of Ampney: "Most useful." Sir Digby Cayley: "It gives me complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good." Major Starkey, of Wrenbury Hall: "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £5 5s." Captain Sendey, Royal Small-arms Factory, Enfield: "I have found it effective at the 1000 yards' range." F. H. Fawkes, Esq., of Farnley: "I never before, although I have tried many, met a glass combining so much power for its size with so much clearness." The Field: "We have found it fully equal to others which had cost more than four times its price." Notes and Queries: "What tourist will now start without such an indispensable companion?" The celebrated "Hythe" Glass shows bullet-marks at 1200 yards, and men at 3½ miles. Price 31s. 6d. All the above, respectively bearing the registered trade marks, "Salom," "Reconnoiterer," and "Hythe," are only to be had direct from, and by written application to, SALOM and CO., 98, Princes-street, Edinburgh.
No agents of any kind anywhere.

LATE EXPRESS-TRAIN FROM BRIGHTON.—On and after the 1st July an express-train, 1st and 2nd class, will leave Brighton every night (Sundays excepted) at 10 o'clock, arriving at Victoria at 11. 25. p.m.

BRIGHTON and BACK for THREE SHILLINGS, EVERY SUNDAY and MONDAY, from LONDON BRIDGE, Victoria, and Kensington Termini at 9 a.m. Children under 12 years of age, half price. No luggage allowed.

HASTINGS and BACK for THREE SHILLINGS and SIXPENCE, EVERY SUNDAY, by the BRIGHTON RAILWAY.

PORTSMOUTH and BACK for THREE SHILLINGS and SIXPENCE, EVERY SUNDAY, by the BRIGHTON RAILWAY.

ALBERT INSURANCE COMPANY (Limited).
FIRE AND MARINE.
Capital, One Million.
Premiums moderate. Duty, 1s. 6d. per cent.
No charge for Policy.
Risks undertaken in any part of the world.
Premiums in 1864, £94,566. Losses, £23,556.
Application for Foreign and Home Agencies from men of position invited.
MORELL THEOBALD,
Manager Fire Department.
8, Finch-lane, E.C.; and 7, Waterloo-place, S.W.

EDUCATION.—Thrale House, Streatham Park, Streatham, Surrey, S.—First-class SCHOOL for YOUNG LADIES, conducted by Mrs. Charlton, assisted by resident French, German, and English Governesses and Visiting Masters of high repute. Terms and references upon application.

FIFTEEN CARTES DE VISITE for 2s. 6d. The ROYAL PHOTOGRAPHIC COPYING COMPANY, 3, Rodney-street, Pentonville. Send Portrait and 32 stamps, and 15 beautiful copies, with the original, will be returned within a week. Tinted, six stamps extra each. T. FERDINAND ROBERTS, Manager.

THE TURNER PICTURES in the NATIONAL GALLERY PHOTOGRAPHED by THURSTON THOMPSON, mounted on fine cardboard, size of photo 14 in. by 10 in. The above on view, and catalogues to be had, at 22, Soho-square.—A. MARION, SON, and CO.

PICTURE FRAMES for "HAPPINESS," given with this Paper. Handsome gilt frame, glass and back, 1s. 6d.; maple and gilt, 3s.; ornamented, gold oval frame, 4s.—At GEO. REES, 57, Drury-lane; and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

SCRAPS for SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c. A great variety of Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, &c. Specimen Sheets from 1s.; or one dozen sheets assorted, post-free, 10s. 6d. WILLIAM BARNARD, 59, Connaught-terrace, London, W.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, candlesticks, inkstands, obelisks, inlaid tables, &c., in Alabaster, Marble, Spar, &c.—J. TENNANT, 149, Strand, W.C.

J. MAPLE and CO. for CARPETS!
CARPETS!!
Stout Brussels for Bed-rooms, 2s. 4½d. per yard.
Good Handsome Brussels, 3s. 6d. per yard.
Very choice ditto, new in design, 4s. to 4s. 9d. per yard.
500 pieces of Old Patterns, 2s. 11d. per yard.
Velvet, Axminster, and Turkey Carpets.
145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road;
and 1 to 12, Tottenham-place, London.

CRETONNE, the French Chintz, requiring no calendering. All the newest patterns for 1865. This new and fashionable, as well as inexpensive, material, is particularly adapted for Curtains or the Covering of Furniture. The largest stock in London to be seen at J. MAPLE and CO.'S, 145, 146, 147 Tottenham-court-road. The trade supplied at manufacturers' prices.

J. MAPLE and CO.'S FIRST-CLASS FURNITURE.
Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders; it will save them much time, trouble, and expense. A ten-roomed house furnished complete in twenty-four hours. An illustrated priced catalogue sent post-free on application.
Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.

J. MAPLE and CO.'S FIRST-CLASS FURNITURE.

The Paragon Couch	3½ guineas.
The Prince of Wales Couch	3½ guineas.
The Prince's Easy-chair	30s.
The Eugène Easy-chair	25s.
The Vienna Easy-chair	35s.

Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.

THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE GALLERIES, 38, Conduit-street, Bond-street, W.—A. SEDLEY and CO. have the honour to direct attention to the following—viz., the beautiful TAPESTRIES of ST. MAUR and NEUILLY, for curtains, portières, covering furniture, &c. These elegant productions are now in price within the reach of all who desire to furnish economically and in good taste. Also a Superb Collection of High-class Carved Oak DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY FURNITURE, at very moderate prices.—A. Sedley and Co., 38, Conduit-street, W., Upholsterers, and Patentees of the celebrated Equilibrium Chairs.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the gentry to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception-rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

CONVERTIBLE OTTOMANS for centre of rooms, to form two settees and two easy-chairs—a great improvement.—T. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street. An Illustrated Priced List post-free.

GARDNERS' LAMPS and CHANDELIERS. Moderator and Paraffin Table Lamps.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 453 and 454, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), S.W.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures. D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, invites inspection of his SHOW of IRON and BRASS BEDSTEADS, displayed in four large rooms, where may be seen also entire suites of bed-room furniture in mahogany, fancy woods, polished and japanned deal. These are made at his manufactory, at 84, Newman-street, and each article is of guaranteed quality. The bedding supplied is all made on the premises, and warranted of the best materials. The prices of all are such as have tended to make the establishment the most distinguished in this country. Patent Iron Bedsteads, fitted with dovetail joints and patent sacking, from 12s. each. Ornamental Iron and Brass Bedsteads, from £1 4s. to £30. Baths and toilette ware, and every article for furnishing bed-rooms to be seen in endless variety. Descriptive Catalogues, with upwards of 600 Illustrations, to be had gratis and post-free.—39, Oxford-street; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard, London.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best articles at DEANE'S Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouses. Established A.D. 1700. New Illustrated Catalogue and Priced Furnishing List gratis and post-free.
Deane and Co. (The Monument), London Bridge.

WENHAM LAKE ICE for Town or Country. Refrigerators, Ice-cream Machines, Saltzogenes, Freezing Powders, and everything connected with freezing, of the most reliable character. Illustrated Price-lists. Order direct from THE WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 140, STRAND, W.C.

REFRIGERATORS, or ICE SAFES. The most reliable of every description, and celebrated. WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 140, Strand, London.

FREEZING MACHINES for MAKING ICES. The Piston, the Imperial, and every other reliable kind. WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 140, Strand, London.

FREEZING POWDERS, IMPROVED.

SELTZOGENES and POWDERS, the BEST.

CHAMPAGNE FRAPPE PAILS.

ICE-WATER PITCHERS.

SHERRY COBBLER STRAWS and PLANES.

ILLUSTRATED PROSPECTUS, with Recipes for making Dessert Ices and Iced Drinks, free.—WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 140, Strand, London.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE
RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 18s. 6d., 26s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALL THE CHOICE DESIGNS IN
NEW ORGANDIE MUSLINS. British, French, and Swiss Printing, 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d., 12s. 6d. to 35s. the extra Full Dress.
An immense variety of patterns post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF
LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS. Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new.
An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, at Reduced Prices, all the New Patterns in
PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES, for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
An endless variety of patterns post-free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE
ARABIAN GLACÉS, for Ladies' Dresses and Jackets complete.
A most useful and desirable fabric either for Walking or Travelling Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A Choice Assortment of the
NEW PRINTED ARABIAN GLACÉS, in every variety of style, either in white or coloured grounds, from 14s. 6d. to 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

GINGHAMS and COLOURED LAWNS, for Ladies' travelling, morning, and seaside Dresses, 12s. 6d. the Dress, in plain colours, checks or stripes.
A large collection of Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A CAREFULLY SELECTED VARIETY OF
CHEAP SUMMER DRESSES. A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Also Striped, Checked, and Chéné ditto, 12s. 6d. to 18s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

WHITE MUSLIN ROBES. Now in great demand, Tamboured Dresses, 7s. 9d. each.
Cross-over Stripe, 6s. 6d. to 9s. 9d. the Full Dress.
Some very rich White Grenadine Robes, from 22s. 9d. to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

AN UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND for MANTLES in LIGHT FABRICS has led to a corresponding preparation. PETER ROBINSON is now in a position to offer for selection the largest Stock ever seen in one Establishment. They are marked at prices with a view to effect a clearance before the close of the season.
The Illustrated Manual of Fashion post-free on application.
Peter Robinson's, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

A LARGE NUMBER of SILK MANTLES of the Newest Shapes and very richest qualities have been recently purchased in Paris and are now being offered at very reduced prices at
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SEVERAL THOUSANDS TO SELECT FROM.
LACE SHAWLS and MANTLES, from 12s. 6d. to 25 guineas.
The Illustrated Manual of Fashion post-free on application.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

FOR WEDDING DRESSES. PETER ROBINSON invites special attention to this branch of his Silk Department, containing a magnificent collection of Moires Antiques, Satins, Plain and Fancy Silks, of every modern make, produced, to our order, by the most eminent manufacturers in Lyons, expressly for bridal costume.
Patterns free.—Peter Robinson, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

REAL INDIAN TUSSORES and RUMCHUNDAH CORAHS.
Just received, a perfectly new Stock of the above, recommended as the fashionable Dress for Morning and Seaside Costume.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR YOUNG LADIES. Beautifully bright, Checked, and Striped SILKS, in perfectly new Colours, made expressly to our order, price from £1 15s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

LYONS LEVANTINE FOULARDS of the most improved manufacture, the wear of which cannot be surpassed. The most fashionable article for the present season for ladies' morning suits, including great variety of design in black and coloured grounds.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR SUMMER. New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, from £2 19s. 6d. to 5 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FAMILY MOURNING, MADE UP, Trimmed in the most correct and approved taste, may be obtained ready for instant wear, at the most reasonable prices,
at PETER ROBINSON'S
General Mourning Warehouse.
Goods sent for inspection "free of charge" (with dressmaker if desired) to all parts of England, and Patterns of the new Mourning Fabrics to all parts of the world.
256 to 262, Regent-street.
The largest Mourning Warehouse in the Kingdom.
Peter Robinson's Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free. Good useful Black Silks, from 35s. to 50s. the Dress,
Superior and most enduring qualities, from 3 to 6 guineas.
At PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—Paris Fashions.—New Shapes and great Novelties in Bonnets,
at PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street, W.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.
MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING. New Shapes, in elegant and graceful Novelties,
at PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

UNTEARABLE
WIRE-GROUND BLACK GRENADINES and BAREGES. The improved makes introduced by PETER ROBINSON,
at the Mourning Establishment,
256 to 262, Regent-street,
excel all others for strength and beauty of finish.
May be obtained by the yard, or made up into Skirts.
Patterns free.
Peter Robinson's.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

LADIES' SEASIDE and TRAVELLING COSTUME.—At MACDOUGALL and CO.'S (of Inverness) ROYAL SCOTCH EMPORIUM, 42, Sackville-street, three doors off Piccadilly, W., are an extensive variety of all the newest fabrics for Ladies' Wear at the seaside, on the coach, the rail, the steamer. Their celebrated WATERPROOF SCOTCH TWEED CLOAKS and JACKETS in new shapes for this season exclusively confined to their establishment.
Shetland Shawls, Hose and Veils, Scotch Rugs, Plaids, and Wrappers. Patterns post-free.
Macdougall and Co. (of Inverness), by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and the Royal family, and their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales.

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that their New Stock of SUMMER DRESSES is now replete with every Novelty suitable for the Season, and Patterns of all will be forwarded post-free to any part of the world.

SUMMER SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street,
£1 5s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-st., London.

STRIPED SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street,
£1 10s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street.

BROCHÉ SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street,
£1 15s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street.

CHÉNÉ SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street,
£2 2s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street.

WEDDING SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street,
£2 2s. the Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street.

FANCY DRESS DEPARTMENT.

Broché Wool Grenadines	10s. 6d.	the Full Dress.
Satin Cloths	12s. 6d.	"
Broché Chéné Grenadines	14s. 6d.	"
Chéné Poult de Soie	16s. 6d.	"
Broché Silk Grenadines	17s. 6d.	"
Last Season's best French Printed Muslins, Organdies, and Jaconets	3s. 11½d.	"

Patterns post-free.—Address to KING and CO., 243, Regent-street.

READY-MADE DRESS DEPARTMENT. French Lawn Dresses, with Jackets to match, £1 7s. 9d.
Arabian Glacé Alpaca, ditto, ditto, £1 7s. 9d.
A large variety of elegantly-trimmed White and Buff Alpaca Dresses and Jackets, from 31s. 6d.
Patterns and descriptions sent post-free.
Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

MANTLE and SHAWL DEPARTMENT. A large collection of the best designs in Lyons Glacé and Gros Grain Jackets and Mantles, commencing at 1 guinea.
Opera Mantles, of the newest fashion, 15s. 9d.
An immense stock of Spanish, Brussels, and Yak Lace Shawls, from 10s. 6d. to 5 guineas.
Spanish, Brussels, and Yak Mantles, commencing at 1 guinea.
KING and CO., 243, Regent-street, London.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! Royal Corded Silks, all Colours, 45s. Full Dress.
Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks, 25s. 6d. Foulards, 35s. 6d. and 39s. 6d. Silks for Young Ladies, neat and useful, 2s. 6d. yard.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

MOURNING! MOURNING! MOURNING! The Untearable Black Barèges, Tamataves, Grenadines, Muslins, Cords, Crape Laines, Albert Cords, and other useful fabrics for mourning, at moderate prices, commencing at 10s. 6d. the Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP'S New Mourning Rooms, 198, Regent-street.

MUSLINS! MUSLINS! MUSLINS! New Embroidered Muslins, 6s. 9d. and 8s. 9d. Full Dress.
Beautiful Organdis, 6s. 9d. to 12s. 6d.,
and the new Grenadine Muslins (Washing), 10s. 6d.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S. Rich, bright, wide, and durable Glacé, Gros Grains, Ducapes, &c., from 1 to 2 guineas the Full Dress. Beautiful Black Corded and Figured Silks, unequalled at 39s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

SUMMER WEAR.—GAZE DE CHAMBERY, 5s. 9d. for twelve yards, or 5½d. per yard. These beautiful dresses are well adapted for the hot weather, and are now selling at BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street. Patterns free.

LADIES' JACKETS and SUITES. Our new Show-rooms are well-stocked with Garibaldi Jackets in Muslin and all fabrics from 3s. 11d. to 10s. 6d. each.
Ladies ready-made Suites and Dresses complete from 12s. 6d. to 2 guineas each.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

GLOVES! GLOVES! GLOVES! Ladies' and Gentlemen's.
The best Alpine Summer Kid, 1s. 6d.; Grenoble, 2s.
Very best, 2s. 6d. Sample for 2 extra stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

ARABIAN GLACÉ ALPACAS, in White and all the fashionable and useful Colours, from 1s. the yard. The new Mexican Cloths, Silk Grenadines, Barèges, Balzarines, Mohairs, &c., from 8s. 9d. to 15s. 6d. Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

AS FINE as HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free. Invisible HAIR-NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair-Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

MESSRS. HOWELL, JAMES, and CO. will include in their SALE, on MONDAY NEXT, JULY 3, and throughout the Month, an immense stock of real Brussels Lace Goods, Rich Silk Cloaks, Burnouse and Opera Mantles, Fancy Dress Tissues, Muslins, &c.—5, 7, 9, Regent-street, Pall-mall.

SANSFLECTUM CRINOLINES, 17s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
ADDLEY BOURNE, 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA or WAVED JUPONS, 18s. 6d.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
ADDLEY BOURNE, 37, Piccadilly.

PUFFED HORSEHAIR JUPONS, 25s.
"Adapted for the promenade."—Queen.
ADDLEY BOURNE, 37, Piccadilly.

THOMSON'S PRIZE MEDAL. 15s. 6d.
Illustrations post-free.
ADDLEY BOURNE, 37, Piccadilly.

THOMSON'S EMPRESS JUPONS, 12s. 6d.
"Light and graceful."—Court Circular.
ADDLEY BOURNE, 37, Piccadilly.

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at Mrs. AXFORD'S, 51, Maddox-st., Bond-st., Milliner and Dressmaker. Wedding orders, outfits, and country orders punctually attended to. French Corsets, 12s. 6d. The small Crinoline, 10s. 6d.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requring no calendering, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture-coverings, being durable, elegant, and inexpensive. HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, have all the new patterns.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

RIMMEL'S EXTRACT of LIME JUICE and GLYCERINE cleanses and cools the head, and gives the hair a beautiful gloss without greasing it. 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 5s.—E. Rimmel, 96, Strand; 128, Regent-street; and 24, Cornhill.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN and SIMEON MOSELY and SONS, 30, Berners-st., Oxford-st., and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Station). Established 1830. These teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet." Daily attendance at 15, Whitefriargate, Hull; 10, Norfolk-street, Sheffield; 4, East-parade, Leeds; and 14, St. Nicholas-st., Scarbro'. No connection with anyone of the same name.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS. ELAM'S ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, for debility, corpulency, &c., of superior construction. Directions for self-measurement sent free. Price 20s. and 27s. 6d.—Elam, 196, Oxford-street.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomachic Disorders of every kind and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

NEW MUSIC.

NEW WALTZES by D'ALBERT. In the press, and will shortly be published, Two New Waltzes by Charles D'Albert.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY (B.M. Grenadier Guards). The Waltz of the season, by the Composer of the celebrated "Guards' Waltz." Price 4s., solo or duet. Military Band, 15s.; Brass Band, 7s. 6d.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music from the last and greatest work of Meyerbeer is published by Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street, where the following are now to be had:—

The Opera complete, for Voice and Pianoforte ..	20s.
All the Vocal Music with French words.
The Overture for Pianoforte, Solo, 3s.; Duet ..	4s.
Grand Indian March	4s.
Religious March	3s.
Bouquet de Mélodies. By Cramer	5s.
Quadrille. By Coote	4s.
Waltz. By D. Godfrey	4s.
Favourite Airs in 3 Books. By W. H. Callcott. Each	5s.
Duets .. .. Each	6s.
Grand Fantasia. Mdme. Oury	5s.
Marche Indienne. Brinley Richards.	3s.
Mélodie Symphonique. Brinley Richards	3s.
Fantasia for Harmonium. L. Engel	3s.
Grand Duet, Harmonium and Pianoforte. L. Engel	4s.

The Italian and English versions are in the press, together with Pianoforte arrangements by Kuhe, and a brilliant Duet for Pianoforte, by G. A. Osborne.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. The favourite airs from Meyerbeer's Opera arranged for the Pianoforte, in 3 Books, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 5s. each.; Duets, each 6s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ. On favourite melodies from Meyerbeer's successful Opera, arranged for the Pianoforte by D. GODFREY (B. M. Gren. Guards), Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE. On favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each.

No. 1. The Guards' Waltz.	No. 4. The Hunt Quadrille.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz.	No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Orpheus Galop.	No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS.

The Lost Star	Wallace	3s. 0d.
The Sails are Spread.. ..	Brinley Richards	2s. 6d.
The Cottage Window ..	G. Russell ..	2s. 6d.
Syr Tankarde	R. Haking ..	2s. 6d.
White-Wings	R. Haking ..	2s. 6d.
Again I wander	R. Haking ..	2s. 6d.
I will not wander	Schumann ..	2s. 6d.
My lost youth	Walter Meynard	2s. 6d.
Part with forgiveness ..	Florence	2s. 6d.
The Cloister'd Nun	Louis Emanuel ..	2s. 6d.
Cantilène (for two voices) ..	Gounod	2s. 6d.
In Youth's Season	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Versar nel mio cor	Gounod	2s. 0d.
Our Starry Home	Ascher	2s. 6d.
Only thee	Linley	2s. 6d.
The Life Clock	J. Barnett ..	2s. 6d.
A life of love with thee ..	J. Barnett ..	2s. 6d.
La Naiade	Gounod	2s. 6d.
The Child and the Nosegay	J. Barnett ..	3s. 0d.
Le Chant d'Euryclée ..	Gounod	2s. 0d.
L'âme d'un ange	Gounod	2s. 6d.
La Rondinella	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Souvenir	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Les Champs	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Winter and Spring	Harold Thomas	2s. 6d.
Dreaming Eyes	Benedict	2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," including the Soldiers' Chorus, Valse, &c.; "The Guards' Waltz," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, thus rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 4s., post-free.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. Benedict's Favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. FAVARGER'S NEW PIECE.

DON GIOVANNI. Fantasia on Airs from Mozart's Grand Opera, for the Pianoforte. By RENE FAVARGER. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on Favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE WALTZ, STRAUSS, 4s.
LA BELLE HELENE QUADRILLES, STRAUSS, 3s.
LA BELLE HELENE POLKA, STRAUSS, 3s.
LA BELLE HELENE, complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, 16s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S BROOKLET. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 3s. each; or the six numbers in one volume, bound in cloth, 12s. Vol. II. is in the press. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music is now ready, with French words. The Opera, complete, price 20s. The Italian and English versions are in the press. The following Pianoforte Arrangements are just published—
The Overture. 3s.
Ditto, as a Duet. 4s.
Callcott's Favourite Airs. 3 Books. 5s. each.
Ditto, as Duets. 6s. each.
Marche Religieuse. 3s.
Marche Indienne. 4s.
Brinley Richards's Marche Indienne. 3s.
Brinley Richards's Mélodie Symphonique. 3s.
Cramer's Bouquet. 5s.
Mdme. Oury's Fantasia. 5s.
Coote's Quadrille. 4s.
Godfrey's Waltz. 4s.
In the Press—
René Favarger's Fantasia.
Kuhe's Fantasia.
Rimbault's Six Gems.
Engel's Harmonium Fantasia.
Engel's Harmonium and Piano Duet.
Osborne's Grand Duet.
Various other Arrangements are in the Press.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

KUHE'S New Piece, LINDA DI CHAMOUNI. Fantasia on Donizetti's Opera, now so popular at both Opera houses. One of M. Kuhe's prettiest and most effective pieces. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NEW MUSIC.

MISS LAURA HARRIS'S NEW SONG. L'OROLOGIO. By ARDITI. Sung by Miss Harris, at the Author's concert and the Crystal Palace, with tremendous success. Rapturously encored. Arditi's greatest hit since "Il Bacio." Also in English, and for the Piano.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MDME. SHERRINGTON'S NEW SONG. THE MESSAGE OF LOVE. By GOUNOD. Valse Ariette. Price 3s. Also in English, and for the Piano.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. CLARIBEL'S new Song, composed for Mdme. Sainton-Dolby. Published this day by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. By BLUMENTHAL. New Song, sung at the Author's Concert, with unprecedented success, by Mdme. Sainton-Dolby.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. By BLUMENTHAL. This new and highly successful Song arranged for the Pianoforte by the Author.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE. Old Scotch Ballad. Newly arranged by Mrs. CAMPBELL, of Drimnamuchloch.
"Willie's gane to Melvil Castle, boots and spurs, an a',
To bid farewell to the leddies fair, afore he gaed awa."
Price 2s. 6d. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

New Edition of

MARION'S SONG by CLARIBEL. This highly-popular Song will in future be published exclusively by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense success. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

STATE BALL, Buckingham Palace.—Played by command, by Coote and Tinney's Band:—

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE	4s.
STRAUS'S MENESTREL VALSE	4s.
COOTE'S CADIZ QUADRILLE	4s.
FREWIN'S FAIRY FOOTSTEPS VALSE	4s.
COOTE'S NEW LANCERS	4s.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP	3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ALWAYS ENCORED.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE, price 4s., on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. No dance programme complete without them.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! The great Christy Song. Price 2s. 6d. (Creating a perfect furore.)—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG,

THE WEEPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 3s., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A FIRST-RATE SENTIMENT.

PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE. Price 3s. This is one of Clifton's best songs.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.

Bob Simmons's Courtship	3s.
He, She, and the Postman	3s.
A Norrible Tale	3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE, price 3s., causes shouts of laughter.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CREATES ROARS OF LAUGHTER.

JOLLY CATS, THERE THEY ARE AGAIN! Price 3s. Doubly encored every night.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MADAME OURY'S MASANIELLO. Mdme. OURY'S ORPHEE AUX ENFERS. New and popular Pieces, played by the Composer.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SWING SONG. By CH. FONTAINE. Second Edition of this popular Pianoforte Piece. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

PLAYED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S LARA QUADRILLE. COOTE'S LARA VALSES. Solo or Duet, 4s. each. Orchestra parts may be had.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SINGING BIRDS VALSE. J. P. CLARKE. Played by all the Regimental Bands with the greatest success. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW DANCE MUSIC BY

GASTON DE LILLE.

Les Boulevards. French popular Quadrille ..	4s.
"Tonnerre" Galop	3s.
Abergeldie Valse (with View of Abergeldie) ..	4s.

METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CONSTANCE QUADRILLE—F. WALLERSTEIN. Played at the balls of the nobility, the French and Austrian Embassies, &c. Price 4s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

O MISTRESS MINE. By ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN. Also, The Willow Song; Orpheus and his Lute; and Sigh no More, Ladies.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ASCHER'S SOUVENIR THEATRAL. New and effective piece by this popular Composer. Price 4s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

BEN È RIDICOLO.—Italian Canzone by RANDEGGER. Sung by Mesdames Trebelli and Rudersdorff, and the principal Vocalists. In G for Soprano; in E for Contralto. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA. 3s. Galop, 3s., on the universally popular tune, "Slap, Bang! here we are again." The most successful ever published. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere. Inimitably Illustrated. May be had of every musicseller in the United Kingdom.
London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired, with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues of Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

HARMONIUMS
at
BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The 8-guinea Harmonium, in polished oak case, one stop. The 10-guinea or School Harmonium, also in oak case, has a powerful tone suitable for class-singing, &c. Harmoniums for churches or drawing-rooms, from 18 to 100 guineas. Any of the above may be had with Dawe's patent melody attachment, which gives a pure and defined melody as if produced by another instrument. Catalogues upon application.
24, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES
at
BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The Miniature, price 17 guineas; the check-action Pianette, price 25 guineas, in an elegant walnut case; the model Cottage Piano, price 35 guineas, &c. Catalogues upon application.
24, Holles-street, W.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS.—CORNETS, Saxhorns, Circular Vibrating Horns, Drums, Flutes, Clarinets, &c., are now in general use in Military and Amateur Bands in all parts of the Kingdom and the Colonies, and are giving universal satisfaction. Every instrument made on the premises, and guaranteed first class. Prices much below those usually charged. Cornets from £2.—Manufactory, Haymarket, London. Prices, with drawings, post-free.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE FRÈRES. A Selection of Two Hundred lists of the newest descriptions. Æolian Harps, vibrating with the slightest breeze, 12s. to 26s. KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside.

LONDON and RYDER, Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, and Diamond Workers, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street), have NOW ON VIEW a new and recherché Stock of first-class JEWELLERY, in best possible taste, of original design, and sterling quality, as wedding souvenirs.
London and Ryder, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street). Prize Medal at the International Exhibition for "General good taste and merit." A large variety of Diamond Ornaments. A liberal discount for cash always deducted.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.,
Silversmiths, Cutlers, &c., pre-eminent for their
Electro-Silver Plate, for Dinner à la Russe,
Electro-Silver Plate suitable for Presentation,
Electro-Silver Christening, Wedding, and Birthday Presents,
Sterling Silver ditto ditto.
Sterling Silver Volunteer, Rifle, and other Prizes,
Electro-Silver ditto ditto,
Electro-Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Plated Spoons and Forks, guaranteed quality.
Sterling Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Silver Tea and Coffee Services,
Electro-Silver Side Dishes and Dish Covers,
Electro-Silver Breakfast, Luncheon, and Dinner Cruets,
Electro-Silver Egg Frames,
Electro-Silver Fish-eating Knives and Forks,
Electro-Silver Fish Carvers, in case,
Electro-Silver Dessert Knives and Forks, in cases,
Table Knives of unsurpassed excellence,
Canteen-Cases completely fitted for Officers,
Plate Chests for partial or entire Outfits.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory—The Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.
Illustrated Catalogues and priced list free on application.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Celebrated
DRESSING CASES } completely fitted with every article
DRESSING BAGS } of convenience and luxury.
DESPATCH BOXES, fitted with Cutlery and Stationery.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and at 71 and 72, Cornhill.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

ORNAMENTS for the MANTELPIECE, &c. Large and Choice Selection, including, among other articles, Groups, Statuettes, Vases, &c., in Parian and English and foreign Porcelain; Clocks (bronze, marble, and gilt), first-class Bronzes, Lustres, Candelabra, Candlesticks, and Bohemian Glass.
Novelty, Beauty, and Art.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 23, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

SECOND-HAND LOOKING-GLASSES, Console Tables, Girandoles, Picture-Frames, Window Cornices.—C. NOSOTTI has for immediate disposal several articles of the above description, which he has taken from his customers in exchange. They are modern in style, and all in good preservation, and to be disposed of at moderate prices, at Nosotti's, 398, 399, and 399A, Oxford-street, W., London.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES, for ornamenting Chimney-glasses. 18 stamps per set of 72 slips. Tissue for Stove Aprons, 8 stamps per packet; 6 for 40 stamps.—R. PETERS, Tovil, Maidstone.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. One hundred thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.C.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING MACHINES. — Prize Medal 1862. — These machines, made by the original Patentees and Introducers of the Invention, stand foremost and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with exceeding rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is without cord or ridge, and the thread cannot be pulled out.—66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

PRIVATE PICTURE GALLERY, 4, Queen Anne-street, Cavendish-square. The proprietor having lent this Gallery, without charge, to Artists to exhibit their Pictures, the Patrons of the Art are respectfully informed that the Gallery is now complete, and are earnestly invited to inspect it, admission being granted on presentation of address card.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—For FAMILY ARMS send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in Colours, 6s. Arms, Crest, and Family Motto, beautifully painted, 12s. Pedigrees traced. A valuable Index is now ready, which contains the arms, crests, and mottoes of nearly every family in the kingdom, the result of thirty years labour. "The Manual of Heraldry," 400 Engravings, 3s. 6d., post-free, by T. Culleton, Genealogist, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), W.C.

SOLID GOLD SIGNET RINGS, engraved with any crest, 42s.; ditto, very massive, for arms, crest, and motto, £4 4s. These rings are 18-carat, Hall-marked, being a guarantee for the purity of the gold. Solid Gold Seal, engraved with any crest, 15s.; registered letter, 1s. extra.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

JUST PUBLISHED, the CROWNS and MONOGRAMS of the Queen and all the Royal family; the Arms of every Duke, Marquis, and Earl; the Crests and Mottoes of Barons, Baronets, and British Commoners; the Arms of all the Archbishops of York and Canterbury from 1070 to 1865; the Arms used by the Colleges in Oxford and Cambridge; the Crests and Mottoes used by every Regiment and the Royal Navy. This extraordinary Collection of Arms is printed in Colours, price 1s. per sheet, or 12 different sheets for 9s.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S PATENT LEVER EMBOSSING PRESSES, 21s., for Stamping Paper with Crest, Arms, or Address. Any person can use them. Carriage paid.
T. Culleton, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

NO CHARGE FOR ENGRAVING DIE WITH CREST, MONOGRAM, or ADDRESS (as charged for by other houses) if an order be given for a Guinea Box of Stationery, containing a Ream of the very best Paper and Five Hundred Envelopes to match, all stamped free of charge.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS.—A Card Plate engraved, and Fifty Cards printed, 2s. post-free. Fifty Black-bordered Cards, 2s. Wedding Cards, fifty each for lady and gentleman; fifty best embossed Envelopes, maiden name printed inside, all complete, 13s. 6d. Any of the above post-free.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S PLATES FOR MARKING LINEN. Never washes out. Initial plate, 1s.; name, 2s. 6d.; set of numbers, 2s. 6d.; crest, 5s; with directions, post-free.
T. Culleton, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), W.C.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE. Established 25 years. For Family Arms send name and county. Sketch, 3s. 6d., or stamps. Arms painted and quartered and engraved on Seals, Rings, Dies, &c. Monograms designed. Pedigrees of Families, 21s.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, London, W.C.—Manual of Heraldry, 3s.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and PRESSES, Hatchments, Monumental Brasses, &c.; Diplomas and Votes of Thanks; Bookplates, Wedding and other Cards.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

BINDING the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—The Half-yearly Volumes bound in the appropriate Covers, with gilt edges, at 5s. each, if sent carriage-free with P. O. order, to LEIGHTON, SON, and HODGE, 13, Shoe-lane, London. The only binders authorised by the Proprietors.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Mounted and Ormolu Suites for the Boudoir, Toilette, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in russia or morocco, of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at H. Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or plated fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Cigar Cases, and Purses. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in ormolu, walnut, and coromandel. Albums for monograms, crests, and postage-stamps.—At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art. Note-paper and envelopes stamped in colour relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

FOUR POUNDS TEN SHILLINGS PER CENT DEBENTURE STOCK.—The GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY are now ISSUING this Stock. Applications to be made to J. B. OWEN, Secretary.
Bishopsgate Terminus, June 13, 1865.

120 SHEETS OF NOTE-PAPER for 6d.; 120 thick ditto for 1s.; 120 sheets ditto, black-bordered, for 1s.; 250 useful Envelopes for 9d.; 1000 extra large ditto for 4s. 6d.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

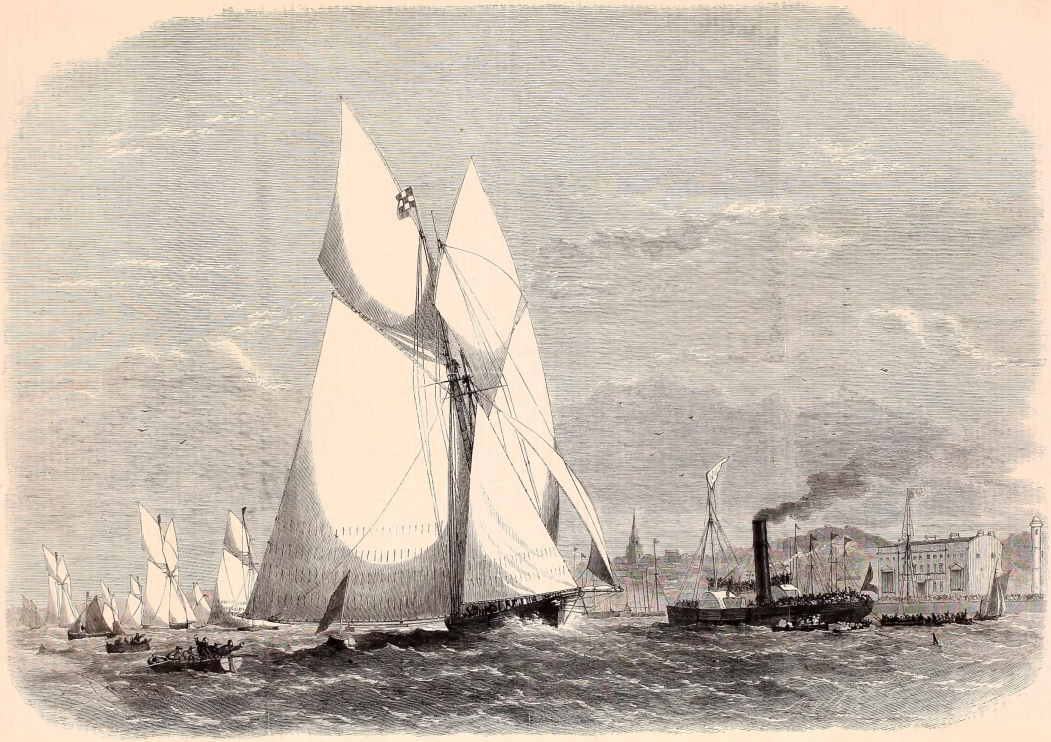
MONOGRAM, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES cut at half price, and remain the property of the customer. No charge for plain stamping; coloured stamping reduced to 1s. per 100. Writing-paper and Envelopes supplied to the public at wholesale prices.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, W.

BIRTHDAY PRESENTS,
WEDDING PRESENTS,
CHRISTENING PRESENTS.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PURSES, pocket-books, cigar-cases, card-cases, wallets, opera-glasses, scent-bottles (double and single); pencil-cases; fans, note-cases, &c., the largest Stock in London. N.B. Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon prepayment.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-st.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.



500 DRESSING-CASES and DRESSING-BAGS, of the best manufacture, and fitted in the most complete manner for ladies or gentlemen. DESPATCH-BOXES, INKSTANDS, ENVELOPE-CASES, BOOK-SLIDES, RETICULES, PURSES, BLOTTING-BOOKS, &c. The public supplied at TRADE PRICES.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-st., London.

2s. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

CROQUET (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Prices 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 35s., 40s., and upwards, including Book of Rules. Warranted of seasoned woods, and sent carriage-paid to any railway station upon prepayment.—Parkins and Gotto, 25, Oxford-street, W.

CROQUET, THE FAVOURITE SET, Full Size, for 30s., including Book of Rules, in strong box. Sent carriage-paid to any railway station in England, upon receipt of P. O. order.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

LAWN GAMES at PARKINS and GOTTO'S consisting of Croquet (all sizes and prices); Bowls, 31s. 6d.; Jack's Alive, 14s.; Volunteer Handicap, 25s.; Ringolette, 16s. 6d.; Ring the Bell, 8s. 6d.; Aunt Sally, 12s. 6d.; Troco or Lawn Billiards, 14s.; Rondello, 21s.; and many others. Orders over 20s. sent carriage-paid to any railway station in England.—Parkins and Gotto, 27 and 28, Oxford-street, W.

THE SCHOONER-MATCH OF THE ROYAL THAMES YACHT CLUB: THE GLORIANA COMING IN FIRST AT GRAVESEND.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE COMING ELECTION.

No better proof could be found of a statement that has been made in this column that the genius of the coming election is more personal than political, than in the fact of the continued changes of candidature which are taking place even now, when the moment of fruition is so close at hand. Instances may be given in plenty, but one or two may suffice. A few days ago nothing was more precise than the assertion that Sir John Ramsden and Mr. C. W. Fitzwilliam were candidates for the new, or southern, division of the West Riding of Yorkshire; when behold! there comes a new announcement, which, probably suppressing the important circumstance that they had been jostled from their seat and had no place to go to, the astonished world that there more or less eminent Parliament men do not suppose to press their claims, and the Conservatives, one of whom is Mr. Beaumont, are to have a walk over. Till lately there was belief that Colonel White, who, as a Lord of the Treasury exiled from his native county of Limerick—a fashionable exile, by the way, to Bath—had won the feelie favours of Riddermaster, and would have found his quarters in his way; but even he, unequal to the fight, declines, if somewhere—but where we know not at present—has dared the contest, and has found a Liberal patron. Then, as to the Isle of Wight, where it was supposed that, Mr. Kingslake's dreary reign being abandoned, a Conservative, Mr. Wyndham, was to have had for the vacated seat of Colonel Tyrrie, whereas now there is a rumour that there is to be a contest, and that the ubiquitous Sir John Ramsden (who, by the way, has stated his determination never to be a metropolitan member again) has started up. While we are upon the subject of the election, it must not be forgotten that Mr. Probyn who had ventured to place his name before the men of Sheffield in opposition to Mr. Beaumont, having come to a sense of his position, has made a tongue-flight with that gentleman, whose gifts of speech are such as would, probably, have been possessed by Demosthenes had he chosen that they should not be dumb, his formally withdrawn from what in his case must have been a most unequal contest. Mr. Buckingham, again; it was imagined to be settled that the one-and-one system of representation, as applied to Leeds, should send Mr. Harry Verney, was to be preserved; but suddenly it is discovered by the friends of the Conservatives that they are offering battle to Mr. Hubbard, and they apply to Mr. Roberts, a landed proprietor of the county, to stand there in their fight. He declines to be put in the position and not a political distinction which is made. It is, however, useless to multiply cases on a point which probably will not be disputed, if it is worth disputing.

Incidents have not been wanting to illustrate the course of the election since last we sat down somewhat prematurely to write by anticipation. Notably let it be observed that there is a project on foot to set up the Chancellor of the Exchequer as a candidate for Buckinghamshire, where he would be very likely to get in between the three Conservatives who have set up for that division of the county, and who divide votes among themselves alone. It may be that friends of Mr. Gladstone may have been creating artificial chances of failure for the sake of ultimate success, though good, yet with the element of chances prominent, have conceived the very sensible idea of securing him a seat worthy of his position as a statesman in case of an upset, which would be terrible to his old constituency. It can do no harm to give a foremost Minister the advantage of two proud seats in the House, though Mr. Gladstone knows what his choice would be if elected for both. There is lamentation in Wales for Mr. Osborne Morgan's defection, as he is called in the house, to distinguish him from a tiny membership of the same name—who, it is said, has resigned his seat from the doubtful state of his health. For the last two years, although professing to aspire to attendance in the House of Commons, he has worn his right arm in a sling. It is true that, when speaking, he uses it for purposes of gesticulation; but it has been understood to be a symbol of his real condition in case of any vote being taken. The individuality was still as marked as ever, it had, from his too frequent speaking of it to the House, become a proverb, and was the subject of irony, which were so strongly flavoured with simplicity that it was difficult, after a time, to decide which was the real recipient of it, that his appearances were not to welcome as relish from the persevering audience as they used to be. Mr. Osborne Morgan has now better spared a better man, and he will be missed at those moments when, in pursuing his whim, he so grossly abused the ear of the House and drowsiest house between eight and ten o'clock. The letter in which Mr. Osborne communicates to the electors of Denbigshire his retiral for himself, even to the extent of supporting Lord Palmerston, while he has a very different opinion of him, is a model of the ordinate member of the noble Lord's Government out of the not at Whig Mr. Lang, who gives a considerable support to the regnum. May not Lord Bury, as a young statesman, however, be in a manner fulfilling his special vocation in the House of Lords? It is his chief, as he states that he is about to do at Dover. While contesting ex-Ministerial candidature, he will be, as he says, not obviously the address of Mr. Lowe to the electors of Calne presents itself to the mental vision. Of course, everyone knows that Mr. Lowe refuses to be subdued to this ordinary condition of things somehow, when it is spoken of, recalls to recollection the anecdote of Caligula, who made his horse a consul; of Rome, or the Old Bailey Practice, according to the borough in the unforeseen days, who threatened the electors, when they seemed inclined to breathe about Mr. Gladstone's son, to make Gladstone his black footman their member—it would make no difference in the election. But Mr. Lowe is to be re-elected, and he announces himself as a politician, and a manifesto is expected of him or expected by himself, to speak out to the country upon the subject. The late Ministry of Calne an abstract of his speech on the £10 franchise bill, talks contemptuously of theories for which some of the electors may be tangible good which we possess in the way of Government administration and political condition, and utters his cry for peace (that is, no fighting for Sardinia), economy (which is to be found in the Education Estimates), legal reform (a phrase used with evident intention in anticipation to electoral reform), and, in fact, everything but the social religious distinctives (which is carefully wide in its signification). The question is this:—Is Mr. Lowe to be put out of the House of Commons to have a future—under which fiction is Mr. Lowe to bestir into and an office?

In the midst of more or less enthusiastic receptions which Mr. Cox is holding in Surrey there appears to be a hitch in the case of Mr. Bransfield offence; and as that terrible appearance has so re-asserted itself, it becomes somewhat a question whether it will not yet more the "tried source" out of his not. Mr. Cox is the only Liberal candidate tion of members to constituencies fitness—personal and characteristic, as well as political—may often well be considered, and is, in some degree, as far as possible, the House the very type of the public which it is supposed to represent. From that point of view, Mr. Bransfield Cox is worthy of Finsbury, and Finsbury is worthy of Mr. Cox; and this may be to be applied without any reference to political opinions.

Does any one know anything of the specialties of Wallingford in an electoral sense? Is there any particular reason for the course or why it should have even 314 electors, and whether its existence on the roll of Parliament is in any way connected with the new constituency to? At any rate, it has been many years since it has been thought necessary to bring Wallingford prominently before the public eye, and but one thing is certain that it is to be the scene of contest, Sir Wenworth Dilke, of South Kensington, bight, venturing to oppose so dangerous an opponent as Mr. Mallins. In the meantime, while the issue of this man's election we would suggest a device for driving his enemy from the field. Let the hon. and learned gentleman be nominated by the day of nomination, to speak until five minutes to four o'clock, when the show of hands can be taken. Mr. Mallins will be placed in a window exactly opposite to Sir Wentworth's principal committee-room, and let him speak until twelve o'clock at night. On the day of polling let him be placed in a convenient position, where, without interrupting the taking of votes, he can be heard by his opponent, and let him speak on all day; and it may be asserted that by three o'clock Sir Wentworth Dilke—who is a gentleman of pretty person, and probably not much inured to fatigue—will be taken from the town in a state of exhaustion approaching to coma, leaving his triumphant antagonist as fresh as though he had only been saying grace before meals. Return him, thanks to the electors until, say, six o'clock. There could be no difficulty in all this so far as the principal performer is concerned.

The addresses, rival, though simultaneous, of Mr. Baines, Liberal, and Mr. Beacroft, Conservative, have been put forth to the constituency of Leeds; but at present, and in that sense, Viscount Amberley is nowhere. The curious inspitude of Manchester to find a candidate to represent the Liberalism of the city has at length been removed by the choice and acceptance of the candidature of Mr. Jacob Bright, brother of the member for Manchester, Mr. Bright. He is elected, as seems probable, and it turns out that he is anything like his brother in tone and style, what will Mr. Leatham do, who at present is in possession of such a resemblance, and who will, still, though he has left the Manchester Liberals, be returned for Dromion to be provoked? Once and again it has been observed that the liberty given to the Jews to enter Parliament has not been acted on except in the case of Mr. Rothschild, Mr. Salomons, and Mr. Salomons, three, at least, of the Jewish members having their seats vacated, and Mr. Lionel de Rothschild's emancipation for their race. The second Rothschild now in the House, and he is to be re-elected for the City, and he is to sit at all, which he does not, except as an asserter of a principle, borrows his light from the Jewish lamp, and, with a copy of the Book of Moses, takes care that it does not outshine that of his chief. Now we hear that Mr. Salomons, the member for the borough of Aylesbury, a brought situate in a county in which the Rothschilds flourish, and, if returned, will make very little doubt of that stubble whose which, according to Mr. Newdegate, was to unchristianise the Parliament of England. Out of Hampshire, perhaps, few people recollect or observe that Mr. Compton, the Liberal-Conservative member for South Hants, got into with the election of that division of the county having been determined on personal friend and pleasant country neighbour at a moment when it was sought by Mr. Turner to put in a man who, by having in all constituencies who think a quiet uncontested election a thing to be deplored, proposed to put in a man who, by having in all constituencies as in the field. It seems, however, that Mr. Humphreys is courageous enough to stand by Mr. Samuels could not. So the turbulent, excitable, unmanageable, indefatigable Mr. Samuels, who has once again to receive Sir John Pakington, its representative for a quarter of a century. How very old it is!

THE ROYAL THAMES YACHT CLUB MATCH.

The grand regatta of the Royal Thames Yacht Club, including a match for schooners and another match for cutters, to run simultaneously over the Queen's Channel course, from the Nore to the Light and back again, took place on Monday week. The schooners which started were the following:—Alarm, 140 tons; owner, Mr. Ratsey; the Albertine, 153 tons; owner, Lord Londesborough; the Circe, 128 tons, Mr. G. Harrison, in the first class: and the Intrigue, 72 tons, Mr. F. Edwards, and the Gloriana, 96 tons, Mr. Alfred Mellish, in the second class. There were two prizes in the first class, a cup value £50 and a sum of £30, and in the second class a cup of the value £50. We do not here speak of the cutter-match further than that the Egeria, 90 tons, owner, Mr. Ellis, succeeded by the Glance, 35 tons; owner, Mr. E. Johnson. At the start of the schooners, the Alarm, Albertine, and Circe were nearly at the same moment, and became so close as nearly to foul, but the Gloriana had not got well away. The Alarm, Albertine, and Circe were ready, and was driven by the wind over towards the north shore, and was a long while coming round. The Intrigue was first covered, all starting with working jibs and topsails but the Circe, which hoisted at the doubtful experiment of a flying jib. In the lower part of Gravesend Reach the Albertine was ahead, the lead of the Circe by 200 yards, now went ahead of both chases; the Intrigue, just passed by her, being second, the Alarm third, and the Circe fourth. Off the Mucking Light they were precisely in the same order, there being a great gap between the Albertine and the Circe. The Alarm became very light, and, as the flood-tide began to rise, the steamer in tow, which had been dropped at the Nore, which remained about a mile below Southend Pier, where the schooners passed round in the following order and time:—

	H.	M.	S.
Intrigue	4	25	30
Albertine	4	33	4
Circe	4	33	42
Alarm	4	39	0

It seem the Gloriana overreached herself. She went low down to fetch the steamer. The others in her wake profited by it, and came home second. The Alarm, Albertine, and Circe were abreast, as they were all sailing well, with a little more wind and the flood tide under them. The Albertine dropped astern of the Alarm at the last buoy up, and then ran in first; but the Albertine gradually fell astern. The race finished as under:—

	H.	M.	S.
Gloriana	6	35	28
Circe	6	35	44

	H.	M.	S.
Intrigue	6	35	25
Revenge	6	29	33

The Gloriana was consequently the winner of the first class; the Intrigue being the winner of the second.

A fire broke out at Antwerp last week, in a barge on the Brasserie Canal, and, the tide being low at the moment, the other craft around, some laden with petroleum, could not be removed, consequently several others took a share in the fire.

A Parliamentary return has been published of the revenue and local contributions to the Metropolitan Police Force for the year ended Michaelmas, compared with the amounts estimated for each year; also of the amounts of expenditure of the Police Force for the same year, distributed under the respective heads of reference; and of the expenditure of the Police Force for the year ended Michaelmas, 1864, which shows that the net surplus of revenue above expenditure in the year ended Michaelmas, 1864, was £1,000, and the excess of expenditure in the five years ended 1864-5 (compared with £1,140,000 estimated) was £1,000 in the year 1864-5. The total of the estimated amount of taxes repealed or reduced in the five years ended 1864-5, was £1,616,611, and the amount of the Police Force in the same years amounted to the total amount of the public debt in the five years ended March 31, 1865, was £6,780,000.

A minute by the Privy Council on Education has been laid before Parliament, in which the committee of Council on Education in consideration of the memorial presented to them on the 10th of May last by a deputation, and of the report of Mr. Matthew Arnold, Esq., Her Majesty's inspector-general of art, on the statements made in the memorial. Looking to the changes which have been introduced by the Science and Art Department of the Select Committee, but by the representatives of so many schools of art in the United Kingdom, and to the increased facilities which have been provided for affording public aid to schools of art proposed by the minute appended to the memorial, and to the recommendations of the Select Committee, such modifications in the regulations for the payment on results as those from which their Lordships would not feel themselves justified in departing. Hence, they have come to the decision that the only modification of importance to be afforded by the State must be limited to persons and classes of persons who are employed in manufactures, and not extended to the middle and upper classes, who are indirectly encouraged by the purchase of examples, &c.; that such direct assistance must be conditional on proofs of the performance of satisfactory work, and that the continuance of the only modification which their Lordships can at present sanction, namely, the payment of results grants and grants for examples, which may be calculated solely out of reference to the recommendations of the Select Committee. They are unable to revert to the system of payment by certificates, and they do not consider that the art-teachers come within the provisions of the Superannuation Act, 22 Vic. cap. 26 (April 19, 1859); but they will increase the amount of the payments proposed in the schedule already alluded to, in the hope that certified art-teachers will continue to receive some equivalent for their emoluments. The schedule appended to the minute of Feb. 9, 1865, is therefore cancelled, and a new one substituted for it.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Does Mr. Seymour Dancer really mean what he writes, or does he indulge in that pleasant figure of speech termed hyperbole, when he asserts that, if the Government will not aid him in suppressing the great dog nuisance, men will, like the Indian, have to wear crinolines to protect their legs? Poor fellows! Would not Wellington boots suit them better? Mr. Dancer's friend seems to be as mad as he; for in a walk of three miles to the Elephant and Castle he counted "at least fifty-three ownerless dogs," or at least apparently so. Why, everybody knows the student dogs as well as our good Dr. Brown, who discourses so pleasantly of "Rab and his Friends." Then there are the dogs of costermongers and gentlemen (canine) at their ease, probably and properly taking their morning walks, after their masters had gone to business. For the sake of middle-class life objects to stay at home, the public "misus" and the children during the interval which occurs between breakfast and dinner. Then there are the dogs of his own in city men so that visit to make to the not unfriendly butcher; and the interview with the greengrocer, and the dog that is to be taken out for a cold sausage or of a savoury polony in his pocket, and who is knowing. Look out for the bill! Look for the number of owners and the danger from dogs are greatly exaggerated. To read the police cases and not impress with the fact that, in the papers, one individual every street in London boasted its rabid and evil-disposed cur; and this mania for shooting dogs has spread even over to New York, band-in-hand, of course, with the hot weather; but we hardly see how things can then we. A mad-stone, in the possession of Sister Elizabeth, formerly of the Roman Catholic School in Lafayette, has come down from fifty persons bitten by mad dogs. The stone, a Yankee paper tells us gravely, "will not adhere to a person bitten, and applied to wound, sucks out all the poison."

A large Ugandan has been to London; as Dr. Ferguson, the medium, would phrase it, "in our midst." But, alas! the young enthusiast was not impressed with the capabilities and the savoy food of the country, preaching what the great Selden calls "loud, long, and damnation," as at which he had experienced from his days to those of Whitfield, and from the days of the great George Whitfield to our own. The Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, however, he did not spare at all "nae," as young ladies say, and evidently makes up better in a photograph than on a platform. His pose was dreadfully destitute of accordion, and his drapery decidedly feeble and feddy. Altogether, not certainly extremely unscriptural. To his admirers he was more than unpleasing; for, equally with the Ugandan naughty wife, he was set devoted to eternal perdition. Balls and theatres, we were told, "will take us straight to hell." Of the latter we cannot speak from experience in all known fact, at least he assured his audience that it was so to him, of a young lady present who was carried out in the middle of a ball and then being carried away straight to where the Commander conducts Don Juan to the opera. The Father in the person of Mr. Longley condemned "when new mention hell to ears polite;" on the contrary, we had a hearing does not like unpleasant topic treat; but, on the whole, Anglican is a failure and a sham. Brief statement for the defence or his calling, regarding the whole matter as a masquerade and as one that does not seem to be worth the attention (?) is about to come back to his senses; and he feels, perhaps, that the exhibition he makes of himself is a very poor one to set off the good sense of Richard Hooker, one so amusing as the Converted Clown; he is not sensible, and most certainly he is not a gentleman, and he is not in mental power, therefore, as one can get neither amusement nor profit out of him, he is—although you may call it Christianity—a bore, and a very objectionable —hardly worth seeing. I may add that there is a rumour that the Brethren of the Holy Ghost, who have combined against the revived Father in his absence, and have turned him out of his own monastery.

In St. James's Hall our Brethren set up their little Bethel at St. Martin's—before last Sunday—and the principles of a revivalist will eternally crop out, do what we will. This is the great servant question. Servants are the most important people in civilised life, and servants are dissatisfied too. Their position has not improved with the progress of the age, and of the community. A servant of all work and a Dorcastine labourer are the two worst paid of the whole community, and yet we have no lack of both, and who are to have five dollars a month and find their own clothes and pay their own washing, and who expect perhaps to consume just as they are in Hollar's etchings? It would be a happy thing for all of us if we could understand and deal with this hard subject. In every middle-class household the master is, undoubtedly, on the side of the servants, and the servant is the master her own as well. Although the former gets unjustly taunted, I believe he has reason on his side. The old gentleman who complained that the best society in the parents of the classes are no longer identical; with large and rich house-holder they are, so we have always found simply opposed, and we want something more forcible than the benevolent and ex parte twaddle talked at by James Hall to set this important matter even on the road for righting itself.

The Parliamentary gladiators are racing behind the bars of St. Stephen's, who are now preparing to start out into the political arena to prove their prowess to the electors. The best and most knowing guesses, I am assured, at the election will be made by the way they alter the relative strength of parties, although it will undoubtedly bring new men into the Commons, and will be the means of breaking up that comfortable understanding, that friendly relation, which naturally exists between "old boys" amongst the Commons. Poor Mr. Longfield is hardly allowed by Lord Palmerston to express his horror at seeing the "old boys" "jobs" which have been the cause of Macaulay stand on end, as he turned his charges against my Lord Chancellor Bacon, but Mr. Longfield is not found. Mr. Longfield stated that he and the whole Bar should soon "hang down their heads for very shame," and asserted that he should prove that certain valuable sinecures in the Irish Chancery—which, in fact, "had fallen into the unfortunate error of ignoring guilt that he might profit by the error"—had been abolished, and yet no compensation was given to the holders of them. Mr. Longfield, on the company would not be too harmonious on the sad occasion. Perhaps it is as well; it is sad that such painful topics as the Bar and Lord Chancellor Westbury should be cast upon the last days of an Administration which has really done so much for the country.

The season being virtually over, and Thursday, the 6th of July, being the death day of its present Parliament, it is not to be wondered that our actors and gentlemen are all taking breaths as fast as they can.

We seldom in this column allude to the deaths, and or joyful as the events may be, of eminent persons; but three were reported last week which demand some thought. The first is that of Dr. Livingstone's mother, on the 18th of June, aged eighty-two; the second that of Southey's brother, Dr. Southey, of Harley-street, also aged eighty-two; and the third that of a South American, Don Pedro Cardenas, who was worth more than sixteen millions sterling! Oh! if that gentleman has left a bachelor son and he should be over here next season, what a scramble and agitation would there be amongst ball-room belles!

FINE ARTS.

A NEW NATIONAL GALLERY.

At length a step, though even now a small and faltering one, has been taken towards obtaining a new National Gallery. At last, a definite security has been given that a state of things which would be deemed a disgrace by a small Italian city or a fourth-rate German principality shall be done away with. Out of a surplus of four millions, a petty vote of £20,000 is given for the purchase of a site in the rear of the present gallery, now occupied by the St. Martin's workhouse, parish offices, and Tenison's school and library; and it is calculated that £100,000 will purchase a new site and pay for the erection thereon of a new workhouse, new parochial offices and school buildings. The price of the ground secured for the National Gallery is certainly not high; but would it not have been better to have also obtained, by Act of Parliament if necessary, the adjoining site of the barracks and yard, and which surely might have been had on still more favourable terms? The plot now purchased is of awkward shape, Hemming's-row in the rear being not parallel with the frontage in Trafalgar-square; and it is of so limited an area that it will be impossible to get any fine effect from the length of the three or four galleries which it is, we understand, contemplated to erect, or from the courts proposed to be inclosed by them. Had, however, the barracks and yard been added—together affording a superficial space not half as large, we believe, as that on which the Louvre stands at Paris—galleries surrounding noble courts might have been erected of ample width, and affording those vistas which constitute almost the only impressive architectural feature of which picture-galleries are properly susceptible. The reader need not be told how wholly inadequate the present apartments are for the exhibition of the innumerable pictures and drawings the nation has acquired, by purchase, gift, or bequest, since the Angerstein Collection was bought as a nucleus for a National Gallery. Besides the collection of paintings by British masters (exclusive of the Sheepshanks gift), belonging to the National Gallery, now at South Kensington, and the portraits stowed away in a private house in Great George-street, there are numerous pictures, portraits, drawings, and other works, scattered about or hidden away in various places, which should find a place in a palace of art worthy of such a nation as this. Even if the Royal Academy were to at once vacate the portion of the building it now occupies there would probably not be space enough for the proper exhibition of half the present accumulations, to say nothing of the accessions that, with a new gallery, might be expected from fresh sources. We are glad to learn that the Royal Academicians are again considering the propriety of closing with the implied and conditional offer of ground on the Burlington House site for the erection, with their own large funds, of new buildings for the annual exhibitions and schools. But although various circumstances, and above all popular feeling, seem decidedly to favour the project of a new, enlarged, and suitable National Gallery, it is not to be denied that the present Government has, in taking the initiative, set an example of timidity which it is to be hoped will not be followed by its successor. To have ripened the plan by uniting the question of suitability of design with that of site would surely have been far better. Mr. Cowper, in the recent debate, did, it is true, in a needlessly apologetic spirit of parsimony, drop some hints of a plan of re-edification, but it was one of a most alarming description. He said, in effect, that Mr. Pennethorne's gallery, which was erected a few years since to occupy the place of Wilkins's really fine central hall and staircases, would, together with the other galleries, be of the greatest use in constructing a new building. But this arrière-pensée of "reconstruction" was so unanimously contemned and repudiated, both on artistic and economic grounds, by members of all shades of opinion on matters of taste and public economy, and who have hardly ever before been known to agree upon any proposition relating to any public work, that we cannot suppose that we shall ever hear of the Chief Commissioner's scheme again. Mr. Tite's valuable professional opinion was simply that of the whole House; and he remarked that "it was quite idle to think of adapting the present building to the purposes of a National Gallery." Nor shall we ever obtain a satisfactory picture-gallery piecemeal. What we should most sincerely deprecate if we would not have our new National Gallery another public scandal and eyesore, is any patchwork adaptation, any makeshift bit-by-bit construction, any private jobbery and favouritism. The course that ought to be pursued is, after all, simple and obvious. We know from our experience at the International building and at the South Kensington Museum the dimensions and mode of lighting fitted to secure to a picture-gallery stateliness of aspect, room for the thousands who visit our National Gallery in the holidays, and the proper exhibition of the pictures. The gallery should of course be fireproof, which the present rooms are not; and this would allow of it being lighted by gas and visited by those who can seldom or never visit it in the daytime. Sufficient wall-space should be allowed not only for the present collections, but also for future gifts and purchases, and the galleries should be constructed to admit of being continued in a straight line over the site of the barracks, when it may be necessary to secure that. The galleries behind might be built first, but the present structure must be entirely rebuilt; and, in order to ensure artistic unity, the plans and design for the whole obtained at the outset by public competition, or otherwise, and laid before Parliament. As for the style that should be chosen for the design, it is perfectly obvious that it must be Classical, or, at all events, Classico-Italian. We are not partisans of either style, or, indeed, of any style of architecture; but only one or the other of these is admissible unless the whole of the surrounding buildings—St. Martin's Church, the Nelson Column, the terraces, and the rest—were demolished and reconstructed to match. Not the most uncompromising of Gothicists could so far ignore the paramount artistic influences of locality and entourage as seriously to propose to erect in Trafalgar-square anything so utterly discordant as a Gothic building. No; our new National Gallery must be a chaste and beautiful temple, or a noble and stately palace of the arts. And we ought, certainly, to be content with no design for the façade less fine than the southern face of the Munich Pinakothek or the eastern end of the Louvre. But, apart from the question of locality, we should strongly oppose the adoption of Gothic under any circumstances for a picture-gallery; and there can be little doubt that a healthy instinct has caused the style to be avoided in the construction of all the principal picture-galleries of Europe. It is not, however, on association merely, or because we might claim the Greek style as the highest expression of art in architecture, and therefore most appropriate as a shrine for art, that we found our chief objection to Gothic, but rather on the belief that, practically, it is entirely unfitted for the purpose. A picture-gallery is necessarily a simple oblong box, lighted from above; consequently, it does not admit, either within or without, the grander features of Gothic, but only the more petty or pretty details. Externally, there could be no spire, at least with any meaning; no picturesque gables and skyline growing naturally out of the pointed roofs, no lower aisle, no great division and irregularity of plan, no oriels, or none that, like the rest of the fenestration, would not be shams as obviously as, or more so than, in the rival styles. Internally, the pointed arch could scarcely be anywhere introduced, nor, as we think, the sloping roof, nor aisles, nor pillars, unless in the way, whilst heavy woodwork and carvings would be highly injurious to the effect of the pictures.

Lord Garvagh's "Holy Family," by Raphael, a small but good example of the painter's Roman manner, has been purchased for the National Gallery for £9000, not a high price compared with the sums quite inferior old masters fetch just now, especially on the Continent, and at the recent sales in Paris in particular.

The Crystal Palace Picture-Gallery has just reopened, with a collection of pictures so greatly in advance of the collections of preceding years that we shall take the earliest opportunity of noticing it more in detail than on former occasions.

At a Waterloo festival, held at Brunswick on the 18th ult., 900 veterans who claimed to have been in the great fight were present.

A Bâle letter to the Courrier du Bas Rhin states that ascents by members of the Alpine Club are being effected in all directions, owing to the magnificent weather which has lately prevailed. On the 9th ult. a tourist, of the section of St. Gall, climbed the Ringelkopf, the highest peak in that canton, about 11,000 ft., and which has never been before trodden by human foot.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Principles of Education. By the Author of "Amy Herbert." (Longmans.) These two little volumes contain a number of essay-like discourses upon law, obedience, reverence, truth, justice, selfishness, pride, vanity, purity, love, friendship, religion, governesses, and similar subjects which are more or less intimately connected with education. The principles are said to be "drawn from nature and revelation," that is, one is at liberty to suppose, from experience of humanity and from the doctrines of the New Testament. The result is a creditable book upon "female education in the upper classes;" there may appear to be a certain heaping up of words occasionally to little purpose, but much sound sense is intermingled therewith.

Life of Abraham Lincoln. Compiled by G. W. Bacon. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) A very brief but succinct biography of the late President of the United States of America. It is probable that in days to come the grand simplicity, unflinching determination, unalterable magnanimity, and universal kindliness which distinguished Abraham Lincoln will, even more than the recollection of his tragic death, render his name scarcely less dear to Americans and less honoured amongst all nations than that of George Washington; and it is well that all men should have within easy reach the means of making themselves acquainted with the principal events of "Honest Abe's" life and administration, from the days preceding his "rail-splitting" to the fatal evening when he went, against his inclination, to Ford's Theatre, "lest," in his own kindly words, "the people should be disappointed." Mr. Bacon's book will fulfil this purpose; it is not on a large scale, "but 't will serve," and its bulk is increased by a collection of all manner of lamentations upon Mr. Lincoln's assassination from all manner of newspapers, and by a copy of the Constitution of the United States, ignorance of the provisions of which was freely exhibited in the angry discussions consequent upon the division of opinion in this country during the late War of Secession.

Impressions of Life. By Lord Eustace Cecil. (Hurst and Blackett.) A reprint of nine articles contributed to the St. James's Medley. Of nine, five are entitled, respectively, "Prison Life in Paris," "After Dark in New York," "The Dens of London;" "Newgate, Past and Present;" and "French Convict Life;" whence it would seem that crime, criminals, and the like have considerable charms for Lord Eustace Cecil. It has been said that "poverty has in it nothing harder than the making people food for fun;" and perhaps the criminal population feel nothing so keenly as being visited in their haunts by the aristocracy and the police together—the former in search of fun, the latter of half-crowns. And it is a question whether there is not something repulsive in the idea of regarding vicious fellow-creatures as a sight at which you may smoke a cigar and enjoy yourself, and of which you may afterwards write a more or less amusing account. There seems to be something treacherous in going under the protection of the police whither you would not go alone, and then describing the wretches you see and their manners and customs. By all means portray, and even satirise, those who thrust themselves into notice; but to search out and discourse upon—merely for the sake of satisfying morbid curiosity—ladies and gentlemen who have been, or are soon likely to be, "in trouble," and who, were it not for your escort, would consider you their lawful prey, has the appearance of an unwarrantable liberty. Information acquired under such circumstances must strike the criminals as having been obtained by taking a mean advantage. However, that is the manner in which Lord Eustace received some of his "impressions of life;" and the rest were left upon him by "A Fortnight in Hayti," "A Ride in Barbary," "Schools in Eastern London," and a consideration of "The Future Prospects of Younger Sons." Lord Eustace is an advocate for sinking pride and going into the linendrapery or other profitable line. The book is remarkable neither for depth, nor originality, nor literary skill, nor sparkle of wit, nor flow of humour; but it is unpretentious and readable.

Wit and Wisdom from West Africa. Compiled by Richard F. Burton. (Tinsley.) A collection of "proverbial philosophy, idioms, enigmas, and laconisms," in the Wolof, Kanuri, Oji, Ga or Accra, Yoruba, Efik or old Calabar, and Mpangwe (Fan) tongues. There is nothing so dreary as to read a countless string of proverbs; but the book will, no doubt, be found interesting by those who like to have by them works into which they can peep from time to time. It is a little amusing to find the author saying (p. 27) that he does not attach "high importance to aphorisms and apothegms;" and then (p. 113) appending to the proverb, "when a slave becomes a free man, he will drink rain-water," the following note: "N.B. From laziness; because other water must be fetched from a distance. I commend this truly African proverb, showing that the emancipado is incapable of moderation in the use of his liberty, to the consideration of all real philanthropists. It is easy to see that, if a man will not labour even for his own wants, they do him a service who compel him to work." One would think from this that Captain Burton does attach high importance when it suits him to what he otherwise affects to despise. It may appear waste of time to argue that, if the proverb be "truly African," it must have been uttered by an African, and, unless Captain Burton would maintain that all Africans are born in a state of servitude, testifies to the evil effects of enslavement; but, if Captain Burton will use proverbs as weighty arguments, let him ponder these words—"wise men make proverbs and fools use them."

The Land of the Gospel. By Edmund de Pressensé. (Jackson, Walford, and Hodder.) From the author's name, one would presume that this work in English is a translation. If it be, it seems to be extremely well done, and nothing would have been lost, though something might have been gained, by mentioning, either upon the titlepage or elsewhere, that M. de Pressensé had met with a competent interpreter. The personal notes are prefaced by "a rapid sketch of the pilgrimages to the Holy Land, and a brief enumeration of the great geographical divisions of Palestine." The style is engaging; a spirit of genuine enthusiasm and piety pervades the greater part of the book; and the whole is to be recommended to those who have a couple of hours to spare—for the volume is small—and love to read about the "glorious East."

Microscopic Fungi. By M. C. Cook. (Robert Hardwicke.) The botanical student will, no doubt, give a hearty welcome to this little work, and he who understands the language of botany will be glad to know that the "Appendix will be found to contain all the species in the hypodermial section of coniomycetal fungi yet discovered in our islands, together with groups of epiphytal fungi belonging to other divisions;" whilst he who understands not will have an opportunity of puzzling out what must be "Hebrew Greek" to him. The volume is enriched by nearly three hundred beautifully-coloured figures by J. E. Sowerby.

Under the Waves; or, the Hermit-crab in Society. By Annie E. Ridley. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) An elegant little book, written with the kind intention (likely to be realised) of amusing young readers "by presenting some of the most curious facts in the history of a few of the most common marine animals, in as simple a form as possible." The writer has an arrière pensée, and hopes, not unjustifiably, that amusement derived from this unambitious attempt may result in creating so great an interest in the subject as to lead those who have been amused to embrace the delightful study of natural history.

Manual of the Turkish Bath. From the Writings of Mr. Urquhart. Edited by Sir John Fife, M.D., F.R.C.S. (John Churchill and Sons.) The hot-air bath, or Turkish bath, or Hammâm (as it is called in Jermyn-street), would appear from this book to be the long-desired panacea: it cures everything, from rheumatism to Bright's disease and hydrophobia. Whether it sets dislocated and broken bones is not predicated; but it is supposed to produce sanity, politeness, and sobriety. There are those who will declare that they are better when they do not than when they do take the Turkish bath; that they are not anxious to get rid of all their secretions, as they are of opinion that some are good for them; that they lose as much of their epidermis by friction of glove or towel after "the tub" as they feel comfortable without; that they perspire as much as nature seems to need, by means of exercise without any sort of baking; that they have observed in habitual takers of the Turkish bath a shortness of temper and an impatience of antagonism which do not bear witness to the serenity of mind said to be consequent upon frequent use of the Hammâm; and that Hammâmites, though they should not feel the cold after the process they go through, are by no means free in the winter from the appearance of chilliness if a blueness of the nose be any indication. Still, when Sir John Fife says of the Turkish bath, "I am not afraid to stake my professional character by declaring my belief in its efficiency," it deserves as a curative means very careful and respectful consideration.

Shooting Simplified. By James Dalziel Dougall. (Robert Hardwicke.) This is, for the most part but a republication of a very useful little work, written by one who, as gun-maker and gun-user, as smith and sportsman, should speak with authority on the subject he has chosen. The 12th of August is at hand, and it is time for the "young idea" to learn how to "shoot," and Mr. Dougall will give him some valuable hints. The chapter on breech-loaders, which the author thinks will in time quite supersede muzzle-loaders, is new, and deserves attention.

Once and Again. By the Author of "Cousin Stella," &c. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) The author closes the third (and last) volume with the modest quotation, "And if I have done well, and as is fitting the story, it is that which I desired; but if slenderly and meanly, it is that which I could attain to." That which has been attained to is charming; the writing is excellent; many of the scenes and characters are exquisite; and the whole is to be much commended. The story opens in Paris, and the atmosphere throughout is French, but not of the unwholesome kind.

Too Good for Him. By Florence Marryatt. (Richard Bentley.) This three-volume novel is not "too good for him," whoever "he" may be. Some parts of it are what Lord Reckless would have called "doosid affectin';" but, as a whole, it is by no means remarkable for delicacy, style, plot, or correct English. In fact, it teems with nearly every possible grammatical blunder—and that of itself would be enough to mar a much more powerful story. The author shows some of the gifts of a story-teller (in a good sense); but there is an absence of all taste in the manner in which the parts are put together. One is shocked by the sudden wrench with which one is hurried from a bit of religion to a bit of profligacy and back again; and the ignorance displayed is often deplorable. Words are used in senses which Mrs. Malaprop herself would never have attributed to them; a man with fifteen hundred a year (tied up, certainly) is represented as having no way, in these days of insurance offices, &c., of keeping out of the Queen's Bench when he owes two thousand pounds; and the author seems to be under the impression that if your friend gets you to put your name to a bill you will not be liable supposing you have taken the precaution to obtain your friend's I O U for the amount.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Lady Jervis, of Bailbrook Lodge, Batheaston, Somerset, was proved in London by W. Long, Esq., of the city of Bath; and P. C. Sheppard, Esq., of Hampton Manor House, Bath, the executors and trustees. The personalty was sworn under £5000. Her Ladyship was the granddaughter of the sixth Earl of Cavan. Her father, Captain Ricketts, R.N., assumed the name of Jervis, the family name of his uncle, the gallant Admiral Lord Jervis, first Viscount and Earl St. Vincent, and died without male issue. Lady Jervis was twice married—first to Osborne Markham, Esq., by whom she had a daughter (her only child); and, secondly, to Lieutenant-Colonel Sir William Cockburn, Bart., but without issue; and since his death her Ladyship has taken the name of Jervis. She died, on February 26 last, at the age of seventy, having executed her will on Jan. 19, 1865, and a codicil on Feb. 11. Her Ladyship has bequeathed to her sister, Mrs. Palmer, a policy on her life for £2000, with bonuses, and after her decease the same is to be divided between her four nieces, with contingent interest to her nephew in the event of two of her nieces not marrying. She has also bequeathed to her daughter, Martha, wife of the Rev. W. H. Pearson, M.A., a life interest in the residue of her property; and after her decease to her granddaughter, Honora Mary Pearson. All legacies to be paid free of legacy duty.

The will of Sir William Wake, Bart., of Courteen Hall, Northampton, was proved in the London court, on the 21st of June. The executors nominated are his brothers, Drury Wake, Esq., and Captain C. Wake, R.N., together with the Rev. M. F. Thursby, B.A., Rector of Abington. They are also appointed guardians to his seven children (four sons and three daughters), who are in their minority. He is succeeded by his eldest son, now Sir Hereward Wake, Bart., who is in his fourteenth year. The testator died on the 13th of April last, at the age of forty-two, on board his yacht, having only enjoyed the title since Feb. 23, 1864. He executed his will March 14, 1864, and a codicil thereto Jan. 12, 1865. By virtue of a power vested in him, he has charged the family estates in the counties of Essex and Northampton with the sum of £10,000 for younger children, and leaves to his wife, Lady Wake, the absolute use of all his disposable real and personal estate and effects. The personalty was sworn under £7000.

To the abstract of the will of the Marchioness of Londonderry, given last week, should be added the bequest of £400 a year to Mr. Clayton, the trustee and sole acting executor, for his management of the property, which is likely to extend over a lengthened period.

The will of Major-General Abraham Henry Gordon, of Westbourne-terrace, Hyde Park, was proved, in the London court, by his sister, Miss Amelia Gordon, the sole executrix. He directs his house and property at Everton to be sold, and, with all other moneys, to be equally divided between his brother, Major Frederick Gordon, his sister, Amelia Gordon, and his niece, Harriet, the daughter of his late brother, Augustus Gordon. There are specific bequests to a nephew and to Colonel Henry Lawford.

The will of Francis Bullivant, of Eastcheap, London, tea merchant, was proved in the principal registry, under £70,000 personalty. The executors appointed are Edward Chambers Nicholson, of Herne-hill; John Nicholson, of Clapham-common; and Richard Lowcock, of Laurence Pountney-lane, to each of whom he leaves a legacy of £500. The will is stated to have been signed by him while lying on his back in bed, at Guy's Hospital, suffering from a compound fracture of the left leg. The signature is tremulous. The will is dated April 21, and he died on the 23rd. The attesting witnesses are Fred. Jas. Chester, solicitor, Newington Butts, and his clerk, L. J. Dunham. He bequeaths to each of the children of his late brother, Thomas Bullivant, a legacy of £2500 on attaining the age of twenty-one. To his brother John an annuity of £100. To his sister Fanny Bullivant a legacy of £4000. To several of his cousins £500 each, and a like sum to a godson. To his clerks, Gordon and Lampart, each £250; and to his porter (James) and carman (Saunders) each nineteen guineas. All legacies to be free of duty. The residue he bequeaths to his sister Ann Bullivant for her own absolute use and benefit.

The claim of the present Marquis of Lansdowne to the earldom of Kerry, which was adjourned for further evidence, was again heard before the Committee for Privileges of the House of Lords on Tuesday, Serjeant Burke appearing for the petitioner, when the claim was decided in favour of the Marquis.

Dr. Watson, of Derby, has presented to the National Life-boat Institution the cost of an additional life-boat for Whitby. The gift had been previously promised to the institution by Dr. Watson's sister, Miss Watson; but that lady having died somewhat suddenly, he immediately put himself in communication with the society, with the view of carrying out her benevolent wishes. The life-boat had its harbour trial a few days since in the Regent's Canal Dock, Limehouse, when the self-righting of the boat and self-ejecting water from its deck were found perfectly satisfactory. The life-boat was forwarded to its station on Thursday.

The following paragraph appears in the minutes of the House of Lords on Monday:—"Earl of Breadalbane and Holland, &c.—Petition of John Campbell, of Fort William, in the county of Inverness, Esq., and of Donald Campbell, of Port Glasgow, in the county of Renfrew, Esq., late Lieutenant in her Majesty's 57th Regiment, to her Majesty, praying that her Majesty will be graciously pleased to give such directions as her Majesty shall think proper for declaring and establishing the right of the petitioner John Campbell to the honours and dignities of Earl of Breadalbane and Holland, Viscount Tay and Paintland, Baron Glenorchy Benederaloch, Ormelie, and Weick, and to establish and declare the same accordingly; and, upon the same being so established and declared, to allow the other petitioner, Donald Campbell, to take and use the said titles, honours, and dignities during the lifetime of the petitioner John Campbell, who is willing to decline the same; together with her Majesty's reference thereof to this House: presented (by command), and referred to the Committee for Privileges to consider and report."

A return has been issued of all objects coming under the denomination of treasure-trove which have been claimed by the solicitor of the Treasury on behalf of the Crown, between March 1, 1864, and May 10, 1865, setting forth the date of such claim, description of treasure, estimated value, and how disposed of. The findings were five in number. The first, on May 26, 1864, was a gold coin at Long Crendon, Bucks, valued at £3. This was retained by the British Museum on payment of £3, and £2 paid to the farmer on whose ground the coin was found. On July 5 sixty-two gold coins were found in an earthen jar in a field at Stockerston, Leicestershire; the value was £58 4s. 1d. Five of these coins were granted to the lord of the manor on payment of their value (£4 14s. 5d.); ten coins presented to the Leicester Town museum. The value of the coins was paid to the finders. On Aug. 17, 6000 silver pennies, temp. Henry III., were found at Eccles, near Manchester. The value is said to be unknown. The coins were delivered to the Duchy of Lancaster, the duchy being entitled thereto under grants in Royal charters. On Sept. 1, 760 silver coins were found at Holwell, near Newark, Notts. These, which are valued at £15 3s. 1d., are still undisposed of. On Dec. 31 five pieces of gold were found at Wimborne, Dorset. These, valued at £16 17s., have been retained by the British Museum, on payment of £16 17s. to the finders.

THE VOLUNTEER SHAM FIGHT IN HOLYROOD PARK, EDINBURGH, ON SATURDAY LAST: THE MID-LOTHIAN RIFLE CORPS STORMING ST. ANTHONY'S CHAPEL.

LAST Saturday afternoon a grand review took place in Holyrood Park, of the volunteers of the Lothians, Stirlingshire, and Fife, followed by a great sham fight on the adjoining hills, in which the whole force (about 6000 in number) took part. The volunteers were reviewed by Colonel Erskine, her Majesty's Inspector, and by Colonel H. Jones and Colonel Rowsey, Assistant Inspectors. There were also present Major-General Walker, commanding in Scotland; Colonel Egerton, Assistant Adjutant-General; Major H. D. Page, Aide-de-Camp; Colonel Kinloch, and other military and volunteer officers. The muster took place at two o'clock in the park, situated behind the palace. The force was composed of three troops of the Fife Mounted Volunteers, under the command of the Earl of Rosslyn, and four brigades of infantry. The first brigade consisted of the Mid-Lothian and City of Edinburgh Rifles, and was commanded by Sir J. Gardiner Baird; the second, of the Edinburgh Rifle Brigade and East Lothian Rifles, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Davidson; the third brigade was composed of the Stirlingshire and West Lothian Volunteers, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Dundas; and the fourth brigade consisted of the Mid-Lothian and Fifeshire Rifles, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Thomas Erskine. The review, which was on a larger scale than any volunteer demonstration which had taken place in Edinburgh since the memorable review of 22,000 Scotch volunteers by the Queen on the 7th of August, 1860, excited great interest in the counties from which the volunteers were drawn, and in nearly all the towns there was a holiday, whole or partial, to enable the various regiments to make a good turn-out. The hills which overlook the park were occupied by many thousands of spectators. The volunteers, having taken up their alignments opposite the saluting-flag, marched past the reviewing officer in succession, preceded by the Fife cavalry. The brigades having severally marched past and saluted, the force was divided into two parties, one of which, consisting of the 1st and 2nd brigades, was posted in the valley between Salisbury Crags and Arthur's Seat, commonly called the Hunter's Bog; and the other, consisting of the 3rd and 4th brigades, with the cavalry, were to be the assailants of the position. The valley is about 800 yards from end to end, and rises at the southern extremity; while on the right the ground slopes upwards to the top of the crags, which are precipitous on the other side; and on the left the ground is rocky, precipitous, and broken. The heights of St. Anthony's Chapel, on the left, were taken by a brilliant assault of the Mid-Lothian Rifles. This incident is the subject of our Illustration, from a sketch by Mr. P. Dall. From this point the assailants harassed the right of the defending force; while, on the opposite bank, skirmishers were sent out to attack the left. The attacking party pressed up the valley, while the defending force retreated upwards. In this way the conflict was waged for above an hour; and on both sides, notwithstanding the rain, the mimic fight was kept up with great spirit and vigour. At length, the defending force, which had been yielding the ground inch by inch, took new courage as they were pressed back on the higher ground and opened a grand attack upon the assailing force, who now yielded ground more rapidly than they had gained it, and were finally driven to the bottom of the valley and back to the parade-ground, making, however, a most orderly and deliberate retreat. In the course of the battle a charge was made by the Fife cavalry upon the defending force, which formed squares to resist, each square pouring in a volley of musketry as the gallant horsemen pranced up the valley. They were met at the top by the second battalion of the Edinburgh Rifles and turned, and in their retreat they were again exposed to a terrific fusilade. Another charge was then made near the close of the affair upon one of the Edinburgh battalions, which had come down the Queen's Drive to take the now defeated force in flank. The movements were all gone through with great spirit and in admirable order, the skirmishing and forming of line, column, and square being admirably performed, and the volley fire being splendidly delivered. After the battalions had returned to the parade-ground, Colonel Erskine expressed his satisfaction at reviewing the fine body of men assembled on the ground. He had every reason to be pleased with the manner in which the brigades and battalions had been handled, the precision with which all the manœuvres had been executed, and the general steadiness shown by the men under arms.

ENCAMPMENT OF THE 3RD WESTMORLAND VOLUNTEERS IN THE OLD COURTYARD OF KENDAL CASTLE.—SEE PAGE 642.

REVIEW OF THE VOLUNTEER CORPS OF KENT, BY THE LORD LIEUTENANT OF THE COUNTY, ON CHATHAM LINES.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

VOLUNTEER ENCAMPMENT AT KENDAL CASTLE.

The volunteer encampment at Kendal, of which we give an Illustration, is a model in some of its arrangements, and deserves the attention of commanding officers elsewhere. It has been formed by the 3rd Westmorland Rifles, a corps of two companies only; yet the attendance, during its fourteen days' establishment, has averaged about 110 men each night, varying from 105 to 125 of all ranks. This corps is composed almost wholly of working men, who cannot afford to neglect their daily occupations; and every evening, therefore, on the conclusion of their ordinary labours, they enter the camp, use the lavatory, put on their uniforms, and then either shoot in class, or drill, or practise tent-pitching and tent-striking, with other military operations. At nine o'clock rations are served gratuitously—consisting of 2 oz. of cheese, bread, and a pint of ale or a pint of coffee; the latter being preferred by more than half the men. After supper, the camp fire is kindled, and the music of the band and songs keep up the animation of the scene. At ten o'clock guard is mounted, consisting of one of the officers (of whom there are always four in the camp), with a sergeant, corporal, and nine privates. The guard is regularly relieved up to four o'clock in the morning. After mounting guard half an hour is allowed till gun-fire, when all retire to their tents. At eleven o'clock the lights are put out. At five in the morning, the gun fires, followed by the bugle; at half-past five all parade, and before six o'clock nearly every man has left the camp for his daily work. Only a very few remain to breakfast. The utmost order, sociability, and attention to duty have prevailed, and the men have acquired a soldierly promptitude and precision not easily attainable without such an organisation as the camp affords. The site of the camp is in the castle-yard, surrounded by the old ruined dwellings of the Parr family, where Catherine, the surviving Queen of Henry VIII., was born. It stands on a lofty, round hill, immediately above the town of Kendal, and the situation has proved healthy, and in every respect convenient. The colour-sergeant of the corps has taken photographs of the camp, from one of which our Engraving is made, representing portions of the tents and the ruins. The avenues between the tents are distinguished by proper names. One of them, "Queen's Parade," so called either after Queen Victoria or her predecessor, Queen Catharine Parr. "Upton-street" is named after Lieutenant-General George Upton, C.B. (Lord Templetown), now commanding the western military division of the kingdom at Plymouth, but who is the Honorary Colonel of the 1st Westmorland Battalion of Volunteers, of which the Kendal corps forms a part.

REVIEW OF THE KENTISH VOLUNTEERS AT CHATHAM.

On Friday week the different volunteer corps of the county of Kent assembled on Chatham Lines, having on the two previous days held their annual meeting for prize rifle-shooting at the Government ranges, Milton-next-Gravesend. The prizes were distributed at Chatham by Viscount Sidney, the Lord Lieutenant of the county, on behalf of the County Rifle Association. His Lordship congratulated them upon their good shooting, as well as upon the increased number of competitors, and hoped that some of them would also be able to win prizes at the meeting of the National Association at Wimbledon. The whole force, mustering 4120, was formed into ten battalions, two being of garrison artillery, the rest of rifle volunteers. While the ceremony of distributing the prizes was going on, a brigade of regular troops came on to the ground, and took post in a second line to the right of the volunteers. This brigade, which amounted to 3000 men, was composed of a field battery of the 9th Brigade Royal Artillery, with their Armstrong guns and ammunition waggons, twelve companies of the Royal Engineers, the Chatham division of the Royal Marine Light Infantry, and the dépôts of regiments of the Line, which comprised the 2nd Battalion 2nd Queen's Royals, 1st and 2nd Battalions 4th King's Own, 1st and 2nd Battalions 10th Foot, 1st and 2nd Battalions 12th (East Suffolk), 1st and 2nd Battalions 15th (York, East Riding), 1st and 2nd Battalions 19th Foot, 1st and 2nd Battalions 20th (East Devonshire), 29th Regiment, 35th (Royal Sussex), 60th, 65th, 76th, 80th, 94th, and 102nd Royal Madras Fusiliers. The whole force of regulars was under the command of Major-General Sir Robert Walpole, K.C.B. The General and the Lord Lieutenant having taken post at the saluting-base, the defile commenced. After the brigade of regulars had passed came the volunteers, headed by the garrison artillery; sixty or seventy companies went by, presenting a most soldier-like appearance. A series of movements, representing those of a field day, was then commenced, which seemed to suppose an enemy advancing from Chatham on to the great lines by the south-western slope of the hill. The volunteers were drawn up in line of contiguous quarter-distance columns facing the west, and the regular troops in the same formation in the rear of the right of the line, with the artillery on their right. As soon as the enemy was supposed to show the head of his columns above the crest of the slope to march on o the plateau forming the lines, a battalion of volunteers was thrown forward to cover the front and engage his attention while the necessary preparations were being made to receive him. Advancing at the double, they extended in very creditable style, while another battalion advanced in support. On the bugle sounding to commence the action, the skirmishers promptly opened a well-sustained fire, all the while advancing to close with the enemy. Meantime the line of battalion columns in the rear advanced in direct échelon from the left at deploying distance. While this movement was going on the enemy's cavalry were supposed to have gained the plateau and to be charging skirmishers and main body alike. The skirmishers doubled in with creditable alacrity and formed company squares, the battalions quickly following their example. A file fire for a few minutes, commenced from the right of faces, was supposed to check this attack, and volleys from the kneeling ranks to complete the enemy's discomfiture; for the firing ceased, and a general advance of skirmishers, échelon and reserve, took place. A change of front to the right was now effected to meet a corresponding movement of the enemy. The skirmishers changed front, left thrown forward on the right file, and the échelon, wheeling to the right, moved up into the new alignment on the right battalion, and deployed into line. The skirmishers were now recalled, and retired to the rear of the line at racing speed. No sooner was the front clear than the line opened file fire from the right of companies, the artillery, now on their left, going into action with a vigour that soon hid the field in smoke. A general advance of the line then took place. Though more than half a mile in length, the dressing left little to be desired, the slight inaccuracies here and there observable being more attributable to the undulations of the ground than to any want of cohesion in the volunteers. When half way down the lines towards the Medway, a halt took place, and a tremendous file fire was opened. The regulars took no part in the action, except to move with beautiful precision in line of battalion columns, conforming to the movements of the volunteers, as a reserve. Again the "cease fire" was sounded, battalion columns were formed, and a change of front to the left on a central battalion took place. When in the new alignment, in which the brigades faced, as in their original formation, to the west, another échelon movement was made. The battalions advanced in direct échelon at deploying distance from the left of the line, and when in position all deployed into line. The artillery retained its position on the left of the volunteer line, and covered the action in the new alignment. The manœuvres were brought to a close with the troops in this formation. After re-forming columns, the officers commanding battalions were assembled, and Major-General Walpole briefly addressed them, congratulating them on the efficiency of the troops under their command.

THE FARM.

"The weather still continues dry, hot, and scorching," is a Mark Lane Circular comment which applies too truly to the country generally. Those who have delayed their hay-cutting, in the hope of rain, have been obliged to set to work in earnest, and too often with only a very light crop at last. In some parts of the Midlands there has not been a drop since June 2, the period of that universal wet day and night which was such a refreshing boon all over England, and gave the Oaks to the thin-soled Regalia instead of Wild Agnes.

The Messrs. Cruickshank have published their annual shorthorn catalogue, which contains 213 cows and heifers, along with Forth, Champion of England, and ten other bulls. The catalogue of Mr. Charles Howard's Biddenham herd, which is headed by Grand Duke 5th by Grand Duke 3rd, from Grand Duchess 5th (one of the 900-guinea cows, so to speak, at the Hegan sale) contains twenty-six females and seven males. Of these fourteen are of the Nell Gwynne tribe, seven of the Lady Spencer, eight of the Charmer, two of the Graceful by Loyalist (10,479), and one of the Sonsie. Mr. Carr announces a sale of fifty head of shorthorns, bred by Colonel Pennant, on the 28th of July, at Wicken Hall, Northamptonshire. They are by very eminent sires—Earl of Dublin, Marmaduke, Second Duke of Thorndale, Duke of Geneva, Second Grand Duke, &c., and several Booth bulls.

Mr. Randell, who is a breeder of "Shrops" and not of West Country downs, points out in a contemporary that, judging from what he saw of the latter at the Hereford Show, "the coarseness which fifteen years ago characterised this otherwise valuable breed of sheep has disappeared, and that the ewes (more especially the smaller pens), and at least one of the yearling rams shown by Mr. Rawlence, combined in a greater degree than any other sheep shown at Hereford great weight with good form and extraordinary quality of flesh." This remark only confirms what was said by nearly all the long and short wool flockmasters at the Royal Battersea Show, that for symmetry and quality the Bulbridge winning pen of theaves could hardly be matched in the yard.

The Oxford downs were very good at the Oxford and Banbury Agricultural Show, and Mr. Wallis's first-prize ram at Hereford was considered the best in the two classes, which were commended en masse. In the shearling ewe class the Blenheim flock was first, and Mr. Gillett's shearling Cotswold ram repeated his Hereford honours. Mr. Hewer had the best boar on the ground, and Mr. Garne's Duke of Towneley, who was picked up for 55 gs. as a weakly calf at the Towneley sale, beat every horned beast in the yard, and took two premiums and two silver cups. The Norfolk Society had (as usual) a wretchedly-arranged catalogue and a successful show at Norwich. Lady Pigot's first-prize cow was a purchase from Towneley; and Lord Walsingham was very successful with shorthorn bulls, and vanquished her Ladyship in the yearling heifer class. In the Norfolk and Suffolk classes Lord Sondes and Sir. W. Jones were, as usual, in front. In Southdown rams nothing, of course, could touch Lord Walsingham's flock; and in long-woolled rams of any age, Mr. Thomas Brown's shearling beat his formidable rival, Mr. Hugh Aylmer's old ram, for the Corporation Challenge Cup. The horse classes were strong; old Chester Emperor was a first-prize winner again, and so were a cart-mare and cart-filly, also belonging to Mr. Badham; and Captain Barlow's Ace of Clubs, by Stockwell, was the blood sire of the day. Mr. Sexton showed the best Norfolk cob "not under 13½ nor above 14½ hands," and won several pig prizes along with Mr. Stearn; but in small whites Mr. Hugh Aylmer was quite A 1.

We have happily heard the last of the eternal rabbit case of "Blades v. Higgs," as the House of Lords has decided, confirming the judgment of the Exchequer Chamber, that the property in animals wild in their nature, like rabbits, is in the person on whose land they may happen to be when reduced into possession. In this case ninety of the Marquis of Exeter's rabbits had been taken by poachers, and were seized by the keepers at the Stamford station when they were on the point of being sent off to a purchaser. Mr. Justice Willes ruled at the time that a person who killed wild animals, such as rabbits, was only liable as a trespasser under the game laws, and hence this protracted appeal.

The question was raised before the Queen's Bench in banco, last week, as to whether a person employed by a dealer to sell horses or cattle has authority to give a warranty. Mr. Justice Blackburn cited "Brady v. Todd," in which the Common Pleas had decided that the servant of a private owner intrusted to sell and deliver a horse on a particular occasion is not by law authorised to bind his master by a warranty. That case seemed to apply here; and it would be very inconvenient if, in such cases, the servant had authority to bind his master by a warranty. The Lord Chief Justice thought it might be still more inconvenient that the owner of a horse should be able to sell it by a servant not authorised to say if it was sound or unsound. The authorities, however, appeared to qualify the doctrine formerly laid down on the subject so far as to bind the Court until they were reversed in a Court of Error. Those later authorities appeared to apply here, and to preclude the plaintiff from recovering on an implied warranty, as the Islington salesman (who sold him the cows said to be diseased) was only his agent on the particular occasion, and therefore the present application must be refused; but then there would be leave to appeal, in order to carry the case, if desired, into a Court of Error.

The Mechi testimonial, the object of which is to purchase the Tiptree Hall estate and present it to the Alderman, proceeds steadily. About £2000 was subscribed at the first meeting of the committee, and since then several subscriptions, varying from a hundred guineas to a guinea, have been received. It is a graceful tribute of respect to one who has done so much towards stirring up farm science, and ose name will be for ever linked with the Agricultural Benevolent Institution, which owes its origin and early success entirely to his large-hearted energies. It is a movement in which foreign agriculturalists, and especially those who have spent many a pleasant and instructive hour at Tiptree Hall in old days, will, we have no doubt, bear their part. The office for subscriptions is at 55, Charing-cross, W.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

5th Dragoon Guards: Cornet R. J. Sankey to be Lieutenant; T. Leishman to be Cornet. 6th: H. M'Calmont to be Cornet.

4th Hussars: I. Burnley to be Cornet. 11th: F. Shuttleworth to be Cornet. 18th: Ensign R. G. Kennedy to be Cornet.

9th Lancers: Cornet H. M'Calmont to be Cornet. 12th: Cornet W. G. Middleton to be Cornet. 16th: Lieut. A. A. Wilkie to be Captain; Cornet J. D. Barker to be Lieutenant; F. B. Wardroper to be Cornet.

Royal Artillery: Vet. Surg. of the First Class J. G. Phillips to be Veterinary Surgeon.

Coldstream Guards: Lieut.-Col. J. S. H. Farrer to be Captain and Lieutenant-Colonel.

5th Foot: G. W. Hargreave to be Ensign. 22nd: Capt. G. F. Walker to be Major; Lieut. R. N. C. Foll to be Captain; Ensign A. Stuart to be Lieutenant; J. A. Clarke to be Ensign. 31st: F. H. Yates to be Ensign. 37th: Ensign F. Flowers to be Lieutenant; W. B. Moore to be Ensign. 44th: Ensign W. H. Overton to be Lieutenant; J. Chappell to be Ensign. 47th: Ensign W. H. Larken to be Lieutenant; D. P. Turner to be Ensign. 55th: Ensign J. M. Jackson to be Ensign. 59th: Esign. C. A. L. A. French to be Lieutenant; W. P. Lawlor to be Ensign. 63rd: D. Broughton to be Ensign. 69th: Cadet W. G. Hunter to be Ensign. 71st: Lieut. E. C. Davidson to be Lieutenant. 73rd: Ensign H. Gunter to be Lieutenant; J. E. Yonge to be Ensign. 75th: Capt. T. Milles to be Major; Lieut. H. B. Gledstanes to be Captain; Ensign E. O. Forsyth to be Lieutenant. 80th: Lieut. F. B. N. Craufurd to be Captain. 93rd: Ensign A. Kerr to be Ensign. 105th: Cadet L. G. Hay to be Ensign. 107th: Ensign J. Abercrombie to be Ensign.

3rd West India Regiment: P. Edgcumbe to be Ensign.

Commissariat Department.—Deputy Com.-Gen. H. S. H. Jones, C.B., to be Commissary-General; Deputy Assist. Com.-Gen. J. S. C. Sutherland to be Assistant Commissary-General; Deputy Assist. Com.-Gen. H. Travers to be Assistant Commissary-General.

ADMIRALTY.

Royal Marine Light Infantry: First Lieut. A. H. F. Barnes to be Captain; Second Lieut F. Hutchinson to be First Lieutenant.

T. Catchpole to be Engineer in her Majesty's Fleet.

The banquet announced to be given by the officers of the Royal Artillery to Lieutenant-General Sir Hugh Rose, recently in command of the forces in India, came off, on Monday evening, at Woolwich. Covers were laid for 130 persons. Among those present were Lieutenant-General Sir Robert Napier, Lieutenant-General Sir Richard Dacres, Major-General T. G. Higgins, Major-General Sandham, and other officers who have been rewarded for meritorious and distinguished services in the field. Major-General E. C. Warde, C.B., commanding the garrison, presided.

The half-yearly examination and award of commissions and prizes to the gentlemen cadets of the Royal Military Academy, by his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, took place, on Thursday week, in the presence of Prince Arthur and a numerous assemblage of officers and friends and relations of the cadets. A series of manual and platoon exercise having been gone through, satisfactory reports from the Council of Military Education were read, after which the gentlemen cadets to whom commissions had been awarded were called to the front, and the number of marks gained by each in the several branches of science and education read over as follows:—For the Royal Engineers—Messrs. S. L. Jacob, 27,905; C. L. C. Beresford, 23,982; C. J. S. Nicholson, 23,630; N. Arnott, 23,340; G. R. Walker, 22,836; R. C. Hildyard, 22,275; G. D. G. Taubman, 22,148; D. M'N. Campbell, 21,892; C. C. C. Badon, 21,770; and W. R. Purchas, 21,631. For the Royal Artillery—N. L. Walford, 21,290; J. D. Snodgrass, 21,286; J. E. Josselyn, 21,133; W. D. Corfe, 20,251. A number of prizes were awarded for good conduct and proficiency in the various branches of study. His Royal Highness addressed the cadets at some length, congratulating them upon the favourable report he had received from the Lieutenant-Governor as to the state of order and discipline which had prevailed at the institution during the past half year.

Yesterday week there was a field-day at Wormwood-scrubbs, at which Field Marshal the Duke of Cambridge, Commanding-in-Chief, and a large staff, including the Adjutant-General, the Hon. Sir James Yorke Scarlett, K.C.B.; the Quartermaster-General, Sir Richard Airey, K.C.B.; Colonel Hon. James Macdonald and Colonel Tyrwhitt, aides-de-camp, were present. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Brabant were on the ground in plain clothes as spectators. A numerous concourse of persons was also present, including his Highness Prince de Tour et Taxis, and other foreigners of rank, the Earl of Cardigan, Major-General Eyre, the Earl of Tankerville, and many general officers. The troops consisted of the 2nd Life Guards, the Royal Horse Guards, and the 13th Hussars; the Scots Fusilier Guards, the 3rd Battalion of the Grenadier Guards, and a battalion made up of men clear of duty of the 1st Grenadier Guards and of the Coldstream Guards. The movements began by the infantry brigade forming in line and advancing, file-firing, then breaking into open columns of companies and retiring. The cavalry, having moved in support by double column from the centre, advanced through the infantry and charged, then retired in échelon of squadrons from the left of regiments. The infantry again advanced, file-firing, and then formed battalion square. Altogether about five movements were made. The last evolution was an advance of the infantry brigade in line, supported by the cavalry in line. Two boys got in the way of a large body of cavalry in full charge, and were ridden over. One of them died shortly afterwards, and the other is in a precarious condition. Special attention was paid to the youths by order of the Prince of Wales.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The 1st Middlesex Engineers were officially inspected in Hyde Park, on Saturday last, by Colonel Wright. There was an excellent muster of the regiment, which was under the command of Colonel M'Leod of M'Leod, and both men and officers proved themselves thoroughly efficient in battalion drill. The 36th Middlesex (Paddington) kept the ground.

There is to be a grand field-day at Woolwich, with the regulars, to-day; and in this the Queen's (Westminster), the London Rifle Brigade, and other volunteer corps of London will take a part.

Yesterday week the fifth annual review of the Kent volunteers took place, on the Great Lines, Chatham, by the Lord Lieutenant, Viscount Sydney. An Illustration and some particulars of this review are given on another page.

The annual inspection of the amalgamated corps of the 5th and 9th Essex Volunteers, forming the 2nd Essex Administrative Battalion, took place at West Ham, on Saturday last, before Lieutenant-Colonel Ibbetson. Lieutenant-Colonel Silver was in command. The Staff officers were Majors Birt and Howard, Adjutant Davis, and Surgeon Morris. The force, which is 1100 strong, mustered to the number of 642. The battalion went through a series of manœuvres, on the conclusion of which they were addressed by Colonel Ibbetson. He considered that the battalion had improved in steadiness and that the officers had improved in drill. The marching was good, with the exception of one company. There were some irregularities in the firing of one company. He was particularly struck with the silence and steadiness in the ranks, which were matters of great importance. He should report favourably upon their progress.

Last Saturday the Bristol corps was inspected by Colonel Bruce, one of the district inspectors of volunteers, upon Durdham Down, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators. At the close of the inspection, Colonel Bruce expressed the pleasure he would experience in making a favourable report of the condition of the regiment to the Secretary of State. It was impossible, he said, for him adequately to express his opinion of the excellent drill he had seen that day; without making invidious comparisons, he might state that he had seen many of the best London volunteer corps, and he had never seen anything better than what he had seen done by that (the Bristol) regiment.

The 3rd Battalion of Staffordshire Volunteers went into camp last Saturday, at Sandwell Park. This is said to be the first battalion camp formed in Staffordshire.

The 3rd West Riding, with the Bingley company, was inspected, at Peel Park, at Bradford, last Saturday, by Lieutenant-Colonel Deshon, the inspecting officer of volunteers of the district. The corps, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Hirst, went through a series of battalion and light infantry movements, which the inspecting officer watched very closely, and at the close the officers were addressed by the inspecting officer in terms of compliment.

The 2nd Manchester was inspected last Saturday, at Old Trafford, by Lieutenant-Colonel Bruce, the inspector of the Lancashire district. At the close of the inspection, Lieutenant-Colonel Bruce addressed the officers and men and said that coming there again to inspect them had given him great pleasure. There was certainly no falling off; on the contrary, they had improved in steadiness. He should have to report very favourably of everything he had seen in the regiment.——On Saturday, an exciting rifle contest took place on the shooting-range of the Manchester Rifle Club, between eight members of the Manchester club and eight of the Rochdale Rifle Club. This, being the annual match, brought together a large number of the patrons of small-bore shooting. Last year the Rochdale team won both their matches with Manchester; but this year they had to succumb, after a close contest, to the Manchester squad, who gained a majority of seven points only.——The prize-shooting of the 65th Lancashire (Rossall School) Rifle Corps has been completed. The silver challenge cup and medal were won by Sergeant R. L. Calcraft and Private T. Richardson; the Captains' prize by Private C. T. Marston; two plated cups, given by the masters of the school, by Privates G. Saville and E. A. Simpson; the non-commissioned officers' prize by Sergeant C. E. Brumell; the privates' prize by Private H. B. Trevor Roper; the recruits' prize by Private R. Fayrer; and the band prize by Lance-Corporal C. C. Egerton. The annual inspection of the corps by Colonel Bruce took place on the 19th ult., after which the prizes were presented to the successful competitors by Lady Jane Lindsay. The 65th, which is the only enrolled school company in the kingdom, has two companies, and sends two its members to compete for the Queen's prize at Wimbledon this year.

Last Saturday there was a review of volunteers in Holyrood Park, Edinburgh, which is illustrated and described elsewhere.——The proceedings of the Montrose volunteer shooting competition began on Tuesday week and ended on the following Thursday, terminating that evening with the presentation of the prizes to the successful shots by the Earl of Dalhousie, and the annual dinner of the Angus and Mearns Rifle Association, under whose auspices the gathering is held. The blue ribbon of the meeting—"Scotland's cup"—was carried off by Sergeant Forbes, Ellon. Last year the same prize was won by Mr. Hercules Ross. The late Major Moir's challenge cup was awarded to Captain Mitchell, Alloa. The gainers of the prizes next in importance were—Private Wilken, Ellon, the strangers' cup; Lord Aberdeen, Captain Ross's challenge cup; Private Bower, the Angus and Mearns cup; the ladies' cross, Ensign Walker, Portlethen. The cup, value £10, given by Messrs. Mappin, London, was won by Sergeant Lees, Perth. In the artillery gun competition the first prize was carried by the second battalion Arbroath.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR JOHN LUBBOCK, BART.

Sir John William Lubbock, F.R.S., D.L., third Baronet, of Lamas, in the county of Norfolk, who died at his seat, High Elms, Farnborough, Kent, on the 21st ult., was the only child of Sir John William Lubbock, the second Baronet, by his wife, Mary, daughter of James Entwisle, Esq., of Rusholme, Manchester. He was born March 26, 1803, and was educated at Eton College, and afterwards went to Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1825 and M.A. in 1833. He succeeded his father as fourth Baronet in 1840. Sir John was a distinguished scholar, and for years had been a Fellow of the Royal Society and on the committee, and a Vice-President of that learned body. He has also been Vice-Chancellor of the University of London. He was High Sheriff of Kent in 1852, and was a Deputy Lieutenant of that county. Sir John was the author of many standard and valuable scientific works. He married, June 29, 1833, Harriet, youngest daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel George Hotham, of York, and grandniece of the distinguished Admiral, William first Lord Hotham, by whom he leaves eight sons and three daughters. Of the latter two are married—viz., Mary Harriet, wife of Robert Birkbeck, Esq.; and Diana Hotham, wife of William Powell Rodney, Esq., cousin of the present Lord Rodney. Sir John Lubbock is succeeded by his eldest son, now Sir John Lubbock, the fourth Baronet, who was born April 30, 1834; and married, April 10, 1856, Ellen Frances, daughter of the late Rev. Peter Hordern, of Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Lancashire, and has a family of sons and daughters. This line of Lubbocks Baronets, formerly of old standing in Norfolk, is of high hereditary note as merchants and bankers of the city of London, where the Baronet just deceased was connected with banking as a partner in the eminent firm of Robarts, Lubbock, and Co. Sir John Lubbock, the first Baronet, was so created April 9, 1806, with limitation to his nephew. He was granduncle of the Baronet whose death we now record.

THE HON. CAPTAIN VEREKER.

Captain the Hon Richard Prendergast Vereker, 60th Rifles, whose lamented death occurred at Rangoon, on the 30th of April last, a week after his return to head-quarters from being stationed at the Andaman Islands, the climate of which proved fatal to him. He was the fifth son of John Prendergast, third and present Viscount Gort, a Representative Peer for Ireland, by his first wife, Maria, eldest daughter of Standish, first Viscount Guillamore. He was born in 1830, and entered the British service in 1854. He was a very gallant young officer; he was for a time on the Staff in the Cape of Good Hope, and he served with his regiment (the 60th) in India, and in the campaign of China, and had the medal with clasps for the Taku Forts and capture of Pekin. Captain Vereker was held, from his fine disposition and other amiable qualities, in such warm affection by the officers of his battalion that they went into mourning out of respect to his memory. The Captain has died unmarried. One of his brothers, Captain the Hon. A. E. P. Vereker, a distinguished Crimean officer, died in Japan only a few months ago.

THE HON. MRS. ARBUTHNOT.

The premature and lamentable death of the Hon. Mrs. Arbuthnot has just occurred, during her bridal tour, from a most strange and appalling accident. This young and interesting lady, who was married on April 26 last to Captain William Arbuthnot, 14th Hussars, nephew of Sir Robert Keith Arbuthnot, Bart., had, in the course of her journey with her husband, arrived at Interlachen. In the morning they set out on horseback, and, accompanied by a guide, commenced ascending the Schelthorn, one of the Bernese Alps. Mrs. Arbuthnot, feeling a little tired, sat down to rest, and Captain Arbuthnot and the guide proceeded some distance further up the height, but never went out of sight or hearing of their companion. In a few minutes a furious thunderstorm burst forth, and the Captain and guide returned as rapidly as they could to the spot where they had left Mrs. Arbuthnot. They found her dead. She had been struck by lightning and killed instantaneously. The unfortunate lady was the fourth daughter of George, fourth and present Lord Rivers, by his wife, Susan Georgiana, eldest daughter of Granville, first Earl Granville, and sister of Granville George, K.G., second and present Earl Granville, Lord President of the Council.

ANDREW R. DRUMMOND, ESQ.

Andrew Robert Drummond, Esq., of Cadland Park, Hants, the principal partner in the eminent banking firm of Messrs. Drummond, who died at his town house, 2, Bryanston-square, on the 20th ult., after a lingering illness, was a scion of the noble and historic house of Drummond, Viscount Strathallan, and was the elder son of Andrew Berkeley Drummond, Esq., of Cadland, by his wife, Mary, daughter of John, second Earl of Egmont, and was grandson of the Hon. Robert Drummond, of Cadland, son of William, fourth Viscount Strathallan, who fell at Culloden fighting for the Chevalier. Mr. Drummond, the subject of this notice, was born July 28, 1794, and was educated at Eton, and Christ Church, Oxford. He was a J.P. and D.L. for Hants. He married, March 7, 1822, Lady Elizabeth Frederica, second daughter of Sir John Henry Manners, K.G., fifth Duke of Rutland, by whom, who survives him, he leaves Andrew John Drummond, Esq., his successor, now of Cadland, four other sons, and two daughters; the latter are, Annabella, wife of A. D. R. W. Baillie Cochrane, Esq., M.P.; and Frederica Maria Adeliza, wife of Richard George, ninth and present Earl of Scarborough.

THE HON. J. A. STREET, Q.C.

The Hon. John Ambrose Street, who died suddenly, at St. John, New Brunswick, on the 3rd of May last, was (by his wife, Abigail, daughter of Joseph Freeman, Esq.) the son of Samuel Denny Street, Esq., formerly an officer in her Majesty's Army, who, having settled in the province of New Brunswick, on the cessation of the American War of Independence, was subsequently appointed a member of the Legislative Council. John Ambrose Street was born in 1794; he was admitted to the Bar in 1817, and elected a member for Northumberland, in New Brunswick, in 1833, and represented the same county, without interruption, for the long period of twenty-four years. In 1837 he was appointed Queen's Counsel. He held the office of Attorney-General for the province for four terms, and until the defeat of the Conservative party, in 1854. On account of his political services while in the Government, Mr. Street, on resigning office, received from her Majesty the Queen's authority, by patent, to retain, in his own right, the prefix of "Honourable" to his name. At the last dissolution of the provincial Parliament, he contested the county of York; but, being a strenuous supporter of the confederation scheme for the amalgamation of the North American provinces, he failed, with other candidates of that party, in being elected. As a barrister, Mr. Street always stood in the front rank of his profession in the province. His legal opinions, which were highly esteemed, were given slowly and with great deliberation; and, when engaged on a case and the whole powers of his mind exercised on behalf of his client, his thorough knowledge of the law and his eloquence rendered him a formidable opponent at the Bar. In private, as in public life, Mr. Street was much esteemed and respected. The House of Assembly, in honour to his memory and in testimony of the estimation in which he had been held, adjourned, on the announcement of his death, till the following day. His remains, having been removed to Fredericton for interment, were followed to the grave by his Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor and Staff, the officers of the garrison, the members of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly, and numerous friends. Mr. Street married Jane Isabella, daughter of the late William Hubbard, Esq., formerly an officer in her Majesty's service and member of the Legislative Council of New Brunswick.

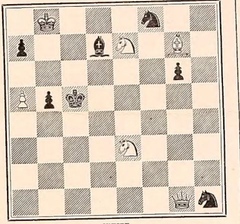
MRS. SIGOURNEY.

The death of this well-known American authoress occurred at her residence in Hartford, Connecticut, on the 10th ult. Mrs. Sigourney (by her maiden name Lydia Huntley) had attained the age of nearly seventy-four years, having been born on Sept. 1, 1791. In 1819, she was married to Mr. Sigourney, a hardware dealer in Hartford, and a man of much culture and literary taste, and she had by him two children, Mary, the oldest, now the wife of the Rev. Francis T. Russell, of Geneva, New York, and Andrew, whose death, a few years ago, was the subject of one of her works, entitled "The Faded Hope." Her first volume, entitled "Moral Power, in Prose and Verse," appeared in 1815, and since that time she has been one of the most prolific American authors. Together, her publications number nearly fifty volumes, many of which attained a very large circulation. A prominent feature in the character of Mrs. Sigourney was her great benevolence. She is said to have made it a point to give at least one tenth of her income to charitable objects.

A supplement to the twenty-fifth annual report of the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths, and Marriages in England has been issued, in the shape of a closely-printed volume of 600 pages. It has been compiled for the purpose of showing in detail, from the consecutive records of ten years, the causes of death in every part of England and Wales, and the comparative salubrity of those several parts.

CHESS.

 Our notices to Chess Correspondents are this week deferred from lack of space.



SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1113.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. R takes K P (ch)	Kt takes R	3. Kt mates.
2. Kt to Q 5th	Anything

PROBLEM NO. 1114.

By Mr. P. DUCLOS (Palamède).

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

A smart little Skirmish between Lord RAVENSWORTH, one of our leading amateur players, and Mr. HAMPTON, the secretary of the St. George's Chess Club.—(Scotch Gambit.)

WHITE (Lord R.)	BLACK (Mr. H.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. P to Q 4th	P takes P
4. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
5. B to K Kt 5th
(This is an unusual move, but it may be adopted, apparently, without much risk.)
5.	B to K 2nd
6. P to K R 4th	P to K R 3rd
7. B to K B 4th	P to Q 3rd
8. P to Q B 3rd	P takes P
9. Q Kt takes P	Kt to K B 3rd
10. Q to Q Kt 3rd	Castles
11. Q to Q B 2nd	Kt to Q Kt 5th
12. Q to Q 2nd
(White has now a fine, commanding position.)
12.	P to Q B 4th
13. B takes K R P	P takes B
14. P to Q R 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
15. Q takes K R P	Kt to K R 2nd
16. Kt to K Kt 5th	B takes Kt
17. P takes B	B to K B 4th
(Desperate and ineffectual. The best course was resignation.)
18. P takes B
(This seems to have been hardly so expeditious as playing the Pawn to K Kt 6th, which wins at once.)
18.	R to K sq (ch)
19. K to B sq	P to Q 4th
20. Q takes Kt (ch)	K to B sq
21. P to K B 6th, and wins.

Another Game, between Messrs. DE RIVIERE and NEUMANN.

(Q Bishop's Pawn Opening.)

WHITE (Mr. de R.)	BLACK (Mr. N.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. P to Q B 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
4. B to Q B 4th	Kt takes K P
5. Castles	P to Q 4th
6. B to Q Kt 5th	B to Q 3rd
7. P to Q 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
8. Kt takes K P	B takes Kt
9. R to K sq	Castles
10. B takes Kt	B takes R P (ch)
11. K takes B	P takes B
12. B to K B 4th	R to Q Kt sq
13. Kt to Q 2nd	R takes P
14. Q to Q B sq	R to Q Kt 3rd
15. Kt to Q Kt 3rd	P to Q B 4th
16. Kt takes P	Kt to K Kt 5th (ch)
17. K to Kt sq	Q to K R 5th
18. B to Kt 3rd	Q to R 4th
19. P to K B 3rd	R to K R 3rd
20. P takes Kt	Q to K R 8th (ch)
21. K to B 2nd	R to K B 3rd (ch)
22. B to B 4th	Q to R 7th
23. R to K 3rd	R takes B (ch)
24. R to K B 3rd	R takes R (ch)
25. K takes R	P to K B 4th
26. P to Kt 5th	P to B 5th
27. Q to K Kt sq	B to Kt 5th (ch)
28. K to B 2nd
(If he had taken the Bishop he would have been mated in three moves.)
28.	Q to Kt 6th (ch)
29. K to B sq	P to K B 6th and wins.

CONSULTATION CHESS.

A fine Game, played by Mr. R. B. BRIEN and Mr. C. GOCHER consulting together against Mr. JOHN GOCHER and Mr. GOVING.—(Giuoco Piano.)

BLACK (Messrs. G. & C.)	WHITE (Messrs. B. & C.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q B 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
5. P to Q 4th	P takes P
6. P to K 5th	P to Q 4th
7. B to Q Kt 5th	Kt to K 5th
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
9. B to K 3rd	Castles
10. B takes Kt	P takes B
11. Castles	P to K B 4th
12. Q to Q B sq
(The sterling qualities of the fine old classical Giuoco Piano show to great advantage in the present game, which is played on both sides with remarkable ability.)
12.	Q to K sq
13. P to Q R 4th	P to Q R 4th
14. R to Q R 3rd
(This piece is destined to play an important part presently, and it was a wise provision to bring so powerful an auxiliary thus early into action.)
14.	P to K R 3rd
15. Kt to Q B 3rd	P to K Kt 4th
16. Kt takes Kt	Q P takes Kt
17. Kt takes Kt P
(Bold and good. Now we begin to see the immense significance of Blake's 14th move; but for the promised support of their Q Rook they would not have dared to give up the Kt for the two Pawns, and their attack would have been completely baffled.)
17.	P takes Kt
18. B takes P	Q to K 3rd
19. R to K Kt 3rd	K to K B 2nd
20. B to K B 6th	K to K sq
21. Q to K R 6th	B takes Q P
22. R to K Kt 7th	B to Q R 3rd
23. Q to K R 5th (ch)	R to K B 2nd
24. R to K Kt 8th (ch)	K to Q 2nd
25. R takes Q R	R takes B
26. R to Q sq	B to Q 6th
27. Q to K R 8th
and White resign.

CHESSBOARD OF KING CHARLES I.

(To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.)

Sir,—The unfortunate Charles I. was well known to have been an ardent chess amateur. Beale's translation of the first edition of Greco, published in 1656, and now before me, is intituled "The Royall game of Chesse playe, sometimes the recreation of the late King, with many of the Nobilitie." There are in the library of the British Museum (Add. MS. No. 17,062) some Diaries kept by a Captain Richard Symonds, an officer of the Royal Army, in one of which (p. 23) it is stated, "Round about ye King's chessboard this verse:—

Subditus et Princeps istis sine sanguine certent.
1643."

It occurs to me not impossible that this chessboard may still be in existence. It may have fallen to the keeping of a Cavalier adherent of the King, and perhaps now be hidden away in a neglected nook or corner of some old manor-house. Publicity in the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, which finds its way everywhere, might be the means of bringing to light this relic of the unhappy monarch, which it is needless to say would possess a high interest for the antiquary as well as the chessplayer. The inscription would render identification easy.—I am, Sir, yours obediently,

H. A. KENNEDY.

Bath, June 26, 1865.

CHESS TOURNAMENT IN PARIS.—The tournament organised at the Cercle des Echecs has just terminated, after a duration of four months. The first prize, of one hundred francs, having been gained by Mr. Klezinski, the second by Mr. Mortimer, and the third by Mr. Chartran.

The King of Italy has conferred the Order of SS. Maurice and Lazarus on Messrs. J. Ball, W. Mathews, and F. F. Tuckett, in consideration of their scientific and geographical investigations in the Alps.

Captain Tyler, who went to Lanslebourg, by order of the Board of Trade, to inspect the experimental railway there laid down by Mr. Fell, the projector of the line over Mont Cenis, has made his report, which is printed. Captain Tyler states:—"I have to report, as the results of my observations and experiments, that this scheme for crossing Mont Cenis is, in my opinion, practicable, both mechanically and commercially, and that the passage of the mountain may thus be effected, not only with greater speed, certainty, and convenience, but also with greater safety than under the present arrangements."

MUSIC.

The great Handel Festival at the Crystal Palace has been held during the past week. The three performances of which it consisted took place on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday (yesterday), and formed the grandest commemoration of the mighty master that has ever been witnessed. We must necessarily reserve till next week our account of these performances—contenting ourselves, for the present, with mentioning the preparations and arrangements which have led to so magnificent a result. The festival now terminated was the third of the great Handel celebrations at Sydenham—the two preceding having taken place in the years 1859 and 1862. The illustrious musician died in the year 1759; and the idea of commemorating that event on its first centenary anniversary was a natural suggestion. It originated with the Sacred Harmonic Society, and was carried into effect by them with the co-operation of the Crystal Palace Company. Taking time by the forelock, these two bodies resolved to set on foot a preliminary or experimental festival in 1857, with the view of ascertaining the extent of their resources and testing the efficiency of their arrangements, so that they might be enabled, by correcting mistakes and supplying omissions, to be fully prepared for the anniversary festival when the time arrived. The festival of 1857 not only accomplished this object, but was the greatest and most successful music-meeting that had yet taken place. The chorus consisted of 2000 voices, the instrumental band was nearly 400 strong, and the greatest performers of every class were engaged; the influx of visitors was immense, and the pecuniary success proportionably great. The experimental result, too, was highly favourable, as it showed that the defects of the Crystal Palace as a musical locality were not insurmountable, and that both the orchestra and the area occupied by the audience were capable of much improvement. The consequence was that the anniversary festival exceeded the most sanguine expectations. It took place on the 20th, 22nd, and 24th of June, 1859. The chorus consisted of 2700 voices; the whole vocal and instrumental strength amounted to 3200 performers. The principal singers were Mdme. Clara Novello, Mdme. Rudersdorff, Mdme. Sherrington, Miss Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Weiss, and Signor Belletti. The three performances and the preliminary public rehearsal attracted above 80,000 visitors. This success induced the promoters of the festival to establish it on a permanent footing by rendering it triennial; and accordingly the first triennial festival was held in 1862, consisting, like the previous ones, of three performances in the month of June. The numbers of the chorus and the band were further augmented; and Mdlle. Titiens and Mdme. Parepa were added to the list of principal singers. The success of this meeting was still greater than before. The next and last of the series (as has been already said) was that which is now concluded. It has been on a still greater scale than any of the preceding. The chorus and orchestra have been further augmented, and reached the unprecedented amount of four thousand voices and instruments. The principal vocal performers have been Mdlle. Adelina Patti, Mdme. Rudersdorff, Mdme. Sherrington, Mdme. Parepa, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Cummings, Mr. Weiss, Herr Schmid, and Mr. Santley—a splendid array of talent, but exhibiting a defect which cannot be overlooked for a moment: the illustrious name of Titiens does not appear in the list! The performances of the week have been as follow:—On Monday, "The Messiah;" on Wednesday, a selection from several of Handel's oratorios and other works; and Friday (yesterday), "Israel in Egypt." It is hardly necessary to add that the performances have been under the direction of Mr. Costa, who has all along been the life and soul of the Handel festivals.

The attention of the musical public, though chiefly, has not been exclusively devoted to the Handel festival. Besides the performances on the Italian Opera nights (which have presented no novelty), there have been several public and private concerts, such of which as are worthy of attention shall be noticed by us next week.

THE THEATRES.

A new comedietta has been produced at the Strand, which, unfortunately, is wanting both in the grace of originality and novelty. It is an adaptation, under the name of "The Better Half," of the French piece recently brought out at the New Adelphi under the title of "The Woman of Business." The present version is by Mr. T. J. Williams: the former was by Mr. B. Webster, jun. It would have been as well, we think, to have spared the labour of its production; since neither in its acting nor in the manner in which it has been adapted is it equal to the Adelphi version. Its success was but equivocal. An agreeable revival has taken place at the St. James's of a lively comedy by Mr. W. S. Emden, which has reposed on the shelf for the last twenty years. It is entitled "Love's Labyrinth," and is well acted throughout by Miss Eleanor Bufton, Mr. F. Robinson, Mr. G. Murray, and Mr. H. J. Montague. On Saturday, at the Alexandra, Mr. Giovanelli appeared as Wormwood in the capital old piece of "The Lottery Ticket." He was well made-up for the part, and acted it with a degree of humour which justified the applause that it received. On Thursday, a new drama, called "Through Fire and Water," was produced at the New Adelphi, in which Mr. Toole supports the part of a fireman, the occasion being for the benefit of this excellent comedian. At the Olympic, on Friday, a new piece by Mr. Tom Taylor was produced, entitled "The Serf; or, Love Levels All," for the benefit of Miss Kate Terry, who appeared as the heroine. We shall revert again to these pieces.

On Tuesday morning the benefit at Drury Lane for Mr. Leigh Murray duly came off, and he was greeted by a numerous audience, the house being well filled in every part. Concurring in the general opinion that the present is not the occasion to criticise in detail Mr. Murray's merits as an elegant performer of modern drama, we abstain from a retrospective reviewal of his highly promising career. It is to be regretted that serious indisposition should have incapacitated him for its further continuance at present. We need only add that, at the conclusion of the concert which formed part of the performance on Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Murray appeared in an occasional scene, composed by Mr. Shirley Brooks, and which abounded in apposite allusions. These were well responded to by the audience, who cheered enthusiastically. It is hoped that, by a timely sojourn in some genial retreat, Mr. Murray may recover his health and energies and be enabled once more to return to the boards.

A society for providing life-boats and establishing stations along the German shores has been founded at Bremen.

Mdme. Kossuth, the wife of the famous Hungarian leader, died recently, at Genoa, after a ten years' illness.

Major Mansfield has been appointed her Majesty's Consul-General at Warsaw, in the room of Colonel Stanton, promoted to be Consul-General at Alexandria.

Francis Clare Ford, Esq., now a Second Secretary in her Majesty's Diplomatic Service employed in her Majesty's Embassy at Vienna, has been appointed Secretary to her Majesty's Legation in Japan.

An observatory is to be erected by the municipality on the top of Montmartre, near Paris. The well-known windmills on the hill are to be pulled down.

Signor Regaldi, an Italian poet, has written a letter to the Foreign Minister of the kingdom of Greece, suggesting that a monument to Homer should be erected in Athens.

It has been proposed by some of the railway authorities in India to keep a complaint-book at the chief railway-stations, in which passengers may enter an account of any grievances they may have been subjected to.

A Cape of Good Hope paper states that the Sultan of Turkey has subscribed £200 towards the building of a mosque for the Malay Mohammedans of Port Elizabeth, and the same sum for a like purpose at Capetown.

There will be no Ministerial whitebait dinner at Greenwich this year, in consequence of the probable absence of many members of the Government in the Lower House, the business of the Session in the House of Commons being virtually over.

A singular theatrical notice was posted a few days back in the town of Cassel, stating the reasons for which no performance would take place at the Opera. The bill was worded as follows:—"In consequence of the sudden extinction of voice of Mdlle. Grun, the continued indisposition of M. Gerso, the cold of M. Resz, and the impossibility of finding Mdlle. Hoeff, the Opera will be closed until further notice."

NEW MUSIC.

SUNG BY MR. SIMS REEVES.
"Lady Alfred in Fancy Dress." Balfe ... 4s.
"An Irish Love Song." Rosenthal ... 4s.
"Last Hope." Brinley Richards ... 4s.
The Children's Visit to a Land of Fairies. Descriptive Fantasia. By CHARLES and CO. (Limited), 104, Regent-street.

THE NEWEST SONGS.
"A Perfect Day." Words by John Barnett ... 2s. 6d.
"I Love Thee, Love Thee." W. V. Wallace ... 2s. 6d.
Bird of the Wild Wing ... Lindsay ... 2s. 6d.
Bird of the Wild Wing ... Lindsay ... 2s. 6d.
Bird of the Wild Wing ... Lindsay ... 2s. 6d.
In the Heart of my Heart ... H. Farmer ... 2s. 6d.
Pleasant Hours and Happy Memories ... H. Farmer ... 2s. 6d.
Pleasant Hours and Happy Memories ... W. H. Cummings ... 2s. 6d.
The Fisher Girl ... C. Linley ... 2s. 6d.
The Fisher Girl ... Arranged as a Duet ... 4s.
Why do you Weep, dearest? ... H. Rosenthal ... 2s. 6d.
CHARLES and Co. (Limited), 104, Regent-street.

THE NEWEST PIANOFORTE PIECES.
Mabel's Vow (on Scales of the Rhine). Fantasia ... 4s. 6d.
Bremenhuly's Chess Reliquiæ ... 4s. 6d.
Wandering a Dream ... 4s. 6d.
Wandering a Dream ... 4s. 6d.
Wandering a Dream ... 4s. 6d.
Chevalier's Classic Pianoforte ... 4s. 6d.
The "Ave" Gracieuse. Bibiolet ... 4s.
Reverence. Pianoforte Solo ... 3s. 6d.
Reverence. Duet ... 4s.
Pandora." Illustrée de Salon ... 3s. 6d.
Hellier's Tact Exercises ... 3s. 6d.
Rosenhain's "Le soupir." Bijoutie solo ... 3s. 6d.
Sellic's Le doux pensée ... 3s. 6d.
CHARLES and Co. (Limited), 104, Regent-street.

THE "ORCHESTRA" PRIZE COMPOSITIONS.
Polonaise brillante ... Vera ... 4s.
The Elves's Royal "Wedding." W. H. Allcott ... 4s.
Les Hussards de La Reine "Gaspy." F. de Leon ... 4s.
Amazone Quadrille ... Gaspy Berger ... 4s.
The Brother's Song. By C. Swinton Holder ... 3s.
The above are the only pieces for which the prizes offered by the proprietors of the "Orchestra" and Fenwick Journal for Musicians."
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S PIANETTES.
Cramer and Co.'s Pianettes are now in stock at their Manufactory, 207, Regent-street, in the following variety of models and prices:—
In Ash ... 22
In Black Walnut ... 22
In Figured Walnut ... 23
In Rosewood ... 23
In Polished Rosewood Ebony ... 26
In Rosewood, with Æolian ... 29
In Rosewood, with Trichord Treble ... 30
In Solid Oak, Gothic Screw and Hinged Lock ... 24
In Polished Oak, ditto ... 25
In Maple and Satin, Albert Pail and Trusses ... 27
In Figured Color, ditto, ditto ... 28
In Rosewood, ditto, ditto ... 30
In Satinwood and Gold, with 4s. 6d. ... 31
In Compensated Action, ditto, ditto ... 35
In Solid Rosewood, ditto, ditto ... 40
Cramer and Co.'s Pianettes are fitted to any of these instruments at an extra charge of 5 guineas.
FOR INDIA ... Guineas.
In Solid Mahogany, packed in Zinc and Shipped ... 40
In Rosewood, ditto, ditto ... 45
CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have been induced, from the very great demand for their Pianettes, to make a considerable reduction in the prices of these instruments, which remain unsurpassed above. In addition, the ornamentation and patterns of the cases are varied artistically, to suit the taste of purchasers. The Pianettes are unrivalled for their beauty of tone, touch, and elasticity, without springs, amongst the most perfect instruments in tone, touch, and durability ever made in this country; and are fitted, and with the compass, from A to A, with the improved check action. Thos Cramer and Co. are now enabled to offer these Pianettes at the above reduced prices, and they guarantee the instrument to stand in any climate.
CRAMER'S THREE YEARS' SYSTEM, by which the term of payment for a Pianette is extended over Three Years, applies to ALL the above MODELS.
THESE PIANOFORTES may be OBSERVED through Country Agents, and Lists of Prices may be experienced, CRAMER and CO. 207 Regent-street.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY, 207 and 209, Regent-street.
Next to Regent-street Entrance.

CRAMER and CO.'S PIANOFORTES.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited)—Their Pianofortes for Sale or Hire of every description, by all the most eminent makers. Every variety of Cottage Pianoforte, at £19 10s. per annum. Pianettes, at £15 15s. per annum. Grand Pianos, at £31 10s. per annum. Cabinet Pianos, at £17 10s. per annum; Oblique Pianos, at £21 per annum. All Pianofortes are tuned free of charge, and warranted for three years.—201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. HIRE OUT HARMONIUMS as the three-years' system.

CRAMER and CO. EXTEND their THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE to all parts of the kingdom. Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to their NEW PIANOS by BROADWOOD.—Pianoforte Gallery, Nos. 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to their NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS by BROADWOOD.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to their NEW PIANOFORTES by COLLARD and COLLARD.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to their NEW PIANOFORTES by ERARD.—Pianoforte Gallery, Nos. 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to their NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS by ERARD.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to their NEW PIANOFORTES by KIRKMAN.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to their NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS by KIRKMAN.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to COTTAGE PIANOFORTES by KIRKMAN. Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to SEMI-OBLIQUES by PLEYEL.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to BOUDOIR GRANDS by PLEYEL.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. LET on HIRE all kinds of PIANOFORTES, commencing at 1s. per month. Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) exhibit the greatest variety of PIANOFORTES of the highest class, by the most eminent manufacturers of Europe. Every only exist the very Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

THE FIVE-SHILLING ILLUMINATING COMPOSITION produces superior results in crimson, white, gold, ultramarine, and bronze.—J. BANARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., London; and 44, Arthur Greenwood, Manchester.

THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to produce beautiful pictures in a beautiful coloured appearance, with brushes, colours, all materials, pencils, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BANARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and 44, Arthur Greenwood, Manchester.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their entire performance without the aid of a visible agent. They are the most droll fun for the season.—H. G. CLARKE and Co., 300, Strand.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS, LONDON-SQUARE, CHELSEA.—Public Anniversary Festival and Grand Inauguration Ceremony and Festival, SATURDAY, JULY 8, 1865, under the presidency of the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, K.T., G.M., Grand Master, when the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro. G.M., will lay the first stone of the New Building, for which will be superintended by the Grand Director of Ceremonies. Opening of the New Organ erected by Messrs. Gray and Davison, Tottenham-court-road. Full Ladies' Promenade Concert by the Band of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, conducted by Mr. Frederick Clarke, for which will be instituted at 10 and 2. Ad. and conductor, and each for Ladies. Wines will be supplied at a fixed tariff. First Cricket Match between the Old Boys and the Present Boys. Dinner in the Great Hall at 6 o'clock.—Arrangement in Dining Hall of nearly 1,000 of the Festival. Tickets, including admission to Concert, 10s. 6d. each. Stewards have generously proffered their services, and Brethren and Friends are invited to become Stewards, and to collect, under the direction of the Stewards, the Grand Stewards' Lodge, under the direction of Mr. Whitebrook. Promenade Passes will be supplied on application to the Secretary, at the Institution, Battersea, or at the Office, 33, Great Queen-street, New Road-buildings. The London and Brighton Railway Company for special trains to leave King's-cross at intervals from 10 in the morning to 4 in the afternoon, and from Victoria and Wood-green up to 11 p.m. Omnibuses leave the City for Wood-green frequently during the day.

THE SALOON STEAM-PACKET COMPANY (Limited).
Under the Companies Act, 1862, which expressly limits the liability of each shareholder to the amount of his shares.
Capital, £100,000, in 20,000 Shares of £5 each.
Deposit, £1 per Share.
£5, per Share when the Vessels are appropriated, and on allotment. No call to exceed £2, and an interval of not less than two months between each call.
Offices, 33, Regent-street, S.W.
London.—The Agora and Haymarket, S.W.
Liverpool.—The English Joint-stock Bank (Limited).
Directors.
The Company's new steam vessel will run daily (Sundays included) to and from Greenwich and to the Westminster Pier, and will be fitted with every convenience for the comfort of passengers that possible, including a spacious promenade deck, and a handsome and allotted cabins, if made promptly.
Applications for shares and application for Shares can be had at the Company's Offices, 33, Regent-street, S.W.

THE SALOON STEAM-PACKET COMPANY (Limited).
Capital, £100,000, in 20,000 Shares of £5 each.
The Company's newly-built fast and magnificent Saloon Steamer ROYAL ALBERT, 1,000 tons burden, 300 horse power, will leave Hungerford Bridge Pier, Charing-cross, at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. from the Terrace Pier, Greenwich, at the following times:—
From Westminster ... 10.15 a.m. and 2.15 p.m.
Terrace Pier ... 10.35 ... 2.35
Fare from Saloon ... 1s. 6d. ... 1s. 6d.
Fare from Second Saloon ... 6d. ... 6d.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.—TOURIST TICKETS at CHEAP FARES, available for One Calendar Month, will be issued on the 1st of May, 1865, to Portsmouth, Ryde, KING'S CROSS, and other principal Stations; also, in London, at the Company's Office, 15, Regent-street, Waterloo-place, and at 28, Cornhill.
SCOTLAND—Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dumfries, Stirling, Perth, Aberdeen, Inverness, &c.
IRELAND—Belfast, Portrush, Londonderry, Dublin, Cork, Killarney, Waterford, Tramore, &c.
LAKE DISTRICT—Windermere, Ambleside, Keswick, Ulverston, Furness, Coniston, Grange, Kendal, &c.
SEASIDE and BATHING PLACES—Scarborough, Whitby, Filey, Bridlington, Hornsea, Withernsea, Hunstanton, Yarmouth, Lowestoft, Ilfracombe, &c.
Programmes and full particulars may be obtained at all the Midland Stations, and at the Company's Offices.
By order, JAMES ALLPORT, General Manager.
Derby, 1865.

ISLE OF MAN.
ROYAL HOTEL, DOUGLAS, on the Sea-shore.
Board and Lodging, 5s. 6d. per Day; Attendance, 1s. Inclusive Charges. Table d'hôte at 5 o'clock.

DORKING AND LEATHERHEAD RAILWAY.—TO HAYTER.—WANTED, from 100 to 600 Tons, Gravel, Ballast, and Sand, for the Dorking and Leatherhead Railway. Apply to Mr. HAYTER, Engineer, Dorking.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837), under Royal Charter, 2, Pall-mall East, London.
ARTHUR B. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not already represented.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 in case of death, or £6 per week while laid up by injury, may be secured by an Annual Payment of £3 to £5 5s. by the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, 64, Cornhill, and 10, Regent-street.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.
Head Office in the Colony of New Zealand.
Provincial Governments of Auckland, Otago, &c.
Bankers and Agents in New Zealand.

Auckland	Napier	Wanganui
Blenheim	Nelson	Wellington
Dunedin	Newcastle	Westport
Christchurch	Newmarket	Whanganui
Dunedin	Opawa	Whangarei
Dunedin	Picton	Whangarei
Invercargill	Picton	Whangarei
Lyttelton	Russell	Whangarei
Napier	Spreydon	Whangarei

Bankers and Agents in London.
The Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places, and receives Deposits for fixed periods, and transacts every description of New Zealand and Australian business.
The London Office receives deposits at interest for fixed periods, and grants Drafts on the Colonial Offices.
JAMES MACKAY, Manager.
No. 69, Old Broad-street, London, E.C. Managing Director.

LADIES' SCHOOL, 40 and 50 Gulness Road, North Kensington.—Lady Superintendent, Miss Owen, Married Pupils, Dressing Materials, and use of Books included. No extras. Highest terms. Reference, H. R. Sir. KENEALY, Esq., Strand, W.C.

HOME EDUCATION.—BRIGHTON.—A LADY, residing in the most healthy part of Brighton, with a select number, wishing to one of her own daughters, RECEIVES TWO YOUNG LADIES under the age of 10, desirous to RECEIVE such care, combined with a thoroughly-competent governess, as will ensure a refined home. Terms, 50 guineas per annum. Address, Miss Owen, 40, Gulness Road, North Kensington.

STAMMERING.—Dr. HUNT begs to inform Stammerers that he has no connection with any other effective of the advertising organs that he has made his discovery known to the public. Dr. HUNT'S Treatise, with testimonials, sent free for two stamps.—Dr. HUNT, 6, Finsbury-square.

THE TURRET VILLA, known as THE TURRET VILLA, Stonebraes, Fircroft.—To be LET, with immediate possession, for the Summer Season, Furnished, and for such term as may be agreed upon. The Winter Villa, being a commodious and well-built residence, replete with every modern convenience, and surrounded by a pleasant garden. The situation was selected by the late Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, and is unsurpassed for its healthiness and beauty. The Furniture is of the most modern description, and the Villa contains a Grand Piano, and other appliances for society, if required for an extensive establishment. Application may be made to the steward of the estate, at Mount-Edgcumbe, Devonport, or to Messrs. Bolitho, Solicitors, Penzance.

THE TURRET VILLA, known as THE TURRET VILLA, Stonebraes, Fircroft.—To be LET, with immediate possession, for the Summer Season, Furnished, and for such term as may be agreed upon. The Winter Villa, being a commodious and well-built residence, replete with every modern convenience, and surrounded by a pleasant garden. The situation was selected by the late Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, and is unsurpassed for its healthiness and beauty. The Furniture is of the most modern description, and the Villa contains a Grand Piano, and other appliances for society, if required for an extensive establishment. Application may be made to the steward of the estate, at Mount-Edgcumbe, Devonport, or to Messrs. Bolitho, Solicitors, Penzance.

THE SALOON STEAM-PACKET COMPANY (Limited).
Capital, £100,000, in 20,000 Shares of £5 each.
The Company's newly-built fast and magnificent Saloon Steamer ROYAL ALBERT, 1,000 tons burden, 300 horse power, will leave Hungerford Bridge Pier, Charing-cross, at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. from the Terrace Pier, Greenwich, at the following times:—
From Westminster ... 10.15 a.m. and 2.15 p.m.
Terrace Pier ... 10.35 ... 2.35
Fare from Saloon ... 1s. 6d. ... 1s. 6d.
Fare from Second Saloon ... 6d. ... 6d.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, 19, Argyll-street, Regent-street, Gold Lockets, for Hair, from £1 10s. Hair Bracelets, Gold Chains, and Hair Jewelry, from 10s. 6d. to £5. Illustrated Catalogues post free.
215, Regent-street, London.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 3, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR.—DEVONEY beautifully makes and mounts in the most Rich and Elegant Manner, Hair Jewelry, Bracelets, Lockets, Brooches, Rings, Chains, Crosses, Guards, &c. The most extensive assortment of specimens has recently been kept for inspection. A splendid Illustrated Catalogue, with Prices, sent free by post.—DEVONEY, 26, New Bond-street, London.

MESSRS. HOWELL, JAMES, and CO. have the honour to inform their numerous and distinguished patrons that they have completed their extensive alterations and improvements being necessary, involving the entire reconstruction of the premises, which they have now the pleasure to announce are completed, and that they have now on view a valuable Stock, to be properly classified for the work, to submit such Goods as would be most liable to damage. 4 and 5, Regent-street, Waterloo-place.

NEW SILKS.—Patterns Free.—A rich stock of Silver, Cloths, Grenadine, Tulle Ornamenté, &c., will also be offered, at prices greatly reduced.
The Goods in the various departments have undergone an entire change, and Patterns will be forwarded free.—HOWELL, JAMES, and CO., 4 and 5, Regent-street, Waterloo-place.
A visit of inspection is respectfully solicited.
4 and 5, Regent-street, S.W.
Regent-street, 1865.

SALE OF FRENCH ORGANDIE MUSLINS, ETC., NOW UNDER PRICE.
GRANT and GASK beg to announce the Sale of one of the largest and most important purchases ever made of French Organdie Muslins, Lawns, Cambrics, and Percales, now being offered at about one-half their value, which, in order to do, the whole of which will be sold extremely cheap—viz., from one hundred and fifty pieces of Organdie Muslins.
Upwards of 600 Pieces very fine French Organdie Muslins, all at 1s. 6d. per yard, usually sold at 2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d. per yard.
Upwards of 1,000 Pieces very fine French Lawns, at 10½d. per yard.
French Percale Robes, with Jackets, for Morning and Seaside Wear, at 1 guinea, usually sold at 1½ guinea.
Also a large lot of Fine Cambrics, in Stripes, with Shawls to match, at 7 guineas, being just half the former price.
GRANT and GASK, 51, 52, Oxford-street; 1, 2, 3, and 3, Wells-street, W.

FANCY SILKS.—Patterns forwarded of new Fancy Checked Silks, from 1s. 9d. per yard, in the Best Taste of 14 years. Any length cut. Coat Dress Lengths of rich Silks, from 2 to 6 guineas Full Dress.
GRANT and GASK.
51, 52, 53, 54, and 55, Oxford-street; 1, 2, 3, and 3, Wells-street.

FOULARD SILKS.—A Great Variety of New Designs in the Most Useful Qualities, from 1s. 3d. the Full Dress. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK.
51, 52, 53, 54, and 55, Oxford-street; 1, 2, 3, and 3, Wells-street.

FOULARD and FIGURED GLOVES.—CALVAT'S BEST PARIS KID GLOVES, at 1s. 6d. per pair, usually sold at 2s. 6d.
GRANT and GASK.
50, 51, 52, 53, 54, and 55, Oxford-street; 1, 2, 3, and 3, Wells-street, London.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSEMAN,
Is appointment to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.
137, 138, and 137, Regent-street, London, W.
Manufactory, Hawick, Scotland. Patterns and Illustrations Sketch Books, Rural Costumes, Shooting Jackets, Waterproof Tweeds, Yachting and Knee Scarfs, Fine Tweeds, and Lisney Worsteds, for Ladies' Morning and Seaside Wear.
Patterns forwarded free.

THIS SEASON'S FASHIONS IN DRESS.—LADIES and the TRADE visiting London are respectfully invited to inspect the Stock of PETER ROBINSON, the leading style of all the LATEST NOVELTIES in DRESS, of British and Foreign Manufacture.
ALL the LATEST FASHIONS in JACKETS and MANTLES for SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.
Mantles, Cashmere, Shawls, and Scarfs in all the latest Designs.
Plain and Printed ALPACA LUSTRES, 9s. 11½., 10s. 9d.
Plain and Printed ALPACA LUSTRES, 9s. 11½., 10s. 9d.
A choice assortment of Fashionable and Reduced MOURNING DRESSES, from 10s. 9d. to 2 guineas, with jacket complete.
PETER ROBINSON.
A large assortment of FANCY SILK DRESSES, from 2½ to 11½ guineas, in the best, cheapest, and most fashionable colours.
Ribbons, Gloves, Hosiery, Haberdashery.
FAMILY AND COMPLIMENTARY MOURNING.
Drapery, Mantles, Millinery, Dressmaking, and Shawls by Agents of Trade Free.
Close on Saturday at Four o'Clock.
JAMES STEVENS, Manager for Ribbons and Small Silkmercers.
Draper, &c., 77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard.

FORD'S NEW JACKETS FOR LADIES, at 1 guinea, in Cashmere, Alpaca, Satin, and Velvet, with Braid, Fringe, Cloth, and Velvet, at various prices, all of which are marked in plain figures.—FORD'S, Pantheon, London.

FORD'S MARGEERITE JACKET, registered. Prize Illustrative of the shape and design of the Jacket now worn by the Empress of the French and Queen of Spain, is semi-fitting, may be worn open or closed, and is adapted, according to the material, for Morning, Seaside, Evening, or Dress Wear, and is made in Cashmere, Alpaca, &c. It is also specially suited to the exceptional requirements of married ladies. Ready in different sizes, in Black, Grey, Blue, Violet, Brown, Green, and Fawn, at 1 guinea.—FORD'S, Pantheon, Oxford-street and Co., 74, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RICH SILK MANTLES display the Newest Shapes and Greatest Variety of the Season in Black and Coloured Silks, from 6s. 6d. to 10 guineas. The New Grenadine Mantles, in Black and Coloured Silks, from 1 guinea to 5 guineas. Rich Silk Mantles, in Black and Coloured Silks, ready made, from £3.—Thomas Ford, 74, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S GUINEA JACKETS, to wear open or closed, beautifully braided; materials silk, satinette, and cloth, in various colours. The New Jacket, in Black Silk, with Jet Ornaments, Fringe, and Buttons, at 1 guinea.—Thomas Ford and Co., 74, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S HALF-GUINEA JACKETS, in Black and Coloured Satinette, Serge, and Cloth, for Morning Exercise, square or close cut-away. The New Jacket, in Black Satinette, with Fancy Braid and Buttons.—Thomas Ford, 74, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas the Suit. Quality and appearance guaranteed. Riding-trousers, 25s. per pair. Illustrations of the new Riding-habit, with Patterns of Cloth and Directions for Measurement, sent free.—Thomas Ford and Co., 74, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6d. the yard, made of bright Italian silk, with the appearance of rich Lyons Velvet. Patterns sent free.—Thomas Ford and Co., 74, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W. Early purchasers. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lombard-street, Finsbury-circus.

ANNUAL SALE, 250, 252, 252, REGENT-STREET.
ALLISON and CO. will commence SELLING on MONDAY, the 10th of July, their ANNUAL SALE of SILKS, Mantles, &c., being respectfully to call the attention of their customers and the public to the following extraordinary reduction of the great advance in price of all raw material, more especially of silk, which has taken place since the commencement of the present season, and which, in the ordinary course of trade, would necessitate, under these circumstances, will be considerably below the cost of production, and in many cases below the value.
Allison and Co., 250, 252, 252, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS.
Imperial Rich,
Duchesse and Glacé Royale Brilliant Black,
21 in. 2d. the Full Dress (14 yards).
24 in. 2s. 6d. the Full Dress (14 yards).
27 in. 3s. the Full Dress.
Grey de Venise, Grey d'Alma (reversible for mourning),
Grey Glacé Royale,
Coloured Silks, Fancy Dresses, Mantles, and Shawls,
in the newest productions for the season.
PETER and COMPANY, Hanbury-street, E.C.

MARRIAGE TROUSSEAUX and LAYETTES.—CHRISTIAS and RAYMOND respectfully call the attention of Ladies to their Illustrated Lists of Bedding, Bedding Furniture, and Linen, with the extent and practicability of materials for which their House has been noted for upwards of seventy years.
Christian and Raymond, 11, Wigmore-street, W.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, SHAWLS, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, 27 in. 2s.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, 27 in. 2s.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, 27 in. 2s.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, 27 in. 2s.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.
Patterns Free.
A large assortment of New Patterns, 27 in. 2d. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

MUSLINS and GRENADINES.
Printed and Striped Muslins. Patterns free.
New and Elegant Grenadines, 1 guinea the Dress.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW PARASOLS and SECULAR CLOAKING.
In Striped and Checked Materials, 1s. 6d.
Grenadine, Wool and Silk—a variety of Fancy Materials.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Linen of the Finest Quality, Long Cloths, Sheetings, Table Linen, Napkins, and Diaper.
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make and finest quality. A large assortment of Chemises, Nightdresses, Petticoats, Drawers, Stays, &c., ready-made, or to Order. Price-lists on application. Address "Ladies' Department," WHITECOCK and SON, 164, Strand.

INDIA OUTFITS and WEDDING TROUSSEAUX delivered Free to Ship or Railway Stations prices Price-lists on application.—WHITECOCK and SON, 164, Strand.

RHUMPOON CHUDDAH SHAWLS.
Of Unrivalled Elegance and Quality, as the India size which has just taken place, some very choice lots of these shawls, in Black and Coloured Grounds, with rich Embroidered Borders, at 10 guineas.
168, 169, and 197, Regent-street; 61 to 65, Conduit-street.

THE Celebrated SHREWSBURY and WATERPROOF TWEED SUITINGS, Trouserings, and Overcoatings, in all the new patterns.
J. B. and W. PHILLIPS, 97, Mardol, Shrewsbury.

SPECIAL NOTICE.
IMPORTANT PURCHASE OF LYONS SILKS. An important purchase (consisting of the entire Stock of one of the leading Silk Manufacturers of Lyons) of the richest Silks that have been offered, and includes many exquisite goods of this season's production, is now being sold at about half the value. The best and most reliable Silks that can be purchased are to be obtained in this house.—HOWELL, JAMES and CO., have great pleasure in inviting special attention to these rich, useful, and fashionable Silks, of enormous dimensions, the greater proportion of which will be found to be of Full Dress Length, their wide width ranging from 2 to 3½ inches each.
Howell, James and Co., 4 and 5, Regent-street, Waterloo-place.

LITTLE and RADERMACHER'S 183 and 184, Oxford-street, are now selling the whole of their former Stock of SILKS, Shawls, Dresses, &c., at greatly reduced prices.

SEWELL and COX'S NEW MANTLES and JACKETS in all the most prevailing styles of the season, Cashmere, Alpaca, Satin, and Velvet.
Sewell and Cox, Silkmercers, Finsbury-square, E.C.

MINIES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of Suitable Mantles Antiques, Shawls, Dresses, and Millinery, in the Establishment.—Sewell and Cox, Compton House, Finsb-square, and Old Compton-street, Soho, W.

BONNETS.—MARES and GAVELL have the honour to inform the Nobility that they have RECEIVED, in Trafic, Crape, French Flowers, and Ornaments for mourning, the Newest Shapes and Styles for the Season.
Mares and Gavell, 19, Regent-street.

VERY IMPORTANT TO TAILORS.
Just published, WITH ALL THE NEW STYLES OF DRESS, from 8s. to 11s.
Trade Price, 6s. 6d.
Close on Saturday at Four o'Clock.
JAMES STEVENS, Manager for Ribbons and Small Silkmercers.
Draper, &c., 77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, ready-made or made to order, at moderate prices.—JOHN and JAMES DAKIN, Hosiers, 53, Cheapside.
CAPPER and WATKINS, 76, Regent-street, London, S.W.

TO TOURISTS.—IMPROVED PATENT VOLT-AMETER, Weight 2 ounces, Measures Current Strength, arms are entirely relieved from pressure.—N. WILTON PHILLIPS, 32, Berners-street, Oxford-street, Manufacturing Electrician, London.

COSTS PATENT ELASTIC CALISTHENIC CREST EXPANDER, used in THE ROYAL FAMILY, pronounced by the Faculty of Medicine and Clergy important, a healthy development of the frame, and promotes vigorous circulation of the blood.—Costs, 2, Leicester-square.
Illustrations of the Expander, with Testimonials from Eminent Persons in Music, Cost, &c., Bazar-street, Portman-square, London, W.

THE SUMMER SUN and DUST.—LADIES are recommended to use ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, which both cooling and refreshing to the face and hands, allaying all heat and irritation, and rendering the skin soft, clear, and blooming. Ask for ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, 20, Hatton-garden, Holborn, and 93, Piccadilly, and 67, Brompton-road, London. Sold everywhere.

SWEET ODOPONAX.—PIESSE and LUBIN'S NEW PERFUME.—Odoponax is a native flower of Africa, of exquisite fragrance. Sold by PIESSE and LUBIN, 2, New Bond-street, and 24, Boulevard des Italiens, Paris.

PIESSE and LUBIN'S NEW FLOWER.—The Perfume of the Lily of the Valley is the most delicate and refreshing of all the natural flowers, and is the favourite of the season, and gents give it the preference, for it refreshes the memory.—PIESSE and LUBIN, 2, New Bond-street, London, and 24, Boulevard des Italiens, Paris.—Only in single sealed bottles, 2s.—2, New Bond-street, W.

FOR ALL SORTS OF FLOWER SHOWS, Fêtes, Bridesmaids and Bridemaids.—W. and J. SANGSTER respectfully invite the attention of the Nobility, Gentry, Stewards of Flower Shows, Committees, and Ladies about to be married to their extensive and choice assortment of Bridal Wreaths, Bouquets, Head-dresses, Ball Bouquets, &c. W. and J. Sangster, 140, Regent-street, W. Parisian Bridal Depôt for the present season.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Carpets, Jewellery, Plate, Musical Instruments, Guns, Libraries, &c., by A. DAVIS, 7, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., streets and districts. Established 1837. Purchase Wednesday. Agents, Thatcher, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; 1st, Parcels being sent, Post-office orders requested the same day. Note.—Private visits.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property. Ladies and Gentlemen waited upon at their residences. Letter, Mr. or Mrs. D. DAVIS, 16, Marylebone-lane, Oxford-street, W. Parcels being sent, Post-office orders remitted. Established 1850.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, JULY 1, 1865.

71.2009.084.10034